Insurance on Volunteers!

The agitation regarding the policies on the lives of our Volunteers has induced many persons to read their policies for the first time. Too many of our volunteers have found that their policies are null and void just when they are most needed. It is true that some companies return the small amount paid in premiums in case the insured be killed during the rebellion, but this is a mean trade. These brave men are risking their lives for the defence of our country, they make no profit by going, but are in fact losing, and it is terrible to think that many are also forfeiting their life policies, and if killed will leave their wives and children to the cold charities of the world. The policies of probably the majority of companies doing business in Canada become null and void in case of death during the rebellion, still nearly many of them, AS AN ACT OF GRACE, have voluntarily stated they will hold them good. It is at a time like this that the UNCONDITIONAL policies of the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA are appreciated. They cover every risk. It is not a matter of option with the management, for the policy is clear. There is no excuse for accepting a policy with numerous small print conditions when you can get an UNCONDITIONAL ONE in the SUN.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

"Then you give me no help whatever, Mr. Strachey? You my I must part with no money, no pictures, no anything?"

"You can from time to time make her a handsome present."

"She would not take it. Mr. Strachey, I am a very unhappy girl" and in this frame of mind Lucy made her way home.

CHAPTER VII

If Lucy could have been happy anywhere she must have been so at Calderwater. It was the most beautiful place she had ever seen. The Grange was an old-fashioned white-washed house, overgrown with roses and honeysuckles. It was charmingly picturesque, and withal most comfortable. It stood on a sloping hill-side, overlooking the lake, and beyond the lake was the mountain pass, guarded by one of the finest mountains of the district. There was a good deal of land attached to the house, and Lucy could watch her own sleek, dappled cows feeding in her own rich pastures, could see them come trooping to the "byre" at the welcome milking hour, could count her white dots of sheep on the fell sides, feed her own pigeons and poultry, and lose her way in her own wood. A very pretty wood sheltered Calder Grange from all but gentle winds. It was full of wild flowers and ferns, and a tiny mountain stream came tumbling down a rocky bed from the heights of the fell above and made its way through it. All in this wood was left to nature—the trees had been thinned here and there, and winding paths cut, or miniature bridges built, and that was all.

For one week Lucy explored her new territory with increasing delight. "I think," she said, "I could live here for ever, without caring to see any human being but you, Aunt Esther. There is only one thing that makes me unhappy here, and that is those birds. They sing so joyously from morning until night that they end by making me miserable. I can't be so happy as they are—that's what they make me feel!"

The Mostyns came to pay a long visit at Calder Grange. Lucy waited for them at the lodge, and when the carriage drove up she was leaning meditatively against the great gate.

"Well, Lucy," cried Mrs. Mostyn, alighting, "how do you like the feeling of looking over your own gate? Philip says that that is one of the great joys of ownership!"

"I like the feeling of ownership immensely," said Lucy, "if only I had not the consciousness that I had gained it at the expense of other people."

"Oh, those stupid Richmonds, you mean," cried Mrs. Lettice.

"Now, Lucy, have done with such nonsense," said Mr. Mostyn. "The place is yours! If you really can't be happy till you have given it up to some one who envies you the possession of it, begin with me. If everybody who succeeded to an estate ran about offering the greater part of what he had got to everyone who chose to think he had a better claim to it, the whole country would be turned topsey-turvey."

"Yes, really, my dear child," added his wife; "I think I never heard anything so idiotic in my life as that expedition of yours to Mrs. Richmond! Be thankful that you came out of it so well." Lucy sighed.

"Lucy, you were always tete montee," said Philip kindly. "You should have consulted Lettice."

Some days passed—very happy days.—Lucy showed all the beauties of her gardens and woods and fields to Lettice, who admired them heartily; but she drew the lines at the cows and poultry, and refused to commend them for anything but their utility. At last, too, Lettice grew tired of woods and fields and "outside things," and said, "Let us stay in the house this morning."

"Very well," said Lucy, and she seated herself by the window, and began silently to admire the mountain before her.

"Is that mountain yours, Lucy?" said Lettice.

"No," replied Lucy

"Then why on earth do you spend your time in looking at it? I would not. Let us spend our time in doing something nice. Have you looked into all the drawers and cupboards yet?"

"No," said Lucy, "it makes me so melancholy. I don't like turning over things which belonged to dead people."

"Nonsense! People can't live for ever. And how horribly crowded and disagreeable the world would be if they did. I like this house of yours—it is one of the most comfortable places I ever saw, but I wonder you don't explore a little. I have always wished some one would leave me a great house like this full of unexplored cabinets. Think how nice it would be to open drawer after drawer, and find diamond necklaces and ear-rings, and enamelled portraits of lovely ladies set in diamonds and pearls. The thing which always worries me is to know how far it would be right for me to take these pearls and diamonds off the portraits to make something pretty to wear myself. You see, after all, they do them—the ladies—you know, no good."

Lucy laughed, and said, "You surely do not give much time to the question?"

"Yes, I do, when I think about it. Come, we are doing nothing; let us open that marquetry affair in the corner, and see what we can discover in it."

They found the key, they opened the cabinet; inside it in a pigeon-hole they saw bundles of yellow-looking letters tied up with ribbon which might once have been blue or green or any color, but was now dull white. Lucy exclaimed, "They are from the other Miss Clavering!"—for thus was Mr. Kenrick's lost love now always designated.

"If I were you I'd burn them."

"It would be more respectful, perhaps," said Lucy touching them with tender reverence.

"It would be a great deal more sensible! Letters of that kind are always silly, and every one thinks so but the person who receives them. Stay! is this her portrait?"

It was a well-painted miniature of Miss Clavering, and it really did resemble Lucy.

"I have a great mind to pass my time in traveling as a matter of speculation?" cried Mrs. Mostyn. "But after all, one might spend a life-time and not have the good luck you had. What are you looking at so mournfully? Let me see. Portrait of my sister Susan in her youth."—That is Mr. Kenrick's writing I suppose," and so saying Lettice took from Lucy's hand a sheet of paper containing a miniature, a few faded flowers and a lock of hair.

"You see he did not love her!" said Lucy.

"My word! but she does look a Tartar!" cried Lettice. Things did strike the two girls so differently.

"Portrait of poor Susan's boy." This was written on another packet and when they opened it they saw the likeness of a good-tempered, fine-looking boy of nine, and a lock of soft young hair.

"Oh, do shut up all these things!" cried Lettice, for she saw that Lucy was beginning to make herself miserable over the thought that Mr. Kenrick would not have preserved these portraits so carefully if he had not had a very tender feeling for the originals; and if so, why had he preferred a stranger before them? "Shut up those things, Lucy, and look here," and she pulled out a large bunch of seals.—That is what they used to dangle at their 'fobs,' as they called them, and there is one of their turnips of watches! I daresay it was Mr. Kenrick's father's. I always think those dear old gentlemen ought to have been grateful to the footpads and highwaymen who relieved them of such unwieldly burdens."

This new drawer was almost filled with things labelled as belonging to "my dear mother." Her pomander box was there, and her equipage. This last was a pretty little enamelled box with scissors, thimble, needle-case and scent-bottle, made to hang to the waistband. Her fan was there, her wedding ring, a bonbonniere, and a ring or two, but the principal articles of jewelry were absorbed in the large collection in London. "Mrs. Richmond ought to have everyone of these things!" cried Lucy. "Think of a perfect stranger having all these keepsakes and all these pocket-books too! I can't keep them! She shall have them! At every turn I am reminded of the injustice I have done these people!"

"Nonsense, Lucy! No doubt she got her share of her mother's things, and if she did not, she can't have these! You are to forfeit all you have if you give up any part of it, and you surely would not lose all you have for the sake of giving a few faded gimcracks to a cross old woman with a great deal more ill-temper than sentiment about her? You would be very silly!"

"No one can accuse you of sentiment, Lettice!"

"I don't know. I am sensible just now because you are so foolish; on other occasions I have my due share of the useless commodity! Come, we have made a dismal morning for ourselves with this stupid old cabinet! Shut it up, and let us go out."

They went into the garden, and on into the wood. Lucy still looked as if she had not forgotten the contents of the cabinet. Mrs. Mostyn set herself the task of dissipating this cloud. "I wish to make two remarks to you Miss Lucy," said she.—"One is that Mr. Kenrick's behavior to his sister shows that she must have treated him very ill, and that he could not forget it—and the moral of that is, mind that you always treat your sister well, and obey her. The other is, life is short, and short is the time in which we can be happy!—That over, we are huddled out of sight, and all of our little treasures are stuffed away too, perhaps into the pigeon-holes of some old marquetry cabinet. You will be very simple if you let that happen to you without your having some happiness in the meantime! Now, really, with this lovely place, and with all the nice things you have, you ought to be the happiest girl in the world!"

"I know I ought, and I will try to forget about these Richmond's—after all, it was not my fault."

"Of course it was not! You will soon find you have enough to do with repenting your own sins. I have, I can assure you! Come, let us enjoy this sweet place. I think I like your London house better, though—I don't believe I really like the country—at least, I don't want more of it than I have at Haselwood. You have a great deal too much of it here! All your birds and beasts come far too close to the house, and so do the trees. They bring those odious midges and all that endless noise of birds—my life is a burden to me with your midges, Lucy! In fact, I think I hate a place where insect and animal life is so rampant as it is here! Men and women are quite pushed out of the world! What with the midges biting, and the wasps crawling about the carpets and stinging one's feet if one forgets to put a pair of slippers on, and one's fingers every time one picks any thing up, and the doves and pigeons cooh-cooing from daybreak till dusk, all about nothing too, and the hens making such an idiotic fuss every time they lay a common egg, and your ill-tempered old turkeys gobbling, and rooks cawing, and geese and cows and pigs and donkeys conversing incessantly in their own very unseemly language—one can't get a moment's rest! Talk of the quiet of the country, what a mistake! I like a place where everything is not given up to birds and beasts and insects! London is the best place! You have nothing to cope with there, but the noise of human beings and carriages! Lucy, let us go to London for a week or two."

The truth was that Mrs. Mostyn had come to the conclusion that in Lucy's present excitable and uncomfortable frame of mind, Calder Grange was a most undesirable place of residence for her and wanted to get away to some place where she could have more change of scene, and less time to torment herself with her own thoughts. Lucy quite understood this—quite saw the drift of all Lettice's rambling and pathetic lamentations—but she wished to stay where she was and said so. She had made up her mind to stay at Calder Grange till November, and she begged Lettice not to try to persuade her to leave it, for her decision was unalterable."

"Well, I have said my say, and you do not agree with me; but you would be much happier if you moved about more."

"I am going into the village with Aunt Esther almost directly."

"Flannel-petticoating!" said Lettice "I got enough of that at home. I flannel-petticoated and stockinged every old woman in the place before I came away. I shall never forget how fluffy the air was for hours after it was over! Give me a book and shut the windows, for those birds of yours deafen me. Now go to your old women. I am all right here."

Lucy and Aunt Esther walked into the village. They wanted to see one of the cottagers who was doing some work for the Grange establishment. The morning was still in full beauty, and the tender lights and shadows on the mountain before them were an exquisite pleasure to both. Their path lay through the wood, and most lovely it was to watch the sunlight forcing its way through the waving green leaves above and to catch glimpses of the silver-shining lake and the sunlit mists still clinging to the mountain. "Lettice says she hates the country, and wants me to go away somewhere," said Lucy; "but, Aunt Esther, let us make our home here. I had no idea there was such a lovely place in the world as this. I could not bring myself to leave it."

They reached the village and the house of which they were in search. A white-capped Cumbrian dame, cleanly, comely, and industrious, sat knitting in her own picturesque porch; her seat was a slab of grey slate. She took them into her cottage and into the best room, which had not known what an open window was for weeks. Grey slate was plenty good enough for her to sit on, but the ladies must go in.

"And how are times with you, Mrs. Crosthwaite?" inquired Aunt Esther, when the business part of the visit was over.

"In a middling way, ma'am; nothing to boast of."

"You have not let your rooms yet," said Lucy.

"No, ma'am—not yet—perhaps not at all."

"How is that?" asked Aunt Esther, "I thought you were sure to let—such nice rooms, and such a splendid view! Oh, you are sure to let them!"

"Well, ma'am, I may, but then I may not. Are you not going to spend the summer here, Miss Clavering, ma'am? I hope you don't think it over bold of me to ask."

"I," said Lucy in some surprise; "yes, I am going to stay here."

"You will be here the whole summer, ma'am?"

"Most likely, and perhaps autumn and winter, too."

"Mrs. Crosthwaite did not look as if the news were altogether acceptable to her; she made a sound between a low grunt and a groan, and said, "Well, that is a good stay!"

"It is so pretty here," said Lucy.

"Yes, it's pretty, there's no denying that!" The good woman's eyes had strayed away to some large, flat, deal cases in one corner, and now she was looking ruefully at them.

"What nice, clean-looking "packages!" said Aunt Esther. "What are they? Some commercial traveler's things?"

"Nay, nay, nothing o' that sort, not they! They belong to an artiss—a painter he called himself. He was making picturs here last year."

Lucy felt suddenly interested: she earnestly hoped that Aunt Esther would not ask his name, for she was almost certain that she knew it. She wanted to hear more.

"He was an industrious gentleman.—Early and late and late and early, he was always on the go. And the splendid picturs he did paint! It was just for all the world as if you had shut up the trees and mountains in a pictur-frame for anyone to look at."

"And you are expecting him back here I suppose?" said Aunt Esther. "I am glad of that."

"Well, I expect him and I don't expect him! You said you should be here till the back end, Miss Clavering!"

Lucy felt a strange thrill of vexation and discomfort. In a moment she had understood all. This was where Mr. Richmond had lodged before and now he wanted to come again, but not if she were at the Grange. "My stay is uncertain," said she: "I may go sooner. I might be obliged to go at once."

Mrs. Crosthwaite's face brightened visibly. "I was sure you would never stop the whole year here! I said so"—and then she looked confused, and reddened, as if ashamed she had said so much.

"I suppose," said Lucy, artfully, "this gentleman sometimes paints about the Grange—in the gardens and woods. I daresay he would feel more free to go about as he likes if the house were empty?"

"Yes, I think that's it."

Lucy was in great terror lest Aunt Esther, who was manifestly much puzzled, should ask his name. She made her a sign to say nothing: she did not want this Mrs. Crosthwaite to be able to tell Mr. Richmond that Miss Clavering had guessed who wanted to come. If possible his name must not be mentioned between them. "He, perhaps, asked you," said Lucy, "to write and tell him when the house was unoccupied again, and then he would come and finish what he had begun? Did he not?" for now she remembered that Mr. Fraser had told her that Mr. Richmond was busy with a large picture he could not finish.

"He did so. He is terrible set on getting end ways with it! Terrible disappointed at not being able to get on with it. It is of great consequence to him, he says, and I dare say it is, for you see he has his living to get. Uphill work it must be for him to get his living with that, poor gentleman."

"Of course I should have no objection to his painting in the garden or grounds," said Lucy; and then she stopped to see how this speech affected, Mrs. Crosthwaite—that is, if she knew the story and was bound down to secrecy. A certain fidgetiness, taken in conjunction with her silence, soon satisfied Lucy that this was the case, and that the good woman would reveal nothing; so she added, "But no doubt it is pleasanter to paint when the house is shut up. There is less fear of interruption."

"There is less fear of interruption," echoed Mrs. Crosthwaite. "Tha's jus it Miss Clavering, it's interruption he is so particular afraid of."

"Well, it is quite possible whether I like it or not I may have to go away from this place, and that at once. If I do go, I shall not come back until next year—but it all depends on a letter. Good afternoon, Mrs. Crosthwaite! You will do me my work whether I go or stay, won't you?"

"Lucy, I don't understand you a bit," said Aunt Esther, as soon as they were outside. "I let you say what you liked and held my tongue, for I saw you wished me to do so, but do tell me what you mean?"

"Don't you understand? Mr. Richmond wants to come here to finish that drawing Mr. Fraser told us about, and he won't come whilst I am here!"

"Mr. Richmond, and Mr. Richmond's mother, and Mr. Richmond's drawings are perfect nuisances," said Aunt Esther, warmly. "Wherever we go, and whatever we do, we are worried by some of them!"

"I won't stay here!" cried Lucy; "his drawings are what he lives by. If I have deprived him of his inheritance, I need not prevent him from earning his living."

"Surely there are plenty of places where he can paint beside this."

"He has got his pictures half done, and you don't know how these people place their hearts on particular places; Mr. Fraser has often talked to me about that. Anyhow, reasonable or unreasonable, he shall have his way; I cannot enjoy myself now that I know that my being here keeps him away."

Aunt Esther was afraid to oppose this; she saw that Lucy was resolute, and knew that whenever there was a chance of appeasing her conscience, by making some sacrifice for them Richmond's she was immovable. Even Mrs. Mostyn could not touch her, though she sharpened and used every bolt in her armory.

"Then you turn us all out of your house when we had come to pay you a long visit!" said she in pretended anger and dismay.

"Dear Lettice, forgive me; you know the reason. It can only happen once. He will come and finish what he has begun here and will never return, or if he does, he must take his chance, for I can't go away again to please him. This time humor me—you know that you advised me to get away—let us spend some of Mr. Kenrick's riches in a delightful tour. You and Philip must be my guests while we are away—where shall we go?" The affair now assumed a different aspect. Lettice no longer opposed; in fact she was charmed with the idea. All the party were summoned to sit together in solemn council at four o'clock that very afternoon, to decide whither to go and what to do.—Many were the proposals made. Some were for Norway, some for Scotland, others for the Tyrol. Dalmatia and Cyprus also received votes; but suddenly Philip Mostyn rose up in his strength and said, "Why should we not go somewhere in your yacht, Lucy?"

Lucy started; she had forgotten she had one. "Why of course we will! What a delightful idea!"

"Are we all good sailors?" asked Lettice, not unwisely. Nobody knew anything about that; the only way to answer the question was to go and see."

"Let me go to Haselwood, Lettice, and take care of your children while you are away," said Aunt Esther.

"Indeed you shall not," cried Lucy—"When we go away for pleasure you must be one of us."

"How long shall we be absent?"

"Until we are all tired."

"Where shall we go?"

"See how the wind is when we get on board."

"How does one set a yacht a-going asked Lucy.

"I'll manage that," replied Philip, and ran away to write his orders.

CHAPTER VIII.

The yacht had been set in motion, and was now anchored at St. Malo under Fort Solidor. Lucy and her sister were sitting on a heap of shawls on the deck, sketching the picturesque old dungeon. Mr. Mostyn had gone into the town to look about a little, and get the letters; Aunt Esther was taking a nap, and calling it "just running her eye over a novel. Lucy spoke. "I do wonder at any one who can afford a yacht, ever living on shore! I never felt so happy or comfortable anywhere as I do here!"

"There were some comforts to be had at Calder Grange," said Lettice.

"Oh, yes; but this is such a delightfully free, independent life. Just think of having a floating house of one's own, with all one's home comforts about one, and being able to anchor it anywhere and put on one's hat and go and see the life of another country and come back in an hour or two, to a movable bit of old England. It is something too fascinating! From the first moment I came on board and saw the captain and his twelve nice blue-jerseyed men with 'Dorothea' embroidered on their breasts, all ready to take us into any port in the world, and to give their lives for us and the 'Dorothea,' if it were needed, I felt at home and happy. It is a pleasure to me every time my eyes fall on that exquisitely clean deck."

"Hm! I feel offended when they mop up my poor little footsteps if I happen to come back with a damp boot."

"I don't. I like their devotion to their deck. I dropped my paint brush an hour ago, and I believe the mate was afraid it would make a dint in the boards. I am sure he was, he looked so anxious."

The "Dorothea" was a beautiful specimen of what the Messieurs White and Lapthorne can do. Many a time, her skipper, who saw in her a realization of every beauty dreamed of by poet or painter, who loved her as men love their wives and children, who justified his love by declaring there was nothing she could not do but speak—many a time he sighed and said, "She would have been absolutely perfect if her masts had been one inch nearer together!" The "Dorothea," so called after "the other Miss Clavering," was a schooner of 140 tons, and her crew consisted of the captain and twelve sailors. Since Lucy and her party came on board they had seen many a picturesque place. They had lightly skimmed the surface of a perfectly smooth sea when they crossed from Cowes to Dieppe. They had sailed to Havre, and had run inland to see Rouen, and had run back again in a fright because the inn-book bore the name of Robert Merivale on its last page. "One is so safe in one's own yacht!" said Lucy, when she thought of his proximity to herself. "He cannot come here."

Lettice watched Lucy most narrowly after this remote encounter. She did not seem to be so much disturbed by it as might have been expected. She had been to Caen and Cherbourg, Jersey and Guernsey, since, and had enjoyed herself in all these places, and now she seemed quite happy with her "paints and papers." The saloon of the "Dorothea" was already very pretty. Lucy was trying to make it still prettier by painting some of the panels.—She had done one and was now throwing herself heartily into the work. "Lettice," said she, "I want to get to the Grand Bey. I am sure we should get the best view there; besides, we ought to see Chateaubriand's tomb."

Frightful Waste.

Consumption carries off its thousands of victims every year. Yes, thousands of human lives are being wasted that might be saved, for the fact is now established that consumption, in its early stages, is curable. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will, if used in time, effect a permanent cure. It has no equal as a remedy for bronchitis, coughs and colds. Its efficacy has been proved in thousands of cases. All druggists.

A REMARKABLE SET.

A farmer sawing wood, thought he ought to have the help of one or more of his boys. Lifting up his voice he called, but not a boy appeared. At dinner, of course, all appeared, and it was not necessary to call them. "Where were you all about two hours ago when I wanted you, and shouted for you?" "I was in the shop settin' the saw," said one. "And I was in the barn settin' a hen," said the second. "I was in gran'ma's room settin' the clock," said the third. "I was in the garret settin' the trap," said the fourth. "You are a remarkable set," remarked the farmer. "And where were you?" he continued, turning to the youngest. "I was on the door-step, settin' still."

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other compounds are so handsome in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and effected me the most speedy cure for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 67 years old, hale and hearty, and am entirely your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me."

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRADDOX."
Palestine, Texas, April 28, 1885.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

A True Statement.

"Kind words can never die," and there are none but kind words spoken regarding Hagyard's Yellow Oil, that old reliable remedy for external and internal use. It cures rheumatism, deafness, croup, sore throat, and all soreness and wounds of the flesh.

Four leading Nationalists will contest Tyrone at the coming elections, and attempt to carry all the seats. Parnell will contest South Tyrone.

Nearly every winter I am laid up with Rheumatism, and have tried nearly every kind of medicine without getting any benefit, until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It has worked wonders for me, and I want another supply for my friends, &c."

THE EFFECT OF CULTURE.

Boston Girl (to Uncle James, a farmer)—Do you like living on a farm, Uncle James?

Uncle James—Yes, I like it very much.

Boston Girl—I suppose it is nice enough in the glad summer time, but to go in the cold and snow to gather winter apples at 4 harvest winter wheat I imagine might be anything but pleasant.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

For Children and Pulmonary Troubles.

Dr. W. S. Hoy, Point Pleasant, W. Va., says: "I have made a thorough test with Scott's Emulsion in Pulmonary troubles and general debility, and have been astonished at the good results, and as a remedy for children with Rickets or Marasmus, it is unequalled."

A FAIR EXCHANGE IN TOOTHBRUSHES NO ROBBERY.

"I can't find my toothbrush anywhere," said a Cottage Hill young lady, looking all over the house for the article.

"I'll len' you mine," accommodatingly suggested the colored kitchen girl.

"Oh, no, thanks!" replied the young lady, turning away.

"You needn't hab no combustion about takin' it, miss," persisted the girl, "for I'll used yours sometimes when I couldn't find mine."

Gen. Custer as a Ladies' Man.

Gen. Custer was very fond of ladies' society, but was never what is called a "married flirt." He enjoyed the society of ladies because they were pretty, or bright, or intelligent. He was too true to his wife ever to have been a flirt. He visited the house of a young lady friend of mine very frequently when he was in New York; they had known each other for years, and were the best of friends. The waiter, William, being a new hand at the door, evidently took Gen. Custer for a beau of his young mistress, and to her great amusement always announced "the general" in the most confidential whisper and just the faintest suspicion of an approving smile. Gen. Custer said that his manner to him was that of a servant to a probable master. One day at the dinner table, the young lady asked particularly after Mrs. Custer, when she was coming to New York, etc., etc. Well-bred servant that he was, William almost dropped the dish he was passing, and his complexion from charcoal turned to mahogany. I think he was very much disappointed, for he greatly admired the brave cavalryman, and from that day out he announced in formal tones, "Gen. Custer!" as though there had never been such a person as "the general" of his dreams.—Washington Independent.

Edward Gould has completed fifty years of service as Cashier of what is now the National Traders' Bank of Portland, Me. He was first elected Cashier on March 9, 1833, when the institution was called the Manufacturer's and Traders' Bank. Mr. Gould is 76 years old, and in excellent health.

SENSIBLE LONDON.

The owner of some tenement property in London was lately fined $156 for failing to keep it in proper order. He appealed, but only to be told that he was really liable to a fine of $700.

GROWTH OF THE OPIUM HABIT.

The opium habit is growing more extensive every day. Two score years ago only 39,000 pounds of opium were imported into this country. During the past year the importation exceeded 1,750,000 pounds. This rapid increase in importation tells its own story.

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

In spring the want of a restorative to tone up the general health is a common experience, especially among those constitutions impaired by age or disease. Prolonged cold weather, want of out-door life and sunshine, lower the vitality, diminish the red globules of the blood and interrupt the nutrition of the tissues. By promoting digestion and assimilation of food and securing increase of nerve force and muscular energy, the use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA will bring up constitutional vigor to its normal plane. 11-13t

THE WORLD'S SEVEN BIBLES.

The seven Bibles of the world are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Tri Pitikes of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the three Vedes of the Hindoos, the Zendavesta and the Scriptures of the Christians. The Koran is the most recent of them, dating about the seventh century after Christ.

An Important Discovery.

The most important Discovery is that which brings the most good to the greatest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, will preserve the health and save life, and is a priceless boon to the afflicted. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, yield at once to its wonderful curative powers. If you doubt this, get a Trial Bottle Free, at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store.

THREE DIFFICULT THINGS.

Josh Billings remarks: "After several years uv reflection I have come to the konklusion that the three most difficult things in life are: First, carryin' an armful of live eels up a steep hill without spillin' an eel; second, aktin' as a reference at a dog fight without gettin' mad; third, editin' a newspaper, and the last is harder than the fust."

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN Station D, New York Ct.

A SUCCESSFUL DEPARTURE.

Country editor (to minister)—I hear that you preached yesterday on "Save My Lambs," Mr. B.

Minister—Yes.

Country editor—Would you mind giving me a synopsis of the sermon for this week's issue? We have just added an agricultural department to the paper, and it's catching the farmers right and left.

A HINT WORTH HEEDING. Life loses half its zest when digestion is permanently impaired. Surely then a speedy means of restoring this essential of bodily comfort is worth trying. Every rank, every profession, bears its quota of evidence to the beneficent influence upon the stomach, and also upon the liver, bowels and kidneys, of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, or celebrated Blood Purifier. What is the wise course suggested to the sick by this testimony? We leave them to decide.

SHE WAS KIND O' PARTICULAR.

Mrs. Yergar, of Austin, rebuked her servant, Matilda Snowball, for being too fond of company.

"You have four or five men visiting you every night in the kitchen. That will never do."

"Dat's all right. Dey all wants ter marry me. I don't low none oders ter hang round de premises."

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box, by Taylor & McDonald.

FIRST-CLASS MUSICAL INSTRUMENT FOR WOMAN.

"My wife," said Jones, "is an excellent performer on the jewsharp."

"Why," said Smith, "it's a singular instrument for a woman to play on."

"Beats all the instruments, though, that woman generally play on."

"How's that?"

"Why, she can't talk or sing while she is playing."

For coughs, colds, bronchitis and all lung and throat troubles, there is no preparation of medicine can compare with Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It never fails to afford prompt and permanent relief. It removes all soreness, and heals the diseased parts. It immediately soothes the most troublesome cough, and by promoting expectoration, removes the mucus which stops up the air tubes, which causes difficulty in breathing, thereby gives relief to that depressing tightness experienced in the chest. Public speakers and singers will find Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup of inestimable value, as it speedily and effectually allays all irritation, and huskiness in the throat and bronchial tubes, and gives power to the vocal cords, rendering the voice clear and sonorous. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to directions.

WHAT INDUSTRY WILL DO.

A journeyman baker in Paris named Galle, a man without education and unacquainted with any foreign language, entered the class for Hebrew at the Louvre School in April, 1884, and six months later outstripped nineteen other pupils who had entered the school long before him. He is now able to read and explain the Hebrew Bible at sight, and every Friday afternoon goes to study Hebrew texts at the school and then returns modestly to his work.

GLEANINGS.

People laughed at roller skating when first introduced. Now it is a paying investment all over the country.

Stanley, the explorer, has received ninety-five resolutions of thanks and 150 complimentary dinners, and is not dead yet.

There is not a single lawyer among the 1,000 convicts in the Virginia Penitentiary. Virginia lawyers seldom get found out.

The highest priced clock in America is owned by a Wall street broker in New York. It cost $34,000, and was made in that city.

Pneumatic tubes, through which are transmitted letters, papers and telegrams, have just been introduced between all the sub-postoffices and the main office in Paris.

Brunettes are said to be preferred to blondes as Treasury clerks at Washington. They are steadier at their desks, and less liable to hysterics when the Chief Clerk speaks sharply.

Mrs. Langtry is said to have the most beautiful shoulders and back of any woman on the stage. The Jersey Lily has photographs taken of her shapely back as it is seen upon the stage, and its beauty is marvelous.

London, with its 4,000,000 inhabitants, does twice as much telegraphing as Paris and three times as much as New York. It has 10,000 miles of underground conductors and not a telegraph pole in the street.

A close observer says that nothing exasperates a woman who has been shading her eyes from the gaslight with her hand all the evening so much as to find that after all she had left her best diamond ring on the washstand.

There is on exhibition in a window on School street, Boston, a squash which girts 7x6½ feet and weighs 166 pounds. It was grown in Nova Scotia, and the owner of it last year raised one that turned the scales at 292 pounds.

Writing from Lynn, Mass., a correspondent reminds the Scientific American that, as an instance of a remarkable flight of an exploded boiler, about two years ago a boiler exploded in that city, and the flying portion, describing a circle high in the air, landed 900 feet from where it started.

"Are you a consumptive? Stay at home, make your will, be happy and comfortable and try and live as long as you can. Study up the climate of Florida and keep away if you have been expectorating blood." This is the advice given by Dr. Bushrod W. Jones, in Sanitary Gleanings.

A doctor claims to have discovered a way to prevent the ravages of phylloxera, from which the grape-growing districts of France have been suffering so seriously of late years. Experiments with the use of arsenic have proved successful, and the doctor is making still others upon a larger scale. Much public interest is felt in the experiments, and their result is awaited with eager hope.

M. Urueta, in a recent paper about snakes, relates that in Colombia their chief destroyers are two species of birds—the calabrero and gaucabo—and the cats and hogs. The latter are supposed to be protected from the sting on account of their adipose tissue. Cats receive bad sores from the venom, but do not die. The writer saw a cat eat the heads and tails of two large ones; its wounded places ulcerated, but soon healed.

"A remarkable tenor voice," says the Baltimore American, "attracted much attention from those who attended the Plenary Council services at the cathedral. It belongs to Father O'Keefe, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, of Philadelphia. He is not only a fine vocalist, but he is a theoretical musician. The range of his high notes extends to C flat, which he takes easily and not only holds at length, but executed an impromptu cadenza of delicate trills, touching again this high note."

The Salt Lake Tribune says the Mormons install their wives as hired girls, and so escape acknowledgment of polygamy.

The faculty of recollecting faces and facts is of great value to the politician, but, while many claim it, few really possess it. Justice Harlan, of the Supreme Court, has it in a wonderful degree; Governor Hamilton, of Maryland, has long been famous for it, and one of the great elements of the hold which Representative Talbott, of Maryland, has upon his constituents is said to be in the fact that he knows by name almost every man, woman and child in his county.

A handsome German girl, fresh from Rhineland, was up before a New Jersey justice on a charge of desertion. Through an interpreter she said she didn't know she was married, the old Dutchman claiming her having told her that was the way servants were hired in this country. The learned justice said it made no difference what she thought; she was married anyhow, and must obey her husband. She at once declared she would return to Germany, where no fellow could marry her without her knowing something about it.

Joaquin Miller, after hesitating some time whether he would become a dude or a Socialist, appears to have gone off on the latter tangent. He is demanding that the fences around Stuyvesant Park be torn down. "Do you want to fence up the pure air?" he shouts, somewhat extravagantly. Certainly not. Be calm and reasonable. There is no fence around Madison Park. Go up there and sit on a bench, and live on peanuts and play with the children. Then mayhap you may become a poet, or a philosopher or something. Since Joaquin Miller has become a newspaper man he carries a daily paper in his hip pocket and two Boston papers stuck in his wampum belt, and goes about looking for gore like the untamed correspondent of the plains.

General Robert E. Schenck appointed the present General Crook to West Point. Speaking of the matter recently he said: "I had looked over the district to find a bright lad to nominate to West Point. I finally remembered that Squire Crook, a fine old Whig farmer, and a friend of mine, had two boys. and I sent word for him to come to Dayton. He came in, and I inquired if he had a spare boy he'd like to send off to West Point. After studying a while he said he did not know but he had. I suggested that he send him in. The boy sent was exceedingly uncommunicative. He had not a stupid look but was quiet to reticence. He did not seem to have the slightest interest or anxiety about any proposal. I explained to him the requirements and the labors of the military schools, and finally asked him: 'Do you think you can conquer all that?' His monosyllabic reply was 'I'll try.' And so I sent him, and he came through fairly."

We are pleased to see such solid signs of the prosperity of the Galt Reformer, a journal in every way worthy of the name. We heartily congratulate our contemporary on the public recognition of its merit and enterprise.

"The Private Secretary."

Mr. E. A. McDowell's Comedy Company produced, in Bradburn's Opera House, on Saturday evening last, this amusing and laughable play. The attendance was not as large as it should have been. Mr. McDowell, as young "Caterwole" was loudly applauded, and Miss Fanny Reeves and Miss Brandon were worthy of praise for the excellent manner in which they carried out their parts. The caste was perfect, and all the parts were sustained with ability.

Sons of England.

On Sunday morning last, the members of Lansdowne Lodge of Sons of England, proceeded in a body to St. John's Church, where a special sermon was preached to them by the Rector, Rev. J. W. R. Beck. The sermon was exceedingly appropriate to the occasion, and emphasized the important part played by the British constitution, and the established church, in the civilisation and christianisation of the world, and the spread of civil and religious liberties.

A Blaze.

The fire alarm was sounded on Saturday evening about ten o'clock. The firemen responded to the alarm promptly, but before reaching the scene of the fire, found their services were not required. The fire was in Mr. Yelland's coal house, on Bethune street, and was supposed to have been started by sparks of a passing locomotive or from a fire-cracker. The fire was discovered by those living in the vicinity, and extinguished by a few pails of water, and no serious damage to the building was done.

Ladies Who Shave!

It will occasion you surprise to learn that many ladies make a practice of using the razor. Nevertheless it is a literal fact, as many brothers and husbands can testify. Why should it be considered unwomanly to use a razor, especially to shave down troublesome corns. The only reason against the practice is because a new and a brighter era has dawned upon the sufferers from corns, for Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, by its prompt, certain and painless action, has done away with the necessity of resorting to the dangerous practice of using the razor. Try Putnam's, and be satisfied that is the best and surest corn cure. Beware of imitations.

Found Drowned.

Body of the Missing John Cook Discovered

On Tuesday, May 12th, at about nine o'clock in the evening, Mr. John Cook, boss sawyer in Hazlett's saw mills, was last seen alive. His mysterious disappearance gave rise to considerable speculation as to his whereabouts. Some held the idea that he had made a journey and would return all right. Others

THOUGHT HE HAD BEEN DROWNED

while crossing the river to reach his home in Ashburnham, near the rail road bridge above Dickson's dam. Among the latter was Matthew Young, an employee in Hazlett's mill, and he seemed to have been particularly impressed with the idea. He has been out of health for the past few days, and was not working. He spent a greater part of the daytime in peering into the turbulent waters below the dam, with the fear that he might find the body of his late fellow workman. On Monday he made the long expected discovery, noticing in the eddy of the south slide. Assistance was at once called and the remains removed from the water. The body of the unfortunate man bore the appearances of decomposition, consequent upon its three weeks submersion in the water. There was a mark of a wound in the neighborhood of the left temple, and bruises on other parts of the body. The circumstances point to the accidental nature of the death—the theory of criminal violence being destroyed by the fact of the poor man's money, $16.50 being found in the pockets of the clothing, as well as his watch. The latter had stopped at 27 minutes to 9 o'clock, thus indicating the hour at which deceased probably fell into the water.

THE BODY OF THE MISSING MAN

WHEN LAST SEEN

alive deceased was in the neighborhood of Potvin's grocery store, George street. It is probable that in going home he attempted to cross the Grand Junction bridge, an falling in a manner to account for the wound on his head and other marks, was precipitated into the water beneath. On the discovery of the body the police were sent for, and they communicated with Dr. Bell, coroner, but the circumstances did not warrant him in directing an inquest to be held. The remains was taken in charge by Mr. D. Belleghem, undertaker, and interred in Little Lake Cemetery on Monday afternoon. The deceased was for many years foreman in Hazlitt's saw mills, and had the merited reputation of being one of the most capable workmen in his line in the district. He was about 55 years of age, and leaves a wife and six children.

"The Manly Art."

A sparring exhibition was given in Bradburn's Opera House on Friday evening. The performance consisted chiefly of padding to the set-to between Harry Gilmour, of Toronto, and G. Graham, town, which was the only really interesting event of the evening, except, of course, Mr. T. McNaughton's fancy club swinging, which was first-class and much applauded.

Boxer); Experiences of the Royal Grenadiers (from sketches by our special artist, Mr. F. W. There is a Two-page Supplement also issued with this number, which contains a number of Sketches by the special artist of the War News, Mr. F. W. Curzon. Some of these sketches are very graphic ones, representing the different views of the Battle of Fish Creek, at which Mr. Curzon was present. The paper sells at 15 cents per copy, obtainable from local booksellers and from the office of publication.

"Be wise to-day; 'tis madness to defer." Don't neglect your cough. If you do your fate may be that of the countless thousands who have done likewise, and who to day fill consumptives' graves. Night-sweats, spitting of blood, weak lungs, and consumption itself if taken in time can be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." This wonderful preparation has equal as a remedy for lung and throat diseases. All Druggists.

THE NATION'S HOPE.

Last Sunday being the anniversary of Her Majesty's 66th birthday, Rev. Mr. Tovell, pastor of the George street Methodist church delivered in the evening an excellent discourse on the subject of "The Hope of our Nation." There was a fairly large audience present, and special hymns and anthems, by a full choir, and special lessons were sung and read. The reverend gentleman took for his text the second verse of the 26th chapter of Isaiah: "Open ye the gates that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in." He would not attempt, he said, to eulogize our country or the Queen, as we were all familiar with the British nation and its laws. The hand of God had always supported our country, and it was because it was a Christian nation. The British had always been a God-fearing people, and never attempted to create warlike feelings towards other nations, and never raised the sword except to protect her rights and freedom. So God had blessed our people as a nation and prospered us. When compelled to take up arms against other countries, England came out victorious. The preacher urged the necessity of obeying the laws that govern us, and of promoting loving peace among the people that compose the Dominion. He would not, here say anything particular about politics, but he believed that the Gladstone government was in harmony with the spirit of Christianity. The people should devote more thought and energy to the education of the young. Our great danger was in giving our time and energy to money-making and striving to gain riches. That nation would be strong whose sons were educated. Ignorance was, as Carlyle said, the dominion of absurdity, and one had better never have had existence than be ignorant. The reverend gentleman continued by saying that had the Half-breeds, who listened to what Riel said, been enlightened and educated, they would never have been led into the rebellion they have been guilty of. They were ignorant in regard to the terrible crimes they were committing, and of the resources of Canada. We should strive to give more attention to the education of our sons, as they would be the future statesmen, and we should have honorable, God-fearing men to rule our land—statesmen far above suspicion. Sin was a reproach to any people, and we should set our face as flint against the man living a licentious life, and yet who expected to command respect from God's people. Distinction should be made between liberty and license. Riel had had his liberty, and it had cost us 67 souls, whose lives had been sacrificed, besides millions of dollars. The sermon throughout was one of eloquence and insructiveness, and those who missed it have reason to regret it. With the singing of the national anthem and the doxology, the service was brought to a close.

For a large and varied stock of reversible Cretonnes, entirely new patterns, go to Turnbull's.

St. Luke's Pink Social.

On Thursday night a large number of persons enjoyed the roseate novelty of a "pink social" given in St. Luke's school room. The decoration and drapery of the room was pink, and the waitresses bloomed in attire of the same hue. Tea was served and a successful sale of articles conducted. The "Pink Social," as such was a great success.

The Game of Games.

The cricket club are entering upon the season with happy prospects of a successful summer's innings. Under the competent and painstaking care of the coach of the club, Mr. James Norley, the crease and the field are in capital condition, and kept so every day. The inaugural wickets of the season will be pitched to-day (Thursday) for the match with Lakefield, and a match will be played with University College Club, Toronto, on June 4th.

A Good Chance.

On Friday, May 29th, Mr. Charles Stapleton will sell by public auction, for Messrs. Dumble & Henry, several choice building lots. They are situated in very desirable localities. This is a good opportunity for young men to invest their money to good advantage, as the terms are very easy—for vacant lots, $25 at date of sale, and $25 in six months, the balance in five years, with interest. To parties building good houses on said lots money will be loaned at low interest. The sale commences at 2 p.m., sharp. For the convenience of bidders, Mr. Stapleton has provided vehicles for conveying them to the different lots.

Remembering the Brave.

On Wednesday evening of last week, as we were going to press, a well attended meeting of citizens was held to devise and consider a suitable manner and means of commemorating the bravery of Capt. Brown, a former citizen of the town, who was in the memorable charge at Batoche, "and bravely fighting fell." After some consideration it was decided to erect a monument as a permanent record amongst us of the deceased officer, and the following gentlemen were appointed a committee to consider the subject:—Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers, Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, Capt. Edwards, Dr. Kincaid, C. W. Sawers, the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Dr. Fife, J. O'Meara, D. McLeod, Charles Stapleton, J. Dinwoodie, R. C. Strickland, Geo. A. Cox, J. Burnham, M. P., Geo. Hilliard, M. P., Capt. Sanderson, Capt. Birdsal, Major Grover, and any that they may add to their number.

Saved Army.

The Council of War of the Saved Army was held in the barracks, on Water street, during Wednesday, and the two following days, and such was the interest taken in the affairs of the Army, that a large number of officers and delegates were present, representing the different stations throughout this province. Many changes have been made in the working of the Army, and it was decided to seek incorporation at once, as a separate body, and the centralising of the funds, together with laws for the governing of officers and stations, etc. The Council adjourned to meet again in Peterborough, in November next. Large meetings were held in the Opera House on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. About thirty officers and soldiers took their places on the platform. The Hon. Sidney Smith, of Cobourg, occupied the chair. After taking their seats on the platform several Army songs were sung in chorus, and brief addresses were given, and the chairman delivered an address. He said, that no doubt many of his friends present would be surprised to see him on a religious platform. But the world was full of surprises. To-day he came in possession (taking up the Bible) and strong in the faith and hope given to him through the agency of the Saved Army. Several times during his address, he referred to the agent through whom he had received so much happiness. In closing he said of her, "She is as zealous in her Master's service as ever was human being." After thanks to the choir who had furnished such excellent music, the Hon. Sidney Smith, specially complimented the choir on the sweet and expressive music they had given. The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the Doxology, and the pronouncing of the benediction.

DISTRICT METHODISM.

The annual district meeting of the Methodist Church was held in Norwood on May 19th and 20th. Rev. I. Tovell, Superintendent of the district presided. Rev. F. McAmmond, B. A., was elected secretary, assisted by Rev. W. J. West.

This district embraces sixteen distinct fields of labor, known as stations, circuits and missions, having the services of nineteen ministers and preachers.

Reports read evinced progress during the year. The membership apart from the increase through the union of the branches of Methodism, has multiplied considerably—three hundred and sixty being the number. Over $2,800 have been contributed during the year to assist in Mission work outside of the district. The educational fund has gone ahead of last year some $250. The sum total raised for all purposes has been $26,383 47.

John Mears and W. Down were recommended for ordination.

Rev. A. C. Wilson was elected representative to the Stationing Committee, and W. A. Morrow, Esq., to the Missionary Committee.

Seventeen laymen were chosen by ballot to attend the approaching annual conference, four of whom belong to Peterborough, Messrs. Geo. A. Cox, W. Yelland, W. A. Morrow and D. W. Dumble.

On Tuesday evening an interesting and spirited discussion took place on the subject of "revivals," Revs. F. McAmmond, D. N. McAmus, and A. C. Wilson, being the speakers.

Arrangements were made for a Christian Convention of workers to be held next fall, time and place to be fixed by the Superintendent of the District.

All the members of the district were moved with sorrow on hearing that Rev. I. Washington Puffer, of Blairton, had met with an accident last Saturday, resulting in the loss of an eye. A resolution of sympathy was passed and forwarded to him.

At the close of the second day's session a resolution was carried unanimously, all the members rising to their feet to vote in support of it, expressing their appreciation of the kind, courteous and efficient manner in which Rev. Mr. Tovell had discharged the duties of his official position as District Superintendent.

On Thursday, Wm. Noble, an old resident and beneficiary of the Protestant Home died at the age of 82 years. He has received the care and nursing of the Home for about five years.

KEENE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

And May, like a blushing bride goes out,
And June comes in like a queen;
And the bees and the birds hold a right merry rout,
In the fields and wild woods green.
And the lambkins dance in the daisied glen,
And sport on the gay, green sward;
And the saw-file voice of the guinea hen,
Is heard in the old farm yard.

Time flies; and humanity, as all things else, flies with it. For a length of time past, Marion, daughter of James Bryce, formerly of Asphodel, who has been ill at the residence of her uncle, Mr. Archibald Bryce, of this place, passed quietly away on Wednesday evening, the 20th inst. The funeral, which took place on Friday, was largely attended, when her remains were conveyed to the Westwood cemetery. She was an amiable and highly respected young lady, and is deeply mourned by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Marshall Weir returned from Winnipeg last week. He seems to have completely recovered from the illness which overtook him when manfully proceeding westward as one of the Keene contingent to do battle for his country. His many friends were right glad to see his kindly face once more amongst them.

The steam yacht "Beaver" called at our wharf on Monday, for our quota of pleasure seekers. We understand they spent a pleasant Queen's Birthday at Idyl Wild, that famous resort of excursionists on our charming inland dotted lake. It is a pity that a pleasant holiday cannot be spent without so much of that cursed whiskey, etc., being dragged in, as a destroyer of true pleasure, and a hindrance to the presence of many respectable citizens.

The children of the village school also had a very enjoyable picnic on Monday. Mrs. Prout kindly offered her grounds for a play yard, and furnished the little ones with amusements, croquet, swings, etc., and generously made coffee in the evening for those who wished it, with which they were mightily pleased, not expecting such a treat.

We are sorry to hear of the illness of Mr. Hope, and wish he may soon be all right again.

NAVIGATION.

The boats have commenced running, the "Cruiser" having made a trip to Jack's Creek. She has been put in thorough repair. The "Fairy" has been down a number of times from Young's Point.

DROWNED.

Considerable excitement prevailed in the village on Saturday last when it was reported that Mr. Thos. White, of Smith, was in all probability drowned in Wright's Bay. He had gone out fishing in the morning, and was expected back at noon. Not returning, search was made. His punt, hat, and fishing tackle were found, but though every exertion has been made by diving and other means, his body, up to the time of writing, has not been recovered.

OLD RESIDENT GONE.

Mr. Henry Down, long a resident of this locality, died on Friday last, after a week's illness. He was buried on Sunday in the Lakefield cemetery. A very large number of friends followed the remains to the grave.

Persons doing business with Mr. Macdonald may rely upon his ability and honesty, as he is no stranger in Peterborough, all his connections being thorough Canadians.

Ambushed.

On Sunday evening two Peterborough young men, were returning from escorting their Ashburnham inamoratas home from church, and while near the village end of the Hunter street bridge, they were assailed by a furious fusilade of stones. One of the duo "took no stock" in the hostile nature of the attack and walked across the street where he found two acquaintances who had indulged in a pratical joke. The other young man, however, set off towards town at exceedingly double quick, and did not stop nor draw breath, till he reached Morgan's Hotel. Here he was found trying to organize a body of Boulton's scouts, to avenge the attempt that had been made on his life by concealed assailants—most probably jealous rivals. His feelings may be fancied when the trio concerned in the ambush explained matters.

A BRUSH WITH BIG BEAR.

General Strange Hoots His Braves.

The Reds Have the Advantage of Position—300 Indians Attack 300 Loyal Men—The Result of the Skirmish Undecided.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 31.—A message just received from an officer of Col. Osborne Smith's battalion of Winnipeg light infantry, dated Fort Pitt, May 29, announces a fight with Big Bear on Thursday and Friday.

The fight took place 12 miles from Fort Pitt. The troops engaged under General Strange consisted of mounted police under Major Steel, 65th battalion, under Lieut.-Col. Hughes, and five companies of the 92nd battalion under Lieut.-Col. Osborne Smith; in all about 300 men.

Big Bear, in anticipation of the attack, selected a fine ambuscade. He had 500 fighting braves with him, most of whom had had American experience in Indian wars. The country around Fort Pitt is very rugged, abounding in ravines. It is also covered with dense forest and well watered with lakes and rivers. The physical character of the region is in every way favorable to carrying Indian warfare.

The Indians were the first to open fire and did so when the troops were marching through a low swampy tract of country 12 miles northeast of Fort Pitt and three or four miles north of the Saskatchewan river.

The fight on Thursday lasted about four hours. The field gun did good service against the Indians and silenced their firing. The troops retired upon Fort Pitt for the night.

The fighting was resumed on Friday, but of this Connors who arrived with news, could give no account, as they left after Thursday's engagement.

Marcotte, a Private in the 65th Regiment, was killed and two others were wounded.

A barge with provisions on the river, guarded by a dozen men and a sergeant of the 65th, could not be found after the fight.

Gen. Strange is in need of both supplies and reinforcements. The distance from Battleford to Fort Pitt is 93 miles.

Gen. Middleton, who was on the way to join Strange in the steamer Northwest from Battleford when the tidings of the fight here received from Couriers Grant and Rossiter, has returned to make up a contingent from the forces there to reinforce Gen. Strange.

Gen Strange felt very much the want of artillery, and along with the ammunition Gen. Middleton is expected to take another field gun and a Gatling gun to be operated by B battery. The rest of the contingent will likely be made up of Grenadiers, Midland and Mounted Police under Col. Herchmer.

Lieut.-Colonel Onimet, who is at Edmonton, has been active in enrolling volunteers, and with the assistance of Bishop Grandin has raised a mounted infantry corps of loyal half-breeds at St. Albert, mostly all experienced plain hunters.

A DECISIVE BLOW EXPECTED.

OTTAWA, May 30.—It is known that the government to-night received important despatches from Gen. Middleton. The water on the Saskatchewan is high and the general is by this time at Fort Pitt with a picked force from the troops at Battleford. Thus reinforced Gen. Strange, it is expected, will be able to strike a decisive blow at Big Bear at once.

THE FEELING AGAINST RIEL.

MONTREAL, May 30.—The chaplain of the Montreal garrison artillery now at Regina, returned here to-day. He says that the feeling in Manitoba and Ontario is intensely bitter against Riel, and that it will be a bad thing if he is not hanged. At first, he says, the Winnipeg people blamed the Government, but that after bloodshed they put that feeling aside and looked only to the suppression of the rebellion. Winnipeg people suffered greatly through the rebellion, the 90th regiment of Winnipeg having more killed than any other battalion on the field. The Government has appointed prosecuting lawyers in Riel's case, both being of Ontario where the feeling is strongly in favor of hanging the rebel. The decision of Secretary Whitney ordering the release of Dumont is not unfavorably received here, much sympathy being felt for the escaped rebel.

Rebellion Notes.

The mounted police has been increased by 240 recruits.

So far 140 half-breed claims have been recognised by the Commission.

The Indians charged with the murder of Frank Smart have been locked up.

The Tenth Royals, "C" Infantry, and half of "A" Battery are at Battleford.

It was mounted police guns that were used in the fight against Poundmaker.

The Government has ordered nothing further than a trial of Riel and other insurgents.

Lieut. Hume Blake and Sergt. Monat, with the Toronto supplies for the volunteers will arrive at Battleford to-day.

It is understood that Riel's trial will commence in Regina on the 22nd June, before Stipendiary Magistrate Richardson.

Supplies are being rapidly forwarded to Battleford from Clarke's Crossing. The latter place and Humboldt are now the main bases of supplies.

Father Lacombe says troops are needed at Fort Macleod to show the Bloods and other Indians what the Government can do in the way of soldiers.

In connection with volunteering for short service in the North-west, an order from headquarters to-day forbids bank or government clerks from joining the force.

General Middleton, after a talk with Moosomin told him that his band could carry arms and go and come as heretofore, but all other Indians would be disarmed.

The Government has still under consideration the question of increased pay to the volunteers on active service so that their families left at home would receive some help.

Monetary Sermon.

On Sunday evening last Rev. Mr. Manning preached a splendid sermon in the George street Methodist church, on "The Use and Abuse of Money." There was a large attendance. Rev. Mr. Davis occupied the pulpit in the morning.

THE ANGLO-RUSSIAN DISPUTE

How the Settlement is Viewed in England.

LONDON, May 31.—The Liberals seem to be satisfied with the Anglo-Russian situation. The Conservatives, however, appear to be crowing over it. It is generally believed Russia has agreed to allow Afghanistan's claims to both Zulfcatl and Maruchak. It does not appear that the Czar has agreed even provisionally to any treaty binding him to refrain from any further advance. Many efforts have been made to secure such agreements and their failure tends to strengthen the conviction that Russia has simply "dickered in order to gain time," and that she is determined to continue her progress southward. Conservatives find in this state of affairs subject for denunciation of the Gladstone management of the dispute. Tory papers declare that unless Russia gives England a guaranty against a further advance southward, coupled with a pledge to respect the independence of Afghanistan, there can be no durable peace.

REIL'S PROSECUTOR.

Christopher Robinson Q C., has been retained by the Dominion Government to prosecute Louis Reil. French Canadians, resident in New York are subscribing a fund to defray the expenses of Riel's defence.

A COMMISSION OF ENQUIRY.

Mr. Justice Patterson and Mr. J. W. Langmuir have been appointed by the Hon. O. Mowat to investigate the charges against the management of the Central Prison. A thorough enquiry is ordered.

A Yarn from Yokohama.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30th.—Yokohama advices say that on the 6th of May, as the British men-of-war Agamemnon, Sapphire and Swift steamed into port, the Russian ships Valdimir and Monomach, commanded by Admiral Crown, piped to quarters, manned the guns and made every preparation for immediate action. It is stated that had even a rifle been fired from the Russian vessel the Agamemnon would have rammed her. No explanation of the affair was made by the Russian commander.

NORWOOD.

Miss Errett, of Peterborough, assisted by her pupils and the best available foreign talent, will give a concert in the Town Hall here on the evening of Thursday June 4th. A choice programme, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, etc, is being prepared and the public may confidently expect a rare treat.—Register.

GARDEN HILL.

GARDEN HILL, May 30.—A young man, Arthur Hannah, working in Dyer's woollen mills here, got his hand caught in a carding machine this morning, and before it could be stopped the hand was badly mangled. The third finger had to be amputated, but the attending physician, Dr. Johnston, hopes to save the other injured fingers.

The Horse-Trader and the Horse.

The habitual horse-trader is not always a bad man and neighbor; but he is always supposed to need especial watching. He, certainly, is a double-moralist except when he sometimes merges his private code into his official one wholly. For, the horse, which is among the noblest of animals, really, is somehow, practically, a corrupting institution. He contains in himself pretty nearly all possibilities of the good and the bad. His scale of developments is of immense reach; and the worst of it all is, that his qualities are only to be known, within any moderate approximation, by an expert. It is hardly credible that under the visage which seems so guileless there can be hidden so much deception. But we know, to our sorrow, that it does hide there. We generally find out the day after an unfortunate purchase that the animal driven up so proudly before us yesterday is not the one that limps and wheezes. The real entity was marvelously concealed. It is a wonder that the head of the mythical sphynx was not mounted upon a horse. If it had been, Œdipus would have been worse baffled to unravel its mystery. The slipperiness, therefore, of the horse-trader, is easily accounted for. He cannot very well help it. It is altogether probable that he is half the time cheated himself. That he has more virtue than he is credited with is evident from the fact that he is rarely, if ever, known to be rich, and never a millionaire.—The Hour.

Although Chicago won't believe it, St. Louis, as a city, lies in an atmosphere of poetic legend and story. Within three miles from the business center, on the Illinois side, at the old French town of Cahokia, generations are born, live and die, who do not speak the English language. The people are provincial in the extreme, and jealous of their origin, customs and language.—Buffalo Express.

Some of the literary men of America have been severely handled by a Baltimore critic. He says: "James is a tuft-hunter and sycophant, Howells a smooth-bore, Stedman a dead failure, Stoddard a man who has turned his wash-bowl into a paste-pot, Cable a blower of literary soap bubbles, and Richard Grant White a critic who discovered in a cockney beauty with legs like a piano and a voice like a fog-horn the lost arms of the Venus de Milo and a voice of vocal velvet."

U. S. INDIAN OUTRAGES.

An Appeal to the Government.

DEMING, N. M., May 31st.—Nine of Geronimo's band succeeded in crossing into Mexico. A band of 25 crossed the Southern Pacific track 95 miles west of here on Sunday heading for Mexico. The soldiers were camped 7 miles from the trail and could have captured and killed the entire band, but made no effort to do so. For the present the raid may be considered over on this side of the border.

ENGLE, N. M., May 30.—The people of the districts now being ravaged by Indians have forwarded an address to the press of New York, recounting the terrible outrages of Apaches and praying that it will use its paper to have their wrongs redressed and the blood of their brothers, fathers, wives and daughters avenged. The address says unless the government at once takes steps to put down the outbreak and hunt to death every participant in it the people will march upon the San Carlos reservation and wipe it out of existence.

The New York stock market began weakening about noon Friday and closed off ⅛ a point. The opening to-day was low, and there was no rally up to 2 p. m. Owing to the discussions amongst the railroad officials cutting of rates and the unwillingness of Vanderbilt to co-operate with the managers of the other trunk lines to reduce rates, the market will continue demoralized and the price of stocks will fall lower than at present.

The Chicago Market has been weak all day, with a downward tendency, July wheat being two cents lower than on last Friday. We quote the closing figures at Chicago, 1 p m., which show the lowest touched in some time.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 5.]

Miss Helen Mar Johnson.

O ye dead Poets who are living still Immortal in your verse, though life be fled,
And ye, O living Poets, who are dead
Though ye are living, if neglect can kill,
Tell me if in the darkest hours of ill,
With drops of anguish falling fast and red
From the sharp crown of thorns upon your head,
Ye were not glad your errand to fulfil!
—LONGFELLOW.

More than thirty years ago one of Canada's earliest poets issued from the Boston press a small volume of her poems, which met with much appreciation and has for a long time been out of print. We refer to the small book of "Poems" by Miss Helen Mar Johnson, which was published in the year 1855. The edition, unfortunately, never circulated extensively in Canada, and is another evidence of the old truth that "a prophet (might we not add, also, a poet?) is not without honour save in his own country." At the present moment there is, on the part of many of our Canadian authors, a strong feeling that the demands for anything they might produce, in any department of literature, is met promptly and readily by the teeming publications which issue so rapidly from the press of Great Britain and the United States. Those who have ventured to appeal to the reading public of Canada have not met with much appreciative sympathy or encouragement, and this tends very greatly to repress any progressive movement in Canadian literature.

This is a subject of deep regret with all who desire to see our Dominion take a prominent place among other nations and especially to those who desire the development of a native literature.

When Mr. Dewart published his "Selections from Guardian Poets" in 1884, he inserted therein several of Miss Johnston's poems and gave a very appreciative notice of the authoress. He said, "Her poetry is characterized by unaffected simplicity, genuine sensibility, often tinged by sadness, a deep sense of the insufficiency of earthly good, and ardent aspirations after the things that are unseen and eternal."

Miss Johnson was born at "The Outlet" of Lake Memphremagog in the Province of Quebec, on the 27th Oct., 1834, and it was in the vicinity of this enchanting lake she spent almost her entire life. Of the stirring life of great cities she knew nothing by experience; but the book of nature was her delight and here she ever found new sources of interest and attraction. From a very early age she exhibited rare poetic talent and her juvenile contributions first saw the light in the columns of the Stanstead Journal, a paper to which she constantly lent the aid of her pen. Her constitution was naturally very weak and throughout almost her whole earthly existence she had to do battle with protracted suffering. This she bore with Christian fortitude and courage born of divine grace. She frequently contributed pieces both in prose and verse to the Sherbrooke Gazette, the Montreal Witness and The Advent Herald, Boston. She also wrote a short serial story called "William Atherton, or the Lord will Provide," for the Youth's Guide, Boston. For one of her poems, "The Surrender of Quebec," a fine poem of over ten pages full of animated description, stirring thoughts and rhythmic harmony, she was awarded a medal by the Literary and Historical Society of Quebec.

Miss Johnson was a devout Christian. What Wesley calls the "spirit of piety" breathes through her writings, and her heroic battle with adverse circumstances and early death, before her genius had shown all she was capable of doing, shed a nameless charm over her writings, similar to what is felt in regard to Henry Kirk White. In the fall of 1856, she was prostrated by a complication of diseases which baffled the physicians' skill, and from that time until her death on March 13th, 1863, she was almost constantly confined to the house. Ten days before her death she wrote with a pencil on the blank leaf of her French Testament the following lines, which bear witness to the clearness of her intellect and her strength of faith as she entered the dark river. They were the last she ever wrote:—

"Jesus, I know thou art the living Word!
Each blessed promise to myself I take;
I would not doubt, if I had only heard
This—this alone: "I never will forsake!"

I have no fear—the sting of death is sin,
And Christ removed it when he died for me:
Washed in His blood, my robe without or within
Has not a stain that God himself can see.

Wrapped in the Saviour's arms I sweetly lie;
Far, far behind I hear the breakers roar;
I have been dying—but I cease to die,
My rest begins—rejoice for evermore!"

In 1884, her brother-in-law, the Rev. J. M. Orrock, editor of the Messiah's Herald, Boston, published a handsome volume of selections from Miss Johnson's writings, entitled "Canadian Wild Flowers." The work includes prose jottings and meditations, as well as poems, the former giving clear evidence of vigorous style and fertility of thought; the poems evincing such lyrical power and sweetness and withal such tender sadness and beauty, that our readers will, we are sure, be thankful if this brief notice makes them better acquainted with the fragrant and beautiful "Canadian Wild Flowers," rich as they are in lyric sweetness, loyal patriotism and deep religious sentiment.

For examples of her poetry we quote first the following spirited lyric, creditable alike to Miss Johnson's love of country, unswerving loyalty to Britain and decided genius. It is entitled,

OUR NATIVE LAND.

What land more beautiful than ours!
What other land more blest!
The South with all its wealth of flowers!
The prairies of the West!

Oh, no! there's not a fairer land
Beneath heaven's azure dome—
Where peace holds plenty by the hand,
And freedom finds a home.

The slave who but her name hath heard,
Repeats it day and night;—
And envies every little bird
That takes its northward flight!

As to the polar star they turn
Who brave a pathless sea,—
So the oppressed in secret yearn,
Dear native land for thee!

How many loving memories throng
Round Britain's stormy coast!
Renowned in story and in song,
Her glory is our boast!

With loyal hearts we still abide
Beneath her sheltering wing;—
While with true patriot love and pride
To Canada we cling!

We wear no haughty tyrant's chain,
We bend no servile knee,
When to the mistress of the main
We pledge our fealty!

She binds us with the cords of love,—
All others we disown;
The rights we owe to God above,
We yield to Him alone.

May he our future course direct
By His unerring hand;
Our laws and liberties protect
And bless our native land!

In 1858 the eldest daughter of our beloved Queen, the Princess Victoria Adelaide Mary, was married to Prince Frederick William of Prussia. The event was thus referred to by our Canadian poetess:—

A NATION'S DESIRE.

God hear our fervent prayer,
God bless the royal pair,
God save the Queen!
Guide them in all their ways,
And may their wedded days
Be ordered to Thy praise;
God save the Queen!

The waves will soon divide
Thee and thy home, young bride;
God save the Queen!
But over lands and sea
Warm hearts will follow thee,
First rose of England's tree;
God save the Queen!

Two years afterwards, viz., in 1860, the Prince of Wales visited Canada, and this again roused Miss Johnson's patriotism to inscribe to him

CANADA'S WELCOME!

A nation's hearty welcome take,
Heir of a mighty throne;
Thrice welcome! for old England's sake,
Thy mother's, and thine own.

From crowded street, from hillside green,
From fair Canadian vales,
The prayer goes up—God bless the Queen!
God bless the Prince of Wales!

The rich and poor, the great and small,
Their voices join as one;
Victoria's name is dear to all,
So is Victoria's son.

Their tribute other queen's have laid
Upon the land and sea;
But never earthly monarch swayed
So many hearts as she.

And for her young and gallant heir
A kindred love prevails;
God hear a nation's fervent prayer!
God bless the Prince of Wales!

At the time when Miss Johnson's poems were published, one of the reviewers said of them:—"They display deep poetic ardor, and are rich in imagery; the diction is clear and varied, and not unfrequently pleasingly figurative, and the versification smooth and regular." This criticism is well exemplified by the following poem on

LIFE:

As when the graceful bark, with spreading sails,
Glides from the port into the open sea,
Wafted along by soft and prosperous gales,
Just as the rising sun bids darkness flee;
So like that bark, in early youth are we,
When first we launch upon the sea of life—
Our hopes as bright, our youthful souls as free,
The scene around with love and beauty rife,
And all unknown to us its griefs, its cares and strife.

The bark glides on; but see, the azure sky
With dark and angry clouds is soon o'ercast;
The thunders roar, the forked lightnings fly,
The billows beat, and howls the midnight blast!
The trembling vessel with dismantled mast,
The maddened waves have in their fury tossed,
Until she lies a helpless wreck at last;
Her plans all thwarted, and her hopes all crossed,
Her guiding star obscured, and her direction lost.

'Tis thus with life, at times deemed most secure,
When all seems calm and beautiful and fair,
Dark rocks concealed, the easier to allure,
The fragile bark in youth's bright morn ensnare;
And storms arise, and fierce the lightnings glare,
And wild and high the raging billows roll,
While sinks the heart a wreck in deep despair,
Till, brightly o'er the dark and dreary pole,
The morning star appears to the benighted soul!

It guides the bark across life's troubled sea,—
It points the way unto the destined shore,
Till anchored in a blest eternity,
It buffets with the howling storm no more.
Be ours that Star to guide us safely o'er!
To us, oh, may its precious light be given!
And though the tempests beat and billows roar,
And though we now by adverse winds are driven,
We'll safely anchor soon in the blest port of Heaven!

We feel that in this brief sketch we have not done justice to the merits of Miss Johnson's poetry. But we must conclude, our space forbidding further quotation. We do so by giving a poem which is perhaps better known than any other of Miss Johnson's productions. It has been set to music by Geo. F. Root, and is a general favorite. It gives evidence that in "the night of adversity and sorrow" only grace can produce such a song of holy confidence and hope. The title is

THE LAST GOOD NIGHT.

Mother, good night! my work is done,—
I go to rest with the setting sun:
But rest to wake with the morning light,
So, dearest mother, a long good night!

Father, good-night! the shadows glide
Silently down to the river's side,—
The river itself with stars is bright,
So, dearest father, a long good-night!

Sisters, good-night! the roses close
Their dewy eyes for the night's repose—
And a strange, damp mist obscures my sight,
So, dearest sisters, a long good-night!

Brothers, good-night! the sunset flush
Has died away, and a midnight hush
Has settled o'er plain and mountain height,
So, dearest brothers, a long good-night!

Good-night! good-night! nay, do not weep:
I'm weary of earth, I long to sleep—
I shall wake again with the dawning light
Of eternal day—good-night, good-night!

The Indian Outrage.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at a Liberal meeting in Woodstock:

"That this meeting is of opinion that the proposal made in the Franchise Bill of the Dominion Government to give votes to the tribal Indians, who are wards of the Government and under the control of the Supt.-General of Indian Affairs, who are not able to make contracts or wills, to sit upon a jury, or to exercise the other rights of free citizens, is a gross injustice to the white citizens of this country. And that we are of opinion that Indians should be given the franchise only upon the same conditions as white men, when they become full citizens of the country, own property, are legally liable for their debts, and cease to be pensioners of the Crown. In a word, we regard it as an outrage that semi-civilized Indians should enjoy the privileges of the franchise without having imposed upon them its duties and responsibilities."

Editorial Notes.

—The Petrolia Advertiser, warns the public to beware of a female named Madame de Montford, who has a habit of coming to towns, sleekly incurring bills, and then slyly departing without the formality of paying them.

Mr. Blake:—"Those who assented in silence to the passing of a law surrendering to the Government the appointment of men who are to make and revise the voters' lists, were unworthy of seats in a free Parliament. * * * * * This bill will have my earnest, strenuous, lasting and persistent opposition."

Mr. Cameron (Victoria):—"The Revising officer would be just as well watched. I would be quite satisfied if the Reformers were in power that such a provision as this should be made part of the law."

Mr. Mills.—Perhaps you would like us to make the appointments now. (Laughter.)

Mr. Cameron.—The hon. gentleman's remark is absurd, and he knows it. (Cheers and laughter.)

OBITUARY.

THE LATE WILLIAM FAIRWEATHER.

We greatly regret to announce the death of Mr. Wm. Fairweather, one of Peterborough's oldest and most enterprising merchants, which took place on Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. His last illness confined him to his room for the past three months, he having only been out once in a carriage in that time. The nature of the disease was atrophy or wasting away of the liver, doubtless aggravated by intense and unremitting application to business. The deceased gentleman was a native of Inverary, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, born on May 10th, 1834. He came to Canada in 1857, securing an important and responsible position in the wholesale firm of Moffat, Murray & Co., Toronto, and in the prosecution of his duties he crossed the ocean no less than twenty-two times. In 1865 he established a dry goods business in Peterborough, on Hunter street, in the place now occupied by Hartley's music store. Four or five years after he removed to the site now occupied by the business house of Fairwrather & Co. During his business career he carried on an extensive and flourishing business. Both in his business and private life he was highly respected; in the former capacity he was of an obliging disposition, always ready to lend a helping hand to brother business-men; in the latter he won among a large constituency of customers, hosts of warm friends whose hearts will be heavy when they learn that the cheerful, genial, kindly and obliging William Fairweather has passed away. In his family circle he was a most affectionate, kindly father and thoughtful husband, and his death will create a blank that can never be filled. In religion, Mr. Fairweather was a Presbyterian, and a member of St. Paul's church. In politics he was not an active party man, confining his connection therewith chiefly to depositing his ballot in the Reform interest. The family in their affliction will receive the heartfelt sympathy of a very wide circle of friends.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Council met pursuant to adjournment, May 27th.

Members all present, Reeve in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Ferguson, Deputy Reeve, reported having in conjunction with a committee of the Manvers Council, made an examination of the premises of Alfred Griffin, through which a winter road had been made in lieu of the boundary line of road which was blocked with snow. They decided not to allow any compensation as there had not been any damage caused thereby.—Report approved.

Mr. Ferguson also reported that the committee appointed to make an examination of the bridge between Lots Nos. 4 and 5, 11th concession, had done so. They found the bridge in a very dangerous condition, and had closed it after first making a temporary diverted road around it. He would recommend the Council to appoint a committee at once for the purpose of letting a job of building a new bridge in place thereof.

Mr. Sanderson reported having in conjunction with a committee of the North Monaghan Council let a job of taking out and widening the culvert on the east boundary road at Springville, to Alex. Brown, for the sum of $32,00.—Approved.

Mr. Ferguson brought in a By-law to appoint an arbitrator on behalf of this corporation in the matter of the corporation of the township of Cavan -vs. Thomas Medd, regarding the building or erection of a snow fence, which, after passing through its several stages, was passed, signed and sealed.

Mr. Campbell, Reeve, to have a guard or railing built along the edge of the embankment on Medd's Hill, Middle Road, 4th Concession.

Mr. McNeil to have a railing put up on the edges of the embankment on Fee's Hill, 8th Con., line of road and other repairs to said road.

Mr. Campbell and Mr. Donaldson to confer and act with a Committee of the Manvers Council in having the west boundary line of road, south of the 5th Con. line of Cavan, repaired.

Mr. Campbell and Mr. McNeil to have the hill on the Middle Road, immediately north of the Midland Railway crossing, ditched and graded.

And the members of the Council to have a new bridge built in place of the old one between Lots 4 and 5, 11th Con.

A number of orders were issued on the Treasurer.

The Council then adjourned until Friday, the 26th dry of June next.

Mental Corruscations.

Ignorance is voluntary misfortune.

Some wits in jest are fools in earnest.

Bare walls make gadding housewives.

The lass with many wooers fares the worse.

One of the sublimest things in this world is the plain truth.

More hope for a fool than for one wise in his own conceit.

How happy he whose foot fits the shoe which fortune gave him.

Confidence in another man's virtue is no slight evidence of a man's own.

Animals are such agreeable friends! They ask no questions; they pass no criticisms.

A head properly constituted can accommodate itself to whatever pillows the vicissitudes of fortune may place under it.

It is more disgraceful to mistrust one's friends than to be deceived by them; our mistrust justifies the deceit of others.

Remember the wheel is always in motion, and the spoke which is uppermost will soon be under; therefore mix trembling with all your joy.

Every adjuration of love, every oath of fondness, always contains this mental reservation: "As long as what you are now."

Use makes practice easy; and practice begets custom, and a habit of things, to facilitate that thou couldst not conceive attainable at the first undertaking.

Kind looks, kind words, kind acts and warm handshakes—these are secondary means of grace when men are in trouble and are fighting their unseen battles.

Married couples resemble a pair of shears, so joined that they cannot be separated, often moving in opposite directions, yet always punishing any one who comes between them.

They Kissed Him.

W. H. Gillette, who takes the leading role in the play "The Secretary," tells a funny story about himself, in which he explains why he knew he would take in his new part. It should be understood that "The Secretary" is the story of a tutor's trials. "I knew the play would suit me," said Mr. Gillette, in speaking of it, "for I had been a private tutor myself once and got into just such a scrape. It was in 1876, right after I graduated from Harvard, I was employed in Philadelphia to act as tutor to a gentleman's son in New York. When I got there the first persons I met in the house were a couple of handsome young girls. They had been expecting a cousin, and at once mistook me for the gentleman. They fell upon my neck and gave me the warmest kind of a greeting. Talk about kissing. I got kisses red-hot from the mill. The old story about a cow pulling her hoof out of the mud was nowhere. They kissed me forty times if they kissed me once, and then gave me a chance to explain. When they discovered that I wasn't their cousin they collapsed. I told them not to blush, that kissing wasn't injurious to my health, and if they were not hurt I felt all right. I explained that I had been shaved that morning, and my beard couldn't have scraped them. It was funny, but kind of embarrassing to the girls. I became tutor to the family, however, and myself and the ladies seldom afterward spoke. I have often felt sorry that I wasn't born a coachman. The incidents in 'The Secretary' are somewhat like this, only funnier, and that is why I took such a liking to the play."—Pittsburg Gazette.

The Study of Dancing.

The old fashion prescribed that a lady or gentleman should learn to walk before dancing. Neophytes were practically put to the back on the goose step. They were made to march slowly to a tune upon a squeaking kit or sort of pup-fiddle and after a severe course of such treatment were at last initiated by single steps into the manner of moving in a quadrille. We have now changed all that. The cramming system is at work in the dancing school. And as horse-trainers are in the habit of harnessing proficient stagers with animals unaccustomed to the shafts, professors of the dance have discovered that nothing expedites the culture of a pupil like having "the benefit of his daughters to practice with." Of course, the number of people engaged in his calling is a proof of the large proportion of persons in town requiring their services, but no adult will readily confess to taking lessons any more than he or she will if possible be detected by dyeing the hair. However, there are ladies and gentlemen who really make dancing a study.

A Close Call for Baby Jim.

Baby Jim, of the Foundlings' Home had a very narrow escape last week. He is red-headed and freckled, but he is lusty enough for a farm hand. When he was about eight months old a lady who had no children, took him to bring him up. There were prettier babies than Jim, but somehow she took a fancy to him. In spite of his fiery hair, there was something in his face that made him handsome. Intelligence was in his eyes and people who looked at his head said that he would be heard from in the world. He was heard very frequently, and that is what came very near changing the whole course of his life.

The husband of the lady who took Jim did not like him. Jim's voice was not musical and his red hair did not match the furniture in the handsome home to which he had been taken. The wife's attention to him may have made the husband jealous, too. Something was the matter with Jim all the time, and the man of the house got tired of him, though his wife enjoyed it all. Whatever Jim did was fun to her. She rigged him up in new clothes and fashioned many pretty garments for him herself.

For a time the husband, who had submitted at first in silence, said little, but after a while it became evident that trouble was brewing in the family. The man was ill-natured, and Baby Jim's illuminated countenance and uproarious voice aggravated him. There were some harsh words between husband and wife, some tears and reproaches, followed by a day of reflection on the part of the wife. Towards evening she made up her mind. Taking Jim in her arms she summoned her carriage and drove rapidly to the Home, where, with many tears and caresses, she left him, telling the reason, and saying that she would send his beautiful little wardrobe over in the morning.

That night when she was picking up the little garments and toys, and packing them carefully in a small trunk which she had labeled "Jim," her husband, who had finished his cigar, inquired:

"Where's Jim?"

"He's gone," she said.

"Where?"

"I took him back to the Foundlings' Home, and I am packing his things now."

She didn't look u. pIn fact her head was bent lower than seemed necessary. More than one garment had a drop on it. The husband looked thoughtfully, turned around on his heel, whistled a little, and walked into the library. He began to feel that he had won a great victory over a baby and a woman, but he could not extract any comfort from the reflection. The house seemed quiet and he half wished he could hear Jim yell and his wife laugh. Jim was not so much of a nuisance after all.

The next morning at breakfast he told his wife that he had no idea that she would take Jim back to the Home. He may have expressed a wish that she would, and even commanded it, but he didn't always mean what he said when he was annoyed by business cares. If she set so much store by Jim she had better go and get him. He thought he could stand it. It is very hard for a man to own up.

That breakfast was never finished. The horses were at the door as quick as they could be harnessed, and as the wife left the house she exclaimed:

"Oh, what if he should be gone! Drive as fast as you can."

"No danger," said the husband, listening to the receding wheels. "He'll be there."

And so he was. He was in the line with the others, taking his gruel, and yelling, of course. The lady explained her errand, siezed him to her breast and made him cry still louder. Then she drove home with him, hugging him close all the way, and that day when the trunk was unpacked she sang so loud that even Jim's war-whoop, occasionally raised in defiance, could not be heard.

It was a close call for Baby Jim.—Chicago Herald.

How to Treat Typhoid Fever.

The treatment of typhoid fever was discussed at a meeting of the New York County Medical Association, in the hall of the College of Physicians and Surgeons recently. A paper upon the subject was read by Dr. George L. Peabody, who invited criticism and discussion from all members of the association. The disastrous results of admitting to the hospitals patients well along with the disease was shown to be caused chiefly by ignorance of the previous condition of the cases and the disregard paid to age and general physical condition. In the matter of food he advised the physicians to give the typhoid fever patient solid food as soon as possible. A physician in Kentucky has given solid food from the beginning of the sickness and had met with success. Concerning the reduction of temperature by cold-water sponging, cases were cited to show that, with careless sponging once an hour, a patient's temperature might remain as high as 104 degrees. Unless sponging could be effectively attended to, the most satisfactorily way of keeping a patient cool was the cold water bath. A free use of alcohol was advised, although in recent years the tendency had been to neglect it altogether. During the war the mortality among fever patients in the white regiments had been 49 per cent. and in the colored regiments 56 per cent.

Dr. Detmold, by a series of diagrams and practical illustrations, gave a simple remedy for weak ankles, knock knees, bowed legs, raised shoulders and curved spines. His remedy is: "Apply a little common sense to the sole of the boot." When the inner ankle-bone protrudes and causes a weak ankle, remove the weight from the protruding part. To do this the sole on the inner side of the boot must be raised a little. By this means the inner ankle bone would be thrown into its proper place and made strong. To cure knock knees raise the inner sides of the soles of both boots, and to strengthen bowed legs raise the boot soles on the outer edges. In case the left shoulder is higher than the right, add a thickness of sole leather to the bottom of the right boot, thus lengthening the leg. Curvature in the spine in children and young people may be cured the same way.—New York Times.

MONDAY, JUNE 1, 1885.

USE THE TELEPHONE.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

ALL AROUND TOWN.

Total Darkness.

Total darkness prevailed on George street, north of McDonnel and south of King streets, on Saturday night. We presume Mr. Drury was "waiting for the moon's gentle peep," and didn't stay up to "see it out."

Baseball.

We noticed a letter from a Lindsay exponent of the above game in Saturday's issue of the Mail, referring to the recent "fizzle." No doubt some one of the "Stars" in Peterborough will explain in due time through the columns of the Toronto daily in a satisfactory manner.

Lumbering.

A party of about twenty men in the employment of Mr. R. C. Strickland, from Ridout, Black River, arrived in town on Saturday evening's 8.50 train on their way to Port Hope. The men all belong to Peterborough and proceeded to the front this morning to begin rafting operations.

Building Notes.

Work is being rapidly pushed on St. Peter's Cathedral, and it is expected that ere long the carpenters will commence operations on the roof. The architect, Mr. J. E. Belcher, has placed in the porch an excellent outline of the front view of the Cathedral when finished.

Police Court.

Charles Alexander was charged by Chief Johnston this morning with being a vagrant. "Charley" said that he was not a vag., that if he were in good health he would be working at his trade. However, as he was troubled with erysiplas he wanted a month's rest and therefore pleaded guilty. The Magistrate gave him a month, and Charley's next appearance at the footlights will be on Dominion Day.

Apply at Once.

Mr. J. E. Hawkens has been wearing a very sad countenance since the celebration of the Queen's Birthday. On being quizzed in the matter he informed us that at the recent assemblage of canoeists at Sturgeon Point he had two sails, two paddles and a rubber coat stolen. Jack says if the party who took such a deep interest in his new outfit will kindly send their address he will send—express prepaid—the rudder, but he won't promise that the canoe will "follow" the rudder.

Crescent Street.

This is a decided misnomer, for the drive to the cemetery which could, with a trifling outlay, be made a beautiful one, instead of being crescent, is rapidly wasting away. The action of the waters of Little Lake has worn away the bank in some places as much as four or five feet this spring, and in some places the width of the roadway has been reduced to ten feet by the wasting away of the banks. At the present rapid rate at which the town authorities are carrying out the plans for protecting this street from being destroyed, it won't be long before there will have to be a large outlay to purchase a new street.

Daily Subscribers.

At the urgent request of a large number of the citizens who wish to become permanent subscribers to the DAILY EXAMINER we have decided to open a subscription list and deliver the EXAMINER every lawful evening anywhere within the limits of the town or Ashburnham, at the price of $3.00 per year or proportionately for any less time desired. We hope to have a large subscription list in a short time. The sale of the DAILY EXAMINER on Saturday last was very encouraging, over 1,200 copies being disposed of. Call and leave your name with us and get a live local daily paper, delivered at your home each evening.

Willow and Wicket.

Lakefield vs. Peterborough.

The first cricket match of the season was played on the grounds of the Amateur Athletic Association on Saturday, and resulted in favour of the Peterborough club by one innings and 46 runs. Following is the score:

Salvation Army.

The Salvation held a meeting on the Market Square on Sunday afternoon. One or two Peterborough converts gave their experience in a very oratorical manner.

Parlor Roller Rink.

The painstaking manager of the above institution has received a stock of six hundred boxwood wheels, which will be placed on the skates at once, making them as good as new.

The Uprising.

Speaking of things in general, and while bearing in mind the uprising of the half-breeds and Indians in the Northwest, attention should not be diverted from the fact that if you want a really good Piano or Organ you must visit Mr. J. J. Irwin and see his celebrated Pianos and Organs, all styles and prices. Remember the place, nearly opposite the Arcade.

Hunter Street.

The work on Mr. John Lynch's block on Hunter Street, next to Kingan's new block, is being pushed on by Mr. P. McNamara, the contractor, in a manner which will shortly raise it as high as its neighbor. All we want now is, the old landmark east of Halpin's hotel torn down, the new post office built on the corner of Water street, and then Hunter street will be prettier than Walton street, Port Hope.

Picnic Season Begins.

A large meeting of the Roman Catholics was held recently with a view to arrange matters for the annual picnic; after considerable discussion, it was decided to have the picnic on the 1st of July, Dominion day, at Wallace's Grove. As this is what is called the "parish picnic" we have not the slightest doubt that, with the month of June left to the various committees to make arrangements it will be a grand success

Lacrosse.

We notice in the Orillia Times of a recent issue that the match which took place there on the 25th May, the Queen's Birthday celebration, between the "Eastern Stars," of Toronto, and the home team, was characterized by considerable roughness. An observer informs us that the Orillias claimed four games, which were disallowed. Now, isn't it too bad that the boys can't get a "square shake" right in their own town?

Cricket.

The following are the names of the players that will represent the Toronto University Cricketers and the Peterboroughs in the Cricket match on Wednesday June 3rd:—Toronto's:—W. W. Vickers, R. G. McDonald, G. A. H. Scott, G. R. Mickle, R. O. McCulloch, E. C. Senkler, F. H. Sykes, Brock, S. Schultz, J. D. Thorburn and J. J. Hughes. Peterboroughs:—Hammond, Hatton, Hamilton, Norley, Rutherford, Ray, Rogers, Cooper. Montgomery, Strathy, Hamilton. An interesting game is expected. Wickets pitched at 10 a.m.

Home from the Desert.

Messrs. Sidney Blade and A. Bradshaw arrived home yesterday morning on the 5.30 train from Ottawa. They are both looking well, notwithstanding the baking they have received on the desert sands for such a length of time. They have brought home with them several species of the natives' weapons of war, the most important of which are a shield, spear and Egyptian shortgun. The shield is made of hippopotamus hide and is about three-fourths of an inch in thickness. Mr. Bradshaw says that a revolver bullet would have no effect on it. The spear, which is made of steel, is fastened on the end of a stick, after the fashion of a common garden hoe. It was taken from the body of a young English lieutenant, and still bears traces of blood. The rest of the relics are composed of arm knives, a two-edged sword, a rifle, and a part of the wreck of General Stewart's ship.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. F. C. Hyde, late of Toronto, Piano Tuner, is now residing in Peterboro'. Parties wishing to have their pianos and organs properly tuned should place their orders with Mr. Hyde. Orders may be left at D. Smart's Music Store, George Street, or an engagement may be made by note through the Post Office. Mr. Hyde has excellent recommendations and we feel sure all orders entrusted to his care will be satisfactorily executed. d-1w.

THE SILENT CITY.

Little Lake Cemetery's Vernal Vestment of Verdure.

This season, within the past few days especially, nature has been making up for lost time and the growth of grass and burst of leaf and bloom have been marvellous. Little Lake Cemetery has participated in the springtime riot of vegetative exuberance and now there are few more beautiful bits of scenery in Canada. And while nature has been busy Mr. Kelly, Superintenent, has by no means been idle. He has completed his spring cleaning, and now everything is in the trimmest of order, and the trees, flowers and grass have nothing to do but grow and add to the beauty of this little paradise. The walks and drives have all been cleaned and raked, and are as neat as it is possible for broom and rake to make them. The trees have been attended to and the ravages of winter removed. The winter has been very severe on the Kilmarnock willows. There are only two or three in the Cemetery that have survived the six months of storm and frost. In spite of this, however, the cemetery is looking delightfully beautiful. The trees have donned their richest garb of green, and their boughs bend beneath the weight of their opulent prodigality of foliage. The grass is vividly green, and fairly throbs with the thrift of growth from day to day, keeping the lawn mowers in continual rattle. The fresh flowers that have been planted on the grave plots this spring are wakening into bloom. The fountains are all at work jetting their spray high into the odour-laden air. Indeed, a visit is required to secure the full appreciation and enjoyment of the beauties of this beautiful spot. Mr. Kelly is continually making improvements, this year he has planted some new shrubbery on the lawn south of the lodge and has made two new stellate flower beds, one on each side of the entrance gate. The newly laid out plot on the river side of the cemetery is thriving finely, the grass has taken well, and this new imprisonment will in a few years be the most pleasant spot in the cemetery.

There have been some new monuments added among the others, one a cenotaph, so far, of Scotch granite, inscribed with the name of a gentleman still walking about our streets, with a blank left for the date of his death.

The Cemetery will be growing in beauty every day, as every day new flowers will be added to those burial plots for which plants have not yet been furnished.

The voiceless population of this silent city has received the following additions for the five months just ended. The interments have amounted to 56—January, 6; February, 14; March 15; April, 11; May 10.

Baptist Church.

Rev. Mr. Munro preached one of the series of sermons on, "Prominent men in the Bible," on Sunday evening. The attendance was large and the subject much appreciated. After the discourse, four persons were baptized and became members of the church.

Boys Beware.

Mr. G. H. Giroux, Hon. Secy., of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, this morning received a challenge from the Checkers of Beaverton to play for the Central Championship on June 23rd. The Checkers made three unsuccessful, but very creditable bids for the medal last year. A meeting of the club will be held to-night, at the Little Windsor, to discuss important business, including the above challenge.

Land Sales.

Mr. Dumble has recently sold part of 13, north of Dublin and west of George, 64x114, to Wm. Smith for $600 cash; part of 10, north of Edinburgh and west of George, 64x114, to T. H. Best, of Emily, for $600 cash; part of 20, west of George and south of Murray street, 64x114, to Mrs Redman, for $500; part of lots 2 and 3, north of Dalhousie street and west of George, to Joseph Flavelle for $900.

PERSONAL.

Rev. E. Duff, of Hazel Brae, occupied the pulpit of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, on Sunday evening.

Mrs. W. McClelland, of Buffalo, N. Y., is, with her son, spending the summer with her father, Mr. Giles Webber, Charlotte street.

Mr. McFarlane Wilson, of China Hall, left on Monday on a business trip to St. Thomas, the city in which he formerly carried on his business.

Mr. A. Reid goes to Toronto shortly to take up his new quarters in the Union Station, where Mr. A. White's offices are being removed.

Rev. I. Tovell left this morning for Port Hope to attend the meeting of the Stationing Committee of the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference.

Mr. W. R. King, District Master, L.O.L., West Peterborough, left for Cornwall this afternoon to attend the Supreme Grand Lodge, which opens on Tuesday.

Rev. Mr. Manning is the guest of Mr. Geo. Mitchell, King street, Port Hope, during the sittings of the Bay of Quinte Conference in that town, and Rev. Mr. McAmmond, of Mr. H. Sketch, Ridout street.

Mr. John C. Millar, of Otonabee, in a letter to friends announces that he has arrived all right in Edinburgh, on his three months visit to the "land o' cakes." He says it is no wonder that Scotchmen think so much of their country.

Mr. John Kelly, Superintendent of Little Lake Cemetery, was confined to his house on Friday and Saturday with a sharp bilious attack—his first day in a sick bed since he entered on duty about a dozen years ago. He, however, refrained from calling in a physician and is now able to be about.

We notice that Mr. M. Bird, formerly of Peterborough, is bringing himself out in sporting circles in Rochester, N. Y., a five mile race having been arranged by him with Frank Steel, of Chicago, to take place during the latter part of June.

Clipping the Wings

OF COMPETITION.

☞Our Custom Department is not a tail to a ready-made kite—a little corner in a little room—but occupies a large portion of our stores, and has a distinct character and scope.

It does the finest work; it does good, proper work. It is not ashamed to save its customers all the money it can. It gives the acme of value. We have clipped the wings of competition by starting the season with unquestionably the best and most stylish range of Clothing Goods that can be got together by care, skill, and large resources. It is almost impossible to secure elsewhere the wide variety for a perfectly satisfactory choice that you will find on our shelves and counters.

Our MR. SIMONS, is a cutter of large experience, of great skill, and thoroughly enters into the spirit of each customer's order and wishes as to how his suit or garment shall be cut.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

SUN

Insurance on Volunteers!

The agitation regarding the policies on the lives of our Volunteers has induced many persons to read their policies for the first time. Too many of our Volunteers have found that their policies are null and void just when they are most needed. It is true that some companies return the small amount paid in premiums in case the assured be killed during the rebellion, but this is a mere trifle. These brave men are risking their lives in the defence of our country, they make no profit by going, but are in fact losing, and it is terrible to think that many are also forfeiting their life policies, and if killed will leave their wives and children to the cold charities of the world. The policies of probably the majority of companies doing business in Canada become null and void in case of death during the rebellion, although many of them, AS AN ACT OF GRACE, have voluntarily stated they will hold them good. It is at a time like this that the UNCONDITIONAL policies of the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA are appreciated. They cover every risk. It is not a matter of option with the management, for the policy is clear. There is no excuse for accepting a policy with numerous small print conditions when you can get an UNCONDITIONAL ONE in the SUN.

Borough Brevities.

—When are we to have the cedar block crossings spoken of some time ago?

—The man who "fails" to advertise generally doesn't fail to something in the same line, sooner or later.

—The Street Inspector has a great deal to do in keeping the streets in order, and not much to do it with.

—The cricket match on the Amateur Athletic Association grounds, Ashburnham, tomorrow will be well worth seeing.

—This cold-shoulder-ed weather promises to introduce a new kind of esculent—automatic ice-cream—that freezes itself.

—Tenders have been invited for a new spire on St. Peter's Cathedral. See advertisement in another column.

—The thermometer, in a fit of deep despondency, went down on Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock to within 20 degrees of ice point.

—The Egyptian spoils of war brought from the Soudan by Mr. Bradshaw, can be seen at the Commercial (Kennedy's) Hotel, where they will be on exhibition several days.

—The prospects are very bright for another horse race between McLean's "Lady Macdonald" and "Wild Deer" of Port Hope, on the Peterborough Driving Park, for $500 a side.

Everybody says that the new boulevard on Charlotte street, between Reid and Rubidge, with the overhanging maples, making a charming lovers' walk, which is well patronized, is the neatest piece of street in town.

—The embankment of the road leading to the Little Lake Cemetery is in a very bad condition in some places; something should be done to prevent its caving. A stitch in time saves nine.

PERSONAL.

Mr. James Gilfogly, representative of the Lindsay Post, has been in town for the past two or three days.

Mr. J. F. White, Provincial Inspector of Separate Schools, is in town visiting the various institutions under his inspectorate.

Mr. John O'Brien of Douro, who has been confined to his bed since December last, is now able to drive into town; we hope ere long to see him looking as hale and hearty as ever.

Mr. H. C. Wheeler, manager of C. R. Gardner's "Only a Woman's Heart" Dramatic Company, is registered at the Grand Central. The play will be presented in Peterborough shortly.

The Emerson, Manitoba Times, says:—Mrs. F. E. Burnham, accompanied by her daughter Ethel, left on Wednesday morning on a visit to friends in Duluth, and in all probability will visit her old home at Peterborough before returning. We wish them a pleasant trip.

WRONG AGAIN.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—I see your contemporary, the Review, says there is no such name as "Bell" in the Midland Battalion. I know that Samuel Bell went with the Midland Battalion, and belonged to company "G" of said battalion; but, I suppose, the Review man knows more than any body else does, but he is wrong this time.

OLD VOLUNTEER.

Peterborough, June 2nd, 1885.

A Good Appointment.

We are pleased to hear that Mr. E. E. Henderson has received the appointment of agent for the Phœnix Fire Insurance Company, of London, England, one of the oldest and wealthiest companies in Great Britain, first established in 1782, and which has been doing business in Peterborough for over 25 years. The appointment of Mr. Henderson will give very general satisfaction, as it is not only a respectable one, but popular as well. If energy and reliability count, the "Phœnix" has secured the right man to continue their large business here, and the public may feel assured they will receive prompt and liberal dealing. This appointment, we believe, has been made with the consent of the manager of the British Empire Mutual Life, which Mr. Henderson continues to represent. We offer our good wishes.

THE ANGLO-RUSSIAN AFFAIR.

Denmark to Decide.

LONDON, June 1.—A portion of the official papers relating to the attack by Russians on the Afghans on March 30th have been published. They show that on March 29th Sir Peter Lumsden telegraphed the government that the Russians were moving heaven and earth to get the Afghans to fight, and that fighting was certain. On April 2nd he repeated his statement that the attack by Gen. Komaroff was deliberately planned. The subject of arbitration was first proposed by Earl Granville. DeGiers demurred, saying the Emperor of Germany would be the only fit person to arbitrate, and he would refuse. Earl Granville retorted that the emperor must consent if asked.

THE KING OF DENMARK WILL ACT.

LONDON, June 2.—The News states that it has been definitely agreed between England and Russia to invite the king of Denmark to arbitrate as to the responsibility for the Penjdeh incident, and that he has intimated his willingness to act.

Parliamentary Summary.

MONDAY, JUNE 1st.

The Franchise Bill "like a wounded snake drags its slow length along." Clause 12, relating to the mode of making up the voters' lists by the revising vote-makers and vote-marrers has been reached in Committee of the Whole. A large number of Ontario petitions against the Franchise Bill was presented. Sir John is continually introducing amendments, at such a rate and without proper notice, that he evidently hopes that the Opposition will become hopelessly entangled in their meshes and ultimately become disgusted and quit the fight. But the harder the struggle the more the fighting spirit of the Opposition is developed.

Petitions for and against the Scott Act amendments continue to pour in.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

Annual Meeting of the Shareholders—Profits of the Year.

MONTREAL, June 1.—The annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal was held this afternoon. The directors' annual report for the year ending April 30, 1885, showed that the balance to profit and loss account on April 30, 1884, was $306,452 36, and the profits of the year ending April 30 last, after deducting charges of management and making all necessary provision for bad and doubtful debts, was $1,393,116.28. The amount paid for 10 per cent. dividend and 1 per cent. bonus was $1,320,000, leaving a balance to carry forward of $379,569.24, or $73,000 more than last year.

Full of Real Live Matter.

The Port Hope Guide says:—The initial number of the DAILY EVENING EXAMINER was received this morning. It is a neat six column sheet, well printed and full of real live matter. If it keeps up to its present standard it will, as its weekly has done, take the lead in Peterborough. We wish our friend Stratton every success; he deserves it.

The Crops Coming.

Mr. J. J. Irwin, who does a good deal of rural driving, says the present outlook for the coming crops is extremely promising. The growth is so prodigious that one farmer asserted that he left his spade sticking in the ground in a wheat field in the evening and in the morning there were only a few inches of the handle to be seen. This farmer is a great political admirer of Sir Charles Tupper, still the rapidity of growth is something surprising.

Proof Positive.

"We have held a consultation," said a doctor to his patient, "but we are unable to agree as to the exact nature of your disease. Three of the physicians are of one opinion, while I am of another."

"But doctor," said the patient anxiously, "how will the matter be settled?"

"Oh, the post mortem will show who knows best."

BONANZA FOR BIG BEAR.

Middleton and the Midland March to Smash Him.

Nearly Nine Hundred Men Leave Battleford—A Hundred Midland Men in the Division—The Queen's Own Brave—Left to do Garrison Duty.

WINNIPEG, June 1.—A despatch from Battleford this afternoon states that Gen. Middleton did not start to the relief of Gen. Strange until this morning. The contingent left in steamers Alberta, Marquis and Northwest and comprised Midland battalion 100 men, 90th 275, Grenadiers 250 and part of A and B batteries and two gatlings, 60 men.

Boulton's scouts, 60; Dennis' surveyors corps, 50; Brittlebank's (late French's) scouts and 50 mounted police also started this morning, but went by the south trail.

The force is expected to land this side of the Indian position to-night and with Gen. Strange's column on the other side surround the enemy.

The fight is expected on Tuesday.

There are only 30 troops at Edmonton, with Col. Ouimet of the 65th in command.

The exact number of teams that left Calgary yesterday for Edmonton was 228 with several tons of supplies. They were escorted by twenty-five men of the 9th battalion under Capt. Dupiens.

Dr. Orton, who has just arrived in the city from being surgeon to the 90th battalion, has in his possession, as souvenirs of the campaign, rebel bullets taken from the bodies of the wounded.

THE KILLED OF THE 65th.

MONTREAL, June 1.—Joseph Marcotte, reported killed in the fight with Big Bear, was a resident of St. Lawrence Main street, St. Jean Baptiste village, was born at Quebec, was 23 years of age, and came with his family to this city eight years ago. He was a printer by trade. Application is to be made to have his body brought to Montreal.

There is great indignation among members of the Queen's Own at the front and in Toronto that the four companies now at Battleford were not taken by Gen. Middleton in his expedition against Big Bear. Private telegrams from Battleford are to the effect that the Q. O. R. feel their being passed over as a slight, and one prominent member of the corps here said unless a satisfactory explanation was forthcoming he would not be surprised to see the regiment go to pieces.

A possible explanation have been offered of Gen. Middleton's course: (1) That he knew the men who had been with him at Batoche; that they were inured to marching; that they could go at a moment's notice; and that they would give a good account of themselves.

A despatch from Calgary announces that a large outfit, consisting of over 200 teams and carts, started for Edmonton yesterday morning, escorted by 25 of the 9th Quebec battalion. The trail to Edmonton is said to be in a fearful state. This outfit will have a tedious time in getting through. The last one was seven days getting to Battle river, 120 miles from Calgary, and this would take about seven more to get through.

Rev. James Barclay, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Montreal, who went to Winnipeg as chaplain of the Montreal Artillery brigade, has returned home. He left the officers and men in good spirits at the time of his departure.

The trial of Louis Riel will probably commence at Regina about June 22nd before Col. Richardson, stipendiary magistrate,

AT SUAKIM.

Italy Likely to Send Another Expedition to the Red Sea.

CAIRO, June 1.—Emmissaries of the Mahdi now daily enter Suakim. Sick soldiers in Suakim are increasing in numbers. The Indian troops suffer terribly. The rebels are beginning to renew their attacks upon Suakim. None of the tribes hitherto friendly to the English are wavering. The Mahdi has sent ten guns to Osman Digna, and arms and ammunition will follow.

ROME, June 1.—The Diritto foreshadows the occupation of Suakim next autumn by Italy. It says the Italian Government is preparing another expedition to the Red Sea, which will take many gifts frm King Humbert to the native authorities at Suakim.

RETALIATION.

Russia Driving Germans Back to Their Native Country.

LONDON, June 1.—The supposition that the expulsion of Russian Poles from Prussia was due to an understanding between the Governments of Russia seems to have no foundation. Russia is anything but pleased at the action of the Prussian authorities, and is engaged in the execution of retaliatory measures. Many German residents of Russia are being forced to return to their native country. Hardly any notice is given and much hardship and suffering attend their expulsion. In many instances refugees reach the frontier destitute.

OBITUARY.

Charles Pelham Mulvany, M. A., M. D., Trinity College, Dublin, died Monday afternoon in Toronto at the age of 49 years. He was ill but about one week, the immediate cause of death being paralysis of the heart. His grandfater was a post captain in the Royal Navy, and took part in the battle of Bunker Hill. Dr. Mulvany was a graceful and polished writer, and the author of several books relating to Canada, amongst them being "Toronto, Past and Present," various county histories, and quite recently was at work on "The History of Liberalism in Canada." He was a writer of verse of a very superior order.

HOW GERMS GET IN THE LUNGS.

In the ordinary healthy lungs, perhaps even in persons who have a consumptive heredity, the germ which causes the breakdown of the lung may not be able to make an impression; but if the physical integrity is destroyed by poor food, or any debilitating influence, or by cold, then the germ is able to get in its work, and to multiply and produce its kind, and fill the lungs with tubercles.

Dr. C. H. Hughes, the alienist, says that cholera is essentially a disease of the nervous system.

SMITH.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

A fire occurred on Tuesday last the 26th of May at the 5th Concession of Smith, which proved very disastrous for Mr. Frank Montgomery; it appears that while Mr. Montgomery was away in Toronto his father had been smoking some hams in a small building adjoining the house, and thinks this was the source of the conflagration. Before any of the neighbors could render any assistance the flames had spread throughout the entire building, and it was by dint of the most strenuous exertion that they saved one bed and a sewing machine, at the same time keeping the fire from spreading to the barns and outbuildings. There was no insurance and Mr. Montgomery can hardly give any approximate idea at his loss.

An Escape.

One day the police, while making a search, really had Olga Liubatovich in their grasp. A friend, distancing the gendarmes by a few moments, had merely only time to rush breathlessly up the stairs, dash into the room where she was and exclaim: "Save yourself! the police!" when the police were already surrounding the house. Olga had not even time to put on her bonnet. Just as she was she rushed to the back stairs, and hurried down at full speed. Fortunately the street door was not yet guarded by the gendarmes, and she was able to enter a little shop on the ground floor. She had only 20 kopecks in her pocket, having been unable, in her haste, to get any money. But this did not trouble her. For 15 kopecks she bought a cotton handkerchief, and fastened it round her head in the style adopted by coquettish servant-girls. With the 5 kopecks remaining she bought some nuts and left the shop eating them, in such a quiet and innocent manner that the detachment of police, which meanwhile had advanced and surrounded the house on that side, let her pass without even asking her who she was, although the description of her was well known, for her photograph had been distributed to all the agents, and the police have always strict orders to let no one who may arouse the slightest suspicion leave a house which they have surrounded. This was not the only time that she slipped like an eel through the fingers of the police. She was inexhaustible in expedients, in stratagems, and in cunning, which she always had at her command at such times; and with all this she maintained her serious and severe aspect, so that she seemed utterly incapable of lending herself to deceit or simulation. Perhaps she did not think, but acted upon instinct rather than reflection, and that was why she could meet every danger with the lightning-like rapidity of a fencer who parries a thrust.—Stepniak in the Cornhill Magazine.

They Settled.

Two men were wrangling in front of the City Hall the other day, when one of them called out:

"I tell you I don't owe you no $5!"

"I say you do!"

"And I won't pay it!"

"Then I'll sue you!"

At this point a pedestrian halted and inquired of the one:

"Do you honestly owe him?"

"Not a penny, sir!"

"And will you sue him for $5?" he asked of the other.

"I will!"

"Give him seven dollars," continued the pedestrian to the debtor—"give him seven and be glad to. If he sues he's sure of a verdict, and your expenses will reach at least ten dollars. Give him seven and be thankful that you are beating two lawyers, a justice and a constable, six jurymen and two witnesses out of their fees."

A satisfactory settlement was made on the spot.—Detroit Free Press.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

The Midland Reception.

To the Lindsay Post belongs the honor of suggesting that steps be taken to give the Midland battalion a fitting welcome home on their return from the North-West. We heartily concur in the suggestion, and will do what may be done to further the carrying out of the scheme. It is only fitting that the brave members of the Midland Battalion, who have played such a prominent part in the stirring affairs of the past two months, should be met with an enthusiastic reception. Not only have they fulfilled with a fullness and promptness the ordinary drudgery of the routine of campaign life, thus showing the best qualities of good soldiers,—a readiness to perform whatever duty suggests, whether the menial or martial element more predominate—but in the exciting hour of battle they have shown a bravery, steadiness and dash that distinguish them over, if possible, the other detachments of our little Northwest army. The brilliant charge made by the boys at Batoche is worthy of as great praise as any in the history of British arms. For though not as much blood was shed, not as much butchery perpetrated, the spirit of bravery shown could not be surpassed. Every man that dashed on took his life in his hand; there was not one to shrink; all that seemed to be thought of was that the enemy must be dislodged. The men that took part in the grand charge of the Light Brigade, though their prowess has been sung by a crowned laureate, showed no greater gallantry, no higher contempt of danger than the Midland boys at Batoche. Altogether throughout the campaign the Midland district contingent have done their duty nobly, and, while some, who are fortunate enough to have been at Batoche, are worthy of decoration for their dashing bravery, all are right worthy of a cordial welcome home. And we have no doubt that arrangements will be made to give this idea effect in a brilliant demonstration on the occasion of their home-coming. The date of this, however is still uncertain, for it is probable that a considerable force will be retained in the Northwest to complete the pacification of the country, and if the authorities under Gen. Middleton's advice, should select certain corps, we know of none more likely to be chosen than our own boys. Thus it may be some time before the occasion for the proposed demonstration may arrive. As to the management of the affair, we suggest that the officers and members of the different corps from which the Midland was chosen, should have the honor of making the arrangements. They have been chafing in inglorious inactivity at home, while their comrades have been reaping laurels on the field of battle. The most central and accessible point of sufficient importance in the district should be chosen, and in these respects, Peterborough seems to us to be most suitable. It is accessible by rail in half a dozen different directions, while it could afford ample accomodation to the immense crowds which the demonstration would be sure to gather. We heartily endorse the suggestion of the Post, and hope the authorities will take the matter up in earnest.

Editorial Notes.

The St. Thomas Journal puts it neatly, when it remarks that "over every one of the 211 constituencies in Canada there hangs a debt of one million two hundred thousand dollars."

The financial aspect of the Northwest rebellion is, in the present ruinous condition of our money matters, simply appalling. The first vote was $700,000; the second, $1,000,000, and the expense still goes on.

In the report of the County Engineer, submitted to the Council last January, it was stated that the bridge over the Big Chute at Barleigh was in a bad condition, but it was thought unwise to erect a new bridge, as a swing would be necessary when the T. V. Canal is constructed. This seems to be an excess of caution, for, according to the interest taken in Trent Valley navigation, by the Government, the timber for the necessary bridge may be grown from the seed.

The Old Testament Revision.

The public are now in possession of the lately revised version of the Scriptures, and the book is being rapidly assumed by many who take a deep interest in the Bible for its own sake, and by others, whose attention is of a more transitory and impermanent character. When a few years ago the revised New Testament appeared, its publication undoubtedly gave a great impetus to the study of the Scriptures. To magazines and newspaper men it was a prolific source of material for numerous reviews and editorials, and many a pamphlet saw the light specially to dilate on its merits and demerits, which is now known to the reading public no more. With thousands upon thousands, the interest, which grew so rapidly, fell altogether away, and now the work is looked upon by the majority of people as a mere literary curiosity. A few, perhaps, use it for purposes of reference—"only that and nothing more"

A number of writers who have published leading reviews and criticisms on the revised edition of the Old Testament seem greatly exercised in their endeavours to forecast the result of this long-looked-for publication. They have pondered on the perplexing problem whether or not it is likely to supersede the Authorised Edition, and their replies to the question have been an undecided and fluctuating, as they were numerous and conflicting. We submit, it is all too soon to reply definitely to any such query. It will take long years to decide whether the book is worthy to supersede the present version. No amount of talk, or able writing, or declamation, will force the Christian world to come suddenly to a conclusion on this vital and important subject. The work must first be thoroughly known, and as Dr. Chambers says, "It must stand or fall by its own merits, and no efforts, whether of friends or foes, can prevent this result. If the work is a failure, if it is no advance upon its predecessor, if its gains in one direction are outweighed by shortcomings in another, it will pass into merited neglect and oblivion. No amount of argument can save it. All the resources of scholarship, wit and dialectic skill will utterly fail to reverse the popular verdict."

This is sensible and it is true. Besides, we should reflect that the present revision, although made, as we all know, in 1611, took at least fifty years to secure a place in the affections of the people. It would, indeed, be nothing creditable if that place could be won readily, in a few months, or even in a few years, by this new candidate for popular favor. With all its imperfections, (none of them after all of very great consequence) the great glowing heart of the Anglo-Saxon race clings with fondest feelings to the Bible as put forth under "the most high and mighty Prince James." And for ourselves, we cannot but rejoice at this additional proof of the common sense, rigid conservatism and sturdy independence of the British race.

As we have said, the version of 1611, although made by the authorities of both church and state, and backed by all their power and prestige, did not come into immediate favour. For five long years before it was issued, i.e. from 1606, no edition of the Bishop's Bible was printed. This was an immense gain on the side of the present authorized Version when it was first put forth, and yet it did not materially help the circulation. All these adventitious aids, all the wondrous machinery of a powerful state church, backed by the government and the aristocracy, simply went for nothing. In 1628, Archbishop Laud, while on his periodic visitations, found hundreds of churches were not supplied with King James' translation, and had to peremptorily command the church authorities to procure the work without delay. And to reconcile the people to the new Book, Barker, the sole printer, cunningly got up the work to resemble the versions it was intended to replace. He used the identical type, headpieces and blocks employed in issuing former versions, and endeared to the populace by old associations. These almost quite forgotten facts should be borne in mind while endeavouring to answer the question, "What will become of the revised Bible?" They at least confirm us in the opinion, that if such plans had to be adopted two hundred and seventy years ago, we need hardly be surprised that the new revised version will fall somewhat flat, nor need we expect that during our life-time this Bible will be generally accepted by the Christian World.

CAVAN.

COURT OF REVISION.

The members of the Cavan council met on Wednesday, May 27th, 1885, at 10 o'clock a. m., as a Court of Revision on the assessment roll, for the current year pursuant to notice. Present Mr. Campbell, reeve; Mr. Ferguson, deputy reeve; and Messrs. Donaldson, McNeil and Sanderson, councillors. The members having made the required oath before the Clerk of the municipality, the court was duly opened, the Reeve presiding. The clerk of the municipality as clerk of the court, presented the following list of appeals, viz: James McPherson, appellant, respecting overcharge on real property; David McPherson, a similar complaint. The complaints were respectively heard and decided by the court as follows:

Re-James McPherson, After hearing appellant and assessor it was ordered that this assessment be confirmed.

Re-David Jamieson. After hearing complainant, assessor and other evidence in the case it was ordered that this assessment be lowered two hundred dollars.

At the request of Robert Mills, Wm. R. Hetherington, who was entered on the assessment roll as a householder on part of Lot No. 13, 11th con., was entered as a householder of part of Lot No. 13, in the 12th con., in place thereof, which was granted by the Court, and the desired change was made.

The Court ordered that Archibald McBean be entered on the roll as owner of part of Lot No. 13, in the 5th con.

No other appellants being present, after a further examination of the roll by the Court, it was moved by Mr. Donaldson, seconded by Mr. Sanderson,—That the assessment roll for the Municipality of the Township of Cavan, as now revised, be finally passed by this Court, and that the Clerk do certify the same as so passed.—Carried.

FISH AS HORSES.

The Tugging Power of Sturgeon and the Lying Powers of Man.

Ont. Fort William Echo,

Sitting on the bow of the steam tug Mary Ann on her way up the Kam. for a raft of timber, Captain George McDonnell told the following story:—"A few years ago when I was living on the Red River, there was a man with one leg who was well known to all the settlers round about there—he resembles very much the man who sells newspapers in Port Arthur. He was living at a junction of the Red river with one of its tributaries about forty miles below Winnipeg. He was anxious to get to the latter place, but waited in vain for a boat to convey him. As no boat came, he determined to make the trip the best way he could, so, securing seventeen live sturgeon which had just been caught by some fishermen there, he threaded a cord through their gills and, harnessing them to a skiff, threw them back into the river. Off they went at full speed up stream, the man sitting at the bow of the boat which he used as a whip. When one of the fish would attempt to turn in a wrong direction down would come the stick with force upon its back, and the unruly one would be compelled to keep the right course. During the trip of forty miles, which was made in something less than an hour, two of the fish had to be killed and unharnessed for their refractory conduct, but the journey was a fast and pleasant one, and when the destination was reached the sturgeon that had shown the greatest willingness to work and the greatest strength was picked from the remaining fifteen and given a place at the dinner table in the evening."

JAMAICA ONCE MORE.

Our friends from Jamaica are bound to try again. A deputation from the island is now in Ottawa, to talk over with our authorities the question of commercial arrangements. From what has been published so far respecting this visit, the annexation scheme appears to have been abandoned; which is one point gained, inasmuch as dwelling upon what is wholly impracticable only serves to bar the way against better proposals, which might stand a chance of being adopted. Canadian products are so unlike those of Jamaica that there should really be no competition between the two; and it ought to be comparatively easy to arrange for fair commercial terms.

FAITH CURE.

At Erie, Pa., a few weeks ago, Adam P. Harley, a prominent Oddfellow and Knight of Pythias, who lay at the point of death as a consumptive, submitted his case at the faith cure establishment in that city. To the astonishment of his friends and the skeptical, Harley arose from his bed and went around the city proclaiming his cure as the result of the prayer test. The faith test took a boom, and a large number of consumptives came in for the prayer treatment, abandoning their physicians. When the doctors pronounced Harley's case as hopeless they were posted by the praying circle as scoffers. Harley died on Thursday last while engaged in prayer for other candidates at the test.

TOO MUCH RAIN.

BURNT IN A CHURCH.

MONTREAL, May 30.—Maria Filiatrault, while making her first communion in the church at St. Cunegonde, near here, yesterday, had her light clothes set on fire by some one dropping a candle. Her whole person was at once in a blaze, and before assistance could be rendered she was badly burned about the face and body. A panic occurred in the church, both men and women running out shrieking. The girl is expected to die.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

OR,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The Leaden Casket," "Thorpcroft's Model," &c. &c

"You must go in the gig, then," said Philip, who had just returned with a handful of letters and papers. "It is no end of a long and tiresome way through the town; besides, you would neither of you like the queer little bridge between St. Servan and St. Malo."

The boat was lowered and they started, and while Philip entertained Lettice and Aunt Esther with extracts from his letters, Lucy admired the stately island town with its long walls and many towers.

It was a long pull to the Grand Bey.—"You are right in thinking the view must be grand from there," said Philip looking up at the great rocky islet. "It must be splendid."

The sea near St. Malo is full of these tiny islands—after St. Malo itself this is the largest and steepest. On the side where they were about to land, it descends to the shore in a series of short precipices, ending in a great confusion of fallen rocks.—When the tide is low, the Grand Bey is no island, but rises in craggy steepness from the rock-strewn shore. A tract of sand divides it from St. Malo. It is a wet and stony walk, but the first part of the way is made more easy by a roughly-built, narrow, low, stone causeway. An expedition to the Grand Bey, unaccompanied by a boat, is not without its dangers; for when the tide is rising, people may walk about on the sands on three sides of the island, and be wholly unaware that the sea is stealing in behind them, and that all return to the mainland will ere long be cut off. The low causeway is soon covered, and becomes a snare to those who remember it, and, instead of scaling the heights above, attempt to wade along it. Each year brings its record of those who have done this, and, confused by the incoming waves and by their own alarm, have missed the narrow way and fallen into deeper water. The chance of climbing the hill remains after all hope of escape by the causeway is gone; but even this last chance is gone before the sands are entirely covered. Our party knew nothing of these dangers. The boat pulled up to the shore, a sailor jumped out and drew it in, and once more all touched land. The tide was rising but there was little or no sign of it yet—only a little brisk activity amongst the white-crowned waves outside. "Come back for us in about two hours and a half," said Philip to the sailors. "You will be ready then, won't you, Lucy?" Lucy having assented, he added carelessly, "I suppose by that time the causeway will be covered?"

"Aye, sir, covered deep enough, and with forty or fifty feet of water!"

"Why that will bring the sea up to—up to where?" for the assertion he had begun ended in an inquiry.

"Up to the very top of the second flight of steps. Keep those steps in sight, sir," said the man, earnestly. "If you stay down on the sands, mind that you see that your way up the steps is clear, and whatever you do, sir, don't let any of your ladies straggle!"

Philip nodded, he knew there were high tides in that region, but he had no idea that they rose as high as the man seemed to say. And yet he had seen the watermark that morning on the great sea walls at St. Malo. However, he at once addressed himself to the task of looking after his party. The boat, meantime, was making its way to St. Malo.

"It is difficult to believe that water can rise so fast," said Lucy. "Let us stay down here and watch it awhile."

"It won't be here for another half-hour," said Philip, who had asked some questions of the sailors; so they wandered about a little, and picked up shells, and waited to see the causeway covered. With a boat coming back for them in two hours or so, they felt independent of all stealthy surprises, if only they kept the way up the rock in view.

The sea crept nearer and nearer; it was wrapping itself round the Grand Bey, and still it left shore enough to have tempted them to wander if they had not been warned against doing so. It came still nearer. They heard an ominous "swish," which denoted increased activity in the water, and before long, one wave sent a thin silvery wash over the causeway.

"By Jove, but it does come quickly," cried Philip; "you girls would not get on shore now, without being knee-deep in water, if you ran ever so fast," for now stronger and stronger waves poured in, and the causeway was covered.

At this moment, just as they were observing how much the space which was left them was diminishing, a gentleman with an open sketching folio, and hastily-caught-up color-box hastily ran across the sands to them, and cried in feigned surprise: "Why the causeway is covered—what is to be done?"

"Well; we have been watching the water cover it," said Philip coolly.

"And I have been watching you, and thinking I might safely stay where I was, so long as your party was here—I meant to beat a retreat the very moment you, who were watching the place, moved."

"We are going up the hill," said Philip. "I am afraid we must go at once, too.—We have a boat coming for us in two hours."

"Oh, a boat!" said the stranger; I ought to have thought of that!—Pray excuse my stupidity. Well, it is only a little more water than I expected—that is all"—and without loss of time, he promptly began to pack up his folio before undertaking his wet walk.

"It is far too deep for you to venture," said Aunt Esther.

"It is not safe!" said Philip. "Will you accept a place in our boat? You will only have to wait two hours for it. We shall be very glad to be of service to you."

"Thank you," said the stranger. "I accept most gratefully—I shall be very glad to see the view from shore again. But if we do not go there soon, we shall have some wading to do even here!" That was true. Vicious little white-edged pools were swirling in on one side—vigorous waves on the other—and without wasting another moment the whole party hastened to the path leading to the summit. Sometimes it was a path, sometimes a flight of broken and irregular stone steps, and by this they at last reached the top, which was nothing more than a bit of wild pasture land. How the cows got up these rough steps they themselves best knew, but one or two were there; and there were some sheep, too, and here and there, amongst the grass, patches of sweet wild thyme and clover for them to eat.

"One requires to study the map," said the new comer, "to understand this rush of water. They have the same kind of thing at Bristol, I believe. There is something almost terrible about tides which rise fifty or sixty feet high."

"If such a tide came suddenly on our South Coast, all the marine parades and terraces which are built along it would be under water."

"And a good thing, too!" cried the stranger. "What hideous constructions they are, and how they are stealing around the island! It's my belief that in another fifty years or so, all England will be girt with one uniform row of stuccoed and handsomely facaded houses, with cards in the windows to say that lodgings may be found within."

Well, from one point of view, that would be much more convenient," said Mrs. Mostyn. "It would be easier to get lodgings. It is such a trouble now—one never knows where to go—and when one does get into comfortable rooms one only catches scarlet fever in them.'

"But what would become of our pretty sea-side places? There are some still."

"They must share the fate of all other beautiful things in this most destructive age," said the stranger. "That cannot be prevented; but when in the pursuance of ugliness and money-making the whole island is encircled by these terraces, I don't see why a check should not be put on a spread to infection in this way—let every illness have a district of its own—let the names of these districts easily indicate where they are to be found. Let us have a Measleville, where sufferers from that malady may go; a Scarlatina Town for another class, and so on."

"But," cried Lucy, "if this terrace runs all round the country, the various kinds of invalids will meet and catch each other's illnesses at the end houses of each district."

"Oh, no, they won't! The terrace cannot be quite round. Some natural barriers are sure to interpose; and besides, if the patients do come in contact with each other in that way, even that is better than living in the same house as they often do at present. But see how that gleam of sunlight turns everything into a delight? St. Malo looks quite splendid now that there is a touch of rose-color on its walls!"

"What a wonderful place it is!" said Lucy. "So strong and stony; and those forts on the other islands are fine, too."

"Yes; but I daresay those spiky rocks which crop up everywhere in the bay would, in case of need, do just as much to defend the place as any of the forts. Oh, do look at the difference the sunshine makes! Before it came, St. Malo, with its trimly-restored walls and towers and nearly squared stones, was but a dull thing to look on, and now it is divine."

"Yes; and have you noticed that bed of sea-pinks behind you there on the hill-side, with the sun shining through them?"

"They are like crimson fire! We are going to have a splendid sunset."

Mrs. Mostyn called them to see Chateaubriand's ugly tomb. "It is a lonely place to be buried in," said she; "I don't like it."

"Not lonely at all, to my mind," said he; "with the wind blowing freely over it, and the sun shining down, and the waves making their music below, it seems to me the very place for a poet's grave."

"I suppose," said Mrs. Mostyn, "the real truth is, that I don't want to be buried anywhere. All places are dismal when we look on them in that light."

"If we have done anything worth doing," said the stranger, "I do not see that it is so hard to die. I should hate to die if I had not at least tried to do something."

"Certainly," said Mrs. Mostyn, "only don't make it so hard and painful to live as it is to die. I mean, don't make life too much of an effort and struggle."

"It is meant to be an effort and a struggle," said he; "there is rest, and more than enough of rest when we come to that!" and he pointed hastily to the lonely grey tomb.

Lucy looked at his strong and earnest face. She wondered what kind of work he tried to do. She did not think he was likely to fail in it. His face was full of kindness as well as strength. The rest of the party having moved a step or two on the bank again—Lettice always did

The Daily Examiner.

TUESDAY, JUNE 2, 1885.

USE THE TELEPHONE.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

ALL AROUND TOWN.

Who is it?

The report has reached us from reliable authority, that a prominent resident in the West end of our prosperous town was actually caught in the act of feeding his horse on the public thoroughfares of that quarter; the animal being tethered by means of a long rope.

Lacrosse.

The members of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club met last evening at the Little Windsor. Beaverton's challenge was accepted to play for the local championship, in Peterborough, in the course of a few weeks. The date will be made known shortly, Dominion Day matters were discussed, and the chances are, that it will be a field day for the national game.

Forester's Gathering.

The Committee appointed by Court Peterborough, No. 29, to make the necessary arrangements for the suitable entertainment of the delegates to the High Court, which will be held in Peterborough next week, met last evening and completed arrangements. They are on an elaborate scale, and we feel satisfied in predicting a successful meeting at the excursion on the Golden Eye and supper at Faucher's summer resort, to take place on Tuesday evening the 9th of June.

Between the Acts.

Messrs. Crevier and Phelan have entered into another branch of business in connection with their Billiard Parlor, they have recently opened out at the head of the Opera House stairs a lovely stock of domestic and imported cigars; as well as the latest shades in lemonades, soda water, etc., hereafter it will not be necessary for the "boys" to go out of the building for their (soft) drinks between the acts.

Ireland vs. Italy.

The other evening quite a crowd was attracted to the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer streets to witness, what very nearly turned out to be a lively set-to, between two representatives of the above countries. The Italian was armed with a huge stone, whilst the Celt, true to the instincts of his race, backed up his arguments by means of a short "bit of a twig." The chip had been knocked off the "Tallyman's" shoulder and that worthy was about to commence hostilities, when a member of the "Army" passed and sunny Italy thinking of the law assumed a smile and said "No fight, boss," whilst the Irishman was heard to remark something about "waiting till he'd catch him again."

The Quintette Club Concert.

The Detroit News in referring to the concert given by the Mendelssohn Quintette Club says:

"It is not too much to say that one of the most delightful concerts ever given in this city was the one listened to last night by a large audience at Harmonic Hall. The temptation is to be extravagantly enthusiastic with the recollection of the individual performances fresh in mind. The programme opened with a movement from Mendelssohn's Quintette in B flat, op. 87, and closed with the Turkish march from Beethoven's "Ruins of Athens." These were the only concerted numbers rendered by the Quintette Club, but they were sufficient to show that the changes that the organization has undergone have in no degree destroyed its ability to grasp the hidden beauties of instrumental music and disclose them by delicate, spirited and intelligent interpretation."

We have had the pleasure of hearing this inimitable musical organization more than once, and can fully endorse the praise of our contemporary. The concert will be given in Bradburn's Opera House on Friday, June 5th. The public seem to appreciate the treat in store for them. The seats in the reserved seat plan at McClelland's jewellry store are nearly all taken, and those desiring to hear this great musical organization's performance, would do well not to delay securing seats. Tickets 50 and 75 cents.

Meeting in the Y. M. C. A. Hall.

The Peterborough branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union met in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Monday afternoon, Mrs. Fitzgerald, the president, occupying the chair. The meeting was organized by praise Scripture readings and prayer. After routine a communication was read from Mrs. Chisholm, President of the Provincial Association, stating that as a fire had occured in the office of the Journal the May number would be delayed for some days.

A letter from Miss Bowes, provincial organizer of unions was read. Among other things, she said:

"How is your Union prospering? I hope you have affiliated with the Provincial. If not please let me admonish you relative to this, the first duty after the canvassers do their work. * * * How is the Scott Act campaign progressing? I trust the leaders are not, to any extent, dispirited by the action of the Senate relative to the "Wine and Beer Clauses." I cannot believe the House of Commons will pass such a measure. If such should be the result, we would not be defeated, but would strike immediately for prohibition complete. The temperance sentiment is too strong in this Province to allow the advocates to lay down their weapons of warfare and succumb to those who have little or no interest in the protection of the body or the safety of the soul. Let us work on, dear ladies, nothing terrified by our adversaries, knowing that greater is He that is for us than all that can be against us. I was pleased to learn to-day that dear Miss Fawcett had written to all the Unions, which I have organized. I am certain she would stimulate and inspire by her words of cheer."

A form of report was also presented from Mrs. Fawcett, to be filled in by the local Union and returned to her. The Committee for membership reported the addition of one new member since last meeting.

A discussion took place on the subject of literature and it was decided to hold a series of entertainments such as those held in temples. The meeting adjourned to meet on June 15th.

School Board Meeting.

A regular meeting of the School Board will be held this evening in the Collegiate Institute buildings at 7.45 o'clock.

P. B. C.

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Boating Club will be held this evening in the Boat-house at 8 o'clock. A large attendance is requested.

Change in Temperature.

There was a sudden change in the temperature last evening, and most of the pedestrians on the various thoroughfares appeared clad in their "fall and spring."

Pushing Business Men.

Messrs. Giroux & Sullivan shipped via Grand Trunk Railway yesterday two large cases of their goods to their Hastings branch store. Another evidence of the good business principles of that firm.

The Parlor Roller Rink

Is the fashionable resort for pleasure seekers during the past few days of cool weather, the skates are in good condition, new wheels, the floor kept in superb order, in fact as a stranger remarked "a place for everything, and everything in its place."

They Did Not Like It.

Since F. H. Robbins' clown defined a "dude" as being "a fellow working in a dry goods store with his hair parted in the centre and continually yelling cash," the majority of our town dry goods clerks will not permit the barber to comb their hair any more for fear he should make a mistake.

The Coming Bicyclist.

Mr. J. McNamara, jeweller, purchased through Mr. W. P. O'Brien, a perfect gem, in the way of a bicycle. It is a Columbia, of English manufacture, full nickel plated, and cost the purchaser $125; Mack has given up our national game, and has given his preference to a more expeditious way of breaking his neck.

Important Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Alumni Association of the College of Ottawa will be held this year in the College, buildings on the 17th instant. A grand banquet will take place at the Russel House in the evening. A number of the graduates from Peterborough and vicinity have already announced their intention of attending.

Bible Study at the Y. M. C. A.

This class still maintains its interest, though the attendance is not quite so large as during the winter months. The ability of the Rev. Mr. Munro as leader of such a class is very marked, and we can with all confidence urge young men to attend, knowing that they will feel amply repaid. It will be held this evening as usual, at eight o'clock, the subject being "The Life of Samuel."

Illustrated War News.

The ninth number of the Canadian Pictorial and Illustrated War News is before us. It contains the following illustrations:—In the Skirmish Line at Batoche (from a sketch by Mr. E. W. Morrison); The 65th Battalion (Mount Royal Rifles) at Port Arthur (from a photograph by Cooke); Lieut.-Col. Gray, M. P. P., commanding Toronto Field Battery (from a photograph by Hunter & Co.): A Zareba in the Northwest (from diagram and description by the Globe's Correspondent); Artillery Shelling the Rebels at Fish Creek (from a sketch by Mr. E. W. Morrison). There is also a very fine graphic two-page Supplement, entitled "The Bayonet Charge at Batoche." The paper sells at 15 cents per copy, obtainable from local booksellers and from the office of publication.

Timber Shipment.

Mr. Silas Thompson has shipped over the Grand Junction Railway all his spar timber, for Belleville, where it is to be rafted for Quebec.

The First Drive.

Messrs Ullyot and Saddler's logs are wending their way quietly towards Harwood their destination, they are gradually accumulating and are making things troublesome for the members of the P. B. C.

St. Luke's C. of E. T. S.

The regular fortnightly meeting of St. Luke's Church Temperance Society will be held in the school room, Ashburnham, this evening at 8 o'clock. The usual programme of music and readings will be given. All are invited to be present.

Trinity College School, Port Hope.

The Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Rector of Ashburnham, has again been requested to act as Examiner in Divinity for Trinity College School, Port Hope. This is the fourth year in which he has acted in this capacity. The examinations will be held next week, but the result will not be known until early in July.

Cricket.

A slight change has taken place in the formation of the team that will represent the Peterboroughs in their match with the Toronto University Cricketers to-morrow on the grounds of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association. The following are the names of the players that will compose the team:—Prof. J. Norley, Max. Hamilton, Myles Hamilton, P. E. Cooper, R. B. Rogers, S. Ray, H. Grundy, W. Sabine, T. Rutherford, G. W. Hatton and J. E. Hammond. Wickets pitched at 11 a. m. Admission—Gents 15c., ladies 10c.

Police Court.

William Shuter, the man who did the portable fish business of Peterborough a short time ago, was up before the magistrate this morning, charged by his wife with neglecting to support her and her two daughters. Mr. E. B. Edwards appeared for the complainant, and William conducted his own defence in such an able manner that the magistrate adjourned the case until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, when William will again face the responsibilities arising from his temporarily complicated state of domestic relations.

June Fair.

To-day is fair day, though it would be difficult to judge that such was the case by the appearance of the market this morning. Four agricultural implements, all self-binding reapers, were the only specialties that graced the square; one from the Massey Manufacturing Company, Toronto; one from Watson's Deering, Ayr, Ont.; the Minnesota Manufacturing Company, represented by Messrs. Needhem and Armstrong; and last, but not least, one from Peter Hamilton's agricultural works, of this town, a self twine binder, which attracted considerable attention.

The Last Sad Rites.

There was an imposing concourse of citizens from both town and country followed the remains of the late William Fairweather to their last resting place, Little Lake Cemetery this afternoon.

As We Expected.

To-day's issue of the Mail contains a flat denial of all the statements made by the Lindsay correspondent of that paper, with reference to the recent base ball "fizzle." We thought it rather strange that Peterborough, according to the Lindsay expónant's remarks, would go back on the boys at the eleventh hour.

The Daily Examiner.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3, 1885.

Borough Brevities.

—Trying to conduct business without advertising is like "making bricks without straw."

—The supplementary supplies for the Midland Battalion, arrived at Moosejaw within a week after their shipment.

—We have received the May number of Night and Day, a magazine published in the interests of the Barnardo Homes.

GEO. A. MORRISON'S "Court Plaster" has come. Call in, boys, and get a free package. Office at Sailsbury's.

—The Belleville Intelligencer says that a gang of men are at work putting Mr. Elias Thompson's spar timber into rafts for shipment down the lake and the St. Lawrence.

—The Rathbun Lumber Company are making large shipments of lumber to different points on the Midland Division of the G.T.R.

—After the test of self-binding reapers, covers the market with a lot of strawey litter, Mr. Beavis should insist on a test of horse-rakes to clean the square.

—The regular plan of reserved seats for the Quintette Club concert have been all aken, and additional rows immediately in rear have been reserved.

—The steady, uniform tramp of the 57th Battalion in crossing Hunter street bridge on Tuesday night caused more vibration of the structure than a thousand men crossing over it in disorder would have done.

—Another break in the waterworks main developed on George street nearly in front of the EXAMINER office this morning. The mains may "bust," but they can't "bust" the hang-on and pluck of the company.

—Military critics who noticed the march out of the 57th last night were greatly struck with the improvement in steadiness of marching and soldierly set-up since their last turnout.

—Drum-Major Graham, of the 57th Band, rules his men with an iron hand. To suit the dignity of his position he should be provided with a suitable mace and a busby two feet high.

—The Melbourne Argus, Australia, says that Madame Cora Giese, who will sing at the Quintette Club concert on Friday night, achieved an unique success in her performance of the beautiful "Ave Maria" by Cherubini.

—What has become of the cup that Mr. W. A. Sanderson presented to the junior exponents of our national game? We believe it is nestling somewhere in the banner ward of the town, and should be hunted up.

—The Sydney (New South Wales) Herald says of Madame Cora Giese, who sang the Polacca from "Mignon," that she electrified the audience with the brilliancy of her execution. Madame Giese will sing at the Quintette Club concert on Friday night.

—A prominent player of the P. L. C. the other evening, in his haste to catch the 'bus, made a mistake and collared a pair of ladies slippers instead of his rubber shoes; the consequence was that he had to gallop around the park barefooted.

—The Los Angelos, Call says of Madame Giese, who will sing at the Quintette Club concert, Friday night, "she is a charming cantatrice, with a sweet, powerful, flexible voice and an admirable method. She was obliged to respond to a rapturous encore."

—The Intelligencer thinks that "so small a place" as Peterborough can't support three daily papers. Peterborough may be small, but it is alive; and if Belleville can support two daily papers, this town, in proportion to its push and progress is able to support half a dozen.

—Mr. R. B. McKee has supplied the Lacrosse Club with a beautiful lawn mower, and now every evening after practise the married members of the Club take hold and obtain additional exercise; they seem to like the idea of wheeling it along in front of them.

THE KAISER'S CONDITION.

BERLIN, June 1.—There are conflicting reports regarding the health of the Emperor of Germany. The Court Circular continues silent on the subject. The German and other newspapers say a fresh cold kept the Emperor in bed all of Saturday and that three doctors were in the palace one day and entire night.

U.S. WHEAT CROP PROMISES

A Very Small Harvest Expected.

Illinois.—Fifty-three per cent. of the entire wheat crop of the State has been plowed up, and more would have been plowed had not the ground been sown to clover and grass. A large proportion of the wheat that is heading out proves to be chess, and there is no probability that bread and seed will be made in southern Illinois this year. Four entire counties in the central and southern tier have been plowed up, and in eight other counties the crop is reported as an entire failure. The average condition of all the counties of the State does not exceed 46 per cent. of the yield of 1884, based upon the fields not yet plowed up.

Kansas.—The same conditions which exist in Illinois are to be found in Kansas, with this exception, that the Hessian fly has been at work more largely in the one State than the other. The acreage of the State not plowed under is 52 per cent. of 1884, and the average condition of the plant is 53.

Missouri.—The state presents the same condition spoken of with reference to Illinois and Kansas. The Winter killed fields having been plowed under, leaves the total acreage remaining 58 per cent. of 1884, and the average condition is 52. The state will not produce more than one-third of its last year's yield.

Ohio.—The northern tier of counties are making a better showing than the average of the States already given, but in all the southern counties the plant has been badly winter killed. The growing acreage has been reduced to 76 per cent. of last year, and the average condition does not exceed 58 per cent. of 1884.

Indiana.—In portions of northern Indiana there is a promise of an average yield, but in the southern portion of the State the outlook is no more promising than in Ohio and Illinois. The yielding of the State will be about 45 per cent. of last year.

Tennessee.—The winter wheat prospects in this State have been running down steadily for 30 days, and the latest advices indicate that the State will not harvest one-fourth of the crop of 1884.

Kentucky.—In a few counties of Kentucky the wheat crop promises to be fair, but the returns by counties indicate that the crop will not exceed 50 per cent. of last year.

California, Oregon, and Washington Territory.—The prolonged drought in California has very greatly injured the prospects for the growing crop in that State. Edwin P. Smith, Secretary of the State Agricultural Society of California, has computed the yield of that State for the Associated Press at 25,000,000 bushels, while Oregon and Washington Territory, under improved conditions, will turn out 17,200,000 bushels, an aggregate of 42,200,000, against the aggregate of 68,700,000 for the Pacific coast in 1884, or a shortage of 26,500,000 bushels for the Pacific coast region.

Michigan.—This State is the only one in the Winter wheat belt to day which gives the promise of an average yield. While the Winter wheat in the other States was bare of snow the wheat in Michigan was well protected and covered, to which cause is to be ascribed the present promising condition of the crop. The State promises to turn out full 96 per cent. of an average yield.

From a close compilation, and taking the most cheerful view of the situation, the Winter wheat yield for the present year will not exceed 200,000,000 bushels, and the absolute percentage from the most trustworthy sources indicate that the yield will fall somewhat under than over the figures given.

Turning to the Spring wheat belt, the outlook is altogether more promising. Full returns from Nebraska show a slightly enlarged acreage as compared to last year, while in Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota the decrease in acreage will be about 10 per cent., and the condition is about 95 per cent. The acreage of Dakota is about 8 per cent. less than last year, and the conditions fully equal, though the season is from 10 to 12 days later. The probable Spring wheat yield, based upon continuing favorable weather, will be 130,000,000 bushels. The total wheat crop of the country, therefore, from the present outlook will be from 320,000,000 to 330,000,000 bushels, against an average yield for the past five years of 464,000,000 bushels.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—The wheat crop of California this season will be the smallest for many years. There are two reasons for this: First, the large yield of last year and the low prices received caused a great shortage in the acreage. Second, the late sown grain on Winter-plowed lands will, from lack of rain, be nearly all cut for hay. The acreage of wheat in 1884 was in round numbers 3,500,000 acres, yielding 57,000,000 bushels. Edwin F. Smith, Secretary of the State Agricultural Society of California, estimates the acreage of the present year at 2,800,000 acreage, with a total yield of 25,000,000 bushels, or less than half a crop as compared with last year. There is still on hand in the State 15,000,000 bushels of last year's crop. By deducting 10,000,000 for home consumption their will remain 30,000,000 bushels for export. The estimates for Oregon and Washington Territory show large gains. The acreage in Western Oregon is 23 per cent. greater than last year. In the "Inland Empire," comprising Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory, the increase in acreage over last year is estimated at 42 per cent. The early rains of the present month, which were followed by cool, cloudy weather, have assured the Spring sown grain, while the present condition of Winter wheat is better than at the corresponding period last year. Close estimates fix the quantity of wheat for export from Western Oregon at 6,500,000 bushels and from Eastern Oregon and Washington Territory at 7,500,000 bushels, making a total available for export from Oregon and Washington Territory of 14,000,000 bushels. The total yield of wheat in Oregon and Washington Territory last year was 11,700,000 bushels. The estimated yield this year will be 17,200,000 bushels.

THE WIRES DOWN AGAIN.

No Fresh News of Importance, Except a Reported Engagement at Lethbridge—Middleton Calls for a Volunteer Force—Numerous Offers.

HUMBOLDT, N.W.T., June 2.—The wires north of here are down. There has been no communication with Battleford since last night. General Strange probably arrived at Fort Pitt early on Monday morning, while the troops who took the southern trail would get there early this morning. If Big Bear stood his ground a fight must have taken place to-day.

ALARM AT LETHBRIDGE.

LETHBRIDGE, N.W.T., June 1.—A report was received last night of a skirmish between some of Stewart's rangers and the Indians, supposed to be the Bloods, 26 miles west of Medicine Hat. Part of "C" Division Mounted Police under Major Cotton, accompanied by Surgeon Kennedy, and also Capt. Campbell, of the Rangers, left this morning for the scene of the reported trouble. The force will make 50 miles to-day and probably meet Stewart's rangers. The combined force under Superintendent Cotton, will then follow the Indians, if practicable, and besides patrol the country between here and Medicine Hat. Cotton will not have a hostile encounter with the Bloods if it can be avoided, but will endeavor to induce them to return to their reserve. He at the same time goes prepared for any emergency.

A NORTH-WEST FORCE.

WINNIPEG, June 2.—In answer to Gen. Middleton's call for the enlistment of recruits for a North-west force thirty-seven members of the Governor General's Body Guards, now stationed at Humboldt have offered their services. Twenty-two recruits have volunteered from Lieut-Col. Turnbull's Quebec school of cavalry.

Four invalid members of the Dominion land surveyors corps, in charge Mr. Beattie, arrived last night from Prince Albert and left by the Port Arthur train, three of the party going to Ottawa and the fourth to Elora.

HIS LITTLE DEVILS.

WINNIPEG, June 2.—Jas. Mackenzie, a Prince Albert settler who has just arrived, says that the advent of Gen. Middleton and his blood-stained troops was a joyous event for the beleagured settlers. Irvine paraded his men and made excuses for their appearance, whereupon Middleton pointed to the 90th and Grenadiers and said: "Look at my little devils." And they were a sight, black with smoke and dust, their clothing in tatters and their toes sticking through their boots. It was Middleton who applied the term "gophers" to the police, as he turned to his own command and, with a look of affection as well as pride, gave the necessary orders for their disposal. Mr. Mackenzie says that the majority of the police were eager to go out and assist, and with efficient officers believes they would do credit to the country.

THE MIDLANDS.

There are six companies of the Midland battalion, under Col. Williams, now with Gen. Middleton, viz.:—The 15th, Belleville, Capt. Lazier; the 45th, Bowmanville, Liddsay and Cartwright, under Major Hughes; both the above companies were at Batoche. The 40th, Campbellford, Capt. Bonnycastle; the 46th, Port Hope, Major Dingwall; the 46th, Lifford and Millbrook, Capt. Winslow; the 47th, Frontenac, Capt. Hunter. These six companies number over 250 strong. The remaining two companies, the 49th, Hastings, Mrjor Harrison, and the 57th, Peterborough, under Col. Deacon, should reach Batsleford to day.

The New York stock market opened today at the closing figures of yesterday, except Union Pacific, which was ⅛ higher. The market showed gains of ⅛ to 1 per cent. at 1 p. m. New York Central and Lackawana leading in the advance.

The published reports of short crops all over the United States, except in Washington Territory and Oregon, has stimulated prices at Chicago; and 2 cents per bushel advance was made in July wheat, since Monday. Corn advanced ½ to ⅝ cents; pork and lard were firm and steady, at previous prices. A reaction set in at 11:30, and prices declined ⅜ of a cent at the close, 1 p. m.

A Local Law Case.

In the report of the Court of Appeal proceedings on Tuesday, the following appears:

HALL MFG. CO., v. HAZLITT.—McCarthy, Q. C., and Ponsette (Peterboro') appealed on behalf of the defendants from the judgment of the C. P. Division Court dismissing a motion to set aside the judgment of Galt, J., in favor of the plaintiffs for $1,014 in an action for damages for breach of an agreement in the sale of water-wheels. C. H. Ritchie showed cause. Judgment reserved.

Cricket

The cricket match being played to-day between the home team and the 'Varsity Club, Toronto, began at 11 o'clock. Peterborough went first to the bat, and at one o'clock, when play was adjourned for lunch, a score of 102 had been piled up for five wickets, Norley, Rogers, and Max and Miles Hamilton making respectively 44, 23, 20 and 12. Later, Peterborough's first innings, closed for 128 runs. The 'Varsity boys closed there first innings with 55. They were sent to the bat again, and will likely be beaten as they have 74 to make to win.

A Grievous Affliction.

We learn with great regret of the death of Mrs. W. H. Rackham, which took place at the family residence, Aylmer street, on Wednesday morning at 1 o'clock. The deceased lady, who was a native of New York, has spent the greater part of her life in Peterborough, and the numerous friends which her amiable disposition gathered about her will deeply grieve over her early demise, in the prime of wifehood and motherhood. What adds to the sadness of Mrs. Rackham's death is that she leaves behind her five motherless children of tender years.

Police Court.

James Graham, hailing from Emily, not liking the dull shade that shrouded our peaceful town last evening, decided to change the sombre appearance of the place to a bright ruddy tint of vermillion, and proceeded to accomplish his designs by giving two or three war-whoops. Constable Johnston reached after him and this morning at the Police Court, after Wm. Shuter was discharged with a sound advice from the Magistrate, "Jim" would have had to commence an engegement of ten days at the jug if Mr. T. Cavanagh had not been there to pay his fine of $2.

Private Enterprise Meets Public Needs.

Harvey street, from London street to the river, has been excellently graded, watertabled and planted with trees. This will, in time, make this street among the most attractive in the town. We understand that Mr. Hazlitt has done the work at his own expense, and the expense has not been small. He applied to the Council, pointing out the necessity of the work being done, and was told that the town was prepared to expend three dollars on a work that has not been brought to its present condition without less an outlay than ten times the liberal sum offered. It is pleasant to see such improvements made, but private citizens should not be made to bear the brunt of the expense.

Challenge Accepted.

Mr. Job Dickinson, of Port Hope, has accepted the challenge of James McLean, of the same place, to match the former's horse "Wild Deer," against the latter's "Lady Macdonald," which mare, it will be recollected, led the local and other flyers here on May 25th. The parties will meet on June 8th in Port Hope to arrange details of the race, which will be, for a purse of $1000, and according to the terms of the challenge, will take place on the Peterborough Driving Park, which probably will be agreed on by both parties. If it is, the choice will be a wise one, as the track is in such splendid condition that every stride of a racer will count for all it is worth.

A Valuable Work.

We have much pleasure, after a careful examination of the "Practical Home Physician," for which Mr. John Morrison, of Lindsay is soliciting subscribers in town, in testifying to the book being very complete. The information is especially reliable. The style in which it is written is simple and can be readily understood by any one who can read simple English. It contains nearly one thousand prescriptions written by four of the leading doctors of America—Dr. Lyman, Dr. Fenger, Dr. Jones, and Dr. Belfield. There are nearly two thousand young men spending hundreds of dollars and years of time to hear these same men lecture on medicine. The price of the book is within the reach of all. No one should be without a copy of it. d-4.

YOUNG'S POINT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

FOUND.

The body of Mr. Thos. White, who was drowned on Saturday the 23rd ult., was found floating in Henderson's Narrows on Sunday morning last. The remains were interred on Sunday afternoon in the "Bay" Cemetery, Smith.

PERSONAL.

Mr. John Young, who was visiting friends in Chicago the last few months, has returned home.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

Early English Versions of Scripture.

In a former issue we touched upon the lately revised version of the Old Testament, drawing attention to the painfully slow and gradual manner in which the present authorized version had to win its way in England.

It may, perhaps, be interesting to the general public at present, to draw attention to a neglected fact in this connection, viz: that our present Bible is only one of a series of English versions, made within the last three hundred and fifty years. These versions differed most widely in some respects from each other, and all of them contained numerous alterations. A brief account of these early English versions, the forerunners of the authorized edition, may prove acceptable to many thoughtful and studious readers of these columns.

John Wiclif, as is well known, first translated the entire Scriptures into the English tongue. His work was completed before the invention of printing, and the task of multiplying copies, which was done with great rapidity and marvellous skill, was all accomplished by the pen. To the old monks, faithful copyists, lovers of learning, painstaking, laborious, and enduring scribes, we owe the fact that many remains of Saxon literature are found in Great Britain, and among these valued treasures, several complete copies of Wiclif's Bible.

The first printed edition of the New Testament in English, was put forth at Worms, by Peter Schoeffer, in 1525. In the preface to the work the translator quaintly addresses an epistle to the reader, in which "he desyred them that were learned to amende if ought were found amysse." Tyndale's New Testament was first printed at Antwerp, in 1534, and this translation of the Pentateuch, the first portion of the Old Testament printed in English, appeared the same year. The work had scarcely appeared when Tyndale set to work to revise it, and when it was reissued the book of Genesis alone contained over 230 alterations! That revision was consequently not noted for correctness.

The first complete English Bible was printed at Antwerp, by Jacob VanMeteren, and was put forth in October, 1535. It was reprinted five times, with comparatively few changes, and it was so exceedingly hard to replace, that Coverdale's Bible of a later age, which differed from Tyndale's but little, was largely padded, and had numerous fresh titles and additional preliminary matter, so as to make it pass if possible for new editions.

The next important version was known as "Matthew's Bible," and was printed also at Antwerp, in 1537. It passed through many editions, like its predecessor, but with slight alteration from the original. A curious edition of this is still extant bearing some very objectionable "glosses" or notes. One of these, on i. St. Peter iii. 8, is a very "striking" proof that the editor, whoever he was, could hardly be called a staunch believer in woman's rights. We think the community will agree in this judgment on perusing the note, which reads as follows:—

"He dwelleth wyth his wyfe accordynge to knowledge, that taketh her as a necessarye healper and not as a bonde slave, and yf she be not obedient and healpfull unto him endeuoureth to beate the feare of God into her heade, that thereby she may be compelled to learn her duetie and to do it."

The first seven editions of the "great Bible," otherwise known as 'Cranmer's version' because he wrote a preface to it, came out within two years, viz 1539 to 1540. They all differ though the alterations are somewhat unimportant.

The Bishops' Bible underwent continual revision. The first, a splendid folio volume, is dated 1568. The next year, the edition published is most interesting in one respect, as it contained the then novel division of verses instead of paragraphs. These verse-numbers were not at the sides or margin, but interspersed in the letter-press. They had before this been introduced into the New Testament. We are indebted to a Jew named Mordecai Nathan for this improvement on the old system. The division into chapters is attributed to Cardinal Hugo de Sancto Charo, who flourished about 1240.

The last edition of the Bishops' Bible, issued in 1602, was taken by King James' revisers as the basis of our present version. The Authorized version has also seen numerous changes since it first came from the press in 1611. Of this fact people are for the most part ignorant, but by comparing the Bible of 1611 with one recently printed, numerous alterations in spelling, punctuation, text, and headings of chapters, will readily be perceived. Yet, when we consider that nearly three hundred years have elapsed since its last revision, we must rejoice to find the text so pure and the changes made comparatively few in number. The work will always be valued and esteemed as "a pearl of great price" wherever the English language is spoken.

Our Parks.

Now that the Court House Park has been taken in hand and there is a prospect of having it made so as to be a source of pleasure to the people, would it not be well to consider some steps for the improvement of the Central Park, and of the numerous gores and waste places of the town. Peterborough is capable of being made one the handsomest if not the handsomest town in Canada. This can only be effected by means of a commission who will work to more well considered schemes; laying their plans and making their arrangements in good time, and so doing what has to be done in good season and to the best advantage. We believe it will be a great satisfaction to the people to have this business entrusted to a park commission. Men who are elected annually and are in no way peculiarly fitted for the task will be glad to entrust such work to reliable and judicious men who have the taste and leisure to accomplish the best results. We hope the council will consider this matter and not shuffle it off until season after season passes and no result obtained.

The Wheat Crops.

We publish to-day the report of the wheat crops for the United States, covering every wheat producing county in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illionois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Dakota, together with a very accurate and recent summary from the Pacific coast region.

The gloomiest views which have been advanced concerning the winter wheat outlook for 1885 must now be accepted as the most accurate. The promising conditions of 1884 have this season been completely reversed. The absolute informity of the returns indicate that the outlook for the winter-sown wheat this year is the worst in 10 years, and it may be now set down as positive that under the most favoring conditions the total winter and spring wheat yield is to fall considerably under the short crop of 1881, when the total product was 380,000,000 bushels. With the exception of Michigan, Oregon, Washington Territory on the far Western slope, the causes leading to a decreased output of winter wheat are almost identical. In Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, and Missouri the ground was bare of snow during the severely cold weather at the close of the winter, which was followed by cold winds later on. There was also a decreased acreage owing to the low prices which prevailed for the crop of 1884. In California the decreased acreage was accompanied by a severe drought, which has tended to almost ruin the growing crop. Oregon and Washington Territory were saved by bountiful showers, which came in time to save the grain. When the States are considered in detail the situation can be better appreciated.

Editorial Notes.

It is currently reported that Hon. David Macpherson, as Minister of the Interior, is to be sacrificed as a punishment for his blundering in North-West matters, and that either Mr. Thomas White or Speaker Kirkpatrick will be his successor.

It is proposed to decorate Gen. Middleton with a knighthood—St. Michael and St. George. Hon. Mr. Caron, Minister of Militia, is also a candidate. It would look better for Hon. Mr. Caron to look after providing for the widows and families of those killed in the North-West, instead of seeking tinsel rewards for the doubtful efficiency with which he has managed his Department. As to Gen. Middleton, he is worthy of every honor.

A JUST TRIBUTE.

The Ottawa Free Press of June 1st says:—Ottawa has a distinguished visitor in her midst. The Hon. Oliver Mowat, Premier of Ontario, accompanied by Mrs. Mowat, arrived in the city on Saturday. His presence has naturally attracted considerable interest in political circles. A host of members on both sides of politics are curious to see the man who has been so signally successful in defeating Sir. John A. Macdonald. Many of the Liberals of other provinces are naturally desirous of becoming acquainted with a man who has fought in this province the battle of Liberalism so successfully and who consequently has won a Dominion wide reputation; and numerous introductions are in order. Mr. Mowat visited the parliament buildings this morning where he received a cordial reception from his host of political admirers. Ottawa Liberals join with those of the other constituencies represented in the Dominion parliament in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Mowat, a pleasant visit to the capital of the Dominion.

BROKEN PROMISES.

Petition of Manitoba Farmers to Queen Victoria.

OTTAWA, May 29.—A Winnipeg special today says: A statement of the claims of the Province of Manitoba, compiled by the Farmers' Union, has been forwarded to the Governor-General. The petition is an exhaustive document, comprising nearly 100 pages, and is signed by Dr. Flemming, H.G. Clark and George Purvis, on behalf of the union. On the question of settling the land claims, it says:

"The pretended reason given was the amount of business and the difficulties of settlement. The real reason was that a ring was formed among the official's in the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, and under the manipulations of that ring two kinds of people only could get patents for their land whether their claims were good or not. First, those who were in power themselves or who could command powerful influence on the Senators or members of the Commons or of the Government; second, those who were ready and willing to pay such a sum for their patents, whether their claims were good or bad, as might be demanded by the agents of the ring in the Department of the Interior. Other persons who tried to get their claims settled on their patents issued were treated with silent contempt, so that they were compelled, after years of waiting, to dispose of their claims to land sharks or ring agents for any price they chose to offer.

"These are simple and disgraceful facts; let the Government deny them if they can. In the truth of the private investigation now going on at Ottawa. Our weakness, which with a generous Government ought to secure for us consideration and fairplay, is taken advantage of, and we have no other recourse left than agitation to make our grievances known to the Empire and thus secure a hearing. We indignantly deny this imputation, and point with sorrowful pride to the fact that while we are trying to secure consideration and justice, our sons and brothers have left their farms to grow to weeds while they are away in the Northwest Territory risking and laying down their lives, like loyal sons of Canada, to defend the supremacy of the flag of our forefathers from the touch of half-breeds and savages, driven to despair by misgovernment and by the acts of incompetent and dishonest Gouernment officials."

The lengthy document concludes as follows:—

"We feel that instead of any longer agitating the question of Manitoba's rights here, only to find ourselves again put off by the shuffling tricks of party politicians or to be betrayed by party tools who do not hesitate to sacrifice the country to their personal profit or advantage, the proper course is to ask Her Majesty to intervene. We will not be deterred from that course by any cry of disloyalty that may be howled at us by any political party or by a slavish and mercenary party press. As British subjects we take the constitutional means, which is hallowed by time and custom in the British nation."

MIDDLETON AND HIS MEN.

A retired officer of the British army residing in Winnipeg, writes as follows to a friend in Toronto:

"Gen. Middleton had a difficult position to maintain, namely, the command of green troops, men who were more given to fight than to listen to the vital teaching of discipline. For instance, he was censured for not charging the enemy's position at Fish Creek. Supposing Middleton had charged (which no doubt he was anxious to do), and he had sacrificed a great many lives (which doubtless he would have done), there would have been a howl from one end of Canada to the other that he was a butcher ruthlessly sacrificing the lives of his men. I think Middleton is entitled to more than ordinary credit. He has gained a victory compared with which Fish Creek and Batoche's are mere bagatelles—he has conquered his own ambition, he has foregone the opportunity for personal aggrandisement, all for the sake of sparing the lives of the gallant fellows committed to his charge. Everyone who knows the alphabet of military economy will credit him with accomplishing one of the most difficult tasks ever committed to an experienced military commander—that of successfully beating an uncivilized enemy with green troops, under fire for the first time, and whose greatest weakness was their anxiety to fight at all hazards."

CHICAGO'S COMMERCIAL TEMPLE.

Chicago has time for little else than to brag of her magnificent temple for the Board of Trade. This building, with the land, cost about $1,800,000. Its length is 225 feet, its breadth 176 feet, its height 160 feet, the height of its tower 304 feet. The room in which the operations of the Board are to be carried on is 161 feet long, 141 wide, and 80 feet high. Around it are many elaborately finished offices, with every convenience known to science for the facilitating of trade.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

OR,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The London Casket," "Thorncroft's Model," &c. &c run away from all "dismal talk"—Lucy said, "Is it wrong to ask you what work you wish and try to do?"

He smiled and his smile was a particularly delightful one, and contained a warm recognition of her sympathy. "My work," said he, "is to try to make people admire God's work more. Every bit of nature which is left unspoiled by man's greediness, or wickedness, or stupidity, has something noble or grand in it—something divine left in it. The skies and clouds, which man cannot meddle with, are always magnificent. I try to transfer to paper some of the beauty I see—generally the most beautiful things are the most fugitive."

"That is true," said Lucy; "the sky we admired so has changed already."

"Yes. Is it not wonderful to think that day by day—nay, minute by minute—nature sets a painted poem before us, whether any one is there to see it or no?"

"And you want to get more and more people to see and enjoy it?"

"Yes, and to take pleasure in the ways of quiet peacefulness, and think it a disgrace to blot out any part of this revelation from above for mere gain."

"Explain a little," said Lucy.

"I don't want to stop trade, of course, but still this wanton destruction of all beauty the moment trade steps in is very hateful! I am viewing things as an artist, of course; but there is no doubt that men's characters are degraded with the degradation of the scenery around them. Both as a man and an artist I grieve over the crushing out of the sweet pastoral life of the land, which gives us instead of homely, contented husbandmen, men who burn down their masters' houses and don't mind whether a servant or two are left in them or not. You saw that account in the newspaper the other day?"

"Then you preach the gospel of beauty, and think if people attached more value to it they would be better?"

"Of course they would—that is an undoubted fact."

"I am so much obliged to you for talking to me," said Lucy, humbly. "I am quite sure that you paint beautifully," she added; and then she blushed, and was afraid it was very odd of her to speak so, while he looked at her and for once wished he was a figure painter.

"'Paint beautifully!'" said he; "oh no, I only try. I wish I did not make such failures! However, the greatest wish I have is to paint a good picture some day."

Lucy looked down. She found herself wishing she could sometimes be near him to help him—or at any rate to hear him talk. "People who work in the spirit you do," said she, "do not often fail."

They moved slowly away from the tomb by which they had been standing, and went back to the top of the hill. "Are you going to paint here?" said she, and she spoke very reverently; she was thinking perhaps she herself would now paint better after talking to him and hearing his aim in art. Then she said, "I should so like to see some of your work."

"You would think me an impostor, who talked of great things, and did but little ones."

She shook her head. She did not believe that.

Philip had sauntered away, and was switching off the heads of some thistles. He appeared to be completely happy.—Mrs. Mostyn was just settling herself down with her back to the view, and the third volume of a very commonplace novel. She flourished it in Lucy's eyes, and said, "You see, Miss Lucy, I am provided. I know what going sketching with you, is—sitting hour after hour, with nothing to do."

"Can't you look at the view I am going to try to sketch?—it is supposed to be worth looking at, or I should not want to do it," said Lucy, who now felt sketching from nature to be a much more important and dignified occupation than she had hitherto believed.

"I have looked at it—I can't always be looking at the same thing! Come, sit down, and begin! I am quite happy here, and if I want to see more of the view, I can study your sketch."

Lucy sat down. She was rather vexed with Lettice's tone of mind. After all, she said to herself, it is very bad to be so much with people whose tone is low!—It would have been far better for me if I had been more with some one like our new friend. He stirs up all my better thoughts. She began her sketch. The stranger retreated and began to study the scene before him. Silently he, too, sat down, and began to sketch, or make notes. Then Lucy looked at him. His keen, earnest eyes were fixed on sky and land—he was thinking only of them, and she could watch him unperceived. "I like him!" she said to herself; "I like him immensely! He is very handsome—but how could he help it with those eyes?"

It was a magnificent sunset with a touch of angry brilliance about it. It flashed on Lucy's quiet, easy subject, and at once invested it with a splendor that was quite beyond her power to reproduce. "The clouds have something almost human about them," said she to Aunt Esther, who was lovingly bearing her company, and watching each touch of her brush with unbounded admiration. "Look how fiercely and passionately they flush up, as if angry with the sun for leaving them!"

"Do you think clouds have those feelings, my dear?" replied Aunt Esther; and Lucy thought, "He would have known what I meant."

"It is time to go," said Philip after an hour or so. "The boat will be at the steps before we are."

Lucy began to collect her things—so did the stranger. He got his together first, and came to her. "Oh! but please let me see what you have been doing," said she. "I was hoping to see it before you shut your folio."

"It is only a blot of the sky," said he; but he opened his folio to show it to her. Lying loosely inside the folio was a finished sketch; she saw that, too. She looked attentively at it and turned pale; then, trembling slightly, she looked at him, and her eyes were full of trouble. He was watching her. He saw the changed expression of her face but he had no clue to her thoughts.

She quietly returned his folio, and said only, "Your work is very beautiful—very, very beautiful," then she stooped down to her color-box.

"Come, Lucy, what a long time you are!" said Philip. "We shall be late for dinner."

Lucy hurried over her preparations, but she seemed hardly to know what she was doing.

"Come with me to the other edge of the cliff," said Philip to the stranger. "I want to show you a view of my discovering."

"Be quick, Lucy," cried Lettice, who was strolling towards the steps with Aunt Esther.

"Yes," cried poor Lucy, "I am coming," and from the ground she picked up her color-box and shawl, but in her haste dropped a brooch which was by way of being an heir-loom in her family, and which she wore more frequently than Aunt Esther thought prudent.

"What hot cheeks you have given yourself with all that stooping," said Lettice. "Lucy, you are a silly girl! You come to these places, and don't get a bit of pleasure out of them, because you will give yourself the trouble of sketching.—Can't you buy a picture of this view, if you want one? I dare say that young man who is standing there with Philip would do one—no doubt he sells what he does, though he is so very gentlemanlike. Buy something of his if you want more of the place than you can carry away in your head. Don't make a galley-slave of yourself."

Lucy was silent.

Lettice continued: "If I had half your money, Lucy, what a life I would lead! As for you, you might just as well have remained poor."

Lucy was accustomed to Lettice's gibes, if she ever did resent them, Lettice excused herself by saying, "I do it Lucy for your sake—to animate you a little dear; think how flat your spirits would be if you had not me with you."

When our party reached the top of the steps, then, and not till then, did they realize how much the dimensions of the islet on which they were standing were now shrunk. More than half of it was under water. Shore, and rocks, and flights of steps, and pathways, all were lost to sight. Lucy with dilated eyes, was gazing on the stretch of sea before her.

"You look, dear Lucy," said Lettice, as if your mind were filled with thoughts too big for words, and glorious images of all kinds. Now, I will tell you exactly what this place looks like. You have often seen a large ornamental sponge-cake, haven't you?—one of the kind which stands high on a dessert-dish, and no one dares to cut it? They end by cutting round after round of slices from the bottom of it—and this island looks just like a cake of that kind after two-thirds of it are gone. The sea is the plate, you know, and there is just a little bit of the top of the cake left."

"You might have compared it to a pine-apple when you were about it!" cried Philip, that is cut in the same way. Lettice, your imagery is poor!"

Her ideas are poor, you mean," said Lucy, laughing, though she did not want to laugh.

"A simile which gets itself said, let it be ever so poor, is better than all the fine thoughts and immensities that you can put into intelligible language!" cried Mrs. Mostyn.

"You will find it very difficult to put yourselves into that boat," said Philip, for the waves are dashing very roughly against the steps. "Here she is! How pretty she looks!"

"But that is not a St. Malo boat!" cried the stranger.

"No, it is the yacht's boat. We are in a yacht lying by Fort Solidor. We can put you in at St. Malo, though."

"I am staying at St. Servan, so either St. Malo or the pier by Fort Solidor will do for me, thank you—the last is nearer to my hotel."

"Could you not go on board and dine with us? We can put you on shore any time you like to-night."

The stranger accepted. He liked these people. Besides he wanted to study the rigging of the "Dorothea." He had sketched her a few days before, but had not been able to make out some of the intricate details. The boat came, and was dashed backwards and forwards against the steps. The stranger took Aunt Esther down to it. While he was helping her—a task by no means easy—Lucy said eagerly, "Lettice! Philip! Promise me, both of you, you won't mention my name in his hearing, or let him think the yacht is mine. Don't say a word about me."

Down With the Dust!

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammermmen Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely and was passing out the door, when the Smith in peremptory tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smith handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to dae wi' these, Deacon?" "Why, replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail yer thanks there and pay me saxpence."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3, 1885.

USE THE TELEPHONE.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

ALL AROUND TOWN.

Thanks.

The ladies of the Protestant Home acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the following:—Miss Nicholls, bedstead and tick; Mrs. Wallis, feather bed; basket of cakes from St. Paul's Soiree; Mrs. Jas. Alexander, parcel clothing; Mrs. Robt. Fair, a dress; Mrs. Rubidge, two bags potatoes; Mrs. Jeffers, two bags potatoes.

Beautiful.

A short time since all were grumbling at the weather. Now the county presents a magnificent appearance, and a drive through any portion of it is one of the pleasures of life. The warm genial weather combined with the late rains, has covered the earth with a mantle of beautiful green, of delicate shades, from the pinkish emerald of the opening oak leaves to the intense green of the imperial elm.

P. B. C.

A meeting of the Peterborough Boating Club was held at the boat house on Tuesday evening. Arrangements were made for the placing of the row boats in perfect running order with a view to holding a regatta in about two weeks. The Club expect to have a splendid summer on the water and it is composed of a class of individuals who will leave nothing undone that will tend to make all enjoy themselves.

Steadily Advancing.

Mr. Robert Hamilton the genial proprietor of the C.P.R. restaurant is a strict adherent to the motto of "Drive thy business, let not thy business drive thee," and accordingly the people will learn without surprise that a number of carpenters are busily engaged in building an addition to his lunch rooms at the C. P. R. station. It is his intention to be ready in a short time to supply the public with ice cream in the latest colors.

The Latest on Wheels.

Ed. Brown's name, now in connection with the roller rink craze, is just as popular as Jay Gould's name in railway matters. The latest idea is the presence of the Fire Brigade Band every lawful evening—except when the Band would wish to fill some particular bill. Female novices in the art can now enjoy a pleasant waltz while they are employed in sweeping the rink, and the "boys" can do the grand "hammer-the-floor act," nicely, to the tune of "Around the World in Twenty Minutes."

Bicycle Club Formed.

At a meeting called for the formation of a Bicycle Club last evening, in the office of the P. A. A. A., the following officers were elected:—President, Dr. G. Burnham; Captain. C. A. Lawford; 1st Lieut., A. Mercer; 2nd Lieut., A. Gibson; Secy., A. E. Ames; Whipper-in, M. A. Rice. The club intend having weekly runs all through the season, the first of which will take place this evening at seven o'clock sharp, starting from the drill shed grounds. All present members and any wishing to join the club are requested to be on hand.

The Catapult Fraternity.

The above body, composed mainly of the young, unwashed, population of the business part of our town, is well represented every evening down at Spaulding's Bay. Perched on the "old rustic mill by the bridge," and illumed by a bright fire of the nearest resident's wood, they manage to entertain themselves nicely, in discussing what the clown said recently ot the circus, "who can put tobacco juice further than their line can reach," "how to hook rhubarb stocks on the market on Saturday," and various other topics, some of which are a little too strong for public print; but say, you boys! officer McGinnity is on the trail, so look out.

No Quorum.

As the number of gentlemen present last night at eight o'clock at the entrance to the High School was not sufficient to form a quorum, the regular meeting was ajourned.

A Bad Crossing.

The Street and Bridge Inspector would do well to call and examine the crossing on George Street at the corner of Brock, and take a look at the state of the boards approaching Kenealey's Hotel.

Acknowledgement.

The Superintendent of "Hazel Brae" acknowledges with thanks the receipt from Mrs. Gen. Haultain of a complete swing for the use of the children at the Peterborough Branch of Dr. Barnado's Homes.

Disobeying the By-Law.

A number of our merchants are lately falling into line with other trespassers, and are depositing consignments of old yard refuse, ashes, etc., in the hollow at the corner of George and Townsend streets. This is not right and directly in opposition to the statue posted up before their eyes a short distance from where they are, day after day, in the habit of emptying their waggons.

Just the Wheat.

Mr. Robert Goodfellow of South Monaghan, has left at our office a magnificent sample of New Zealand fall wheat, raised by Mr. James Lang in that colony, and a sample forwarded to Mr. Goodfellow. The wheat is a splendid sample, very clean, white and plump as a pea. Mr. Goodfellow has tried sowing wheat received before, but could not succeed in making it grow. It came up in the spring more like grass than wheat.

A Thriving New Business.

The carriage top factory of Messrs. Porter Bros. & Gibson, though but recently established, is doing, we are pleased to note, a flourishing business. Their tops are of such excellent construction and style that the demand for them is rapidly growing, and large shipments are continually being made, not only to all parts of Ontario, but to Quebec and the Maritime provinces of the Dominion. The tops are built of the best material and finely finished, and it is no wonder that a brisk demand is made for them.

Our Cemetery.

The Cemetery Company has not yet purchased that beautiful piece of land lying to the west of the entrance. This piece is absolutely required to make an imposing approach to tho city of our silent dead, besides it will all be required—for that city grows space. We don't understand the delay especially, as it can be bought for about $500 an acre and can at once be sold off in lots at about $10,000 an acre. Delays are dangerous, gentlemen, there is nothing to be gained by delay—but much to be made by prompt action.

The Cows.

Many people complain that owners of cows take advantage of the Sabbath day to turn their beasts out on the roads, under the impression that they will be safe from the empounders on that day. We would just quietly hint to such people that they are spotted, and they are likely to have their views on this living question slightly modified. Pidgeon and Adams cannot be everywhere at the same time, but there are a number of places, and these are the least expected, where they intend to operate next Sunday.—pass it on to your neighbour—and whisper it to the—cows.

St. Luke's C. of E. T. S.

The regular fortnightly meeting of St. Luke's Church of England Temperance Society was held in the school room of the church on Tuesday evening. Owing to the attractions of the military demonstration held on Ludgate's Hill at about the same hour, the attendance was limited. However, a pleasing programme of music and readings was presented, consisting of readings by the Rector and Miss Smith, instrumental duets by Miss Tivey and Mrs. Jackson, as well as sacred songs by the members of the society. The usual devotional services were also held. This excellent society is progressing finely. The present membership is 122, and many additions thereto are likely to be made.

Hazel Brae.

We understand that seventy girls sailed from England to-day destined for Hazel Brae, the Peterborough Branch of Dr. Barnardo's Homes. They are expected to arrive here in about ten days when those who have been spoken for will be transferred to their future homes. The next shipment will be composed of a hundred boys. The girls previous to their departure from England took part in the annual concert at Exeter Hall. We would suggest to the genial superintendent here that he favor the people of Peterborough with an entertainment at Hazel Brae after their arrival. We feel sure that it would be largely attended, and might prove a little benefit to the children from a financial point of view.

Self-Binding Reapers.

In our issue of yesterday we noted that there were several self-binding reapers exhibited on the market. In the afternoon the number was increased to eleven, with an average of two glib tongue orators to each, vigorously explaining the merits of their respective machines. Among others, Mr. Peter Hamilton's new and improved twine binder attracted great attention and admiration. A fine point about it, that took the eye of the farmers, was this, that the driver from his seat can control without trouble, every lever connected with the machine. We should be proud of the enterprise of our local manufacturers who are able to turn out a twine binder that can successfully compete with any made in Canada. It promises to give farmers the "Best" of satisfaction.

Cricket Circles.

The University cricketers from Toronto arrived in town this morning and are registered at the Oriental.

The Market.

The market this morning was not large; in fact, it was very small. Eggs called for 11 cents; butter, 16 cents; potatoes, 30 and 35 cents per bag.

Ashburnham Council.

At the meeting of the above council held last Monday evening, an application was received for the use of the Town Hall the Salvation Army. No decision was arrived at, the members of the council being anxious to test the feelings of the people on the matter. There was a conflict of opinion on the advisability of granting the hall, but the question will be decided at the adjourned meeting on Monday next.

Making Preparations.

A meeting of all those concerned in the Catholic Pic-nic was held last evening in the Murray Street School; Committees and Sub-Committees were appointed to look after the different interests which go to make any entertainment a success. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday 9th inst. when the various Committees drafted will once more convene and hand in their reports.

Mr. E. J. Kennedy.

Secretary of the London, Eng., Young Men's Christian Association, will, it is expected, speak at the prayer meeting to-night in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. As Mr. Kennedy is a pleasant and effective speaker, the public should avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing him. He has been holding meetings for the last two nights in Lakefield, and was much liked there.

Lacrosse.

Mr. G. H. Giroux, Hon. Secretary of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, has received an invitation for the first twelve to go to Markham and compete there in a tournament to take place on July 1st, Dominion Day. As the P. L. C. have already closed an engagement with the Excelsiors of Brampton, we are safe in saying that the "boys" will not win the cup. And now Michel Dallebout, the stately Secretary of the Royal Caughnawagas "takes his pen in hand" and informs us that he is authorized by the venerable White Eagle to say that they (the Caughnawagas) are ready to be slaughtered by, or slaughter, the Peterboroughs here in town on that date. The boys should see about the matter at once. We think if the "Braves" were to make their appearance here the new grounds would hardly hold the throng that would assemble to see the match.

Military Parade.

The band of the Peterborough Fire Brigade, last evening, headed companies number 1, 2, and 3, of the 57th Battalion down George street from the drill shed at 8 o'clock to the tune of "Scotch Lassie Jean." The detachment was in command of Lieutenant-Colonel Rogers and Major Bell and the Companies controlled by Captains Edwards, Langford and Rogers, and Lieuts. Haultain and Lee. The marching of the men was very much admired and drew forth many plaudits as they paraded down George and over Hunter streets, through Ashburnham to Ludgate's Hill, where a skirmish took place. The Captains speak in the highest terms of the movements of the men for the first time engaged in a skirmish; each man fired twenty rounds of blank cartridges. The artillery, commanded by Captain Sanderson, brought up the rear of the march, and was the subject of general praise, particularly for their neatness.

Excursion Train Probable.

The gentlemen who have been working with such untiring zeal to make the Mendelssohn Quintette Club concert a success, on Friday evening, June 5th, say that it is very probable that an excursion train will run up from Port Hope, to convey the residents of that town and those of intermediate points to a rich musical treat.

PERSONAL.

Rev. I. Tovell addresses the Conference Sunday School mass meeting in Port Hope on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Manning is absent from town, being called to his paternal home, near Newmarket, whither he was called by the serious illness of his father.

Mrs. and Miss Stewart, of Haliburton, wife and daughter of Mr. Stewart, of the Bobcaygeon Independent, are visiting in town.

Mr. D. A. McFarlane, of Keene, was at the annual session at Cornwall of the Grand Black Chapter of British America, R. B. K. I., of the Orange Order, re-elected District Deputy Grand Master.

Rev. Wm. Elliott, of Picton, formerly of Peterborough, is in town for a few days visiting friends, previous to his departure for Manitoba, to which conference, from the Bay of Quinte, he was transfered by special request.

Mr. J. E. Hawkens, who for the past three years has been employed in the traffic offices of the Grand Trunk Railway, left Peterborough yesterday morning for Toronto, to occup a similar position. With his numerous friends and acquaintances, we wish him success.

Borough Brevities.

—Messrs Sailsbury and Hammond will appear at Miss Errett's concert in Norwood tonight.

Mr. E. J. Hartley received per express yesterday, a drum for the Ottonabee District Orange Lodge.

—The Register wants a Dominion Day celebration in Norwood this year. Better not. Come to Peterborough July 1st. It will be "an immense day here."

—The business that doesn't advertise is as much lost in the commercial world as a yearling bullock in a big bush pasture without a bell on.

—Considerable contrast between Peterborough June Fair and that of Guelph, at which 400 cattle were offered for sale at from 4½ to 5 cents.

—The freight sheds of the O. & Q. Railway presents a rather stocky appearance. Merchandise of all kinds is to be seen—from a barrel of whiskey to a sample bottle of patent medicine.

—Number four ward is taking part in the building boom. The long vacant green on George Street, north, is being perforated with the cellars of Mr. Wm. Langford's new buildings.

—When the best eleven that can be picked from the Peterborough Cricket club get their flannels on, there are few clubs in Canada that can come up to their figures on the score book.

—It was a water works service pipe leading into the Ontario Bank buildings, not a main pipe that sprung a leak on George street yesterday. The item in yesterday's issue, referring to the leak, was founded on the opinion of a first class engineer as to the locality of the leak.

The Mendelssohn Quintette Club were given enthusiastic receptions in London and Guelph. Remember—Bradburn's Opera House, Friday Night, June 5th.

A Fine Turnout.

Messrs. Porter Bros., carriage builders, have turned out for Mr. H. Owens, a beautiful phæton, New York style, with spring back upholstering. It is a neat and tidy vehicle, and it is hard to tell which is the prouder over it, buyer or builders.

Saved Army.

A new feature in connection with the meetings of the Saved Army will be introduced this evening. The admission will be five cents, and each one will be presented with an Army Trumpet. Gen. Lindsay, Division Capt. Stubbs, Capt. Wyatt, Capt. Graham, Lieutenants Baker and Letts, will be present on this occasion, and every one who can attend will not only spend a pleasant evening, but will be the means of contributing something towards the funds of the Army.

THE MIDLAND RECEPTION.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I notice with pleasure your well-timed editorial on giving a reception to the Midland volunteers on their return home. If you will kindly allow an old volunteer to make a suggestion through your spicy daily, I would suggest that for those whom we hope will shortly return to their homes, nothing is more suitable than a medal, given, however, under the authority of the Government, and sanctioned by Her most Gracious Majesty. This is the highest prize, and one which a soldier values more than anything else.

Yours &c.,
AN OLD VOLUNTEER.

ACCIDENT.

On Saturday last, while Mr. Wm. Heatherington, who was working for Mr. William Graham, of Smith, was driving a team down a steep hill, the boards on the waggon slipped forwards on the horses, causing them to kick and run. Heatherington fell, was caught in the wagon and was dragged a distance of about forty yards, when he fortunately became freed. His back, head and face were considerably bruised, and his ankle considerably injured, but it is hoped not seriously. The horses ran on to the swamp, where they got fastened on a sapling, with the neck-yoke, and were uninjured.

"Come, Tom," said the sire, "you must rise with the sun,
And trim every sail for the storm,
Remember if you would a winning race run

"That's an adage of wisdom, dear father, I own;
But only one side you have heard,
By reversing the picture, 'tis easily shown
That the early worm's caught by the bird."

Campbell & McNeil are not moving yet, so far as we can see, in the renovation of their business block, except gathering material.

Mr. John Frost is carrying on farming operations extensively, on Sugar Island, this summer.

Some fine bass and maskinonge are being caught in the river and lake now.

Mr. Thos. Shearer's eldest daughter, a little girl about five years of age, fell on the barn floor, down a distance of fourteen feet, and was seriously cut on the forehead and otherwise injured, but she is mending and will no doubt recover.

The eighth wonder of the world:—A Franchise Bill by the Dominion Government, which empowers the Government of the day to appoint the agents who make up the lists of the jury empanelled to try the Government and the issue between itself and the Opposition; which gives the First Minister the right to manipulate the lists of that jury before which he must stand in judgment; which gives the revising officers the power to compile the voters' lists, to complete them, and then to complacently revise their own work, and to pronounce it good; which finds it necessary to require only about one-half the guarantee from a North-West Indian that he may vote intelligently that it requires of a white citizen of Ontario (to say nothing of the Indian being a ward of the Government) which adds half a million annually to the expenditure of the Government, and which takes away from the people the power to do, and to supervise their own local business. God help our country!

Parliamentary Summary.

TUESDAY, JUNE 2nd.

In the House of Commons to-day the consideration of the Franchise Bill was resumed in committee. On the clauses providing for the preliminary revision of the lists, the Opposition moved several amendments in the direction of giving greater publicity to the lists, and affording facilities for obtaining copies of them. Some of these amendments were voted down, and several were reluctantly asserted by the Government. Government members again resorted to their tap-room tactics, and members of the Opposition had to speak amidst volleys of yelps, cat-calls, growls, desk scraping, etc. During a speech Mr. Mills named Mr. Taylor, of Leeds, as one of the principal offenders. On the clause providing for holding the session for the preliminary revision of the lists, Mr. Davies moved an amendment providing that the Revising Officer should hold sessions at several places in each county, so as to obviate the necessity for the electors travelling great distances to attend the preliminary revision.

DESERONTO.

An Intelligencer special states that a terrible accident occurred in Rathburn & Sons cedar mill. The millwright, John McThomson got upon the butting table to put a belt on a pulley, when his hand caught and he was thrown on the saws. One severed his left arm at the shoulder, while another cut his neck and head in a frightful manner. He would have been cut in two had not a fellow workman pulled him off the table; his injuries proved fatal. Deceased leaves a wife and one child to mourn his loss. He was a man of estimable character and was highly prized as a citizen. We are glad to learn that he was insured in the Workingman's for $2,000.

LORD ROSEBERY.

Lord Rosebery has been appointed interim keeper of the Great Seal of Scotland, made vacant by the death of the Earl of Selkirk. This is an honorary office, and the Bill for the appointment of a Secretary of State for Scotland—now before Parliament—provides that the Minister shall also be Keeper of the Grand Seal. Evidently Mr. Gladstone intends that his clever young colleague shall be the first incumbent of the responsible position. Rosebery has well earned the advancement. He is a clear thinker, an earnest and progressive student of practical politics, and a devoted admirer of the Liberal leader, whose election in Midlothian he did much to secure. The legislative interests of Scotland, long kept in the background through the plethora of legislation required for Irish and Imperial purposes, will be safe in the hands of the Lord of Dalmeny.

BALANCE OF TRADE.

The excess of the value of exports over imports of merchandise for April was $4,145,176, and for twelve months ended April 30th, $155,959,352. The total values of the imports of merchandise during the twelve months ended April 30th, 1885, were $590,836,102, and during the preceding twelve months, $680,454,409—a decrease of $89,618,307. The total values of the exports of merchandise for the twelve months ended April 30th, 1885, were $746,795,454, and for the twelve months ended April 30th, 1884, $750,758,350—a decrease of $3,962,896.

ILLEGAL BUSINESS.

In answer to a correspondent two weeks since, we stated that a New York concern called the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association had no license to do business in Canada, and had no deposit with the Government. Some have doubted this on account of the unblushing manner in which this impudent concern continues to advertise its pretended deposit. A gentleman wrote the Insurance Superintendant on the subject and received the following reply, which ought to be sufficient evidence of the consummate trickery of the people who are so persistently misleading the public:—

OFFICE OF THE SUPT. OF INS,
OTTAWA, 19th May, 1885.

DEAR SIR,—This office is not officially aware of any deposit having been made with the Government by the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York, and certainly no license has been issued in its favor to enable the Co. legally to do business in Canada
We are not aware of the Co. having a deposit in any Bank in Ottawa.
Your most obedient servant,
C. E. ANDERSON, Pro. Supt.

We see it stated that Major Hooper, the gentlemen who fooled so many Canadians in connection with the Rochester Mutual Benefit Associations, and the Montreal Metropolitan Mutual, has now abandoned his latest humbug, the Provident Mutual Association of Canada, and taken the position of Canadian Manager of the Mutual Reserve. The appointment is a fitting one. The clever major is now getting all the healthy lives he can influence out of the Provident into the law-breaking Mutual Reserve. Where will he take them next, and what is to become of the poor sickly victims left behind, to the tender mercies of an assessment upon the survivors in the evanescent Provident Mutual Association of Canada? Some people, however, like to be humbugged, but we should suppose Major Hooper's old time friends, of three defunct assessment concerns, would lose all faith in assessment life insurance. Especially now that he invites them into a fourth one and that transacting business in violation of Canadian law, exposing every agent to a penalty of a thousand dollar for each person insured.—Monetary Times

THE PRINCESS LOUISE FUND.

OTTAWA, June 2.—Dr. Boyd arrived in the city to-night from London, Eng. He is one of the six Geneva Cross surgeons who offered their service for the Northwest and sent out by the Princess Louise in charge of her relief fund for the benefit of sufferers from the rebellion. It is understood that he has with him five hundred pounds' worth of medical stores, delicacies, etc., and that there is an additional £1,000 stg. at the disposal of the fund. Dr. Boyd will report at Government house to-morrow and will probably proceed west immediately.

Chicago Grain Movements.

The Chicago market is very much excited. Wheat opened to-day at an advance of 1¼ cents per bushel, and at 10.30 had made a further advance of ¾c. The price kept going up, scoring an advance of 1½ at 12.30. A reaction set in subsequently, and the closing at 1 p. m. was ½ a cent below the highest figures.

Fine Foresters' Court Room.

The court room of Court Peterborough, C. O. F., No. 129, was about as neat and beautiful as it could be, but the finishing touch has been given by a splendid landscape painting, executed by Mr. J. N. Watson. Over the Chief Ranger's canopy is mounted a fine stuffed deer and the forest scene has been painted as a background. The painting which is in water colors, is five by ten feet in size, surrounded with a heavy three inch gilt frame. The forest scene is depicted with great fidelity to nature. The deer looks as though it had just raised its head from drinking from the brook that fills the foreground, and one would hardly be surprised to see the figures of Robin Hood and his "merrie men," or Friar Tuck, start up amidst the brown and real-looking boles of the forest trees. The painting is a very creditable one.

NORWOOd.

Mr. Thos. Doonan, baker, confectioner, etc., made an assignment to Mr. G. Hall, of Peterborough, one of his creditors, on Monday last. His creditors are legion and his assets a long ways 'short.' Many an honest housewife, with a dozen or more defunct bread tickets on her hands, laments this sudden smash-up. Mr. S. J. Clysdale, of this village, is a loser to the extent of nearly $125.—Register.

Lost its Romance.

"I tell you, pard," said old Jimmy Cannon, a guide, "the West has lost its romance. Only a little while ago, it seems to me, where once there was nothing but the whoop of the Indians and the song of the six-shooter, now there are railroads and churches and commercial men and high schools and three-card-monte men and lecturers and daily newspapers and every little while a natural death. Why, within two months, if the blasted papers tell the truth, several men have died in Wyoming of disease. I tell you, it looks as though us old-timers would have to move away. When we wait for lingering disease to snuff us out, its time to light out for the frontier."

Pitying Widows in the Pennsylvania Mining Region.

A year is a long time for a comely and thrifty woman to remain a widow at the mines, no matter how many children she may have. Jim is killed to-day, and possibly before the summer ends, Jack, who was Jim's best friend, insists upon marrying Jim's widow. Jim's babies become his. And if you go below the surface you will find the foundation of Jack's action to be pure charity. It is a matter of record that when the terrible Avondale disaster occurred so many widows and helpless ones were left that the matter of caring for the former speedily was discussed. It was quickly settled by propositions of marriage, and within a very short time after the calamity the household of every victim was protected. This same spirit exists in every mining community today, and is a shield against much distress.—N. Y. Sun.

A man at a hotel fell the whole length of a flight of stairs. Servants rushed to pick him up. They asked him if he was hurt. "No," he replied, "not at all; I'm a life insurance agent."—Hotel Mail.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

The Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1885.

Change of Price.

We wish to announce that after Monday next the subscription price of the DAILY EXAMINER will be at the rate of $4.00 per year, or ten cents per week. We find that to make THE EXAMINER the first-class local newspaper we are bound to make it, we must introduce the above intimated advance in price. The previously announced figures did not leave sufficient margin to admit of supplying a creditable publication, with either a fair profit to ourselves or with advantage to our patrons. If we had been able to adhere to our original intention of delivering the papers through the medium of juvenile news agents, those figures would have been maintained, but the demand of our friends made the opening of a subscription list imperative. On Tuesday we instituted a subscription list, and we are happy to say that the result has more than trebled our most sanguine expectations: The demand for THE DAILY EXAMINER has, since the beginning of publication, resulted in the disposal of 1,200 copies per day. We are grateful for such hearty appreciation of our efforts to issue a live local daily paper, and we trust by greater efforts and the increased facilities, to be only acquired from experience, to continuously make improvements in every respect.

The Senate and the Scott Act.

The action of the Senate in virtually destroying the Scott Act, as far as their jurisdiction and will extends, is, with reference to the principles of responsible government, a most unmitigated outrage upon representative institutions. The question of the merit or demerit, of the Scott Act, as a measure tending to promote temperance among the people, is not primarily at issue. The question is whether an irresponsible body, like the Senate, should take upon itself to nullify the wishes of an immense number of Canadian citizens, expressed by the ballot at the polls. A majority of the counties, including a large majority of the people, has pronounced in favour of the principles of repression and restriction of the liquor traffic, involved in the provisions of the Act. The Act has been adopted in 61 counties and four cities of the Dominion, and in most of them by very decisive majorities. The result of the voting, so far, has been that the total majorities in favour of the Act amounts to 45,432, while the majorities against the Act in the few counties that have rejected it amount to only 842. Thus it would appear that not only a vast majority of those counties who have adopted the Scott Act, but a respectable majority of the people in general are in favor of the principle of the bill. And it is here where the mischief-making Senate does wrong. What right has it, though the legislation it proposes were of the most beneficial moral character, to force anything upon the people contrary to the wishes of the majority? Years ago the people of Canada fought and struggled for responsible representative Government. Shall they now be arbitrarily deprived of the benefit of its principles by a desiccated coterie of shelved politicians, who care as little, we suppose, for the will and welfare of the people as we know the people care for them? The amendments passed by the Senate, whatever may be their moral effect if carried into practice, are essential subversions of the prohibitory clauses of the Act, as adopted by a large number of counties.

And in this the sin of the Senate lies. They have taken it upon themselves to run, with offensive indifference, counter to the legally and constitutionally expressed wishes of the majority of the people. By their disposition to commit outrages like this, they have shown that, as a body existing to prevent the enactment of crude and hasty legislation, they are a failure. After their deliberate disregard of the constitutionally expressed will of the popular majority, can they be trusted to revise the legislation of the lower House? Can they be trusted in any respect? Decidedly not. The Senate has long been furnishing proof that its usefulness was gone, but its last act of fatuous senility, in respect of the Scott Act, is a promising and encouraging attempt at felo-de-se.

Why Reformers Cannot Consent to the Passage of the Franchise Bill.

What is to be this duty which is going to be discharged? It is the duty of making and revising the lists of the jury empannelled to try the Government of the day, which is to try the question between the Government and the Opposition. Why should those who are in the majority, who have all the advantage which place gives, which power gives, which patronage gives, which majority gives—why should they in addition have the power of naming the men who are to settle the lists of those who are to determine whether they shall continue to hold this power or not? I ask for answers to these arguments. We have not heard any answers yet. We have heard no reason given why the views taken in other countries, the views so obviously based upon reason and justice should not be applied here, I maintain that those members of Parliament who will assent in silence to the passing of a law to surrender to the Government of the day the appointment of the men who are to make and revise the lists, are unworthy of sitting in a free Parliament, and those who feel, as my hon. friends near me feel, that this is a question vital to the reality of free representative institutions, are not merely at liberty, but are also bound, to struggle to the utmost of their ability against the incorporation of this vicious principle in the law of Canada. Why, sir, to say that our present system involves occasionally some injustice in the making of the lists to the one party or the other, that occasionally an over zealous and improper Conservative assessor or functionary makes the lists wrongly, and occasionally an improper and over zealous Reform assessor does the same thing, and that that is a reason for this change—I do not say for a change, but for this change—is absurd; because this change is one which puts the dead weight of a revising officer all the time on one side, which says it shall be the nominee of the Government in all cases who shall make the list, and the other party, the party of the minority, shall have the function of appeal. It is a very great blessing that it is able to appeal, but it is a very great misfortune that it should always have to appeal. And as a matter of fact many appeals will not take place, because the difficulty, the expense, the loss of time, the uncertainty, the trouble would prevent the appeals which ought to take place. But, as I said on the second reading of the Bill, the lists will be made right for the appointers of the Revising officers. We are to have an appeal, and, though we are thankful for small mercies, though he gives us now at this late hour the right to make an appeal, we insist, with all the force with which we can insist, that he has not the right to take to himself the power of appointing the maker of the lists of those who are to judge him. To these proposals of his, which are to combine the functions of making and revising the lists in one single man, who cannot be competent to do it for the reasons I have stated, and to remove the making of the lists from those best qualified by knowledge and experience, and the confidence of the people, to perform that function, and hand over to the Government of the day the appointment of the maker and reviser, I, for my part, offer my humble, and earnest, and strenuous, and lasting, and persistent opposition.—Hon. Edward Blake.

Where is the Difference?

Politicians should have good memories. At the last general elections for the Local Legislature, the Conservatives made great use of the charge that the Mowat Administration was unworthy of public confidence, because their course of legislation had been such as to deprive the municipalities of the control of several matters, that of right belonged exclusively to them. If that argument was a good one for them, the same argument, mutatis mutandis, would be a valid one against the mode of preparing the voters' lists proposed by Sir John's Franchise Bill. This takes away from municipalities the time-honored privilege they have exercised ever since the establishment of municipal institutions. This is bad enough in the abstract, but when insult is added to injury, as it were, by handing over the lists for preparation, revision and all, to partizan revising officers, the change becomes nothing less than an outrage. In this the party journals find nothing to condemn. In fact the more brazen and partizan, have the assurance to applaud it. It seems to be a much worse thing to the Conservative politicians and journals for Hon. Mr. Mowat to "usurp," as they put it, municipal functions, than for Sir John to do the same, even with the added iniquity of the revising officers, clothed with plenipotentiary powers to manipulate and mutilate the voters" lists in the interest of their employers, and thus repress the free and full pronunciation of public opinion, upon the policy and acts of the government of the day.

Editorial Notes.

The Montreal Conference of the Methodist Church, which sat in Kingston, comes down on the Senate for its interference with the Scott Act, in no measured terms. The Senate is catching it from every quarter.

Sir Francis Hincks will deliver a lecture on the "Boundary Dispute," in Montreal, in a few days. It is understood that Sir Francis holds the view that the negotiators of the Ashburton Treaty were justly entitled to both the gratitude of England and the United States.

A deputation from Jamaica is at Ottawa, endeavoring to negotiate a reciprocity treaty between that colony and Canada. It is proposed to admit Canadian lumber, flour, butter and provisions free to their markets if Canada will remit the tax on rum, sugar and tropical fruits. The Jamaican delegates will meet and confer with the different boards of trade during their two months' stay in Canada.

CRACKERS FOR THE WORLD

American Manufacturers Far Ahead of Their Rivals in Any Land.

"Few people," said a large cracker and biscuit manufacturer of this city to a reporter for The Mail and Express, "know how the various kinds of biscuits they so often eat are manufactured, or the vast amount of business that is done in this line."

"Has the business grown lately?"

"It has assumed during the past few years immense proportions, and now we are able to compete with any country in the world in this line."

"To what do you attribute this great success?"

"Principally to machinery and the care we have taken to place before the market good and pure articles. A few years ago we used to import in large quantities sweet biscuits from England, they on that side being far in advance of us in their manufacture, but to-day we export to London, and, in fact, to all parts of the world. The last biscuit that for a long time we were unable to produce was the sugar wafer. We have recently placed this article in the market, and a superior one to that produced in the old country. Then, through our machines, we are able to sell biscuits that 12 years ago sold at 25 cents a pound for 15 cents."

The reporter and the manufacturer ascended the stairs leading to the top of the factory. The latter stated that in this factory not any of the material was touched by hand until the biscuit were baked and ready for packing; that six hundred barrels of flour alone were used, and large quantities of such materials as ginger, lard, sugar, currants, etc.

"This," said the merchant, on reaching the top floor, "is where we begin operations, and from here until the biscuit is baked is one continual process. With these machines we grind the various ingredients we use. This (pointing to a large sieve) is for sifting the flour, and after that operation it is placed in this shaft and shot down to the next floor, where we will follow it. This shaft was made simply of canvas, and on the same principle as the shaft in the grain elevators. The end of the shaft came into a trough about fifteen feet long, three wide and three deep. Here the various ingredients used in the manufacture were mixed together, but only lightly, as it is placed in another trough of similar size through which a large piece of twisted steel is turned; this is a mixer. After it is well mixed it is turned into another shaft and lowered to the next floor. Here the first operation is to press the dough under very heavy rollers answering the same purpose as the cook's rolling pin. This is done a great number of times until it is rolled to about half an inch in thickness, when it is passed into the last machine before the oven."

"How fast does the stamping machine work?"

"One hundred and fifty stamps a minute, and we have a stamp that will cut sixty-eight biscuits each stamp; that makes 7,140 biscuits in one minute."

"How long are the biscuits in baking?"

"Stay a moment. First look at the ovens. We have done away with the old-fashioned tiled ovens. These are four-stories high with walls three feet thick. They took as much brick to build as would build a large tenement house. At each floor is a large wheel just like a paddlewheel, only the paddles are swung on swivels, and remain in the same position all the time. One shelf is filled with biscuits to bake and then lowered and the next one filled, and so we go on until the first one comes round cooked. Then they are pulled off into this chute and placed in baskets."

"What is the heat of the oven?"

"It varies from 400 to 600 degrees. The men are so well informed that they know if it is the right heat directly they place their hands in it. The biscuits take two minutes and a half to bake. The fires are never put out."

"What is the next process?"

"The biscuits are sent up to the packing-room, where they are placed in tin boxes, sealed up, labelled, and ready for export."

"How many different kinds do you make?"

"Over 300, both sweet and dry, from the navy bread to the sugar wafers."—New York Mail and Express.

The Middlemen.

Thirty years ago a young man who had acquired experience, knowledge and reputation, and perhaps saved a couple of hundred in the employment of a considerable mercantile or manufacturing firm, would start on his own account as a broker or other business intermediary, transacting the actual sales and purchases, mastering and conducting the details which his employers could afford to neglect, doing in his department the work of a score or more of different firms, needing little capital but the confidence of his original employers and those with whom he had been brought into contact in their service. Commerce could afford liberal commissions; shrewdness, foresight and diligence secured a minor but valuable share of the profits made in the long roundabout passage between the original producer and the ultimate consumer. Nowadays the steps are much fewer; one intermediary after another has been suppressed. The munufacturer buys his materials, not perhaps from the actual producer, but from his factor. Orders are sent direct by telegraph, commissions are comparatively few and scanty, and the brokers who yet remain are compelled to secure business by services which only considerable capital can afford. The business of large, and even long-established firms is seriously reduced, the smaller, one after another have disappeared or been absorbed; and the opportunities for new men with no capital but brains and character are yearly more and more contracted. The professions are crowded, competition has in many cases reduced their remuneration, generally divided the business among a greater number; and even where the heads of a profession make as much or more money than ever the juniors are compelled to wait longer and work harder and longer—Macmillan's Magazine.

Five Rather Unusual Things.

There is a wonderful calf on private exhibition at Tacoma, W. T. It is of a dark brown color, with eight legs, two heads, four eyes and four ears. The body is all in one. The heads stand throat to throat, and are entirely separate to the shoulders, where they merge into one body, although the body takes on the semblance of being two animals, as it has two backs and no breast. The legs and tail are separate, and well formed for a monstrosity.

Mr. Norris, a farmer, of Pleasant Township, Kentucky, is in possession of a curiosity in the shape of a colt-puppy, a beast half dog and half horse. The head is that of a grey-hound devoid of mane; the body is long and slender, covered with fine hair, and the tail is that of a dog, while the hoofs resemble those of a horse. Mr. Norris has been offered $450 for it.

El Dorado County, California has produced six cucumbers all rolled together and looking like a fluted pumpkin.

Mrs. Jane Patterson, of Ringgold, Ga., has just died from a rattlesnake bite received thirty years ago.

An industrious hen at San Jose, Cal., recently hatched seven chickens, each of which had four legs.—Several Truthful Exchanges.

A mild rebuke: An Austin teacher overheard one of the larger boys in the class whispering to the boy below him that the teacher was a donkey. The teacher did not get angry at all. He did not seize the boy by the collar and draw him over the desk where he could get at him conveniently. All the teacher did was to remark placidly: "Harry, I shall mark you deficient in natural history, because you cannot distinguish me from a donkey."—Texas Siftings.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

or,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The Leaden Casket," "Thorncroft's Model," &c. &c

"We promise," cried both; "but why do you ask such a thing? What do you mean?"

"Hush! I'll tell you everything when he is gone. Please, Philip, let him think the yacht is yours."

Philip nodded. Wonderful and incomprehensible were the ways of women! He had not been married for three years to Lettice without learning as much as that!

Once in the boat, their way was easy; they had nothing to do but to watch the last rays of sunlight sparkling on the tips of the rocky islets, or to admire the vigorous strokes of the crew.

"You are a happy man!" said their new friend to Philip, "to be owner of that lovely yacht by Fort Solidor. She comes very well in a sketch of mine from Dinard, but at that distance she only looks like a big white butterfly resting on the water."

Philip returned some vague answer.—Lucy saw his embarrassment, and broke in at random with this question: "Which of us could get up much love and affection for the island we have just left if it suddenly became their property?"

"I don't wan't it," said Philip; "it is dull and barren."

"And ghostly," said Lettice, who wanted none of it.

"It is fine in some ways," said the stranger; "but I don't want to possess it. In fact the only place I ever did covet was an estate in Cumberland, which used to belong to a relative of mine. It was a lovely place, with everything a landscape painter cares for; fine mountains, a lake, very pretty woods, and a charming old-fashioned house. If I had that place and five hundred a year, I should have nothing left to wish for, except to live long enough to do some work."

"I dare say you will get that very place, some day," said Lettice; "people generally do get the things they wish for—in some odd way or other, they do."

"In no way can I ever get that! It has gone from our family forever. It can't be helped."

"Now, I dare say," continued Lettice, "if you are disappointed about losing that place it is only because it is beautiful, and you would not have regretted it at all if it had been a handsome house in London!"

"I was tried in both ways," said the stranger, smiling cheerily. "I don't think I am especially attached to houses and wealth, except for the sake of working with an easy mind. A yacht would be a splendid help to me, though."

"Aunt Esther," whispered Lucy, "I have lost my brooch."

It was only a whisper, but he heard it, and Lucy saw that he did so.

"How vexing!" cried all the others—"a family brooch!"

It was like breathing in new life to listen to this man's conversation during the evening. He had not spoken so much or so well before, but now he seemed to be at home with them, and talked of books and pictures and beautiful places, until Lucy felt that she could have listened forever. Philip also was charmed with him, and even Lettice's mocking spirits were laid to rest. He looked at Lucy's panel—the only one yet done. He praised her work and gave her some hints for the future.—His praise consisted of the few words—"You can draw!" but it gave her great delight.

"Thank you for one of the happiest evenings I have ever spent," said he at length.

"But we shall see you again!" cried Philip.

"Often, I hope," said Lettice.

He turned to Lucy, and seemed to desire a word of invitation from her also.

"I hope you will come again," said she.

"I will come to-morrow, if I may," said he; "I have a great wish to see your panel by daylight."

It was arranged that he should come to luncheon next day, and go with them to Dinan the day following.

"Good night," said Lucy, holding out her hand—she had great pleasure in hearing him make his engagement. The cutter was waiting to take him on shore.—He stood up in it, cap in hand, to bid a last good by to the ladies who were now on deck. As he sat down, the light of a little lantern flashed on the side of the yacht, and his eyes fell on the blue line which ran roubd the vessel.

"Your yacht is in mourning, said he to Philip Mostyn, who was going as far as the pier with him.

"Yes, for its late owner, Mr. Kenrick."

"Mr. Kenrick!" cried the stranger; "but have you married Miss Ilderton, or I ought to say Miss Clavering?"

"I married one Miss Ilderton three years ago, replied Philip, "the other is the lady who shares your love of painting. Her name is Clavering now. She has changed it."

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

How the "Song of the Shirt" Is Sung in New York—Thirty Cents a Dozen.

When Thomas Hood's poetic soul, angered at the inhuman manner in which indigent English seamstresses were treated by their employers, inspired him to produce his immortal "Song of the Shirt," England responded to his cry for justice, and vowed that the evils which he deplored should be at least mitigated, if not abolished. A similar appeal to humanity seems to be desirable in this city just at present, at least if one is to judge from the heartrending story which a prominent merchant told a Herald reporter Saturday afternoon.

"Six dollars and 53 cents is nice payment for making 291 shirts, is it not?" was his indignant question, as he pulled a pay-book from his pocket and showed the figures in black and white. "No, I am wrong. The estimable employers paid $7.75, but you must deduct from that $1.22 for car-fares, and then you have $6.53 for making 291 shirts. Who was fool enough to accept the job? I'll tell you. A man came here from Silesia about fifteen months ago with his wife and two children. He is a bright, intelligent fellow about 40 years old, and has worked for some years on a railroad in Germany. He brought with him two sewing-machines, and he and his wife managed to support themselves for some months by making shields for caps. When the demand for these articles ceased, he sought other employment, but was unable to find any. At last a friend told him that a firm in East Fifty-third street would be willing to employ him at making shirts. He jumped at the idea, went to the firm, got the material for the shirts, and set to work at once, after he had provided himself with cotton thread and other necessaries. That was on Nov. 26. From that day until Dec. 9, he and his wife and another woman, who provided a third sewing-machine, worked from 6 o'clock in the morning to 11 at night, and at the end of the time they had finished 291 shirts, and had received $7.75.

"He lived in Brooklyn, at a considerable distance from the ferry, and had to pay a considerable sum in car fares. The agreement was that he should receive 30 cents for every dozen shirts, and on Nov. 29 he took three shirts to his employers, expecting to be paid at the rate of 2½ cents a shirt. But how could he be paid the odd half cent? Would his employers be magnanimous enough to give him 8 cents instead of 7½. Quite the contrary. They paid him 7 cents instead of 7½ cents, his lawful due. On Dec. 3 he took eight dozen shirts to his employers, and received $2.40; on the fifth he took another eight dozen and received $2.64 the increased wages being accounted for by the fact that these shirts required to be finished better than the others and on the 9th he took another eight dozen and received the same amount as for the preceding lot.

"After I saw him he had taken his last eight dozen, and he told me his story. I got his pay-book from him and showed it to several influential gentlemen of this city. Knowing the price they have to pay for shirts, they could hardly believe that any employer would be so mean as to ask men and women to make them for 2½ cents each. I told them that the man's wife could not support her children on such starvation wages, and was obliged to get coal, tea, and money from some charitable ladies in Brooklyn. I then went to a prominent labor bureau and requested the proprietor not to recommend any man or woman, however badly off he or she might be, to take employment from this firm at such a rate of payment, and finally I promised the man whose case attracted my attention to the matter to do my best to get him some job better than that one. He is an honest man, and he says that it would break his heart to see his children selling newspapers on the street. That was the reason why he accepted such badly-paying work. If The Herald will only give due prominence to this story Hood's hopes may be realized in this city. You remember how he says:

> And still in a voice of dolorous pitch
> (Would that its tones could reach the rich)
> She sang the song of the shirt.

"Not even the most stony-hearted employer would dare to pay a man and two women for thirteen days' labor such a miserable sum as this firm paid Regen and his fellow workers, if the matter was known to the public."—New York Herald.

Where He Hit It.

"There's nothing like starting out right," observed the senior partner as he looked up from his daily. "I see that pepper has taken a jump of ten per cent. cinnamon is on the rise, and allspice is running away with market quotations."

"And you will have to increase the price of your goods?" queried his brother-in law from one of the back townships.

"That's where we hit 'em—no increase! We started this business with the firm intention not to be controlled by rings or failures of crops, and our pure ground seasonings are made without reference to pepper, spice, cinnamon or anything else in the trade! Start right, sir—start right. If I should start a starch factory I would not depend on either corn or potatoes!"—Wall Street News.

Alexander H. Mitchell, of Milwaukee, is said to be worth $15,000,000, and he has in Scotland, whence he came, a schoolmate who is said to be worth $40,000,000. It is related that the two met in France a few years ago and spent the day together. The Glasgow man paid all the bills. At the close of the day, when the two sat down to dinner, the Glasgow banker pulled out a card, and turning to Mitchell he said: "Sandy, you owe me $1,65." This was Sandy's share of the expense of the day.

LINDSAY POST.—"The binding was examined by a large number, and all were much pleased with the appearance and thoroughness with which the work had been executed."

OMEMEE HERALD.—"We have received from the Peterborough EXAMINER Bookbindery our volumes of Picturesque Canada, bound in a most beautiful and lasting style. Down With the Dust!

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammersman Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely and was passing out the door, when the Smith in peremptory tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smith handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to dae wi' these, Deacon?" "Why," replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "just Nail yer thanks there and pay me saxpence."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1885.

USE THE TELEPHONE.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

ALL AROUND TOWN.

School Board Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Separate School Board will be held this evening in the Murray Street School Building.

Not Tested.

Owing to the non-arrival of the signal lamps, of which the EXAMINER made mention in a recent issue, the signal-corps, of the 57th Battallions, did not go out to test them last evening as anticipated.

Streets and Bridges.

This is the day for the Street and Bridge Committee to inspect the various thoroughfares, structures, etc., under their inspectorate. We would suggest to them to take a walk over the Dalhousie Street bridge—one at a time, though, for their own safety.

A Readable Sheet.

On Saturday last the Peterborough DAILY EXAMINER made its first appearance. It is a nicely printed and neatly got-up 4-page sheet filled with crisp local and latest foreign news. We wish the publisher, Mr. J. R. Stratton, every success in the venture.—Norwood Register.

Police Court.

Business was quiet this morning in the room where justice is daily meted out. The dull, rainy weather has given the "I-cant-find-work" brotherhood an inclination for sleeping, and doubtless if our policemen would visit the quiet, shady nooks of our suburbs they could manage to stir up a few nice specimens of the "hoodlum" class.

Bicycling.

The members of the Peterborough Bicycle Club turned out last evening at the appointed hour, and had the first of their series of excursions. It was quite a goose-fashion turn-out, and, arrayed in their suits of navy blue, the boys looked nice as they meandered through the streets of the town. We understand that the club has got a large membership list.

"Did Splendidly."

Mr. Geo. H. Young, in a communication to the Winnipeg Sun, says:—"I consider that the Midland Battalion and Grenadier regiments did splendidly at Batoche, that at the charge they had the place of honor and of most danger. The honor of commencing the charge that gave the victory at Batoche rests with the Midland Battalion, as led by Col. Williams." Give the boys a medal by all means. They deserve it.

Lacrosse.

Weather permitting, a scratch match will take place on the new lacrosse grounds at the Driving Park to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock sharp. The Park will be free to every body, and parties wishing to drive around on the track can do so without charge. The track is in excellent condition, and that itself should be the means of drawing a large number of spectators. This match has since been postponed till Monday evening.

Manitoba Exemptions.

A number af local parties are interested in having the Dominion Government disallow the legislation recently enacted by the Manitoba legislature, exempting residents of Manitoba from seizure for liabilities up to $2,500. The Board of Trade of Toronto and Winnipeg have held meetings and made strong protests against injurious legislation of this nature. Wholesale houses which have given credit to Manitoba merchants, will be placed at the mercy of unscrupulous members of this class. We understand that some local residents are interested in having quashed a bill that will hit harder than the collapse of the boom in Manitoba mud,

Willow and Wicket.

The Home Eleven Down the Varsity Boys.

The cricket season opened very auspiciously for Peterborough yesterday in the match with Toronto University. The latter team are an eleven picked from various parts of the Province, and consequently have not the solidity which characterizes those who are accustomed to play together. For Peterborough, Norley gave a splendid exhibition of batting, and scored 44. R. B. Rogers also put together 23 in his own careful way. The batting of Max Hamilton for 19, was much admired. Hatton also came boldly to the front with 19 to his credit, and gives presage of even better things to come. The old "reliable" unfortunately succumed to the winning graces of the 'Varsity bowlers adding little to their former lustre. For the 'Varsity, Vickers headed the list with 25 runs, gathered together with good judgment and excellent form. Collins with 9 and Macdonald with 8, were the only others of the visitors who were successful in making any considerable compilation. Peterborough won by one innings and 43 runs to spare. The following is the score:—

Entrance Examinations.

One hundred and twenty candidates have signified their intention of writing at the Entrance Examinations to the Collegiate Institute in July.

Second Class Certificates.

Thirty candidates will write for second and third class certificates, the week following the Entrance examination.

Beautiful Portraits.

There are shown in the show windows of Clegg's furniture store two speaking likenesses of the children of Mr. Nimmo, dentist. They are the handiwork of Mr. T. Workman, and, as perfect portraits in every respect, add much to the high reputation this gentleman has won as a portrait painter of a high order.

One of the Finest.

Policeman McGinty, though new to the helmet and baton, is developing into a first-class officer. A prominent citizen gives him great praise for his successful efforts in repressing loafing, preventing "gad-flies" from clustering round the electric lamps, and for effectually reducing the volume of public profane language. More power to your grip, No. 4; you're a credit to the "banner ward."

Brothers of the Brush.

Mr. John McNaughton, our efficient Councillor for No. 1 Ward, having opened out a shop recently at the corner of Sherbrooke and Bethune streets for the repairing of boots and shoes, decided to have a handsome sign painted. His wishes have been gratified, and now the handiwork may be seen by walking up a flight of stairs at R. B. McKee's hardware store. Paint another one, Dod, and quit.

Early Closing.

We understand that the dry goods merchants of the town, in a short time, intend to fall into line with the shoe stores and close their places of business at 6 o'clock every evening. This is nothing but fair; employees who have worked well during the busy months of spring should be allowed that recreation in the evenings of the quiet months of July and August, which every person needs more or less.

Attention Wanted.

A Fourth Ward correspondent complains that the north part of the town, from Water streets up to Hilliard's mills needs protection, and suggests that the police, instead of coming up two or three times a week looking for geese and cows, should make more frequent visits at night, when, he states, the circumstances of the locality make the necessity of police protection particularly urgent. The attention of the Police Commissioners are called to the matter.

Rustic Beauties.

There is on exhibition in Mr. A. McNeil's window a very fair specimen of oil painting, and considering the circumstances of the artist we might add that it is a wonderful production of the brushes; the picture was painted by a young lady whose name is printed on the corner and who never took any lessons in the art; it represents a number of our local sports having a picnic on the banks of Stoney Lake, as the background will show, and is simply the fruit of natural talent. We are informed that this is only one of the many paintings that have found their way into Peterborough.

Madam Cora Giese, the Great Cantatrice, will Sing at the Mendelssohn Quintette Club Concert here on Friday Evening, June 5th.

Bay of Quinte Conference.

Draft of Stations of Ministers.

The second session of the Bay Quinte Conference of the Methodist Church began in Port Hope on Tuesday. The following is the first draft of stations, subject to revision and change, for the undermentioned district.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—It was recently suggested that the time had come for the erection of a Collegiate Institute building—separate and apart from the present buildings. Allow me to make a suggestion. The property now known as the Central Park and the Separate School property to the west were originally granted by the Crown for burial grounds—the Protestant part was vested in the old Council of the Newcastle District and the other in the Bishop of Kingston. Both parties ceased to bury their dead there about 25 years ago. The Protestant part is now a park, owned and enjoyed by Protestant and Catholic alike—the other part has been misappropriated and has been used for R. C. school purposes. Now, Mr. Editor, I suggest that the just and fair thing to do is to allow the R. C. people to utilize the south half and take the north half for a Collegiate Institute. This would save expense to the town and at the same time it would be doing more than the fair thing by our R. C. friends, as they would enjoy the High School Institution equally with Protestants as they do to-day.

Yours truly,
SENEX.

TOWN COUNCIL.

A Rather Important Meeting.

The Question of Fire Protection—Programme of Street Improvements.

The adjourned meeting of the Town Council was held in the Council Chamber on Thursday. All the members present took their respective chairs, with the exception of Mr. McNaughton, whose chair being in rather a dilapidated condition was, on his demurring to accept it, quietly exchanged for the town clerk's. His Worship the Mayor not being there at the beginning of the meeting, on motion of Mr. T. Cahill, Mr. Menzies took the chair.

After routine a number of communications and bills were presented and dealt with, among the former, one from Capt. Edwards, asking the Council for an appropriation for the families of two men away to the North-West with the Midland Battalion.

HYDRANTS FOR THE TOWN.

Councillor Rutherford read the following report from the Fire, Water and Light Committee:—

That in pursuance of the resolution passed at the last meeting of the Council, they had an interview with the directors of the Water Company, and after a very careful discussion and careful consideration of the whole matter, they recommend that a by-law be recommended to the ratepayers for entering into contract with the Water Company, whereby the number of hydrants leased from the Water Company be increased to 40, at a yearly rental of $50 per hydrant per year for ten years. The hydrants to be located as may be decided upon by this Council in the following districts:—On George street, between Smith and Wolfe streets; on Water street, between Dublin and Charlotte streets; and in the block bounded on the south by Charlotte street, on the west by Rubidge street, on the north by Brock streets, and on the east by Water street. The town to have the right to use all the water required for watering purposes in any part of the town, or for any other purpose free of charge. This will include the right to, and by attaching the hose to the hydrants, when the water can be conveyed, if necessary, a distance of two or three thousand feet, to the steam fire engine, which thus becomes a movable hydrant; thus protecting that portion of the town not within the limits referred to above.

It is recommended by the committee that this expenditure shall be paid by a general tax, and it is believed that a careful consideration of the matter by the ratepayers, outside of the district in which the hydrants are located, will lead them to see the fairness of this recommendation.

The Committee also beg to report, that they have awarded to Thomas Trennum the contract of watering special streets at the rate of $2.40 per day. That they also receive from the Water Company the sum of $500.00 as the amount required by them for watering purposes.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
A. RUTHERFORD.
Chairman.

His Worship the Mayor, in seconding the adoption of the report, said that the Town should meet the Water Company in a fair manner. He thought that every ratepayer, no matter what class he belonged to, took a deep interest in the welfare and protection of the town property; he did not wish it to be understood that feelings of a personal character prompted him to speak thus. The Town Clerk had made an estimate of the property encircled by water works and had found it to be about $1,678,000. He thought that the present hydrant system, of twenty three in all, was not sufficient to protect the town property. By levying a general tax the water rate on a person whose taxes amounted to $10 would be about 50 cts, and that Peterborough, which was rated as C., would, under the present circumstances, shortly sink to D,, which would make it a fourth rate town in Insurance circles. The report was adopted.

Mr. Hartley thought that the north end of the town was not fairly treated, in the way of fire protection.

Mr. McClelland moved that the water-works be extended west as far as Park street, but in consideration of the proposed action of the town, withdrew his motion.

WAYS AND MEANS.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the clerk prepare a by-law for the purpose of raising money required for the proposed town offices, and that Mr. Edwards, the town solicitor, prepare said by-laws, and that he give his opinion regarding its legality.—Carried.

ENCOURAGING MANUFACTURES.

Moved by Mr. McClelland, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, that whereas it is proposed by Mr. Stevenson to erect large additions to his property on Simcoe street, known as the Central Iron Works, to enable the company engaged in the manufacture of iron bridges, and also for the purpose of providing the necessary accommodation for the Peterboro' Lock Works; and whereas it is proposed by the Dixon Co. to erect additional buildings on the raceway for the purpose of encouraging new industries in our town; and whereas it is desirable to encourage in every possible way expenditures of this kind; that the Clerk be requested to have a by-law prepared enacting that the present assessments on these properties, notwithstanding any further improvements in building or machinery, shall continue to be assessed at the same rate as at present, for ten years from the date of the passing of said by-law.—Carried,

PARK BOULEVARD.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that plank be given to the Horticultural Society, sufficient to boulevard the front of the Court House Park on Water street—Carried.

Moved by Mr. McNaughton, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the case of Lavery be referred to the Charity Committee with power to act.—Carried.

PROGRAMME OF STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

To the Mayor and Council of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN,—The Street and Bridge Committee begs leave to report that they have this day made a partial examination of the streets and bridges, (which they have not been able to do in full on account of the rain). Your committee are pleased to note again the prosperity of the town, as evidenced by the large number of buildings in course of construction in all parts of the town, whilst there is not a vacant house anywhere to be seen. The matter complained of by Mr. Geo. Hilliard having been referred to this committee with power to act, they have decided to open up and grade Sperry street, and use the gravel to be taken therefrom in the north part of the town where required, in consideration of which Mr. Hilliard withdraws his claim for damages against the corporation,

Your Committee submits the following recommendations of street improvements:—

Antrim street—Sidewalk east of George street, to be properly repaired.

Dublin street.—Sidewalk to be properly repaired on both sides.

London street.—East of George to be gravelled where required; the gravel to be taken from Waterford street for that purpose.

Mill street.—Sidewalk to be built from end of present walk to London street. The bridge on this street, near Hunter, to be filled up; the material to be taken off the south end of Sheridan street, by which means the latter will be much improved.

George street.—The sidewalk on west side, from Sherbrooke, to be rebuilt to the C. P. R. station. Also a crossing at Wolfe street and a sidewalk to the steamboat wharf.

Rink street—The appropriation which was voted for the last two years to be expended on this street.

Park street, at the southern boundary—The Pathmaster of Monaghan to be seen by the Inspector about repairing the road at this point.

Wescott street—A sum not exceeding $50 to be expended.

Chamberlain street—The Railway Company to be required to put a culvert under their track, and the water-table drain to be deepened.

Albert street—To be graded and water-tabled.

Rubidge street—A short portion on south end to be gravelled.

Union street—A new sidewalk to be built from Dublin to Edinburg street.

Gilmour St.—To be graded and water-tabled near Mr. Wood's residence, and the sidewalk to be continued to his house.

Aylmer St.—The sidewalk from M. R. R., to Edinburgh street to be rebuilt.

Ried Street.—A sidewalk on the west side, south a half block.

Downie Street.—To be graded north from Brock, and a sidewalk built from Hunter to Simcoe streets.

Dublin street.—A short piece of sidewalk to be built at Mr. Freeman's house.

Antrim street.—A sidewalk to be built on on Bethune street across Smith street, and along Smith to Mr. Hammond's residence; and the sidewalk on Smith street west, from the Midland R. R. to be repaired.

Wolfe street.—To be graded from Aylmer to C. P. R. Station.

The deepening of the drain on Rink street having been referred to your committee, with power to act, we now recommend that the town engineer be employed to take levels, and that the work be done under supervision of your committee; also that a grade be struck on Chambers street, and the street graded accordingly, and a new walk made.

Crescent street.—Your committee examined this street and find it is being gradually washed away by the lake. If the directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Company would meet with your committee, some arrangement might be arrived at by which further damage may be prevented. Your committee recommend that any portion of the above work may be done by contract or otherwise, as may be deemed expedient.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
THOS. CAHILL,
Chairman.

Report adopted, and the council adjourned till June 15th.

LINDSAY.

His Lordship Bishop Jamot, of Peterborough, administered the sacrament of confirmation to about sixty children on Sunday morning last in St. Mary's Church. At 8.30 mass the children received first communion at the hands of the Bishop, and arrayed in white and wearing wreaths made the scene pretty as well as impressive. At 10.30, before mass, confirmation was administered by the Bishop, who delivered a short address to the candidates. At vespers, 7.30 p.m., His Lordship enrolled a number of new members into the Sodality of the B.V., the members of which attended in a body. His Lordship left on Monday for Bobcaygeon, by the steamer, to hold a confirmation service there. Very large congregations were present at all the services.—Post.

THE LATE CHEESE MARKETS.

Dairymen are having a hard road to travel this spring. Each week sees cheese going lower and lower, with no prospect of betterment. It will be two weeks yet before we shall come into the full make of grass cheese, and meanwhile nobody seems to want our hay cheese. There is one fact that should be borne in mind, however: Fodder cheese has always sold too high, in comparison with the latter make. It is a quick curing and a quick decaying article, and relatively it is never worth the price usually paid for it. The ready sale it has met with in England has accustomed our makers to expect the highest prices of the season for it, when, if it had been sold upon its real merits, it would have brought only about the prices that are realized this spring. There has always seemed to be some infatuation about fodder cheese. Buyers would go right on taking it, notwithstanding it declined each week. But the past season has been so disastrous in the cheese trade, that shippers actually refuse to take any more chances.

On the other hand, our dairymen are feeling very uncomfortable over the prospect. Hay is so scarce that seldom, if ever, have farmers been obliged to buy so much extra feed as they have this spring. A great many of them have run into debt for this feed, and now they are getting not more than 50c. a hundred for their milk. Factorymen are not much better off. They get about $1.15 for making, and all their other materials cost more than they have done. The truth is that the whole cheese fraternity is "blue," from the cow in her blue grass pasture clear through to the shipper's steel tryer. What may happen after grass cheese begins to arrive no fellow can tell, but we will at least hope for some substantial improvement.—Utica Herald.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IN CANADA.

Some idea of the position, the wealth, the power and spreading usefulness of this church may be gathered from the following statistics, culled from last year's official documents: There are about 726 ministers, an increase of thirty. Elders about 4,466. Pastoral charges 826, an increase of eighty for the year. These charges embrace about 1,687 preaching stations. There is sitting accommodation in the churches for 309,036 persons, an increase of 27,364 for the year. Number of families belonging to the body, 66,833, an increase of 1,588 and the number of communicants is 118,330, an increase of 1,823 (net.) There are about ninety-five thousand scholars in the Sabbath-schools, some five thousand of whom are in church communion. The total moneys raised throughout the Church for all purposes were about one million five hundred thousand dollars. This large sum was given for the support of colleges, church ordinances and missions at home and abroad.

THE 'CYCLE CRAZE.

There are in the United States about three hundred clerical wheelmen, including twelve doctors of divinity, ten theological professors, some twelve authors, several editors, and several pastors of prominent churches. About forty or fifty of these gentlemen are to unite in a tour of three weeks in Canada. The arrangements have been under the supervision of Rev. Sylvanus Stall, of Lancaster, Pa. The start is to be made at Niagara Falls, August 5.

ENGLISH AGRICULTURAL DEPRESSION.

The prices realized at the sale of Sir Henry Alsopp's Shorthorns serve to illustrate the general depression of agriculture in England. The total of the sale was 9.166 guineas, which represented a very heavy loss on the original out lay. One cow for instance, for which Sir Henry paid 3.200 guineas, only fetched 430, and the highest price of the day was 660 guineas.

Human Curiosities.

"Is there much activity in the manufacture of human curiosities?" asked a Mail and Express reporter of a Bowery museum employe.

"Let me tell you. Human nature is as irregular as the laws governing the universe, and why should there not be human monstrosities, as well as phenomena in the physical world?" argued the front-door lecturer.

"Step in," said the showman to the reporter, "and see the man who looks like a monkey. Without reference to the Darwinian theory, we see every day men who resemble some kind of an animal. You see a foxy-looking man on Wall street, a bovine-looking face on New street, or a bearish face somewhere else. Again, you will see a fat, chubby face, with bristle-like whiskers, which reminds you of a hog. Go up Fifth avenue and look on the coach boxes. I don't say that all of those coachmen look like monkeys, but, with the appliances of art known only to the museum banners, a few touches here and there, with the application of animal's hair on the face, I could make a great and only living curiosity out of some of those fellows. I don't say curiosities are made that way, but it can be done.

"You know how the three-horned cow was faked up, don't you? Well, I'd thought a smart professor like you would have caught on to that. Let me tell you a secret, and I don't often give away professional secrets. There was, some time ago, a wonderful monstrosity at one of the museums who had been in the Tombs six months. He came from Chicago, where he got into trouble by trying to beat an insurance company. He insured his life and then got himself run over on a railroad. He first ran against a freight train and hurt himself, then sued the company for $2,000. He next sold postage-stamps that had been used and got jugged for it, and next he imposed upon the general public by exhibiting himself as a curiosity. No, professor; there ain't no manufactured curiosities in the museums now, but there used to be lots of 'em," concluded the lecturer, with a wink at the reporter.—New York Mail and Express.

An employe of the telegraph company at Manila had a narrow escape recently having taken sugar of lead in a mistake for ammonia. He telegraphed to Hong Kong for a doctor, who came to the office and sent him advice by cable which resulted in his recovery. The distance is about 555 miles. Probably this is the first time that a doctor has prescribed for a patient 500 miles away.

Don't Forget the Mendelssohn Concert To-Night, in aid of St. Andrew's Church Building Fund.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1885.

The Key of India.

Owing to the wise and patriotic statesmanship of the Premier of England, it seems likely that the peace of Europe at the present critical juncture has been secured and that the impending war in Afghanistan has been happily averted. The much-maligned Gladstone will probably find his bitterest enemies prepared to admit, before many months pass, that his judicious, skilful, and far-seeing policy has procured for England "peace with honour," and that his part in the negotiations now reported as complete, has been eminently satisfactory, so far as England is concerned.

The details of the work of making out an Afghan frontier, which lies at the very foundation of all peace proposals, have been entrusted to Col. Ridgeway, representing Britain, and to M. Lessar, the Russian Commissioner. They will commence operations immediately, and their report, when completed, will be submitted to the arbitrators. Thus the British Government has once more, by prudence, forbearance, and real bravery, averted the horrors of what would certainly have been a long and terribly bloody war. They have acted on the wise principle which Macaulay so long since enunciated. He said "Government exists for the purpose of keeping the peace—for the purpose of compelling us to settle our disputes by arbitration, instead of settling them by blows—for the purpose of compelling us to supply our wants by industry, instead of supplying them by rapine. This is the only operation for which the machinery of Government is fit, the only operation which wise Governments ever attempt to perform."

But while the awful horrors of war have doubtless for the present been averted, there are not wanting many who believe the contest between Russia and England is yet sure to come. That the former country has acted with deep duplicity and unfairness; that she has shown much greed and aggressiveness; that she has treated both Britain and Afghan with great contumely and has systematically failed to keep the most solemn promises, must be admitted by all who have thus far patiently watched the Czar's career.

Even now while negotiations are pending, telegraphic despatches tell us the completion of the Central Asian Railway is being hastened, and the Russian press is persistently urging that a strong fortress be built opposite Herat. Sir Edward Hamley argues that yielding Penjdeh means practically the surrender of Herat and probably also of Afghan Turkestan. From Penjdeh we are assured Russia could strike Herat whenever she pleased, and would not in the least be impeded by the occupation of the Zulficar Pass by Afghans. It is Herat which the Russian is bent on capturing—if not accomplished to-day, the task will be essayed again and again until successful, or at least until the advance becomes impossible. Herat is the key to India. It is the natural goal of all the armies that may proceed in the direction of India, whether they come from the dreary wastes of the Turkoman steppe, or from the Caspian Sea on the west. As a place to mass troops, to relieve an army by a brief rest, or to concentrate his force, a general would find Herat simply invaluable. Besides, as we have said, it is the gate to India. Let the Russian hold this key to the citadel, and if she would not refuse to unlock it, in case an English army clamoured at the gate, then we know nothing of Russian nature. She might not secure the house, if the key by any mischance fell into her hands, but she would unquestionably try to effect an entrance.

All travellers agree in the statement that Herat lies in the midst of a charming and fertile country. Its situation is admirable. Its history goes back to the dim ages of antiquity. North of it the hills slope down into the sands of Turkestan; on the south and east extend stoney ridges and dry deserts, the mountain fastnesses of Afghanistan. Between them both lies the cultured valley, enriched by the perennial waters of the Heri-Rad. The soil is marvellously fertile, wheat and grapes, pears and apples, are abundant. The land is admirably adapted for cultivation and minerals, as well as wood for building purposes, can be readily had.

The town itself is surrounded by an enormous earthwork 50 feet high and 250 feet at the base. This stupendous structure is crowned by a wall 25 feet high, supported by 160 towers, and protected by a ditch 45 feet in width and 16 feet in depth. Herat has stood many lengthy sieges. Not to speak of those it sustained at the hands of Jenghis Khan, of Timur and Ahmeed Shah, in 1837 the inhabitants beat off the constant attacks of a Persian army during ten months, the troops numbering 35,000 men and being supported by 50 pieces of artillery. The population is now variously estimated at from 20,000 to 50,000.

Herat, therefore, presents a safe retreat where a large army can linger indefinitely and sustain itself from the resources of such a fertile country. It is a point, too, where roads converge from all parts of Asia. It is the key of India, and is only about 370 miles from Kandahar. It is capable of being defended against tremendous hosts. For all these reasons, therefore, Russia covets the possession of the citadel, and we are much mistaken if, in the pursuit of her designs, she will not yet find herself face to face with the troops of brave old England.

Editorial Notes.

Toronto's rate of taxation has this year, jumped up to eighteen and one-eighth mills on the dollar from fifteen and a half mills last year, and yet the assessment has been largely increased. "Jobs" did it.

Rural Reader.—"What is the Franchise Bill?" We can't exactly tell. The revising officers alone will count for an extra half-million a year, and as the result will be to keep the present party in power, it's no telling what the bill will be—heavy enough, anyway, to test even the resources of a ever so vigorous young country as Canada.

Sir Leonard Tilley, in the exuberance of financial ignorance, not so long ago, said if he were a young man in business he would "clap on all sail for 7 years of prosperity." Years of hard times followed instead, and President Smithers at the annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal, this week, said his advice to business men was "to be prepared for any contingency."

The Opposition members at Ottawa were, and are, berated as obstructionists, because they prevented Sir John forcing his Franchise Bill through at one sitting. Their "obstruction"—to the political schemes of the Government party—has, backed as it has been by public opinion, resulted in many important modifications of the original monstrosity, and, though the Bill will be bad enough when it becomes law, it will not be nearly so bad as it would have been but for the salutary "obstructiveness" of the Opposition. It's an up-hill fight, but there's no flinching in the ranks.

The Franchise Bill.

The Sinful Sixteenth Section.

The sixteenth clause of the Franchise Bill, which is now under discussion, is the most villainous part of the whole measure. It proposes to empower every Revising barrister to sit in a star chamber, with nobody in attendance, and put every name that may be mentioned to him, whether verbally or in writing, on his preliminary electoral list, and then leave it to those who object to any such name or names to bring evidence to show that those names which have been improperly placed upon the list should be struck off. This simply enables the Revising officers to stuff the preliminary lists as they please in the interest of the Tory party, and names once upon the list, it will be easy to throw obstacles in the way of, and object to evidence adduced by those who desire to have them removed. The revisor is to put on his preliminary list the name of any person who by himself or anybody else claims to be a voter, and those who think that any party whose name is on the list is not a qualified voter, must go to the trouble and expense of getting up evidence to show that such name should be removed. In this way a man residing in one riding may get his name placed upon the lists in three or four constituencies where he may have no vote at all, and his name will remain upon all the lists unless somebody takes the trouble to hunt up evidence to strike it off. And as Revising officers can put on names without inquiry, without evidence, and even without personal application on the part of any would-be elector, so also he of any elector whose qualification is questioned by a political agent. Sir John in his explanation said that each list of names would be sent in to the Revising officers and it would be the duty of the officer to put all the names on the list without question and leave it to the objecting parties to show cause why any name should be struck off, and with the view of throwing the Opposition off their guard, Sir John pretended that the clause was of no importance at all. The monstrous character of the proposals contained in the clause was, however, soon discovered. Mr. M. C. Cameaon showed this afternoon that if a name was once placed on the preliminary list by the Revising barrister it was very doubtful if it could be struck off at the final revision, as the Revising officer's Court would be a Court of Record. Yet Sir John and his followers stoutly resist all the efforts to amend this clause.—Ottawa correspondence, Globe.

Parliamentary Summary.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3rd.

In the House of Commons to-day the discussion of the duties of the revising officers under the Franchise Bill, was continued. Mr. Davies proposed an amendment that these officers should hold sittings for preliminary revision in different places in the riding—in each municipality. Though Sir John declared yesterday that the clause as proposed to be amended, must pass, he gave in to-day, and agreed to it in a modified form, and having broken the ice, several opposition amendments were assented to. The Opposition, by their dogged fight for the people, are forcing modifications of the crudest iniquities of the Franchise Bill. To-morrow being the feast of Corpus Christi, there will be no sitting of the House.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. F. C. Hyde, late of Toronto, Piano Tuner, is now residing in Peterboro'. Parties wishing to have their pianos and organs properly tuned should place their orders with Mr. Hyde. Orders may be left at D. Smart's Music Store, George Street, or an engagement may be made by note through the Post Office. Mr. Hyde has excellent recommendations and we feel sure all orders entrusted to his care will be satisfactorily executed. d1-w.

Ballooce Congressmen.

The scrimmage in the House of Representatives early on Saturday morning, February 9, 1858, was an exciting affair as seen from the reporters' gallery. It was inaugurated by Keitt, of South Carolina, who rushed belligerently at Grow, of Pennsylvania, when he received—not from Grow, however—a blow that knocked him down. A dozen Southern men at once left their seats and rushed to the spot, while as many anti-Lecompton men came to the rescue. Foremost came Mr. Potter, of Wisconsin, a very athletic, compact man, who bounded into the center of the excited group, striking right and left with tremendous vigor. Washburne, of Illinois, and his brother of Wisconsin, also were prominent, and for a minute or two it seemed as though we were to have a Kilkenny fight on a magnificent scale. Barksdale had hold of Grow, when Potter struck him a severe blow, supposing that he was hurting that gentleman. Barksdale, turning around and supposing it was Elihu Washburne who struck him, dropped Grow and struck out at the gentleman from Illinois. Cadwallader Washburne, perceiving the attack upon his brother, also made a dash at Mr. Barksdale, and seized him by the hair, apparently for the purpose of drawing him "into chancery" and pummeling him to greater satisfaction. Horrible to relate, Mr. Barksdale's wig came off in Cadwallader's left hand, and his right fist expended itself with tremendous force against the unresisting air. This ludicrous incident unquestionably did much toward restoring good nature subsequently, and its effect was heightened not a little by the fact that in the excitement of the occasion Barksdale restored his wig wrong side foremost.

The Speaker yelled and rapped for order, without effect. The Sergeant-at Arms stalked to the scene of battle, mace in hand, but his "American eagle" had no more effect than the Speaker's gavel. Owen Lovejoy and Lamar, of Mississippi, were pawing each other at one point—each probably trying to persuade the other to be still. Mr. Mott, the gray-haired Quaker Representative from Ohio, was seen going here and there in the crowd. Davis, of Mississippi, got a severe, but accidental, blow from Mr. Grow, and various gentlemen sustained slight bruises and scratches. A Virginia Representative, who thought Montgomery, of Pennsylvania, was about to "pitch in," laid his hand upon his arm to restrain him, and was peremptorally ordered to desist or be knocked down. Mr. Covode, of Pennsylvania, caught up a heavy stoneware spittoon, with which to "brain" whoever might seem to deserve it, but, fortunately, did not get far enough into the excited crowd to find an appropriate subject for his vengeance, and all over the hall everybody was excited for the time.

Fortunately, it did not last long, and no weapons were openly displayed. When order was restored, several gentlemen were found to present an excessively tumbled and disordered appearance, but there remained little else to recall the excitement. Gentlemen of opposite parties crossed over to each other to explain their pacific dispositions, and that they got into a fight where their only purpose was to prevent a fight. Mutual explanations and a hearty laugh at the ludicrous points of the drama were followed by quiet and a return to business.—Ben: Perley Poore's Recollections.

A Bad Subject.

Col. Mateland was recently appointed agent of a well-known life-insurance company. The high standing of the Colonel and his excellent qualifications as a business-man immediately secured for him a remunerative run of business. The other day, while sitting in his office, a healthy-looking man entered and said that he would like to have his life insured. "I am in something of a hurry," said he, "for my friends are waiting for me there at the door. I want a $10,000 policy."

The company's physician, who was present, pronounced him sound, and the policy was soon made out. Several days later a man met the Colonel in the street and said:

"What business did young Blumus have with you the other day?"

"Had his life insured."

"And you insured it?"

"Of course. Why shouldn't I? He is in good health."

"But I believe he will die suddenly."

"We have an eminent physician to decide upon such possibilities. What makes you think that he will die suddenly?"

"O, it's nothing to me, Colonel. If your physician knows, all right. The young fellow requested that he be allowed to go out and settle up his private affairs and the Judge granted it."

"The Judge!" gasped the Colonel.

"Yes, the Circuit Judge. You see the young fellow is to be hanged next Friday."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Saved by His Sister.

A pretty and pathetic scene might have been witnessed in a New York court last week. A lad arrested for stealing a violin was being arraigned for trial when a pretty young lady bounded across the room and clasped him in her arms, both bursting into tears. They kissed and embraced each other fervently, the tableau bringing tears to the eyes of even the judge. Turning to him, she said: "Judge, I am this young man's sister. We are two orphans. Mother is dead, and, for all the good he is to us, father might as well be dead too. That boy there is my only care in the world, and he is a good boy, too. If he yielded to temptation it wasn't because he is wicked or weak, but because necessity drove him to it. He's not a thief, and never can become one unless you make it impossible for him to be an honest man by putting the brand of Cain on his life. Release him, and you have a sister's guaranty that he will repay your leniency by leading an honorable career." The eloquent pleading secured the boy's release, and both went away rejoicing.

A life of money getting is always a failure, because you will never get as much as you want. The poorest people in this country are the millionaires, and next to them those who have $500,000.—San Antonio Light.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

or,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The Leaden Casket," "Thorncroft's Model," &c. &c

The stranger was silent. Philip thought he was trying to discover Fort Solidor in the darkness. The boat touched the pier, and then, with renewed thanks, the stranger sprang ashore.

"We shall see you to-morrow," cried Philip, cheerily. "Good-night!"

"Philip!" cried Lettice on his return, "that is, without exception, the most delightful man I ever saw in my life!—after you, dear, of course!"

"He is not a bad fellow," replied that gentleman, carelessly. "I wonder who he is?"

"Yes," said Lettice; "isn't it odd to be together for so many hours as we have been, and not have an idea of each other's names! He knows that I am Lettice something or other, and that Lucy is Lucy something else, and so on, but that is all—you exchanged cards in the boat, I suppose!"

"No, we did not. I forgot—but he knows more than you seem to think, for the moment he found out that the yacht had been Mr. Kenrick's, he seemed to know all about him, and asked some questions. He knows that Lucy's name is Clavering, and was Ilderton."

"That is not fair!" cried Lettice. "He must tell us his name at once. I will ask him what it is to-morrow."

"He won't come to-morrow, if he knows my name," said Lucy. "I am sure he won't—and I can tell you his now. It is Hugh Richmond!"

CHAPTER IX.

Lucy was right. Mr. Richmond did not come next day. About eleven o'clock a shore boat came alongside, and a note was handed in to Mr. Mostyn, whose name, too, had ceased to be a secret. "I am sorry to fail in my engagement, but as a friend with whom I am traveling has summoned me to rejoin him at once at Quimperle, I am afraid I shall not return to St. Malo.—I thank you again for your kindness and courtesy, and remain, yours faithfully, HUGH RICHMOND."

"And not one word about me," cried Lettice, who really need not have expected to be specially remembered. Lucy said nothing. She had known he would not come. She went and sat on deck, and did not speak unless spoken to, for some hours. Of what was she thinking? She kept her thoughts to herself. Mrs. Mostyn did not. She would proclaim discoveries and ask questions. "He was thinking of Calderwater, I suppose, when he said there was one place he would have liked to have!"

"I know dear. I knew then."

"How could you know then? Did you see his name marked on his handkerchief!"

"I saw his drawings. No one paints as he does."

"And did you see how he hung his head when Aunt Esther spoke with such vexation about your losing your brooch, and said so much about family relics. I suppose that he was thinking of his family jewels."

"Hush Lettice—please do. I cannot bear it."

"Lucy, don't sit dolefully there. Get to your painting."

"I can't. I don't want to paint."

"What do you want!"

"Not to have to talk."

After that Lettice left her in peace.

Next day they were to go to Dinan; at the last moment Lucy said she would not accompany them. She had kept her intended desertion secret, lest Aunt Esther or Lettice should insist on staying at home with her. Her greatest wish was to be left alone. She wanted to think. They asked her questions and worried her.—She wished for solitude.

"You will be so dull if we leave you," said Lettice. "Philip, we ought not to leave her."

"Perhaps she wants to be left," replied he; and Lucy looked up gratefully as he said it.

"I do," she answered. "Take me with you, and I should be cross and tired; stay with me and you will distress me; leave me alone, and you will, when you come back, find me all right, and much the better for a day's rest.

"I wish she had not seen that young Richmond," said Lettice. "I was sure she would be very much out by meeting him. You see she insists on believing that she has taken all his property from him. I

The Art of Cracking Hickory Nuts.

"I understand that there is quite a science in cracking nuts?"

"There certainly is, and there is some difference of opinion as to the best method of doing it. I got my experience in this business when I was a boy in Westchester Co., N. Y. I guess that there are more crack hickory nut crackers in that section than anywhere else. Thirty or forty years ago the folks had nut-cracking matches up here. While sitting around a big fire in a farmhouse kitchen they cracked the nuts, eating the meats with apples and cider. They threw the shells in the fire. The shells burn very briskly, and when they are charred glow like rubies. Lots of queer stories are told about the old hickory nut time. When I was a boy my mother, who was born in Westchester County, told me about an old man who lived in a little house in the woods, and who during the whole winter sat by the fire and cracked and ate nuts. He cracked so many nuts, they say, that he required no other fuel than the shells to keep the fire going. I can't swear that he did not use any other fuel but the nut-shells, but there is no doubt about his having existed, for my mother often saw his house."

"What do you think the best way?"

"The one that was always the easiest for me was to take a hammer and a nice round cobble stone. These secured, you take hold of the nut between the thumb and forefinger of the left hand and rest the side of the nut on the surface of the stone. Hold the nut firmly, and then give it a sharp blow with the hammer. If you hold the nut right and strike it right the kernel will come out in two pieces. Some persons prefer a block of hard wood to stone, and some use a flat iron."—Cincinnati Journal.

When Two Sharpers Meet.

A Buffalo man while in New York recently descended from the elevated road station at Chatham Square. As he did so he stopped for a minute and gazed around to get his bearings. A bright, spruce young man of pleasing appearance stepped up to him and said: "Why, how are you? It's a long time since I've seen you."

The Buffalonian, who is a lawyer, sized the young man up and acknowledged, with about a ton of ice in his manner, that it was a long time.

"You don't seem to recognize me," said the sharper.

"No, I don't" was the reply.

"I am with Benedict Bros., you know?"

"Oh, and what is their business?"

"Dealers in cutlery."

"H'm, yes; well, why don't you attend to their business?"

The sharper thought he would, and he did.—Buffalo Express.

Folly Shots.

"I suppose you have heard of our dudes, Miss Clarwa?" observed a New York swell to a Jacksonville girl.

"Oh, yes," she answered, "they are becoming very popular in Florida. We use them for alligator bait."

There is said to be quite a remarkable exodus of American travelers to Bermuda this season. The intelligenc will hardly occasion any surprise. The announcement of heavy shipments of American bonded whisky to Bermuda was made public some time ago.

A Boston man who had his nose smashed over his face during a personal unpleasantness in a Chicago bar-room was told by the doctor that it was a simple case of molecular disintegration.

"Thank you," he said; "I feel better already, that sounds so much like home."

One night about a fortnight ago there was a row in a drinking saloon near the State House at Albany. A stranger passing at the time asked a policeman the occasion of the disturbance.

"Oh, nothing in particular," said the cop; "the Legislature is holding an evening session."

A gentleman, recently returned from California, who was relating the result of his observations out there, stated that Chinese laundrymen used sticks in cleaning clothes.

"That's it," exclaimed an Irishman present, "they take a shtick to the clothes and schare the dhirt out av thim."

A Massachusetts editor, having been ailing for some time, was finally persuaded to summon a physician. The doctor made a careful examination and then questioned the invalid closely with the view of ascertaining whether an cause of mental anxiety or excitement existed. Having reached a conclusion as to the actual origin of the difficulty, he told the sufferer that he didn't think medicine would do him any good.

"You don't think the case a dangerous one, do you?" asked the patient with an expression of no little alarm.

"Troublesome, but not dangerous," said the doctor. "You will get well as soon as Governor Butler dies or resigns."

A young lady in Washington, the daughter of a would be candidate for the Presidency, having fallen in love with a Treasury clerk, declared her purpose of marrying him notwithstanding the fact that his salary was but $1,000 a year. Her father remonstrated with her, saying:

"One thousand dollars a year is a small capital to expect much comfort from." She replied snappishly:

"I know a smaller capital that supports much bigger expectations, and after the next National Convention you'll think so too." The old man said nothing until he had got out of the room and then he muttered: "If you want to spoil a good woman teach her politics."

A recent Spring poem managed to find its way into print through the favor of the publishing department because the poet happened to be an advertising patron of the paper. In one of the stanzas the author thus alluded to the object of his heart's affection:

"I love to watch the frolic
Of the dimples on her cheek."

The editor had his revenge when, in consequence of a mistake of the printer, the lines as published read:

"I love to watch the frolic
Of the pimples on her cheek."

There is a kind providence that always prevents the business department of a newspaper from getting the bulge on the editorial top-heavy.

Down With the Dust!

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hasmeresmen Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely and was passing out the door, when the Smith in peremptory tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smith handed him a hammer and a nail. "Bai," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to dae wi' these, Deacon?" "Why," replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail yer thanks there and pay me saxpence."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

USE THE TELEPHONE.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

ALL AROUND TOWN.

Men for the Mills.

To-day Mr. T. Cavanagh, sent ten men to work in Messrs. Campbell & Hewson's Musquash Mills, Muskoka.

Not In Yet.

The signal corps of the 57th Batallion are anxiously waiting for the missing consignment of their field accoutrements. It is the intention of the corps to proceed to Mr. Sherwood's hill the first evening after their arrival.

Miss Errett's Concert

given at Norwood last evening was a decided success, the various pieces given being very much appreciated. The chorus "Away on the Billows Gay" by the Glee Club was particularly well rendered and reflected great credit on Miss Errett as a musical director. The various songs, duets, and musical solos were given in a manner which drew forth considerable applause from the audience, by Misses. Cook, Butterfield, Carmichal, Nicoll, Stephenson, Brennan, Duffield, Hammond (Peterborough) and Wright. The recitation given by Mr. Sailsbury was the treato fthe evening and added another jewel to that gentleman's well dotted crown.

Police Court.

This morning again there was a clean slate at the police court. We don't know why. Perhaps it is because of the Salvation Army widening the area of parade, or perhaps it is due to the deterrent quality of justice dealt out at the justice mill by the magistrate to "bummers" and that class of offenders, or again, it may be due to the fact that the "hoodlums" who affect open air sleeping, receive such pointed attention from the mosquitoes that they use the stray whiskey that comes in their way as an emolient for their wounds, instead of swallowing it to corrupt the coats of their stomachs and their conduct.

Professional Pride.

A curious illustration of intensity even a minister's professional amour propre is furnished by the Riel rebellion of 1870. As is well known, Mr., now Major Boulton, commander of scouts, formerly of Lakefield, was sentenced to death by Riel, and a minister had prepared him to meet death in a Christian manner, and through strenuous exertions a pardon was secured for Boulton. When the minister heard the news he exclaimed in a tone half tinged with regret at his lost labor:—"Not to be shot!" said the reverend gentleman. "Dear me! He was well prepared for death. The young man will never be in a better state to die. Dear me! Not to be shot. Well, well, it's a fortunate escape."

Warsaw's Wedding Bells.

On Wednesday, June 3rd, a very happy event took place at the residence of Mr. Washington Reid, Warsaw, when Miss Julia Reid, his daughter, was united in marriage to Mr. J. E. Thomson, merchant of Port Elgin, county of Bruce, Ont. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. F. Torrance, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Peterborough. The groom was ably assisted by his brother, Mr. G. Thomson, and the bride was accompanied to the happy union by three attendants; the young ladies who performed the functions of bridesmaids being Misses Rose, Wasson and Cook. After the conclusion of the marriage, all sat down to a beautiful and sumptious repast, and it is not necessary to say that full justice was done to the display. The wedding presents were numerous and costly, which is evidence of the respect and good wishes entertained for the parties concerned.

MANUFACTURING MATTERS

The New Boom Begun.

It is conceded on all hands, and we have previously said repeatedly pointed it out, that Peterborough's marvellous growth and progress needs the extensive establishment of manufactures to maintain it in the position it has assumed, and to improve upon it. Now that the lumbering and timber industry, owing to lack of raw material, has largely lost its importance as a factor in the growth of the town, manufacturing industries that will utilize the unlimited resources of water power, we possess, are absolutely necessary. The last year has witnessed gratifying progress in the introduction of new manufacturing establishments.

AMONG THE MOST IMPORTANT

of these is the Lock Works, now in operation, and in course of expansion as rapidly as the new buildings needed can be run up. The Powell & Jones to be established on Bethune street, are an assured thing. These two will result in the addition of something like 300 persons, not counting women and children, in the person of artizans, mechanics and laborers, to the population of the town. Besides, the erection of the buildings, will give employment to those of our local laborers and mechanics, who are not employed in the course of the extensive building operations going on in in town this year. On Thursday evening the Town Council did a wise thing in reference to the promotion of manufacturing enterprise by liberally dealing with the remission of taxes on new establishments, which are to receive an important addition in the

STOVE WORKS,

ENTERPRISING PROPOSAL

entertained by the Dickson Estate Company. It is hardly proper to use the word proposal for the undertaking is definitely decided on, only matters of detail being left for consideration. The plan decided on is to erect on the Peterborough side of the river, north of Hunter street, on Dickson's race, a large about one hundred and fifty feet in length, completely equipped with water power. The object is to put up the buildings in such a manner that they will answer for the use of any different kinds of manufacturing industries that can be induced to employ them. Thus under one roof half a dozen kinds of factories will constituting a busy hive of workmen and operatives, will lend its quota to the large hum of industry that will hereafter, we firmly believe, dustinguish the town of Peterborough as one of the foremost manufacturing centres of the Dominion.

Cricket.

The Peterboroughs go to Lakefield tomorrow to participate in the match arranged to take place between the East and West Ridings.

Lacrosse.

The lacrosse match has been arranged with Beaverton and will take place on June 23rd. The first championship match of the season.

Prob.'s Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from one a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Moderate to fresh winds; cloudy and showery, followed by partially clearing weather.

University of Toronto.

The following undergraduates were successful in passing their respective examinations at the above university. We congratulate them on the honors they have carried off, Arts—J. L. Gilmour and W. Sanderson; 3rd year—J. D. Graham, J. A. Fife, and A. F. Chamberlain; 2nd year—Miss C. Fair and G. A. H. Scott. Law—2nd year—E. A. Peck.

Baseball.

W. Dayman, Secretary of the Silver Star Baseball Club, recently received challenges from the Uxbridge Club, as well as from the Atlantics, of Toronto. Both these clubs are first-class wielders of the bat, and should a match take place in Peterborough no doubt it will attract a large crowd of spectators. We understand that efforts are being made to have the latter club play in this town on Dominion Day.

Progressive Peterborough.

Day after day Peterborough is advancing and making rapid strides to attain the statues of "city." One is struck with admiration at the wonderful progress that is being made in the building of private residences in any part of the town that a person chooses to patronize as a place to pass the time by taking a quiet and leisurely stroll. Number one ward is holding up its end of the load in the building line. South of Lake street one would hardly believe that the locality of the place is not changed; brick and frame houses already line the newly-made street, and prospects of a continuance of building is proved by the consignments of lumber drawn to that quarter of the town every day.

Pat Caught in his Tracks.

This morning the argus-eyed janitor of the central school noticed Pat O'Neil and young Sweeney, two bare-footed delegates, throwing stones into the play grounds of the school children. The janitor gave chase and managed to catch Pat and turn him over to the constable, who turned him into—Hotel de rats. Sweeney made good his escape, but as a warrant is issued for that worthy, it is very likely that to-morrow the pair will be taught a lesson that throwing stones may be fun for the boys but death to the children. Pat had been licked by a red-headed youth half his size this morning at Fairweather's corner, and wanted satisfaction on general principles, and like the typical Irishman, wanted to hit wherever he saw a head.

KIND RECEPTION.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I regret to see that an old volunteer, who should know better, suggests the striking of a medal for the Midland Battalion. We, one and all, delight to honour them, but let us not make "a mountain out of a mole-hill." A medal suggests the idea of Inkermann, of Waterloo, and I am sure any man who aims at "great things" would much dislike to give particulars of the battle for which his battalion received this decoration. Let a reception and kind treatment be accorded instead of medals.

Yours &c.,

A Lengthy Examination.

Mr. Wigg, the defendant in the important suit of Ross vs Wigg, has been under preliminary examination at Mr. Weller's office for two days. The plaintiff Hon. J. C. Ross, of Quebec, is expected in town shortly, also to undergo examination. The case will probably be tried in Peterborough.

Shipment of Horses.

To-day Mr. T. Cavanagh, whose efforts to prevent the accumulation of a surplus supply of horse flesh in this vicinity, meets with great success, shipped a car load of fine horses to Quintelle of Montreal. They were purchased from Messrs. A. Elliot, Dr. Halliday of Peterborough, J. McCarthy and other farmers throughout the country. More are to follow.

A Complaint.

A gentleman living in the western part of the town complained at this office this morning that a number of boys were in the habit of congregating every evening at the corner of Cedar and Brock streets and interfering with the residents of the vicinity by impeding the sidewalks. Our policemen cannot be expected to be every place at once, but they should enjoy some of the suburban air occasionally.

Had to Swim for It.

Last night three rivermen, engaged on the drive now passing down the river, were nearing the dam north of the Otonabee bridge, and were not aware that immediately below it a considerable jam of logs had accumulated. The boat in which they were sailing, though of the strongest make used on the rivers in connection with drives, was dashed to atoms as it flew over the small cataract, and subjected the sailors to a thorough drenching.

PERSONAL.

Rev. J. M. Goodwillie, of Newmarket, Presbyterian minister, was in town this morning on his way to Lakefield, where he occupies the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church to-morrow.

Borough Brevities.

—Large shipments of freight continue to go east on the C.P.R., every day.

—The Saved Army held a very large open air service last night on the Market Square.

—Lieut. McKoyo, of Cobourg, assisted at the Saved Army meeting last night.

—A match between the Peterborough and Lindsay baseball clubs is announced at the R. C. pic-nic, Bobcaygeon, on June 10th.

The town escaped this morning, though there was a sharp frost in Enniemore the theremometer falling to 38°

Farmers say that potatoes will rise in price, the potato bug's operations promising to make the crop of the coming season very modest.

The persistent potato bug has again recovered so as to be able to be about the streets. His appearance indicates that his appetite for the foliage of the solanum tuberosum is up to the standard voracity.

—Gen. Lindsay, Capt. Wyatt, Lieut. Galloway (a lady officer), from Colborne, will conduct the meetings to-night and Sunday. There have been several sacred songs practised for to-morrow night.

The Dance is Done.

Mr. Ed. Brown has concluded to politely, but decidedly decline to permit the dancing of any more waltzes at the Lansdowne Roller Skating Rink.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meteorological office:—Lakes, moderate winds, fair, warm weather.

Fair and Foul.

Dr. J. Clark, our Medical Health Inspector, and P. C. Adams, were around yesterday inspecting the various slaughter houses and different school wells. They report some of them as being in a very fair condition, and others the very opposite, and have given the necessary instructions, which, if not carried out, will lead the parties to the beak.

Explanatory.

Referring to a communication on High School matters, on fourth page, it may be said that after it was in type Dr. Tassie has, upon inquiry, informed us that he is not aware, of his own knowledge, that such suggestions as indicated therein have been made to pupils. It is not, he states, his wish or intention to "cram" any pupils at the expense of those who are not going up for matriculation.

The Other View.

The Post says in reference to the explanations made in the EXAMINER:—"Not only did Lindsay players withdraw their claim for expenses, but offered to play and pay their own expenses. The Peterborough club backed out altogether. The base ballists should learn from the Peterborough Curling Club how to conduct business and keep engagements." The Post is apparently not posted.

Sunday School Institute.

The following is the programme of the proceedings of the Sunday school institute to be held in the lecture room of St. Paul's church on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next, by Rev. J. McEwen, Secretary of the Provincial Sunday School Association:

(1.) "The Sunday School Teacher's working plan of the English Bible."

(2.) "God's Educational Method of Giving the Bible."

(3.) "The Bible Lines of the Presentation and propogation of the Truth."

(4.) The vital steps in the Approach, the Process and Product of Teaching a Sunday School Lesson."

The Mendelssohn Concert.

A Most Pronounced Success.

The concert given last evening in Bradbuen's Opera House, in aid of the building fund of St. Andrew's Church, was in every way a pronounced success. Every seat in the dress circle was engaged yesterday morning, and shortly before eight o'clock there was not a seat to be had in the back part of the hall, many having to fly to the temple of "the gods"—the gallery.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the Quintette Club, after arranging their positions, began the musical feast by their first number, Quintette in A. op. 18, Mendelssohn, which seemed to be a surprise to the audience, who rapturously applauded the performance. The next piece "Ah Fors e Lui," from Verdis opera of "LaTraviata," was sung by Madame Cora Giese, of whose singing it is enough to say that she seemed to take the audience at once captive by the rich silvery tones of her voice in the opening notes of her number.

Mr. Thomas Ryan played a "Fantasie" on the clarinette and seemed to produce boundless enthusiasm in the audience; he also played inspecial request before the last number "A Little Romance," and received applause which was most gracefully acknowledged.

It is not necessary to further detail the numbers given by the club; suffice it to say that the audience seemed "carried away" with the brilliancy and perfection of the "divine harmonies" produced by the instrumentalists, whether in solo, with the soft, elfin accompaniment, or in the concerted pieces. Particular mention, however, may be made of the 7th number, fantaisie for the violoncello, by Mr. Fritz Giese, which was an exceedingly finished piece of execution; both his bowing and his marvellous digital manipulation brought out the lights and shades of his selection—from "La Fille du Regiment"—in a manner to elicit the warmest approval. On the whole the entertainment was a most brilliant success in every way. The committees of St. Andrew's church, who had the local management of the entertainment, deserve both the thanks of the public for presenting such a rich intellectual luxury, and of St. Andrew's for the immense attendance which their personal energy and judicious use of printer's ink contributed to bring together, resulting in a substantial addition to the building fund of the church.

Big and Little Wheels.

On next Thursday evening Mr. Ed. Brown the popular manager of the Lansdowne roller rink, is to have J. Hurst, the champion Bicyclist of Canada, give an exhibition in the art of the bike on the large and spacious floor; besides this he intends presenting a beautiful medal to the winner of a mile race in which eight starters must toe the scratch. This rink is increasing in popularity day after day and makes the stranger entering our town think that he has struck the Musical Pavilion of "Coney Isle."

Come to Stay.

The enterprise of Mr. Stratton, of Peterborough, in issuing a daily as well as a weekly edition of THE EXAMINER is reasonably sure of reward. Peterborough has become such an important centre that it can now easily sustain a Liberal daily paper. THE DAILY EXAMINER, of which several numbers have been received, presents the neat and tasty typographical appearance that has characterized the weekly. Its matter is well written and well condensed, and the tone of the paper throughout is unexceptionable. Altogether THE DAILY EXAMINER looks as though it were come to stay, and as though it would occupy the same relative position in Peterborough as the Liberal press occupies throughout Ontario.—Toronto Daily Globe.

OMEMEE.

On Tuesday morning last the barns and outbuildings of Mr. A. Wilson, who lives near Cowan's bridge, were destroyed by fire together with the greater portion of the contents. How the fire originated is a mystery. Mr. Wilson's loss will be heavy, although it is partly covered by insurance.—Herald.

BLESSINGS OF PEACE.

A London cablegram says that the general public in England seem to place the most implicit confidence in Mr. Gladstone's statements that peace is assured. Under the prospect held out by this assurance a general and manifest improvement is going on in the industries of the country. All the building and transportation trades are busy. Farm laborers are in demand both at home and in the colonies. The emigration returns even show a preceptible decline.

Latest from the North-West.

NO NEWS FROM THE FRONT,

General Middleton Supposed to be Still on the Hunt.

WINNIPEG, June 5.—Riel's brother Joseph has started for Battoche to befriend the former's family.

Archbishop Tache is about leaving for Montreal.

It is said a dozen sufferers by the rebellion held a meeting the other day and took a vow that the arch-rebel should never leave the country alive. They will have emissaries to closely watch the trial and keep close track of Riel's subsequent movements.

According to report Gen. Middleton has urged the abolition of the mounted police force, as utterly useless. It is certain a radical change in the officers will be made, Col. Herchmer probably being placed in command.

Chief Piapot witnessed a review of the Montreal artillery at Regina and was duly impressed.

Riel continues in good spirits and shows no sign of insanity.

The telegraphic line between Battleford and Clarke's Crossing is still in trouble.

Stories have been received of great suffering among the half-breeds and ill-usage by the troops.

Bay of Quinte Conference.

A public temperance meeting was held on Wednesday evening in the Brown street Methodist church, Port Hope, at which vigorous speeches were made condemning the Senate's insolvnt interference with the Scott Act, and eulogising the Globe for the bold stand it has taken in favour of the temperance cause.

Parliamentary Summary.

FRIDAY, JUNE 5th.

Petitions for and against the Senate amendments of the Scott Act and against the Franchise Bill keep up a regular flow. The House went into Committee on the Franchise Bill and passed one clause up to 6 o'clock and resumed in Committee in the evening. The House will be asked to vote a sum for a monument to Canadian volunteers who fell in the Northwest.

MAY JOTTINGS.

Again I have to record another cold and disagreeable month for outdoor work. The first few days, although of low temperature, was dry, followed by a severe snow storm lasting part of two days, afterward with snow or rain occasionally to the 11th, when we received our last shot of winter by a sharp shower of rain on the 16th and 17th, with fine weather, the thermometer standing at 85° in the shade at 3 p. m., and again on the 21st rising to 88°. We had our first thunder storm on the 19th, but little rain falling in this section of the country. Rain fell on nine days to the depth of 1 inch and 91-100 of an inch; snow fell on six days to the depth of three inches and 8-10 of an inch, the rain being below and the snow above the average—while the mean temperature of the month at sun-rise and sun-set was 51° and 4-31°. We had a slight frost on the morning of the 28th. The following is the number of days at sun-set and sun-rise with the wind blowing from the respective points: Southwest 5 days, north 3 days, northwest 2 days, south 9 days, southeast 4 days, west 2 days, east 6 days. First swallow made its appearance on the 5th, whippoorwills on the 22nd, musquito hawks on the 17th, and cat birds on the 29th.

THOS. TELFORD.

LINDSAY.

Mr. D. J. McIntyre, M.P.P., in driving to town Sunday morning, after the death of his mother at Manilla elsewhere referred to, got wet and chilled, and next day at Manilla was quite ill. He was for a time in fact in a critical condition, but with prompt and careful treatment recovered. He was unable, however, to attend the funeral.

Mr. H. L. Dunn, B. A., of the high school staff, Lindsay, has, we believe, resigned his position and will commence the study of law.—Post.

BOBCAYGEON.

Many of the village folk drove out to the Scotch Line, on Sunday, to witness the baptism of some twelve persons by total immersion. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. McGreggor, the Baptist Minister, and took place on the shore of Sturgeon Lake.

The Pigeon Creek bridge though passable, is in a most dangerous condition. At one place if a horse shies, nothing can prevent the rig from going into the lake. On Tuesday night, two gentlemen had a very narrow escape. Peterborough should make it safe, and then settle with Victoria. It is a shame that while the two counties are quarrelling over their liability, public life should be jeopardised.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The general assembly of the Presbyterian church of Canada will open its sessions in the Crescent street church, Montreal, next Tuesday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The retiring moderator, Dr. McLaren of Toronto, will preach, and constitute the court. Then will come the election of the new moderator and his inaugural address. The Witness says that the official mantle will, in all probability, fall this year upon the shoulders of the Rev. Principal McKnight, D.D., of Halifax, who has been nominated for the office by the college of ex-moderators.

THE TURKISH BATH.

Its Hygienic Effects—Opinions of Dr. Hammond.

Much of the literature on the subject of the Turkish bath owes its origin to those who are financially interested in the success of the baths. As such it is, of course, to be regarded with a certain degree of skepticism. In order to get the opinion of high and disinterested medical authority in the matter, Dr. William A. Hammond was called upon. In response to the question. "Is the Turkish bath always beneficial in its effects?" Dr. Hammond said: "The Turkish bath is generally beneficial to a person in good health. Always is a word which never occurs in a physician's vocabulary. Thus the layman might say that strawberries were always healthful, but the physician knows that the generally harmless strawberry when eaten by certain persons will produce a most violent eruption of the skin. I am justified in saying, then, that the Turkish bath is generally beneficial, although I have known cases in which a serious derangement of the body's functions had resulted from a single bath."

"In what cases are the baths most injurious?"

"In all cases where there is a tendency to heart disease. Men have died in the bath from the exhaustion of this trouble produced by it. No one should enter the hot room for the first time without having had his heart examined by a physician."

"Are you a patron of the Turkish bath?" was the next question.

"I used to frequent them," was the reply; "but of late have contented myself with a cold bath every morning. I find that the best both for health and cleanliness."

"Would you recommend that for a person of slight physique?" asked the reporter with a glance at the doctor's stalwart figure.

"I would recommend it for every one with whom it agrees. That is the test of common sense and medical science. If you remain blue and cold after a bath, don't take it again while in the same state of health. If, on the other hand, your system reacts, the effect is entirely beneficial. If you pin me down to generalization, I should say that the tepid bath is the most beneficial to the majority of people. The hot bath should never be taken in one's house."

When handed a long newspaper clipping in which it was laboriously proven that the curse of this age was a too free use of soap and water, the people of the temperate regions growing weak and short-lived under its application, while the natives of the North lived to a good old age, encased in the dirt and train oil, the doctor characterized it as "an elaborate argument built upon false premises."

"A person should wash once a day," he continued, "with soap; for without soap the skin will shed water like the Turkish bath should not be as frequent, owing to its weakening tendencies. It is preposterous to say that the inhabitants of the North outlive those of the South. The Esquimaux are a very short-lived ace, while the negroes are at the other extreme. Witness the number of colored nurses who dandled the Father of his Country upon their knee and still live to tell the tale."—New York Tribune.

Monotony of American Men.

A visitor from the new world can not but be struck with the absolute independence with which Englishmen live up to their own ideas, whether they coincide with the general current of opinion or not. On the other side of the Atlantic public sentiment rules with almost irresistible force; no erratic departures from the general law are tolerated; every man must conform to the rules of the majority. If you know one young man in the United States you know them all. They resemble each other with curious fidelity in dress, manner, and appearance. Their very thoughts, racy and original as they are, run in the same groove, and they give expression to them in the same crystallized forms of speech. This iron rule does not prevail to nearly so great an extent in Canada, but it exists with sufficient force to make the independence of the individual Englishman marked even to a Canadian. The old Indian generals who affect eastern modes of life in misty England, the retired sea captains whose talk is ever in nautical phrases of nautical matters, and other riders of hobbies innumerable, who have furnished materials to many authors, and amusement to many generations of readers, abound in England and help to render the land picturesque and attractive.

All these harmless and amusing eccentricities are almost ruled down into a dead level of monotonous uniformity in the new world. Perhaps I should except New York from this general statement. This, the greatest city in America, is the most cosmopolitan in its character. Men of all nationalities go to make up its vast population; it is less distinctly American than Philadelphia or Boston. Its young men, whether intentionally or not, closely resemble young Englishmen; indeed, all classes exhibit their own peculiarities uninfluenced by the repressing tyranny of general habits or opinions.—Cassel's Family Magazine.

Would not be Insulted.

Street car No. 6 going up Austin Avenue one day last week contained but a solitary male passenger. Having exhausted the beauties of the scenery from the car window, he finally entered into conversation with the driver.

"What do you think?" he inquired; "a man called me a dude this morning."

"A dude! What did you pulverise him with?" asked the driver.

"Me!" replied the man, "O, I only laughed at him."

"Only laughed at him!" exclaimed the driver, excitedly. "I'd shot him down like a dog. I'll tell you what 'tis, sir, no man could east any such reflection as that on me and live."

"No," said Brown to Robinson with a sigh, "I haven't got change for a five, but I should like to have a five for a change."

"What do you think of my mustache?" asked a young man of his girl. "Oh, it reminds me of a Western frontier city," was the answer. "In what respect, pray?" "Because the survey is large enough, but the settlers are straggling."

A clergyman in an enterprising Western town does much of his parochial visiting by means of the telephone. But he is concerned to see that many of his parishioners go to church by telephone—at least they do not go in bodily form.

Is that young man on the corner, with two girls on his arms, from the country? He is. Is he looking for the Common? He is; but those girls are looking for an ice-cream saloon. Will they find one? They will, or that young man will go home alone.

A dressmaker recommended that a shirring be put upon some portion of Dot's new dress. "Mamma," said Dot, "what is a shirring?" "Well, my child, a shirring is—is—a gathering." "Oh, yes, mamma; I had a shirring in my ear last Winter."

A young woman in New York State has been killed by attempting to talk through a telephone during a thunderstorm. Tragic: "Was it a small, white, curdog, with a blue ribbon round his neck, yer was lookin' for, Miss?" "Yes, gasped the young lady in anxious suspense. "Well, Jack Adams' Newfoundland purp, he's a-gone and swallered him." They carried her into the nearest drug store.

"Johnny," said the schoolmistress, "you have been a very naughty boy. Now go and stand in the corner with your face to the wall until I tell you you may go to your seat." "Please marm," said Johnny, "if I turn my face to the wall I'll have to turn my back to you and the scholars. Won't that be rude?"

The maiden's point of view: Mamma (to Maude, who has been with her brother to the play and is full of it)—"But was there no love in the piece, then?" Maude—"Love? Oh, dear, no, mamma. How could there be? The principal characters were husband and wife, you know."—London Punch.

A man who had thumped his wife until she died of a broken heart sought to deceive his friends by having an excellent photograph of her copied in oil colors and exhibiting it as a proof of his love and fidelity. TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 6.]

Charles Heavysege.

"Poetry is itself a thing of God;
He made His prophets poets; and the more
We feel of poesie do we become Like God in love and power—under makers."
—Bailey's Festus.

The materials for any details regarding the life of Charles Heavysege are very meagre and disappointing. His muse is now silent and he himself has passed over to the great majority. His is another sad case where true merit and genius met with little or no appreciation in his adopted country, the land, indeed, where his talents first became fully developed. Though not a native of Canada, it was here he first learned to woo the muse of song and he steadily worked his way up from a very humble position to that of a regular contributor to the press and a poet of no mean order. He was born in Liverpool, England, on the 2nd of May, 1816. In 1853 he emigrated to Canada, hoping in our free country to gain that distinction and renown from which he felt himself shut out in the more crowded literary and select circles of the Old World. He took up his abode in Montreal and here as a common mechanic unnoticed and unknown, he toiled for daily bread. The time he could catch from hard [illegible] during the very period when he was most assiduously employed in the workshop, he produced his wonderful drama of "Saul." Like many another work of great merit, the book fell dead from the press. Booksellers were afraid to touch a drama of ten thousand lines in length, divided into three parts of fifteen acts, especially when the work was the offspring of a Canadian. Reviewers were sparing also in their approval, most of them merely alluding to the work as a long poem in blank verse.

It was reserved to the North British Review, and to the quaint, yet clear-sighted genius of Nathaniel Hawthorne to discover the high order of genius which had produced the drama, and he spoke of it in no measured terms of approval. The drama was published in 1857, and the Review said: "The work is undoubtedly one of the most remarkable English poems ever written out of Great Britain. The subject has been treated with a poetical power and a depth of psychological knowledge which are often quite startling. The poet proves that he knows two things, viz., the Bible and human nature, and a poet cannot be said to be really uneducated who knows these well. Shakespeare he also knows far better than most men know him, for he has discerned and adopted his method as no other dramatist has done."

Since that time Heavysege has been admitted to be a man of genius, and he has added to his laurels by publishing "Count Filippo, or The Unequal Marriage," a drama in five acts, and "Jephthah's Daughter." The London Athenæum, after quoting largely from the latter, said: "There is great art in the development of the daughter's feelings from her first natural terror of death to the hallowed resignation with which she finally prepares for it, still casting a sad submissive glance on the fair world she quits. The character of Jephthah's daughter displays both imagination and feeling."

Mr. Heavysege published a volume of sonnets later on in his career, and also a novel in 1865, entitled, "The Advocate." On the occasion of the tercentenary celebration of the birth of Shakespeare, held in Montreal, he wrote an ode in honor of the event which was received with great favor. He was for several years employed as reporter on the staff of the Montreal Witness and in that city his voice at last was hushed by the stern and icy touch of the last dread enemy of mankind.

As we have said, there are no materials for an exciting biography. There is an absence of any striking incidents. But there is the power of a single, earnest, considerate life. Bare though the history is, we cannot think of that modest, unassuming man, toiling away in the heart of a great city, with the one high purpose in his breast, consumed almost by the passion within him and struggling on to give his work to the world, we cannot, we say, consider the brief biography unmoved. Its simple modesty is more impressive than the noise of a public triumph. Its earnest worth and devotion are better than the glare and glitter that surround a public name. It is a life which speaks to us from the silence of retirement and it tells us to keep brave hearts when the clouds settle upon our lives, to work on with steadfast and unwavering hope, for if the work to which we are devoted is noble and good, and worthy of reward, the hour of triumph will one day assuredly come, and with it the due reward of perseverance and patient waiting. The life of Charles Heavysege is certainly very creditable to our common humanity, and supplies another striking proof that genius can exalt itself and can lift its possessor to the highest niche of fame from any and all positions. Let the example of this studious mechanic not be lost in this our day. There is need to think of it. Pleasure, we fear, and not study, now-a-days, occupies the thoughts and spare hours of the great majority of working men. It is a pity that so few among the young men of the present day give themselves to intelligent study and the patient perusal of good serviceable books. It is said by many who have experience, that to find among the rising generation one devoted to study and literary work is a positive rarity. We fear this is too true and we cannot but deplore it.

In a future issue we shall supply our readers with a few specimens of what Heavysege has done in his drama of "Saul," and in his other productions, to prove his title to the name of poet, and to show the philosophic subtlety, and creative and imaginative power of his writings. What we have said here, will, we trust, direct more attention to his works among Canadians, and awaken a living interest in our native literature, for its own sake, and for the sake of the pioneers who strove to lay its foundations firm and strong.—So mote it be.

Prompt Action Called for.

The south part of the town is growing rapidly, and the park lots are being cut up into building lots and are rapidly being covered with houses. No provision has been made for cross streets, and the result will be that the entire portion lying between the driving park and Lake street will be cut up and sold, and when cross streets are opened, as inevitably they must be, a large price will have to be paid by the corporation to buy out people who may have placed their improvements on the lots required for streets. Would it not be well for a committee from the council to confer with the owners of these park lots and come to some arrangement now which may be beneficial to all concerned, and may save the town from heavy expenditure in the near future?

Editorial Notes.

The Ministerial Association of Lindsay have condemned utterly the wine and beer clauses thrust into the Scott Act by the Senate.

It is announced that Sir Alexander Campbell will be the next Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario. He has proven a failure as Government leader in the Senate.

Praise for the Canadian Contingent.

Their Value Vendicated.

His excellency, Lord Lansdowne, has received from Sir Garnet, General Wolseley, a letter acknowledging the services of the Canadian voyageurs. Among other things Gen. Wolseley says:

"With a few exceptions they have been thoroughly competent boatmen; they worked exceedingly well. They have undergone the hardships of this arduous campaign without the slightest grumbling or discontent; and they have on many occasions, shown not only great skill but also great courage in navigating their boats through difficulties and dangerous water. I must regret that in sodoing some of them should have fallen victims to the dangers they were attempting to overcome.

The officers, and especially Colonel Denison, have shown much energy and good will, and have proved themselves of considerable value.

I beg to ask that your lordship will have the goodness to convey the purport of this letter, both to the officers and men of the Canadian Voyageurs, and also to the authorities in Canada, certain unfounded statements having appeared in various papers, to the effect that their employment has been attended with unsatisfactory results.

I desire to place on record, not only my own opinion, but that of every officer connected with the direction and management of the boat columns, that the services of these voyageurs has been of the greatest possible value, and further, that their conduct throughtout has been excellent. They have earned for themselves a high reputation among the troops up the Nile."

THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

The New York Times shows a shrewd knowledge of Canadian Tory administration when it says that the present failure of Canada's Indian policy, ocatrasted with its past success, is due to the introduction of jobbery and the application of the spoils system to the management of the tribes. When the Mackenzie Government left office the Indians were peaceful, and an unarmed man could traverse the Territories from one coast to another, so far as human molestation was concerned. To-day, after five years of Tory misgovernment, the peaceful Territories have been changed into a cauldron of seething discontent, where the outrages of savages on the warpath, burning homes, outraging women and murdering settlers, lead all the horrors of a realistic hell to the state of affairs there. The Government is responsible for this. The Indians have been given rotten pork, decomposed supplies, useless implements; and their existence accepted only as a convenient means for feeding a horde of Tory parasites. The strongest rumors are current in political circles that bribery and crooked practices have prevailed for years past in the awarding of tenders for supplies. The extent of the rottenness will never be known until there is a change of administrators.

Tabernacle Sermons.

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

The Quarrel Between Capital and Labor How is it to be settled?

Legislation is Vain, The Golden Rule Alone Applicable.

The Law of Kindness Stronger than the Law of Supply and Demand

A Tribute to the Great Author and Patriot of France, Victor Hugo.

Dr. Talmage preached this morning in the Brooklyn Tabernacle on the subject, "Fist versus Brain." Before the sermon he read passages from the Book of Proverbs and from one of the Epistles, the one in regard to slothfulness and the other in regard to insufficient compensation. The opening hymn was:—

"The morning light is breaking,
The darkness disappears,
The sons of men are walking
To penitential tears."

The text was from Matthew vii. 12: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." Dr. Talmage said:—

The greatest war the world has ever seen is that going on between labor and capital. Not a strife like the Thirty Years' War, of which history tell us, for this is a war of centuries. It is a war of five continents, a war hemispheric. In this country the middle classes who have held the balance of power and upon whom the nation has depended as mediators between the two extremes are diminishing, and at the same ratio we will soon have no middle class for all the people will be very rich or very poor, and the country be divided between princes and paupers, between palaces and hovels. The two great antagonistic forces are closing in upon each other. "Telegraph operators' strikes," "Railroad employes' strikes," "Pennsylvania's miners' strikes," the movements on the part of boycotters and dynamiters are only skirmishes before the general engagement, or, if you perfer, they are escapes through the safety valve of an imprisoned force that promises the explosion of society.

You may pooh-pooh it and prophesy that this trouble, like an angry child, will cry itself to sleep, and think you have belittled it into insignificance by calling it Socialism, Fourierism, St. Simonism, Nihilism or Communism, but that cannot hinder the fact that it is the mightiest, darkest, most terrific threat of this century. Moreover, all the attempts at pacification have been a dead failure. Monopolists are more arrogant, trades' unions more bitter. "Give us more wages," cry the employes: "We will still give you less," respond the capitalists. "Give us less hours of work," say these: "You shall have more," say those. "We won't work under such conditions," cry these; "Then you shall starve," repond those. Soon the laboring classes will have that had accumulated under a better state of things, and unless there be something done there will be in this country three million hungry men and women. Well, three million hungry people cannot be kept quiet. All the enactments of legislatures and all the constabularies of the cities and all the army and navy of the United States cannot keep them quiet. What then? Will capital and labor ever settle their quarrel by their own wisdom? No. The brow of the one will be more rigid and the fist of the other tighter clenched. But what secular wisdom cannot do Christianity can accomplish if it be given full swing. You have heard of medicines so powerful that one drop would stop a disease and restore the patient, and one drop of my text will kill all this trouble and give convalescence and health to all classes: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

The pulpit must be heard on this subject. When Benjamin Franklin made his discoveries on electricity, John Wesley put electrical machines in several neighborhoods that people might by them be healed of their nervous disorders. Our gospel is a gospel for the body as well as the soul. First I will show you how this capitalistic war won't be stopped and how it will be stopped.

First, it will not be stopped by an outcry against rich men because they are rich. There is not a member of a trades's union in the United States who would not be rich if he could. Sometimes through fortunate invention or some accident of property a man with nothing rises to affluence, and he immediately becomes supercilious and overbearing, and takes people by the throat with as tight a grip as he himself was taken by the throat. Human nature is a mean thing when it comes to the supremacy. It is no more a sin to be rich than to be poor. While there are men who have got their property by fraud, there are millionaires who, by foresight of changes to take place in markets or business brilliancy, won their property as honestly as the plumber ever earned his money for mending a pipe or a mason for building a wall. With vast multitudes of people the poverty is their own fault. They might have been well off, but they smoked traverse the Territories from one coast to another, so far as human molestation was concerned. To-day, after five years of Tory misgovernment, the peaceful Territories have been changed into a cauldron of seething discontent, where the outrages of savages on the warpath, burning homes, outraging women and murdering settlers, lead all the horrors of a realistic hell to the state of affairs there. The Government is responsible for this. The Indians have been given rotten pork, decomposed supplies, useless implements; and their existence accepted only as a convenient means for feeding a horde of Tory parasites. The strongest rumors are current in political circles that bribery and crooked practices have prevailed for years past in the awarding of tenders for supplies. The extent of the rottenness will never be known until there is a change of administrators.

galleries and endow colleges and adorn cities and erect churches, and if foreign despotisms should threaten us would subscribe if need be fifty million dollars to sink them before they got through the Narrows. By indiscriminate attack upon success you can never settle this fight.

The assassins of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke in Phœnix Park, Dublin, Ireland, in hoping to avenge Ireland, turned from that afflicted land the sympathies of millions of people. The recent attempt to blow up the House of Commons in London threw tens of thousands of Irish out of employment and livelihood. Torches in this country applied to factories which cut down wages, shotguns aimed at workmen who take the place of hands resigned or hands discharged for good or bad reason, obstructions put on railroad tracks before midnight express trains because the offenders do not like the president of the company, strikes which leave the ship the hour it was going to sail, or the printing office the hour the paper was to go to press, or the coal mines the day the coal was to be delivered, or the house scaffolding the day when their absence would make the builder fail in his contract—all these things have given American labor a heavy blow on the head and crippled its arms and lamed its feet and pierced it through the heart. Take the last great strike in America, the telegraph operators' strike, and the loss to the operators was $400,000 and peerer wages ever since. Neither sudden trap sprung upon employers nor violence ever untied o toil or put more money into the callous palm. Barbarism will never cure the wrongs of civilization. Frederick the Great wanted the property of a miller adjoining the grounds near Potsdam. The King offered the miller three times the value of the property. The miller would not sell because it was the old homestead and he felt about it as Naboth did about his vineyard when Ahab wanted it. Frederick the Great was a rough and terrible man, and he ordered the miller into his presence. The King, flourishing a stick with which he was sometimes accustomed to strike the officers of state, said to the miller: "I have offered you three times the value of your property, and if you will not sell it I will take it anyhow." The miller replied calmly: "Your Majesty will not take it." "Yes, I will," yelled the King. "Then," replied the miller, "I will sue you before the chancery court." Then the King relinquished his demand. So the most imperious of outrages against the poor and the hard-working shall cower before the law. Wrongs will be righted, not by violence and against the law, but by justice and according to law.

Yet all attempts at reconciliation between labor and capital so far having failed, and the two standing with their thumbs on each other's throat ready for strangulation, it behooves us to look elsewhere for relief. And from my text it bounds out, roseate and jubilant, and putting one hand on the broad-cloth shoulder of capital, puts the other on [illegible] and say with a voice that will finally and gloriously settle everything: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do you even so to them." That is, the lady of the household will say: "I must treat the maid in the kitchen as I would like to be treated if I cooked and washed and swept down stairs and she entertained in the parlor." And the maid in the kitchen must say, "If that lady up-stairs seems more fortunate than I, her prosperity is not to be set down as a fault, and I will manage her affairs with an industry and fidelity such as I would expect from a subordinate if I happened to be the wife of a silk-importer." The manufacturer will look over his resources and say: "I mean to do the best for my employes that I can, and I will treat them in the matter of wages as I would like to be treated if I turned the iron bar in the furnace or stood at the factory wheel or had my foot on the treadle." And the toiler will say: "Though my face be smirched with the furnaces, and my hand hardened on the wheel, I must be a gentleman, and I will not act as though my employer were an enemy, and I will do my duty among these wheels as well as though I were up in the counting-room among the ledgers." The iron manufacturer, having taken a dose of my text before he left home in the morning, is walking through the foundry, and passing through the "puddling room," where are the men beweated and stripped to the waist, the employer says: "Good morning, Donald, you look uncomfortable in this heat. I hear your child is sick with scarlet fever. If you want to draw your wages a little earlier this week to buy medicines with and pay the nurse, just come into my office." Passing along into the "finishing room," he sees a young man very white and pallid and hardly able to stand up to his work, and the employer says: "I guess you don't feel very well to-day; better rest once in a while. What are you taking for this illness? Call at my house to-night and I will give you a vial of medicine that will set you right up." "Thank you," says the workman, as he sweeps his arm across his forehead, taking off the beads of sweat, for God knows he is more fit to be in his bed than there.

After a while crash goes the money market and the demand for manufactured goods ceases, and the question is whether to shut up the mill or run on half time or lower the wages. The boss call all his hands together They stand around him wondering what he is going to do. He says: "Men the times are hard, the demand for our work is very small. Where I used to make a hundred dollars I don't make twenty. You see I am under great expense here. Now, what shall I do? I hate to close up and throw you out of employment for you have been very faithful and I like you and you seem to like me and you have families to support, and the bairns must be taken care of, and the wife must have a new dress before long. What shall I do?" Silence for o minute or two and then one of the workmen steps a little forward from the others and says:—"Ithe you have been good to us. When you prospered we prospered. Now, when you are hard pressed. I propose that if you will keep the place open we throw off twenty per cent. of our wages, and as soon as times get better y u will remember us. Boys, all in favor of my motion will say aye." "Aye! aye!" about two hundred voices. After a while the manufacturer, while getting in some new machinery, takes a cold and falls sick of the pneumonia. In the procession to the tombs are the workmen with sad faces, and tears running clear down the cheek and off on the ground. And their wives and children have been waiting an hour at the open grave in the cemetery for the arrival of the funeral pageant. The minister may have delivered eloquent eulogium, but are by the working-class who stand around the last resting-place,—"Dear me, is it not sad?" "We shall never have so kind a friend again!" "Don't you remember when our Charlie died he sent his carriage to take us to the grave?" "Why, is it not dreadful for his wife and children, God pity them!" And that night in all the cabins where the toilers have family prayers the widowhood and orphanage up in the mansion are remembered. No irate population scowling through the iron fence of the cemetery, but hovering over all the scene the benediction of God and man. "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

"Oh," you say, "that is Arcadian, apocryphal, impossible." No: I can take you to the storehouses, the factories, the mines, the great enterprises where this Christly rule is practised, and you could no more get the employer to impose on his men or the men to conspire against their employer than you could get your right hand and left hand, or your right eye and your left eye, or your right ear and your left ear into physiological antagonism. The place to begin is in our own home, and in our own storehouses, and in our own banks, and on our own farms, and in our own factories, not waiting for others to do their duty. Are your parlor or kitchen at divergence? Then there is something wrong either about your parlor or kitchen. Are the clerks of your store out of patience with the firm? Then there is something wrong either at the counter or the private office. What the world wants most grievously, wants to-day and wants everywhere, is the golden rule that Christ promulgated in His sermon Olivetic. All the political economists under the archivault of the heavens in convention for a thousand years will never silence this maddened controversy between fist and brain, between operative and monopolist.

During the Revolutionary war a piece of heavy timber was being raised for army purposes, and a corporal was overseeing it done, shouting to the men who were lifting: "Heave away, Yo heave!" A horseman riding along said to him: "Why don't you lay hold yourself and help those men lift. It is more than they can do?" "Oh," replied the officer, "I am a corporal!" Then the man on horseback dismounted and laid hold of the timber and lifted with all his might. The work done, the man said: "Corporal, when you have not men enough to attend to a job like that, send for your Commander-in-Chief." It was Washington. Oh, let us give each other a lift!

You say the law of supply and demand will control everything to the end of time! No; it will not unless God dies and the batteries of the judgment are spiked and the throne of the universe is taken by Pluto and Proserpine, the king and queen of the infernal world. Supply and demand have joined partnership, and put their wits together to rob the world. You are drowning and they stand on the shore beside the only boat and say: "Pay what we ask or go to the bottom!" You are failing in business for lack of five thousand dollars. They say: "Pay us usury or become bankrupt." This robber firm of Supply and Demand says: "The wheat crop is short, and we have bought it up and put it in our bin. Pay our price or starve!" Supply and Demand own the largest mill on earth, and it rolls over its wheel all the rivers, and puts into its hopper as many men, women and children as it can scoop up out of the centuries, and their blood and bones redden all the valleys as the grinding goes on. As sure as the ages roll on toward millennial release, that disbolic firm will have to step aside for the law of love, the law of co-operation, the law of mercy, the law of Christ.

While I speak there lies in state the great author and patriot of France—Victor Hugo. The ten thousand dollars he left to the poor of Paris in his will were only a hint of the grander work he has done for all nations and all ages. No wonder they allowed ten days to elapse between his death and burial, keeping him under triumphal arch, for neither France nor the world can hardly afford to let him go, though for more than eight decades his unparalleled genius has blessed it. His name shall forever stand the terror of despots, the encouragement of the struggling. He has made the world's burden lighter and its darkness less dense and its chain less galling and its thrones of iniquity less secure. But after all he was not the great and overtowering friend of mankind.

The greatest friend of capitalist and toiler and the one who shall bring them into complete accord, was born on a Christmas night, while the curtains of the sky swung as there moved among them the wings angelic. Owning all the universe, the great continents of worlds and the isles of light, the Capitalist of Immensity, he crosses over to the poor man's condition, coming into our world, not by palace gate, but by door of barn, spending his first night among shepherds, and afterwards calling fishermen from their nets to be his chief attendants, with the hammer and adze and saw and axe and chisel of a carpenter's shop, showing himself to be a brother tradesman, accepting entertainment at the house of one who tanned hides for a living, and, though having owned all things, surrendering everything for others on the hillock back of Jerusalem, and without a shekel left to pay for his obsequies, was buried by charity in the suburbs of a city which had cast him out. Assuredly, at the cross and grave of such a capitalist and carpenter, all men can afford to shake hands and worship. Here is an every man's Christ, none so high but he was higher none so poor, but He was poorer. At His feet the hostile extremes of society will renounce their animosities, and countenances that glowed in the prejudices and revenges of centuries shall brighten into the smile of heaven as He says to them: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

WILL SHE MARRY?

There were only seven of us, all girls, in the dear old parsonage at Wrayburn, where papa had lived for thirty years. Under the daisies in the pretty country churchyard dear mamma had slept since Kate was a wee baby, and Aunt Jane had come to care for the motherless children of her brother as soon as the calamity fell upon him.

We are a rosy-cheeked, healthy set of girls, rather good-looking, Nell being our beauty, and I the only invalid. I am a cripple, but I am not going to bother you with my story, excepting as my observations are recorded.

It was in the spring, and my sisters and Aunt Jane were very busy with housework. I was in my room knitting; papa was wandering about, disconsolate at the invasion of his study, and consequent interruption of his literary work, when the murmur of voices from the porch floated up to me, and I mentally exclaimed,—

"Dear me! Chris is proposing to Nell again."

"And nobody ever will, or ever can love you as I do," Chris was saying.

Then Nell's voice struck in,—

"There, that window fairly dazzles you! Who says I can't clean glass? Oh, I beg your pardon, Chris. No, of course!"

"But, Nell, do listen to me!"

"Chris, did you ask me to marry you when I was in my cradle? I am sure you have asked me once a week ever since. I won't you know, or ought to know, by this time. Why can't you ask somebody else, just for variety? I am sure any of the other girls will make a much better wife than I will; that is," said Nell, with a sudden spasm of loyalty for the rest of us, "if any of them would take you."

"How can I care for anyone else when my whole heart has been yours all my life?" said Chris, disconsolately. "It is cruel to trifle so with true and honest love."

"Don't be an idiot!" said Nell, sharply. "I told you that you were a horrid boy, and I would never marry you, when you used to steal apples to present to me, and I never, never told you anything else, did I?"

"No," sighed Chris.

"Then why don't you let me alone?"

Here Aunt Jane, her head tied up in a manner that defies description, came upon the scene, saying,—

"Oh, here's Chris! Chris, do run over to Smith's and get me a paper of carpet tacks!"

Chris departed.

Presently Smith's boy brought the carpet tacks, and Nell was let alone for the remainder of that day, as far as Chris was concerned. The next day the cleaning went forward briskly, but it was still early in the morning when Nell came to my room equipped for a walk.

"Any letters?" she asked carelessly. "I am going down the street."

"None," I said; "I did not think you could be spared."

"Aunt Jane is rather grumpy about it," said Nell, adjusting a coquettish wreath of apple-blossoms upon her hat; "but I want to get the smell of soapsuds out of my nose. I may stop at Gilmore's; have you any message?"

"Only my love to Mrs. Gilmore."

Now, Mrs. Gilmore was the mother of Nell's persistent adorer, Christopher Nelson Gilmore, and the families had been intimate for years. Still, for Nell to take the middle of house-cleaning week to call on Mrs. Gilmore was a little out of order.

She flitted away, her sunny curls dancing in the soft May breeze, and I, putting two and two together, remembered that Chris had not been in the house for twenty-four hours. Vainly I tried to recall a similar interval when he was in Wrayburn. School, college, business had called him out of the village, but his home hours were always fairly divided between his mother's house and ours.

Something must be the matter! I thought of all possible and impossible catastrophes, till I was not surprised to see Nell coming in at the gate in a subdued frame of mind, apparent upon her pretty face. She came directly to me, as they all do, even Aunt Jane and papa, in emergencies.

"Belle," she said, in a low, grave tone, "Chris has gone to Cape Town."

"Gone!" I cried. "Why, he was here yesterday."

"He went to London yesterday afternoon, and he has gone to visit his uncle, the one who offered him a business opening some time ago. Chris did not want a business opening, as he has plenty of money, and, Belle, Mrs. Gilmore says that it is all my fault that she is left alone and childless."

"Scarcely your fault, dear," I said, my heart aching for the piteous strain in the sweet voice, the pain in the bright eyes. "You were right to refuse to marry a man you do not love, and I am sure Chris will find a wife and return."

But Nell only grew whiter, and went slowly to her own room. After that, in all the family lamentations for Chris, so many years a sort of adopted brother in our midst, Nell never spoke of him.

The next winter, Meg, our eldest, was married; and, as if matrimony was a contagion, Janey followed her example; then Maud, Lizzie, and even Kate, our baby. Nell, the prettiest, smartest, sweetest of all, had offers in abundance, spent two winters in London visiting Meg, and, by all accounts, captivating hearts by the scores, but coming back to be the life and brightness of our home.

"There must be one old maid in every family," she said; and when I suggested my eminent fitness for the position, she smiled loftily and said: "Mr. Brooks says you are the household angel, so please let us hear no more nonsense."

"There is Aunt Jane, too," I said, mildly.

"Belle," she said severely, "will you stop talking nonsense? Aunt Jane, indeed!"

It really did seem as if Nell was in earnest about a single life, but, after all, she was only twenty-four, and looked seventeen.

But, one day, who should walk into the parsonage parlor, as coolly as if he had left it the day before, but Chris. We were all there as he came in, but before he had spoken to Aunt Jane I saw that Nell had vanished.

Did Chris see her run out of the door as he entered the front window? I think he did. There was a subdued twinkle in his eyes as he inquired for my infirmities, not at all consistent with his words of sympathy. Presently Nell came in, with a quiet smile of greeting, and a perfect composure of manner, but Chris was a match for her.

It was as good as a play to watch those two, so completely did they ignore that he was a discarded lover who had been sent away by her cruelty. They conversed easily and gracefully—Christopher's African experiences, varied by descriptions of the family weddings, the new homes, the brothers-in-law, the children, and a thousand other details, in which our caller expressed the greatest interest.

After that he dropped in as of old, making himself agreeable and useful to every one in the house, especially tender, as he ever had been, to me. Indeed, I found myself wondering sometimes if he was going to take Nell's mocking advice, and, all the others being appropriated, offer himself to the poor cripple.

He took me for long drives in his mother's pony-carriage, and was always ready to hear of Nell's conquests, showing no jealousy, but a great deal of amusement, over her coquetries.

"She was a born coquette!" he said once; "and yet nobody can call Nell vain. It has been a matter of course for her to be admired ever since she could run alone."

"She is our beauty now, as of old," I answered; and Chris assented cordially.

"I have seen no face so winsome since I left home," he said; but he spoke with the frank admiration of a brother, and gave no token of a love sick swain.

Had he outlived his love, I wondered, and come home to prove to Nell that her days of tyranny were over? I think Nell suspected that he had.

Always even-tempered, Nell became fitful and capricious; bright and laughing when Chris was with us, often silent, and sometimes gloomy when she thought herself unnoticed. She lost her color, and I caught her more than once rubbing her cheeks when going down-stairs to see Chris; and she was snappish, and deeply repentant therefor a dozen times a day.

"What ails Nell?" Aunt Jane asked me, anxious for her darling. "She eats nothing, Belle, and I am sure does not sleep well. I wonder if it would do her any good to spend a few weeks with our Kate?"

Nell, on being consulted, caught eagerly at the suggestion, and hurried her wardrobe into a trunk, as if answering a sudden life or death summons. She made no farewells, but flitted off so abruptly that it made us all stare with surprise.

"Elinor was always impulsive," papa said.

And Aunt Jane only answered,—

"But bless me, I didn't mean to drive the child out of the house!"

Chris said nothing, but I was certainly convinced of the reality of his whiskers, so ferociously wore they pulled all the evening. But the next day Mrs. Gilmore sent over a wee note of diro distress. Chris had been thrown from his horse, and the doctors feared some spinal injury. Aunt Jane went over at once, and came back with an exceedingly grave face.

"He is badly hurt—entirely unconscious," she said.

If Nell's departure was sudden, her return was not less so.

"Did you take off your hat at Kate's?" I inquired, with mild sarcasm.

But I regretted it when Nell's arm stole around my neck, and a face wet with tears was pressed against my own.

"Will he die?" she whispered. "Oh, Belle, what shall I do if he dies?"

Then, as if ashamed of letting even my loving eyes read her secret, she rushed away and locked herself in her room. Such restless misery followed that my heart ached for her. She made Aunt Jane spend nearly all her time at Mrs. Gilmore's, and undertook the housekeeping herself, letting papa miss nothing of his sister's care. But she seemed to live in a sort of breathless expectation of the news from Chris.

Worse! worse! very low! Such were the disheartening tidings day after day, until there came one dreadful night of agonized watching, and Chris changed for the better.

Convalescence was slow and tedious; but one day, when we were all in the drawing-room, there was a soft rush across the room, on the porch, down the garden, and a joyous ring in Nell's voice, crying,—

"Oh, Chris—dear Chris—are you really here once more?"

Then I saw him leaning one hand on her shoulder, one on his cane, as he came feebly up the path, pale, thin and weak, but Chris restored to us after all our anxiety.

Spring came round once more, and Nell and Aunt Jane busied themselves with the usual extra housework. Once more voices floated up to me from the porch.

"You were cleaning those windows when I went away, Nell."

"Please, Chris, don't!" Nell pleaded. "Don't repeat the offence for which I was banished, Nell? But I must, darling. It is for the last time."

"Hush!" I whispered at this crisis, as Aunt Jane entered my room. "Chris is proposing to Nell."

"Well," said my aunt, "that is an old story."

"But she has accepted him," I said exultantly, as faintly stole up to me,—

"Yes, dear Chris; I know now you are the only man I could ever love."

"Ahem!" said Aunt Jane, "You and I, Belle, will be the old maids of the family, after all."

When strangers met Sydney Smith at table they were usually prepared to look upon anything he said as a good thing; and he himself relates that at a dinner-party he could not ask for a potato without the lady opposite putting up her handkerchief to her face, and saying: "O, Mr. Smith, how can you be so comical?"

"Can you give me 10 cents, sir?" implored a ragged chap, accosting a gentleman on the street; "I haven't ate anything for a week." "What do you mean by telling such a story as that?" asked the gentleman: "I saw you at dinner in the eating-house not an hour ago." "Ah, but you misunderstood me," replied the tatterdemalion; "when I said I hadn't ate anything for a week I meant next week." He got his 10 cents.

Down With the Dust!

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammermen Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely and was passing out the door, when the Smith in peremptory tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smith handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to dae wi' thees, Deacon?" "Why," replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail yer thanks there and pay me sarpence."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

USE THE TELEPHONE.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

ALL AROUND TOWN.

The Change of Agency.

The attention of policy holders and those interested in Fire Insurance, is directed to the advertisement of the Phœnix Fire Insurance Company of England in another column. That Mr. R. E. Henderson is the popular agent of the Company is sufficient guarantee to both the Company and the insurer that business will be transacted with promptness and liberality.

The Market.

The crowd of passengers that alighted from the various trains arriving in Peterborough this morning was less than for any Saturday morning for some time; consequently the market was not crowded. Eggs called for 11 cts., butter 18 cts., veal 5 to 7 cts., lamb 8 to 9 cts. per lb. Potatoes have an upward tendency and sold well for 40 cents per bag. The usual amount of green groceries was here for sale.

Lacrosse.

The teams that will face each other in the scratch match on Monday evening next will be chosen from the following list of names:—Joyal, Tierney, Halpin, Henderson, Giroux, Hall, Annand, Rudkins, Canning, Yelland, McDonald, Dyell, Neil, Giroux, Scott, Moscrip, Giroux, Heaps, Rose, Cameron, Traynor, Fortye, Rutherford and Sheehy. The park will be thrown open for the general public. All are invited. The track is in excellent condition and bicyclists should avail themselves of this invitation.

A Good Sign.

In an issue of the EXAMINER a day or two since, it was noted that the freight sheds of the C. P. R. were glutted with goods and merchandise. Now there is the same to report respecting the freight sheds of the Midland Division of the G. T. R. here. The latter are packed from floor to rafter with both out-going and in-coming freight. This is a good sign, and shows that the commerce of Peterborough is in a healthy and improving condition. A couple of years ago one railroad system managed to do the shipping business of the town; now the freight capabilities of two are called into requisition. The town is indeed growing apace.

Large Egg Shipment.

The poultry world must have recently shown an excess of hen-thusiasm in the production of eggs, judging by the immense shipment of this important poultry product, made by Messrs. Ostrom & Ostrom. To-day this enterprising firm shipped to Boston, at the Midland station of the G.T.R., 311 cases of eggs. Each case contains 49 dozen, so that the entire consignment numbers 182,868 individual eggs. This represents the oviparous efforts of one hen for 501 years, at the rate of one egg per day. And yet, when this consignment arrives at its destination, for the use of the cultured Bostonians, there will be barely half an egg for each of the inhabitants. The above shipment is the largest ever made at one time from Peterborough.

A Valuable Work.

We have much pleasure, after a careful examination of the "Practical Home Physician," for which Mr. John Morrison, of Lindsay is soliciting subscribers in town, in testifying to the book being very complete. The information is especially reliable. The style in which it is written is simple and can be readily understood by any one who can read simple English. It contains nearly one thousand prescriptions written by four of the leading doctors of America—Dr. Lyman, Dr. Fenger, Dr. Jones, and Dr. Belfield. There are nearly two thousand young men spending hundreds of dollars and years of time to hear these same men lecture on medicine. The price of the book is within the reach of all. No one should be without a copy of it. d-7.

TAX EXEMPTIONS.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—In the report of the Town Council meeting I am pleased to see that every encouragement is to be given to the establishment of new manufactories and other industries in our midst. Our City Fathers have at last wakened up. In advocating free taxation for a period of 10 years to the proposed new industries they are acting in the best interests of the town. From the resolution, however, no specified capital is mentioned as necessary to secure this advantage, nor is there any minimum number of workmen referred to as requisite before the promoters can claim their exemptions. Doubtless this will be attended to ere final negotiations are completed. In the meantime, is it not worth considering, now that a liberal spirit has seized us, whether the extensive establishments already in existence, such as those of William and Peter Hamilton, which have cost their proprietors a large amount of capital, and which are now successful and prosperous, do not better deserve equal encouragement and free taxation? These works are a credit to the town, and I do not see why strangers or capitalists resident here should be fostered in their struggling days at the expense of, and to the detriment of, such as those whom I have mentioned. Let us not rob Peter to pay Paul.

I am, yours truly,
CITIZEN.

Neat and Newsy.

The EXAMINER, Peterboro's third daily, was issued last Saturday. It is a veary neat, newsy paper, and we think a little too large for Coxtown. It throws its two would-be rivals—the Review and Times completely into the shade.—Orillia News Letter.

Loads of Flowers

Are being brought to the Little Lake Cemetery every day, and are being placed in the various lots assigned to them by the worthy superintendant, Mr. John Kelly. The cemetery, although a place which produces sad recollections, will, in a short time, be transformed during the Sundays into a frequented paradise of flowers.

A Very Creditable Sheet.

The Peterborough EXAMINER, long one of the brighest of weekly exchanges on our list, has blossomed out as a daily, and a very creditable sheet it is for the town. Some city dailies we could name have to play second-fiddle to it so far as ability is concerned.—London Advertiser.

Ladies' Bible Class.

The Ladies' Bible Class, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Munro, met for the first time yesterday afternoon in the Lecture Room of the Y. M. C. A. The attendance was large, and at the close many of the ladies present expressed themselves as highly satisfied. The next meeting of the class will be on Friday afternoon and every Friday thereafter.

The Biggest and Bantam-est.

A young lady placed on our table this morning the very antithesis of hen fruit. They were two eggs, produced presumably by the same fowl, for they were both found in the same hen's nest. The biggest measures 8 inches in largest circumference, and the smaller 2¼ inches. The smaller egg was laid first and the frugal fowl evidently practiced the doctum of compensation, when she produced the grant next day. Mr. Kidd, of Dummer, possesses this phenomenal honest hen.

Faucher's Sale.

It is very seldom that the voice of the auctioneeer is heard calling for bids in a place kept up by the sale of stimulants. A large crowd attended Faucher's sale yesterday, and one enterprising barber purchased a billiard table for his own private use; the remainder of the tables went very low not averaging more than $100 each. Mr. H. LeBrun, purchased the beautiful mirror which hung over the bar; it is one well worthy of reflecting the comfortable figure of the President of the National Amateur Lacrosse Association.

About the Churches.

The Rev. Mr. Duff, of the Barnardo Home, will occupy the pulpit in the George-street Methodist Church to-morrow morning, and in the evening the pulpit will be occupied by the Rev. J. McEwen, Secretary of the Provincial Sunday School Association. At St. Paul's Presbyterian Church to-morrow morning the Rev. J. McEwen will preach. He will also address a meeting of the Bible Class at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. Mr. Torrance will likely preach at the Charlotte-street Methodist Church to-morrow morning. We are informed that the new organist (Mr. Hampshire) for St. John's Church will not arrive before Monday.

Open to the Public.

The members of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters, having a taste for the beautiful, and believing in the refining influence of elegant surroundings, have been at considerable expense and labour to make their "forest green," a delightful place in which to meet. Their Court Room, above Long Bros'. lower Confectionery Store, George Street, has been furnished in a splended manner; all the appointments and furniture are first class. The floors are covered with rich carpets, and the walls with fine pictures, some of unusual artistic merit, especially Watson's forest scene. The room is well worth a visit, and the officers have thrown open the rooms to visitors to-night from 7 to 9 o'clock, when all, especially ladies are invited to visit and inspect the place where many of their husbands and lovers pass some of their evenings. The room will be occupied by the sittings of the High Court, which opens in Peterborough, on Tuesday. It is expected that there will be about 150 delegates present on the occasion.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I desire through the columns of your newsy periodical to call the attention of the trustees and the pricipal of the Institute to the gross injustice that is being perpetrated by the teachers, or by some of them, within the last few days, in almost discharging some of the pupils in regular attendance at the above school, without due cause. It appears that in their zeal to secure as many successful candidates from among those now under their supervision, and who will shortly go to Toronto for examination, and thus to make their teaching conspicious as efficient, able and excellent, they are positively suggesting to the younger pupils the desirability of remaining at home for the next few weeks. There time of course will be occupied in cramming these fortunate (?) and more advanced ones with whom they hope to steal a little more honor for themselves and glory for the Institute. Several pupils have been told they can study quite as well at home in this crisis. It is a fact that several boys gladly took the hint, as what younster indeed would not under the circumstances? As one deeply interested myself in education unwilling to deprive the youth of all opportunities to improve; believing that strict justice should be meted out to all and having a lively recollection of a somewhat heavy school tax, for which I desire to get a reasonable quid pro quo, I wish to ask the attention of the principal and trustees to the above facts and to rise and explain?

What justice is there in allowing four or five, or even a dozen pupils, to monopolise the care and attention of four teachers, while the remaining 70 or 80 are sent empty away? Not only so, but their future prospects are marred and their love for learning rudely dispelled by the advice, if not the command, of those who advocate their securing a few more weeks' vacation. In my opinion our boys get quite enough time to recuperate by having the months of July and August free from all study, without throwing them in another four weeks at this time of the year. Earnestly awaiting an explanation, I am,

Yours,
INJURED PARENT.

June 6th, 1885.

[We are quite sure that Dr. Tassie will give the desired explanation, if the facts are as stated by our esteemed correspondent. We would only suggest at present that the statements of school boys, as regards extra holidays, should occasionally be taken cum grano salis.—EDITOR DAILY EXAMINER.]

C. O. F.

Marches Home on Music.

A member of the Fire Brigade Band living in English town, goes home every evening after he is through at the rink, playing some lonesome air. If this is to be continued give us something sweet and lively.

An Example to be Followed.

The directorate of the Lindsay Central Exhibition set an example to the directors of the West Riding Agricultural Society. They have met and made arrangements for an exhibition—as for prize lists, rules and regulations, etc. The result will be that they will have a successful show next fall.

Worthy of Warm Support.

The Peterborough WEEKLY EXAMINER has for a long time held a place in the front rank of progressive local papers, and its enterprising proprietor has now begun the issue of a daily edition, which is a credit to him and to Peterborough. The new venture is worthy of warm support.—Dundas Banner.

The Little Lake

Presented a beautiful appearance last evening. The water was calm and undisturbed by a single ripple; many owners of boats took advantage of the situation, and shortly after 8 o'clock the Ashburnham side of the lake was dotted with canoes, row-boats, and various aquatic conveyances, from the "slender bark" to the "giant punt," borrowed from the obliging river drivers, and propelled by a crowd of juveniles.

Shipment of Stock.

Messrs. Dendon and Roseborough shipped via Grand Trunk Railway to-day, a very fine car load of Cattle and Hogs. Messrs. D. & R. are one of the largest shippers from this part. We hope they will reap a good profit, so as to enable them to pay such a price for cattle that the agriculturest will find it to their advantage to breed good animals for the stock market, and not place such dependence on the wheat marked.

The First Welcome Home.

Last night Port Hope led the van in giving a welcome home to the Midland Battalion, a detachment in the person of Capt. J. P. Clemes, quartermaster of the Midland Battalion, who arrived home at Port Hope, last evening. An immense concourse of citizens, headed by the 45th Battalion Band, escorted the returned veteran to his residence on King St., Protestant Hill, where he was the recipient of a thousand and one congratulations. His meeting with his relatives was exceedingly affecting.

Police Court.

James McAvelin, an old N. C. army pensioner, was up this morning before the magistrate charged by constable Johnson with being drunk. James said that he was guilty and was sorry for it; that he would celebrate the sixty-fifth anniversary of his birthday on the 18th of October next, and that this was his first time before a court. The magistrate cautioned him and allowed him to go. Pat O'Neil was marched in in his bare feet to be charged by janitor Tighe, of the Central School, with throwing stones into the playgrounds of the children. Pat intimated his desire to go the country to work for a farmer, and was allowed to go after being told by the magistrate that if he were caught again, he would be punished severely.

—A special meeting of the Town Council has been called for Tuesday evening.

—The sale of Mr. J. Ludgate's valuable property takes place by auction to-morrow.

—The County Court and General Sessions meets to-morrow at the Court House.

—In the lacrosse match in Toronto on Saturday between the Torontos and Ontarios, the former club won by a score of 3 to 1.

—Four carloads of horses passed through Peterborough on Saturday, over the C.P.R., for the North-West Territories.

—Peterborough has not got down to potato hard pan like Guelph, where potatoes were a drug 10 cents per bag on Saturday.

—Nearly every livery rig in town is engaged to go to the lacrosse grounds to-night to see the sport.

—Beautiful maple trees have recently been planted around the premises of the number one ward branch of the Separate School.

—The Lindsay town council has given $50 towards the fund for celebrating Dominion Day. Peterborough has not been so liberal.

—Many persons still keep up the untidy practice of defiling the streets by throwing on them the rubbish raked together on private premises.

—The residents of No. 1 Ward, especially those living in Englishtown, are thinking of petitioning the Council to pass a by-law to prevent locomotive whistling.

—The demand for building bricks so anticipates the supply, that it's considered shocking waste to use a brick to throw at a nocturnal caterwauling cat in the back yard.

—The weather lapses so frequently into chilliness, that there has not been a chance yet for the impecunious to pawn his winter overcoat.

Dr. Hodge, of Mitchell, formerly of Lakefield, arrived in town on Saturday and will remain for a few days. He is en route for Vienna, Austria, where he intends further prosecuting his medical studies. His wife and three children remain during his absence with Mrs. Hodge's father, Wm. Ray, Esq., Smith.

One of the members of "G" Company—Peterborough—of the Midland Battalion, wounded at the charge of Batoche, Mr. Ed. Daly, is, we regret to say, not progressing as favourably as could be wished, his wounds proving more serious than at first supposed. Mr. Daly was in town on business (his home was then in Napanee) when volunteers were called on to make up the Midland; he dropped his business, shouldered his rifle and was off to the wars. He is now at Saskatoon.

A BRUSH WITH BIG BEAR.

Bruin Beats a Retreat.

A Flank Movement too Much for the Reds —Three Men Wounded—Some of the "Big Injun's" Prisoners Escape.

FORT PITT, June 4.—Captain Steel, with seventy mounted scouts and police, had an engagement with Big Bear at Two Lakes, fifty miles south-east of here, yesterday. He came upon the Indians as they were striking camp, and immediately attacked them. Finding their front too strong he executed a clever flank movement, taking the Indians in the rear and driving them in disorder across a creek, where he was unable to follow on account of his small force. The Indians numbered fully 250. He saw no signs of the prisoners during the fight.

Capt. Steel sent an interpreter, McKee, with a flag of truce. He advanced but was fired on. He got near enough to be heard and called out to Big Bear in Indian, who replied indistinctly. McKee said, "If you will deliver our people we will cease firing." The Indian replied, "We intend to clean you out."

Capt. Steele's loss was three wounded—Sergt.-Major Furry in the breast, Bill West, a scout, in the knee, and J. Fisher in the forearm.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR GEN. STRANGE.

FORT PITT, N. W. T., June 3, via Battleford, June 6.—Gen. Middleton with 50 men each of the 90th, Midland and Grenadiers, and a Gatling left to join Gen. Strange this evening. All the mounted men left early this morning.

ESCAPE OF PRISONERS.

WINNIPEG, June 7.—Lieut.-Gov. Aikens has received a message from Gen. Middleton's camp, near Fort Pitt, dated June 2nd, to the effect that Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Quinney, Mr. Cameron and two half-breeds, who have been prisoners with Big Bear, through the assistance of friendly Indians, escaped, and were now in Gen. Strange's camp, 12 miles from Fort Pitt. Mr. Quinney states that none of the women have suffered any indignities. Gen. Strange says that Big Bear's band has broken apart, virtually into two parties, and he has still the McLean families prisoners. The general is going to follow both trails with all his mounted men, and hopes to catch Big Bear yet.

Mr. Cameron, one of the prisoners rescued, gives the names of the Frog Lake murderers. He says the Wood Crees saved the prisoner's lives, the Plain Crees wanting to kill them. He states that Mrs. Delaney and Mrs. Gowanlock have been well treated. All the prisoners were comparatively well treated, and no indignities were offered them.

The East "Takes a Rise" Out of the West Riding.

On Saturday at Lakefield a match between mixed elevens representing the East and West Ridings of Peterborough was played on the Lakefield grounds. The crease was in too wet a condition to admit of big scoring, yet a very pleasant afternoon of friendly cricket was put in. The East Riding won by 12 as will be seen by the following score:

LAST WORDS.

Napier's last words at the Duck Lake fight were, "Tell mother I died like a man." Wm. Blake said "I am shot; God have mercy on my soul." Morton said, "You can't do anything for me, I am shot through the heart. Take care of my wife and family; tell them I died like a man on the battle field." Elliott, the policeman, said, "Fight on, boys; don't let them beat us." Captain French said, "Boys, I did my duty; I loved you."

REFRACTORY RADICALS.

The Dissensions in Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet.

A Split Probable Between the two Wings of the Ministerial Party—The Premier Again to Contest Midlothian.

LONDON, June 7.—The government remains on the verge of disruption. Mr. Chamberlain who, it is said, is ambitious to become premier, and Sir Charles Dilke, who is innately radical, still stubbornly refuse to assent to Mr. Gladstone's announced policy of renewing the Irish crimes act. The rebels in cabinet insist that there exists in Ireland to-day no reason for its renewal in any form.

The quarrel has extended to other matters. The radical ministers are just as much opposed to the plan of an electoral campaign formulated for the coming election by the Whig members as they are to a renewal of the Crimes Act. Chamberlain, Dilke, Trevelyan, and Shaw—Lefevre all insist on a radical platform. They agree that the principal planks in the liberal platform should include a reduction in the number of life titles in the House of Lords, division rather than concentration of land titles, a general reform in the land laws to the end that a number of holdings in fee may be increased and titles to land more easily obtained for Ireland—the widest possible measure of self-government consistent with unity of the British empire. The Whig faction refuses to adopt any of these principles.

Mr. Gladstone's announcement of his intention to stand again for Midlothian has occasioned the greatest excitement in all parties and among all classes of the people. His altered resolution is attributed to his keen desire to see his party safely through the next electoral campaign.

Parliamentary Summary.

SATURDAY, JUNE 6th.

In the House of Commons on Saturday a Bill from the Senate respecting canned goods, and a Bill respecting the Administration of Justice in the North-West, were read a first time. The House continued in Committee of the Whole on the Franchise Bill, passing the three clauses held back for consideration on Friday, and proceeding to clause forty-five, except that those clauses respecting the appeal from the Revising-officer to the County Judge, were held back for further consideration. The most important feature of the day's proceeding was that it was decided that the ballots of those in whose cases an appeal had been made, to decide their right to vote, should not be counted as a matter of course, but only after the question of their right to vote had been finally settled. The Premier made several other more or less important concessions in the details of the Bill. The consideration of the Bill will be continued. The House adjourned at six.

After His "Pound of Flesh."

Mr. L. F. Carpenter informs us that he intends to act the role of Shylock in reference to the prosecution of Charles Cresswell and his wife, who are to be tried at the general sessions on Wednesday, on a charge of larceny of Mr. C's personal belongings. He intends to get all the justice the evidence and the jury will allow him.

DEFENCE OF THE ARMY.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Allow me a small space in your valuable paper to express some of my feelings. I am very sorry that a Baptist should be so unwise and un-Christlike as to write the article that appeared in the Morning Times of to-day. I would kindly ask my mistaken friend to come and see. Come, my friend, to the Army meetings, where the Army are holding up Christ to a perishing world; where souls, whose hearts God has touched, are lifting up Jesus as a living, loving, all sufficient, personal Saviour. I will not defend the Army and their work here. God will defend the right.

For my part, I am glad the holy, happy band of Salvation soldiers are in our midst. The Salvation Army, in Gods hands, are doing a grand work here. God speed them. Oh ye who profess Christ, for your own souls sake, for humanity sake, for Christ's sake, do not speak evil of this work. If you do you are speaking against Christ the Lord.

A FELLOW CITIZEN.

[We happen to know who the writer of the letter referred to, is, and can assure a "Fellow Citizen," that he is not a Baptist, never was, and never will be, unless he undergoes a great deal of regeneration; if however, he uses his ability in the right direction he might, in time make a good Baptist'—ED. Bay of Quinte Conference.

SATURDAY, JUNE 6th.

The conference opened this morning with the President in the chair. In the evening an open session was held at which there were admitted to full ministerial connection:—Messrs. W. Down, Wm. Learoyd, D. D. Balfour, John Mears, John H. Oke. R. Edwards and H. Fraser.

EDUCATIONAL MATTERS.

Rev. Amos Campbell, bursar of Albert College, submitted a statement of the financial and statistical condition of that institution, exhibiting it in a highly prosperous state.

Rev. Dr. Stone addressed the conference at length on the operations of the Methodist book and publishing establishment in Toronto. The details of the year's operation are considerably larger and more successful than that of any previous year in the history of the house.

Rev. Dr. Shaw, of the Montreal College, and Rev. Dr. Barwash, of Victoria University, submitted brief statistics of the operating of those institutions, showing a vigorous and successful result for the year now closing.

A resolution of condolance with the families bereaved by the Northwest war, was passed unanimously.

A Terrible Duel at Midnight.

James Jackson, of Georgia, who had been and afterward was a United States Senator, was the challenged party. He was an Englishman by birth. He killed Lieutenant Governor Wells, of Georgia, in 1870, in a duel, and he finally determined to accept a challenge on such terms as would make it his last duel. So, upon his next challenge, which was from Colonel R. Watkins, also from Georgia, he prescribed as the terms that each party, armed with a double-barreled gun loaded with buckshot and with a hunting knife, should row himself in a skiff to designated points on opposite sides of the Savannah River. When the city clock struck 12 each should row his skiff to a small island in the middle of the river, which was wooded and covered with underbrush. On arriving at the island each was to moor his skiff, stand about for ten minutes, and then go about the island until the meeting took place. The seconds waited on the mainland until after 1 o'clock, when they heard three gun-shots and loud and angry cries; then all was still. At daylight, as had been agreed on, the seconds went to the island, and found Jackson lying on the ground insensible from the loss of blood, and his antagonist lying across him dead. Jackson recovered, but would never relate his experience on the island, nor was he ever challenged again. He died in Washington City, while serving his second term as Senator, March 19, 1806.—"The Field of Honor."

Burdette's Fish Story.

I remember once, myself fishing in the eddying waters of the Mississippi, about four miles above Burlington, striking a catfish. I was using a lance-wood rod and set reel, and the fish ran out about twenty-five yards of line, then turning suddenly made straight for me as I stood in the water. I struck at it with the rod, which broke in my hand. The infuriated fish chased me ashore, ran me through a lumber-yard, pursued me across a wide stubble field, and some distance into the woods, when, being unarmed, I climbed a large cottonwood tree. The relentless fish followed me up the tree, where it was shot by some hunters just as it was "cooning" out upon a big limb to get at me. It fell to the ground dead, shot through the heart. It was nine inches long and weighed a pound and a half with its clothes on. Which by interpretation is dressed.

"There's something about your daughter," Mr. Wanghop said reflectively—"there's something about your daughter——" "Yes," said old Mr. Thistlepod, "there is; I had noticed it myself. It comes every night at 8 o'clock, and it doesn't get away usually till about 11 o'clock. And some of these evenings I am going to lift it all the way from the front parlor to the side gate and see what there's in it."

"Doctor," said a fond mother, leaning over the bedside of her son who seemed to be suffering greatly, "what is the matter with him?" The physician examined the sufferer and replied, "He's sick." "There," exclaimed the woman, "I knew you could tell what was the matter with him. How fortunate it is that you are in the neighborhood," and she looked at the medical gentleman with an expression that spoke of restful confidence.—Arkansaw Traveler.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

The Housing of the London Poor.

The "bitter cry" of the outcast, London, which sounded so lonely in the ears of the world about a twelve month ago has had one very practical and beneficial result. It has called the attention of the English nation to the dense overcrowding of the population in large cities and centres of trade, and to the miserably squalid residences provided for the working poor. In order to effect rigid and searching inquiry, the government appointed a royal commission of very able and experienced representative men to look carefully into the whole subject and to put forth such schemes for legislation, that the condition of the working classes might, if possible, be ameliorated and that future reforms might more readily be effected.

This Commission, of which Sir Charles Dilke was the head, while the Prince of Wales served under him, has now issued its report, and the result is a mass of most valuable information, brimful of facts and suggestions which will doubtless help to meet and overcome some of the difficulties with which the whole question of the housing of the poor has hitherto been surrounded.

The most urgent and most difficult case which the Commissioners were called to consider was, of course, that of London itself. In one district of the metropolis they found abundant evidence of overcrowding. For example, one house contained six rooms, occupied by six families, with as many as eight persons in one room. In another place there was an old, partly wooden, and decayed house, in which seventeen persons inhabited three rooms. These cases could be indefinitely multiplied. But such particulars are only partly understood, unless the other conditions of this crowded life are also considered. In many of such rooms there is but one bed for the occupation of the entire household. Ventilation is a thing unknown. The houses themselves are rotten from age and neglect. Some of the rooms are simply cellars, destitute of air and light, with imperfect drainage, insufficient water and other accommodation of all kinds sadly wanting. The result of all this is seen in a deterioration of moral and physical health. Immorality and drink are the constant refuge of those who resort to such habitations. The death rate, especially of children, is excessive and disease, particularly scrofula and ophthalmia, is rarely absent. So depressed and weary and despairing are the men, that, through sheer exhaustion and inability, they lose a large proportion of the time which they ought to spend in work. Instead of improving, from the demolition of property to make new streets, or to supply room for public buildings or railways, and from the heavy increase in rents, the condition of affairs is rapidly becoming worse and worse. Because the work was uncertain and could only be had in particular areas, the workmen were obliged to live in these very overcrowded districts, as the competition was excessive and wages low.

The commissioners find it difficult to protect these unfortunates. Their answers to the question "What do you propose to do?" are rather vague and tentative. They assert that many of the existing sanitary laws are never carried out. They maintain that proper administration of existing statutes is the most desirable thing. And this cannot be had of the right sort until the Government of the city is sufficiently strong and raised above petty local interests to insist upon the execution of all good laws. They also suggest the appointment of inspectors to examine and report on overcrowded districts and thus stimulate public opinion. And lastly, and most startling of all, they recommend the removal of certain prisons to the country, so as to create fresh spaces for the erection of workmen's dwellings. The report has at any rate shown the gigantic evil in all its dire proportions and its suggestions will, we are sure, be thoroughly canvassed. The subject is one demanding immediate attention.

Writs have been issued for elections to fill the vacant seats in the Ontario Legislature. In Lennox, East Kent, and East Simcoe, the nominations will be on June 19th, and the elections on June 26th. In West Algoma the nomination will be on June 12th, and the election on June 26th. In East Algoma the nomination will be on June 15th, and the election on June 29th.

ILLUSTRATED WAR NEWS.

The tenth number of the Canadian Pictorial and Illustrated War News is before us. It contains the following illustrations:—"Brigade Funerals of Lieut. Fitch and Private Moor, Royal Grenadiers" (scene from sketches by our own artist, and instantaneous photographs by Mr. Fred Timms); "How the Royal Grenadiers got their dinner before Batoche" (from a sketch by our special artist, Mr. F. HOLT'S HOBBY.

An English writer, Vincent M. Holt by name, asks, "Why not eat insects?" and follows the query by numerous historical instances to prove that they are palatable and were delicate food. The old Romans ate them, and other nations have affected certain kinds. In all seriousness he presents the following as an attractive menu:—"Snail soup; fried soles with woodlouse sauce; curried cockchafer; fricasse of chicken with chrysolisis; boiled neck of mutton and wireworm sauce; cauliflowers garnished with caterpillars, and moths on toast."

DON'T PLAY WITH A SMART WOMAN.

A woman threw her husband's pipes and tobacco into the stove, remarking: "I'm tired of living in a smoke-house."

He carried all her bonnets and hats down to his office and left a note saying, "I'm tired of living in a millinery store." Now this was very funny on both sides, as far as it went, but she walked into his store three hours afterward with a new $20 bonnet on. He never thought of that.

A FAMOUS FARM.

The famous Dalrymple farm in the valley of the Red River is expected to produce this year an average of nineteen bushels of wheat to the acre. The number of acres of wheat under cultivation will not be less than 30,000, and the total yield is estimated at 570,000 bushels. In order to harvest this product there will be brought into use 300 harvesters and twine binders, and 20 steam threshers. This will necessitate the employment of 800 horses, and at least 1,000 men.

Peter Cooper's Liberal Donations.

During the winter of 1874-5, 1875-6, and 1876-7 the suffering of the poor in New York from privation, cold, and want of employment were unprecedented in the history of the metropolis. Every day during these long winters, from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 6:30, Mr. Peter Cooper sat in his office or library on Lexington avenue, and no one, however shabby in dress, was refused admission. On the table before him were piled hundreds of newly coined half-dollars and piles of one-dollar greenbacks, and these piles were replenished every hour by the servants in attendance. His rule was to give every applicant half a dollar in any event, and if the case seemed to be a specially urgent one, the doucour was doubled, with a request either to write a history of the case, have it authenticated by some clergyman or other authority, and send it in for further consideration. As early as 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon crowds of poverty-stricken people—men and women of every nationality and position in life—might be seen gathered in front of the Lexington avenue residence, and the amount expended often amounted to $200 in a single day, irrespective of the special cases that were more carefully inquired into, and in which special aid was given. Most of the applicants were strangers, and many, of course, were downright frauds. But the old man proceeded upon the principle that it is better to be deceived by many than to deny one deserving sufferer. He could afford, he used to say, to give half a dollar to anybody who asked for it, irrespective of the merits of the applicant, and time did not permit him to inquire too minutely into the circumstances. His heaviest week during any season aggregated $1,500; it was considerable money to spend on mendicants; but, as the old man said, the ministers would take care of those who belonged to their denominations, and some one must take care of those who were neither Episcopalians nor Methodists, Presbyterians nor Catholics. It was those who had no religious affiliations who were most liable to suffer without any resources or remedy; and it was for this class that he kept up his distribution of half dollars.—New York Times.

The Bell of the Highlands.

The mysterious ringing of a bell in the vicinity of the Highlands, on the Hudson River, is thus accounted for by an old boatman:

I was worried in my mind for a month before Saturday night. Almost every night when we passed through the Highlands, near the Storm King, we would hear a bell ring. Sometimes it seemed to come from the mountain top, sometimes near the base, and now and then we would hear the tinkle overhead. We compared notes and couldn't decide on the cause of it, but the mystery has been cleared up. Somebody has lost a big American eagle. The bird flew through the streets of Cornwall last Saturday with a steel collar around its neck, to which was attached a good-sized bell, and the bell rang every time the eagle swooped out of its course. The hunters are trying to catch the bird alive. They wouldn't kill it for the world, because they are superstitious, and believe if they should shoot it there would be no luck in the future. I have no doubt lots of boatmen have heard that bell in the night, the same as I have.

"And I have felt it to be my duty to have a short conversation with you in regard to your own soul. I desire to speak with you more particularly in regard to gambling in grain. Do you realize the enormity of the offence?"

"I think I do. Just read that." It was a telegram from Chicago reading: "Our loss in the late deal will be about $14,000 each."

The preacher didn't stay for any further "wrassling," being convinced that his "hearer" must realize the enormity and something to boot.—Wall Street News.

The Trowel Bayonet.

We perceive in a Washington paper that there is some talk in military circles of introducing a new style of bayonet into the army. It is a painful thing to the soldier to have a new kind of bayonet introduced, particularly after he has become accustomed to the triangular, or trowel, bayonet heretofore in use.

The short, broad, triangular bayonet has several advantages possessed by no other implement of death. After a hostile Indian, or any other foe of Uncle Sam's has been bayoneted with the trowel bayonet, he may not like it very much at first, but he never will use any other kind in his family.

In case of necessity, the trowel is intended to be used as an entrenching tool. If a company of infantry, armed with the trowel bayonet, is about to be attacked in a large open prairie, the soldiers can, in a few moments, throw up a breastwork almost as high as their heads. But this is not the only advantage. As the army musket, to the muzzle of which the trowel bayonet is adjusted, is made of comparatively soft metal, the gun barrel bends when the soldiers, the sods with their bayonets turning, throw up the earthworks to protect them from the hostile foe. The gun barrels become bent like so many rainbows. This enables the soldiers to stand behind the breastwork, and without exposing himself in the least, shoot the enemy, who is trying to climb up on the opposite side. A gun that will shoot around a corner may not be very good for long-range target purposes, but it is a great source of comfort to the soldier, who can carry death and destruction into the ranks of the enemy, and not expose himself in the least.

Instead of doing away with the trowel bayonet, other weapons that might serve two or three purposes, should be furnished our gallant soldiers. For turning flapjacks, the trowel bayonet has no rival. With the ordinary long, narrow bayonet, the soldier cannot possibly turn his flapjack without making a mess of it. In digging up mesquite roots for fuel on the boundless prairies of the West, the trowel bayonet is a perfect terror, so the soldiers say. Excellent as the trowel bayonet is, it might be improved somewhat. We think a combined battle axe and a pitchfork bayonet might be invented. It should be somewhat after the style of these table knives made for one-armed men, with a fork on the back of the knife, with which to impale the chunks of beefsteak that have been cut into by the blade of the implement. A weapon of this kind, in the hands of our soldiers, would be very effective. It is also our opinion that a combined spade and revolver, a kind of revolving spade, might be invented, that would deliver a dozen shots a minute, and dig up a ten acre field while it is being reloaded.

We have very little practical military experience, and merely call the attention of General Sherman to these suggestions in a casual off-hand sort of way. We do not wish it to be understood as dictating to the military authorities.—Texas Siftings.

The Making of Shot.

The material is first prepared from the coarse pig lead by a refining process. This is carried to the top of the tower by means of a steam elevator. It is then thrown into the smelting pot, which has a capacity of six tons. A composition, the chief ingredient of which is arsenic, is mixed with the lead. This is done by a skillful hand, and the greatest care is necessary in the preparation. A certain temperature of heat is also required in the smelting process. The lead being in proper order, it is poured into a pan or sieve about twelve inches in diameter, containing several hundred round holes, from which a stream of shot drops to the bottom of the tower into a tank filled with water. The newly-made shot as it drops from the sieve very much resembles a shower bath stream. Here the use of arsenic and the necessity of the great drop is seen. The arsenic is used to keep the little ball of lead made by the sieve compact, while the drop is necessary to cool the missile in order that it retains its roundity before reaching the tank. In this manner four tons of shot per hour are manufactured, different sieves being used for different sizes.—Pittsburgh Despatch.

I tell you what," airily exclaimed him, as he sat down to the supper le, "I was in a tight place this aftern." "Yes, I know you were," interpted his wife, in a clear, cold utance that cut like a knife. "I saw coming out of it." And then it hed across Perkins' mind that he incidentally stepped into a saloon h a friend for the purpose of examg a doubtful political statement, the supper was finished amid a ce so profound that he could plainear a napkin ring.—Rockland Courier.

We wish we could impress on the minds of ten thousands of farmers who hold but a small area, say eighty acres, that they are not necessarily cut off from stock-rearing or feeding. They have some advantages over the large farmers. The care of a small number of animals may come in along with the other work of the farm without noticeable increase of expense or of fatigue to those who do the work. And this means considerable. Where land is fully used there is a large quantity of produce on an eighty-acre farm which can only be profitably utilized by farm animals. Some rotation of crops is nearly always essential to the best farming, and grass and clover should have a prominent place in this rotation. These can best be used on the farm, rather than be sold. We are coming to learn that in cornstalks and leaves there are vast stores of good food which ought to be made better use of than simply turned under the surface.

Down With the Dust!

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammermen Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely and was passing out the door, when the Smith in peremptory tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smith handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to dae wi' these, Deacon?" "Why,' replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "'Nail yer thanks there and pay me saxpence."

One More Excursion.

Peterborough promises to be full to overflowing on Dominion Day, and the hotel keepers and proprietors of eating houses are advised to stock the larder liberally for that day. The Independant Order of Foresters are to make an excursion to Peterborough on July first, when the Brampton Lacrosse Club comes down to cross sticks with the local lads. The excursion will be a large one.

A Square Meal.

Notwithstanding the warmth of the weather yesterday, many persons were out walking; a number of our townspeople were down to the "caboose" on the raft which is at present on the Little Lake, and availed themselves of the hospitality of the cook by helping themselves to enormous sized dishes of pork and beans. One of our dry-goods clerks "stayed for tea," and it is reported that he approached the foreman armed with various testimonials of his sterling qualities, and applied for a steady job, to act in capacity of "cook's devil."

Police Court.

John Edwards, Peterborough's boot black, was up this morning on remand, charged by Constable Johnston with being drunk on Saturday morning. According to the constable's story John was in a beastly condition inasmuch as he was not fit to be tried on Saturday after enjoying a peaceful slumber in the lock-up for four hours. On promising to reform he was allowed to go. John Evans, a Welshman, was led in by P. C. McGinty, charged with being drunk and using profane language. He was noticed this morning acting in a crazy manner on George street. A true bill for vagrancy was brought in against him and he was sent up for one week.

Delightful Summer Pleasure Route.

Mr. W. Nicholls, formerly of Lakefield, the general travelling agent for the North-west Transportation Company, is in town on the business of the company, which is doing a very large business in conveying parties to the North-West, and its water route from Sarnia to Duluth cannot be surpassed anywhere for a cool and pleasant summer trip. Mr. Thos. Menzies is the local agent for the company. It is unnecessary to inform the public, after a business acquaintance of thirty years with Mr. Menzies, that he will cheerfully supply all the information in his possession and deal as liberally and fairly with the public as consistent with the interest of the company, which is fortunate in securing as local representative so pushing, obliging and popular an agent as Mr. Menzies.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

The Electric Fluid's Morning Work.

On Sunday morning, about 7 o'clock, during a violent thunder storm, Mr. S. Bryans, a farmer, aged about 35 years of age, living about half a mile east of Gardon Hill, was struck by lightning and killed. He was standing in the door of his house watching the storm, and his farm servant was beside him, The unfortunate man was instantly killed, and the hired man was seriously stunned but will recover: After doing its deadly work, the bolt shattered the house to a certain extent. This is the second time that Mr. Bryan's has been struck by lightning.

Umbrellas and Parasols a good variety. J. ERSKINE. 6d-6t

Will Come on the 15th.

The Woodstock Sentinal Review states that Prof. Parker, new organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church here, leaves Woodstock, for Peterborough, on Monday, June 15th.

Sweet Street Music.

To-day a quartette of itinerant Italian musicians gave a series of very good street serenades. The musical critic of our staff, having dropped a considerable portion of his week's wages into the hat, obtained an introduction to the prima donna, from whom he learned that the names of the party are Signora Spadofora and husband, J. Spadofora and W. Marrotte.

Highly Creditable Sheet.

The Welland Tribune says:—The Peterborough EXAMINER now issues a daily edition, which is a highly creditable sheet, well printed, ably edited and giving full local news and literary departments. We wish it that full measure of success it so well deserves, and which no doubt a discriminating and appreciative public will heartily accord it.

Loud Street Corner Talk.

Two young men from Cavan, judging from the loud talk in which they indulged on Saturday night about 9 o'clock at the corner of George and Charlotte streets, have by this time doubtless taken satisfaction out of one another. The satisfaction was mutually agreed to be taken on Saturday night but the timely appearance of P C. Adams spoiled the fight.

Port Hope Hit by the Hail.

A resident of Port Hope who arrived in Peterborough this morning informed us that the frontier town received a 'hard racket' from a hail storm last night; scarcely a house escaping without a broken window. The Lakeview House, owned by John Christopher and situated near the G.T.R. station, suffered the most loss, nearly every pane of glass in the house being broken.

The New Noah's Ark.

History repeats itself. Noah's ark, after being tied up somewhere, known only to Dr. Wild, the Bond-street seer, made its appearance on the Little Lake on Sunday, and was the subject of considerable comment from persons visiting the cemetery. However, matters were brought to light this morning. "Noah" (Laplante) reached after it and, towing it to the shore with the assistance of a few able bodied Frenchmen, claimed it as his boat house.

Trent Valley Canal Works.

We understand that Mr. George Goodwin the contracter for the canal works at Burleigh, including Big Burleigh chute, Lovesick Lake and Lovesick Rapids, has made such arrangements with the Government as will enable him to resume and complete his original contract. It was pointed out in the EXAMINER a few months since, that the engineering was so much at fault that the specifications upon which Mr. Goodwin entered into the contract, were so widely at variance with the actual conditions of the work—very much more difficult than the engineer specified—that he refused, very properly, one would think, to proceed with the contract. We understand that the Government has virtually assumed the responsibility for the blundering of its engineer, and made such arrangements with Mr. Goodwin that he can go on with the work, which will be resumed immediately.

"He Nearly Died Laffin."

A bare-footed boy, who has cleared 72 cents every day for the past week selling EXAMINERS, walked into our office on Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock. From his appearance you wouldn't think that he had squandered much on Morse's Mottled soap; and as he swallowed the last bite of a banana, on which he feasted, he accosted the boss-pressman with the following: "Say, Mister; are you the fellow what puts things in the paper?" "No; why?" "Well, 'cause if you wuz, I could tell you somethin' that would make you bust." "Well, tell us anyway." "Oh! gosh, it's too good." "Well tell me and I won't say anything about it." "Well, you know, about 4 o'clock this mornin' I was out practicing for the boys' race on the 1st of July, an' who did I spy comin' down George street near the Methodist Church but Charley McGinty, with his hat in one hand an' his hat in the other and him more'n sweatin', drivin' a nice little cow down to the pound; I felt sorry for the cow, I tell you. Charley thought he had a soft snap, until the cow made a break for the green grass in the Central Park; an' then you should a' seen him take after the cow quicker 'n Fanny B. Oh, you'd a laffed if you wuz there. I nearly died laffin' to see Charley dodgin' trees an' tryin' to keep up to the cow; but he got left by a big majority. I guess Charley ain't trained down very fine yet." And the boy walked out and divided the bananas peel into three pieces, on the sidewalk, to see if he could not manage to catch the man with the big pants, who was coming down near the Postoffice, on some one of them.

A Well Edited, Newsy Sheet.

The Ottawa Free Press says: "The Peterborough EXAMINER appeared on Saturday last as a daily. It is a handsome, well edited newsy sheet, and if its present standard of excellence be maintained it must succeed. It is liberal in politics and on that score alone should command popular support."

Hundreds of Visitors.

On Saturday night the court room of Court Peterborough, C. O. F., was thrown open to the public, and during the evening hundreds visited and admired the beautiful place of meeting. The scene was a very pleasant one. The visitors were all enthusiastic in their praise of the taste that has gone to the elaborate and profuse decoration of the Hall. The walls are thickly hung with landscape paintings between each pair of which are framed photographic portraits of the officers, past and present, of the Court in full Forester regalia and costume. There are several fine specimens of taxidermy, including a fawn, a beaver rampant, a lynx couchant and a bear cub. Vases of living flowers in full bloom were disposed in various parts of the hall. There is no finer hall of the Order, or none even approaching it, in Ontario, and the most beautiful thing about it is that every cent which the improvements cost, is paid for in full with a handsome credit balance in the bank besides. Court Peterborough is flourishing like the oaks in Epping Forest in the good old times of Robin Hood.

Just received a further assortment of Linen Edging, various widths. J. ERSKINE. 6d-6t

TUESDAY, JUNE 9, 1885.

Borough Brevities.

—There was a slight frost last night.

—Special meeting of the Town Council to-night.

—The farmers are jubilant over promises of an abundant harvest.

The foundations for Mr. Geo. A. Cox's new tenement terrace on Hunter street are nearly laid.

—Workmen are removing the large cobble stones that cumber the face of George street, in the wheelwright's interest.

—With the weather of last night and this morning, it was possible to enjoy, as far as chill and blizzard went, the luxury of a June sleigh ride on wheels.

—The probabilities promise finer weather for this evening and the excursion down the river to-night to Faucher's Park promises to be a delightful one.

—The new tenement terrace of Messrs. Star and Baptie, corner George and London streets is rising rapidly. The first story is completed.

—The wonderful growth of the season has developed a rich crop of grass on residence streets, and cows tethered to boys may be seen mowing it down.

—The Metropolitans of Ottawa failed to wrest the Junior Championship from the Shamrocks in Montreal, on Saturday last. They were beaten by a score of 3 to 1.

—The Salvation Army had the largest circle on the Market Square on Sunday last that has appeared as yet in the knee-drill. They gained one convert and proudly marched to their barracks.

—Mr. E. Birdsall is supplying the Commercial Hotel, corner of Brock and George streets, with a new summer suit, a coat of rough-cast plaster. Mr. Whitehair is the contractor.

—With the endless traffic of wheels on George street the ordinary street metal doesn't last in good condition more than a year before holes are gouged out at frequent points. How would it do to consider the the matter of paving George street substantially?

—A Cobourg paper remarks, that the baseball club at that town could send the Silver Stars or the Lindsayites home with nine goose-eggs. It should have said a whole "goose island," if they play their base ball matches in the same sand pit that they play their lacrosse matches.

—Rubidge street is getting its share of boulevarding this year. Mr. John McBain has thrown a fine boulevard around the front of his property, corner of King street, and it has been extended by Mr. Geo. Rubidge in front of his estate alongside. A new boulevard has also been laid down in front of Cox's new terrace.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Father Keilty was in town to-day making arrangements for the annual Ennismore picnic.

To-day, Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, Rector, St. Luke's, and Mr. R. Meade, one of the lay delegates to the Toronto Synod, left for Toronto.

Rev. J. W. R. Beck, Rector of St. John's church, went to Toronto to-day to attend the sessions of the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto, now in session in the Queen city.

Mr. H. Gummer, representative of the Guelph Herald, gave us a call to-day. He is in town attending the session of the High Court of Foresters.

Mr. P. Murray, of the Orillia Times, and Mr. J. Maynard, of Orillia, gave us a call yesterday. They are on their way to Montreal to attend the meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

Mr. Chas. C. Hampshire, organist and choir master of St John's church, as will be seen by card in another column, is prepared to receive pupils for instruction in singing, and organ and piano forte playing. Mr. Hampshire comes to Peterborough highly recommended by those who have had the pleasure of his instruction. Among his numerous testimonials are two very flattering ones from the Bishop of Niagara, and Dr. Davis of Toronto.

Latest from the North-West.

OTTER ADVANCES ON TURTLE LAKE

Big Bear Cornered.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 8.—When the House of Commons met to-day, before the orders for the day were called the hon. minister of militia said he had just received two telegrams conveying the tidings of the safety of the prisoners in Big Bear's hands.

RIEL'S TRIAL.

When the orders were called, in answer to Mr. McMullen, Sir John Macdonald said that Riel's trial would take place in due course of time and before the ordinary tribunals. Messrs. Christopher Robinson and B. B. Osler of Toronto, and T. Chase Casgrain of Quebec, and Mr. Scott of Regina, had been engaged as crown counsel, but others might be engaged.

BATTLEFORD, June 8.—Col. Otter's column leaves for Turtle Lake to-day. It is reported that Big Bear is moving eastward.

THE PLANS.

Gen. Middleton is now marching as fast as transport facilities will permit, and expects to overtake the enemy in two days with a flying column of about 250 strong, composed of mounted police, Boulton's horse, Alberta Rifles, Dennis' corps, and two Gatlings.

TO PROVIDE FOR THE CONTINGENCY

of Big Bear not standing, Col. Otter has been directed to march his command north to protect the Jackfish Lake and Turtle Lake country, while Col. Irvine will proceed from Prince Albert by the Green Lake trail to watch all the points there. This should as every outlet south and east will be guarded, and in the event of retrograde movements to the north should encounter Gen. Strange's force at Cold Lake. It is probable, however, that the Middleton column will overtake Big Bear and force fight or surrender. The Grenadiers march north to-morrow to reinforce Strange at Cold Lake. If Big Bear is on his way to join Riel at Batoche, of whose defeat and of the presence of Middleton he is believed to be ignorant, his complete discomfiture is a foregone conclusion.

RENDER ESCAPE OF THE ENEMY IMPOSSIBLE,

THE WOMEN USED WELL.

FORT PITT, June 5, via Straubenzie, June 7, via Qu'Appelle, N.W.T., June 7.—Wm. McKay and a party of scouts rescued Mrs. Gowanlock and Mrs. Delaney, and both are now on the steamer, Mrs. Gowanlock and Mrs. Delaney are loud in their praise of the Halfbreeds who have protected them throughout.

SICKENING SIGHTS.

A correspondent with the 90th, writing from camp near Fort Pitt, says: From Frog Lake settlement to Fort Pitt the distance is 30 miles. The first part was over a very good trail. Many evidences of Indians being in the neighborhood were seen, but no Indians themselves. Fort Pitt is on the north bank of the Saskatchewan, on a flat extending about one mile from the river. When the column reached the crest of the range overlooking the fort no fort was seen, but smoke was. Only a few hours before a large band of Indians had visited the place and set the different buildings on fire and they were still smouldering. On our arrival a scrutiny of the remains of the fort revealed some sickening facts. On the bank of the river the body of a dead policeman was found. The head was charred beyond recognition, the heart cut out, hands and feet manacled, the lower part of the stomach cut open and the whole a mass of festering corruption. In the bush the body of a second man was found stripped and burnt, the heart cut, abdomen cut open and hands chopped off. Both these men had been scalped. It was a disgusting and sickening sight, and again bitter curses on the Indians were heard.

Arriving at Frog Lake the settlement was found to consist of the Roman Catholic mission, a mill and some eight or nine settlers' houses, and the church parsonage. Every settlers house was burned, levelled to the ground, and their contents strewn around in the cellar of the parsonage, and guided there by a terrible smell, one of the most awful sights ever seen was witnessed. Four dead bodies were found huddled together in the corner. Two of the bodies were those of Father Faffard and Father Lafiac, and another was that of a lay brother, and the fourth of some one unknown. The corpses were horribly mangled. All four heads were charred with fire beyond recognition. The four hearts had been torn out and wide incisions had been made in the lower part of the stomachs. The strong men of the regiment cried like women. The four corpses were interred next morning.

Watson's Worthy Work.

Some persons may not be aware that the C.P.R. ticket office and Dominion Express office is open in the Burnham block, but the large, well painted and conspicious new sign hung out this morning, leaves them without further excuse for ignorance of the fact. It was painted by Watson, and is worthy of the artistic bristle he is wont to wield.

The Signal Lamps.

Mr. W. Dixon received to-day and exhibited for some time this afternoon in the Canadian express office the signal lamp which was purchased for the signal corps of the 57th Battalion. It is mounted on a tripod, which stands about five feet high, and is quite an ingenious style of lamp. The light, which is supposed to be seen at a distance of eleven miles, will be reflected by a very powerful metallic mirror plate and no doubt will prove to be a success in the first trial, which will be made to-morrow night.

Police Court.

There were no victims at the Police Court this morning; the "hoodlums" evidently wishing to see the band heading the procession of Foresters to the Golden Eye this evening, refrained from running the risk of getting sent up for indulging in alcoholic stimulants.

DEFEATED BY A DOZEN.

Gladstone Out-Voted by Twelve.

LONDON, June 8.—In the commons this afternoon Mr. Childers announced that the government had decided not to refund to the taxpayers the amount of the increased duty on spirits paid over and above the extra shilling per gallon finally decided on because the consumers had been charged higher rates after the announcement of the original increase. Mr. Childers moved the second reading of the budget, and in supporting the speech, explained that of the total increase in the beer and spirits duties England pays seven-ninths, Scotland one-ninth and Ireland one-ninth.

Sir Michael Hicks Beach, Conservative, violently denounced the increased duty on spirits. He thought a small increase in the duty on tea would have been wiser and much more profitable. The government should have raised the duty on wine. Sir Michael concluded by moving that the proposed increase in the duty on spirits and beer was inevitable in the absence of a corresponding addition to the duties on wine.

Sir Stanfield Northcote and others having spoken, Mr. Gladstone in reply said he thought the opposition were creating a precedent they would regret when they came into power again. The previous reduction of the wine duties had a beneficial effect in preventing the adulteration and increasing the trade many millions annually. The Government had to choose between alcoholic liquors and tea and sugar. They would accept the issue of the vote as one of life or death and did not envy those who, if they gained a victory, would have to bear the consequences. Mr. Gladstone's remarks were received with prolonged cheers.

The motion for the second reading was rejected by 264 to 252.

When the result was announced Lord Randolph Churchill and Mr. Parnell jumped up on their seats and enthusiastically waved their hats and the cheering was renewed. Thirty-nine Parnellites and all the Conservatives voted with the majority. The minority included Sir Michael Bass, the brewer, and several Irish Liberals. Although strong whips had been issued many Government supporters were absent.

The House immediately became a babel of confusion, members yelling, stamping and waving hats, neckties and handkerchiefs. Tumultous cheers came from the galleries, and the Speaker vainly howled for order.

The Parnellites pointed at Mr. Gladstone and yelled: "That is the price of coercion," "Down with Buckshot Forster," "Remember Myles Joyce."

Mr. Gladstone arose to move the adjournment, but stood in his place fully a minute before he could be heard.

PORT HOPE'S HAIL STORM

Immense Damage Done.

The Guide furnishes the following fuller particulars of the terribly severe hail storm, that broke upon that devoted town on Sunday. The storm commenced between eight and nine o'clock and came from the northwest the flashes of lightning were most vivid, and hail stones as large as walnuts fell. One taken up measured five inches and a half in circumference. In the midst of the storm the large bell of the Methodist Church rang, when it was found that the brick building on Cavan Street occupied by John Trick, as a planing mill, Samuel Coombe, as a carpenter shop, V. A. Coleman, as a trace buckle factory and W. C. Black, as a horse collar manufactory, was on fire. The building was owned by Mr. H. Barrett. There was no insurance on any of the property. Mr. Black is the heaviest loser, his loss being estimated at about $500. Mr. Coleman loses a couple of hundred dollars, Mr. Coombe will lose about one hundred dollars, Mr. Trick loses comparatively little. Mr. Barret will lose three or four hundred dollars on the building and on flour he had stored there, which was covered by insurance. Windows were broken in all parts of the town. The Town Hall suffered to the extent of over one hundred lights of glass; Christopher's Hotel, the G. T. R. station, the Turner House, all the houses on King street south of the viaduct suffered more or less; those who had shutters only escaped. The gardens and fruit trees were also very badly damaged. The steamer Norseman, lying at her dock, had the windows in the wheel house and on the side exposed to the storm, broken. Some glass was broken in the Baptist Church, but all the other churches escaped uninjured. In Mr. John Helm's green house and grapery over seven hundred lights of double thick glass were broken. Sly's green house and gardens were completely destroyed, entailing a loss of many hundreds of dollars. All Mr. Sly's means were invested in his garden and green house. In the country there was great damage done. Several barns were blown down and a number of others were unroofed, and one or two houses were partially striped of the shingles. The crops are very much damaged in the track of the storm, peas in particular suffered severely, garden truck was ruined and windows were badly broken. Mr. Geo. Hill lost a valuable two years old colt by lightning. Fences were blown down in every direction. On the whole, it is the worst storm that has burst upon us for years. The women folks throughout the storm centre were very badly frightened, and a number of families sought refuge in the cellars. We believe that the storm proper did not extend over a mile or two in width It is quite evident that this was the same storm that struck St. Thomas, yesterday, about four o'clock, killing a Mrs. James Ryan and doing a fearful amount of damage in the city. It was four hours travelling from St. Thomas—a pretty good rate of speed.

BRIDGENORTH.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A picnic was held in the Bridgenorth park on Friday last by the Victoria, Union, Omemee and Mt. Pleasant Lodges of Good Templars. Owing to the unfavorable aspect of the weather in the morning the number present was not so large as expected. The picnicers enjoyed themselves dancing, playing croquet, etc.

We understand that Mr. J. H. Brumwell is going to build a new saw mill on the site of the one lately destroyed by fire. The new mill will be fitted up with improved machinery in a thoroughly first class manner.

GLADSTONE RESIGNED.

Verdict of the House Accepted.

(Special Telegram to the EXAMINER.)

LONDON, ENG., June 9.—Gladstone has just announced the resignation of his cabinet in the House of Commons. A cabinet council was convened at noon, and was in session until 1:15 o'clock, all the members present. It was understood that the situation was thoroughly discussed, and it was decided, in view of defeat last night, it would be inconsistent for members of the Cabinet to remain longer in office, and it was resolved that their resignation be tendered. The Queen was at once furnished with a report of the decision of the Cabinet, which has caused a feverish feeling on stock exchange. Consols have declined ⅜, while Russians declined ¼ lower. On all provincial exchanges a weak feeling is more marked.

His Honor, Judge Dennistoun, in his address to the grand jury commented on the fact that there were only two prisoners who would come up for trial at the present session, one to be tried for larceny and the other for obtaining money under false pretences. His Honor explained carefully to the jury their duties and the nature of the charges and the law applicable thereto.

The first case on the list was Bletcher vs. Bradburn (Wm.) This was an action for penalty under the registration of Partnerships Act. Adjourned for argument in term. Mr. Poussette for Plaintiff; Mr. Weller and Mr. Edmison for Defendant.

Bletcher vs. Bradburn (Thos.) Same style of action. Also adjourned. Mr. Poussette for Plaintiff; Mr. Weller and Mr. Edmison for Defendant.

Bay of Quinte Conference.

MONDAY, JUNE 8th.

The session of the conference of the Methodist church continued to-day. Among others the educational report was presented, and showed that 100 professors are educating 1,800 students, of whom 100 are preparing for the ministry. The mission report stated that not one of the 10,000 Indians in Methodist mission territory had joined in the rebellion. A resolution was passed condemning the Senate's tampering with the Scott Act.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

Editorial Notes.

In respect to Riel's trial, if the hangman keeps him in suspense as long as the Government is keeping him, he will be a very defunct patriot.

The London Graphic declares that the Government is afraid to hang Riel. It would appear, at any rate, they are afraid to try him.

Mr. G. D. Hawley, the former representative, of Lennox, in the local House, will be a candidate in the election that takes place on June 26th. The Standard, the local conservative organ. hints that there is a possibility of the election going by acclamation, though, of course, it does not favour Mr. Hawley's candidature, but suggests that Mr. Blackstock is the coming man.

The present session of the Dominion Parliament will altogether likely not close before August. It is a mistake to suppose that the Franchise Bill is Sir John's only difficulty. The Northwest troubles are to be discussed. The Canadian Pacific relief demand has to come before the House, and the whole of the expenditure must be talked over. The worst for Sir John's Government has still to come.

According to Mr. James Ross, Superintendent of construction on the C. P. R., the road has been completed to within 10 miles of the summit of the Selkirk's, and only seventy miles of the contract this side of Onderdonk's remain to be finished. At present there are 5,000 men at work on the railway. 1,000 having been sent out within the last ten days, and inside a month 2,000 more will be forwarded. The C. P. R., is now being operated to the first crossing of the Columbia River—a distance of 1,025 miles. Not many months will elapse before a train will run from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Despatches from the North-west indicate that a secret organization is being formed among the soldiers with the object to ensure Riel's death should he escape punishment at the hands of the authorities. In connection with this the London Advertiser says: "Riel was taken by the soldiers to the commanding officer, and by him handed over to the civil authorities, and there the duty of the soldiers, so far as Riel is at present concerned, ends. Canada cannot afford to encourage assassination societies, no matter who may be the object of the vengeance."

It is said the Government will ask for delay in the trial of Riel, in order to procure evidence.

We observe in the Canadian Gazette a map of the Northwest, showing the Canadian Pacific Railway and the localities of the "Riel" rising. It is accompanied by the following explanation:—"In order to prevent confusion as to the places affected by the deplorable Riel rising, we produce the above map of the Northwest. The principal points of settlement are upon the course of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It will be seen that Battleford and Batoche, the scenes of late encounters, lie quite 200 miles north of the railway, and that the other centres are yet more distant. It must be obvious, on reflection, that comparatively few settlers are even open to be affected by what is now taking place." The circulation of these maps among the English newspapers will do much to neutralize the discouraging effect of the Northwest rising or immigration.

Why the People Cannot Consent to the Passage of the Franchise Bill.

What is to be this duty which is going to be discharged? It is the duty of making and revising the lists of the jury empanelled to try the Government of the day, which is to try the question between the Government and the Opposition. Why should those who are in the majority, who have all the advantage which place gives, which power gives, which patronage gives, which majority gives—why should they in addition have the power of naming the men who are to settle the lists of those who are to determine whether they shall continue to hold this power or not? I ask for answers to these arguments. We have not heard any answers yet. We have heard no reason given why the views taken in other countries, the views so obviously based upon reason and justice, should not be applied here. I maintain that those members of Parliament who will assent in silence to the passing of a law to surrender to the Government of the day the appointment of the men who are to make and revise the lists, are unworthy of sitting in a free Parliament, and those who feel, as my hon. friends near me feel, that this is a question vital to the reality of free representative institutions, are not merely at liberty, but are also bound, to struggle to the utmost of their ability against the incorporation of this vicious principle in the law of Canada. Why, sir, to say that our present system involves occasionally some injustice in the making of the lists to the one party or the other, that occasionally an over zealous and improper Conservative assessor or functionary makes the lists wrongly, and occasionally an improper and over zealous Reform assessor does the same thing, and that that is a reason for this change—I do not say for a change but for this change—is absurd; because this change is one which puts the dead weight of a revising officer all the time on one side, which says it shall be the nominee of the Government in all cases who shall make the list, and the other party, the party of the minority, shall have the function to appeal. It is a very great blessing that it is able to appeal, but it is a very great misfortune that it should always have to appeal. And as a matter of fact many appeals will not take place, because the difficulty, the expense, the loss of time, the uncertainty, the trouble would prevent the appeals which ought to take place. But, as I said on the second reading of the Bill, the lists will be made right for the appointers of the Revising officers. We are to have an appeal, and, though we are thankful for small mercies, though he gives us now at this late hour the right to make an appeal, we insist, with all the force with which we can insist, that he has not the right to take to himself the power of appointing the maker of the lists of those who are to judge him. To these proposals of his, which are to combine the functions of making and revising the lists in one single man, who cannot be competent to do it for the reasons I have stated, and to remove the making of the lists from those best qualified by knowledge and experience, and the confidence of the people, to perform that function, and hand over to the Government of the day the appointment of the maker and reviser, I, for my part, offer my humble, and earnest, and strenuous, and lasting, and persistent opposition.—Hon. Edward Blake.

BENSFORT.

(From Our Own Correspondent,)

It is expected that the Orange body of Fraserville lodge will attend church service at Centreville, on Sunday July 12th.

A petition has been circulated and largely signed to be presented to the Warden and council at June session, at Cobourg, asking them for their influence in constructing a substantial and permanent crossing over the Otonabee river, owing to inconvenience and danger, also expense of maintaining Wallace Point bridge.

The rapid growth attending grain and everything that a spring shower will invigorate, is beyond anything anticipated. The season of seeding was rather late, but fields are looking better than at the same date last year.

The Fairdale cheese factory is again in operation after being idle now a number of years. It is in better running order than when operated before. Mr. C. Walker is the driving contractor for the east.

The fishing season is now fast coming in, that is, for those who have waited patiently the required time. The advisability of looking after spawn that become exposed on account of the water leaving the bogs, marshes and creeks, is frequently spoken of and it is considered, many valuable fish are lost through being exposed. By the way, does everybody secure the required permit before indulging in the pleasant amusement of angling?

WIT AND HUMOR.

Clerk of the Court: "Owen Doherty Are you Owen Doherty?" Prisoner (with a merry twinkle in his eyes): "Yes, begorra, I'm owing everybody."

The enterprising individual who is organizing a brass band of twenty women says that, if they learn half as many "airs" as they put on, the experiment cannot fail to be a success.

"Is it wrong to cheat a lawyer?" was recently very ably discussed by the members of a debating society. The conclusion arrived at was that it was not wrong, but impossible.

Some one says "no thoroughly occupied man was ever miserable." That man evidently don't know what it is to attempt the feat of keeping twin babies quiet while their mother goes to church.

In Arkansas they call it a romantic marriage where a couple of the neighbors get the bride's father in a back room and sit on him to prevent his interrupting and breaking up the wedding.

A gentleman having his hair cut, and being annoyed with the operator's stories, in the middle of each he said, "Cut it short." At last the barber, in a rage, exclaimed: "It cannot be cut shorter, for every hair on your head is cut off."

Dr. Chalmers used to say that when he is in the act of tipping his hat to a lady whom he supposes to be an acquaintance it requires a good deal of tact to make believe that he is only scratching his forehead when he finds she is a stranger.

"Say, Pat, whatever made you go to work for old Uncle Dan? He's the meanest man in the country." "Mane is it?" said Pat: "why, shure an' he's the foinest, aisiest goin' master iver I had, bedad. He gives a man fifteen hours to do a day's work in."

"I tell you," said Poots, "there's an indescribable sense of luxury in lying in bed and ringing one's bell for his valet." "You got a valet!" exclaimed Poots' friend. "No," replied Poots, "but I've got the bell." — Cincinnati Saturday Night.

"Oh, ma," said Jennie Parvenu, when she came home from a dance at Newport, "You should have seen Mrs. Dash. She looked just too lovely for any thing, had diamonds just as big as yours, and she was the sinecure of all eyes!" "Law, you don't say!" said ma.

Elderly and obnoxious suitor who was the first to arrive and evidently means to be the last to go: "I have forgotten most of my mathematics, but at your age, sir, I was devoted to them." Impatient young lover: "Ah! then you are probably familiar with the 'rule of three.'" E. S.: "The rule of three?" I. Y. L.: "Yes, that two is company and three is one more."

"Your son has been knocked off the railroad and killed," exclaimed a man approaching an Arkansas Colonel. "Who knocked him off?" excitedly demanded the Colonel. "A railroad engine." "Well, that begins to explain matters, for I knew devilish well he wasn't knocked off by any ordinary man. He was one of the boys, let me tell you."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Even in the making of a will, little peculiarities will occasionally present themselves. Here is an Irish specimen: "I hereby give and bequeath to my beloved wife Bridget the whole of my property without reserve; and to my eldest son, Patrick, one-half of the remainder; and to Dennis, my youngest son, the rest. If anything is left, it may go, together with the old cart without wheels, to my sincere and affectionate friend, Terence McCarthy, in sweet Ireland."

Edmund Yates says in the London World: "An officer of the Fourth Hussars tells me they have got over forty gentleman serving as troopers, and I hear that the Buffs, or what used to be the Buffs, has also got a large number of gentleman privates. This looks as though the service was improving, and seems to throw a new light upon the question of what is to become of our sons."

A creditor having knocked at the door, the fast young man's simple-hearted servant opens it. "Is your master in?" "I can not say, sir; I will see." "Tell him I have gone traveling," says the young man. The servant does so. "Hum! When'll he return from his journey?" says the disappointed creditor. "I don't know sir. But"—as a happy thought strikes him—"I'll go and ask him, sir."—French Paper.

Balloon-Steering.

In regard to the subject of ballooning and the recent French experiment in steering a balloon, it may be noted that the analogies of nature are adverse to the attainment of artificial flight by means of a balloon. We do not mean by way of detail, but by way of principle. The theory of a balloon is that of levitation—that is to say, of counterpoising gravity by the displacing of a given bulk of atmospheric air by a lighter gas. That the latter method involves the exposure of so large a surface to atmospheric currents as to require great force to overcome the resistance of a rapid breeze by fans, screws, or other mechanical means, is well known. But the point to which we refer is this: In the flight of every bird or insect the weight of the animal is directly utilized for maintaining it in the air. At the will of the bird, the feathered surface that it exposes to the wind can be so inclined to the movement of the latter as to make the creature rise or fall at will, by the direct action of the wind, without any visible motion of the wings. From the deck of a vessel a gull may be watched, hovering for many minutes together, without one flap of its wings. The bird at such times is a living kite, its power of self-balance producing the effect of the string of the kite in maintaining a certain inclined position relative to the wind. And although some birds of the swiftest flight have an extraordinary area of wing surface in proportion to their weight, others, of equal or even superior power of flight, have very little wing surface in proportion to their weight. Thus the problem of flight has been solved by nature in many ways; but in all of them the gravity of the living creature, far from being destroyed or counterpoised, is an essential element of its mechanical action. The inference that we draw from this is that the opposite principle, that of levitation, is not likely to be followed with mechanical success except on rare occasions.—Builder.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

or,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The Leaden Casket," "Thorncroft's Model," &c. &c.

am sure he is as well dressed as you are, Phlip. She need not pity him!"

"She will be better if we leave her," said Aunt Esther; "she always did like her own company best when anything was amiss."

They went, and Lucy staid on the deck; and though she was in a very strange and perplexed frame of mind, she was conscious of the soothing influence of quiet, and derived a certain dimly-felt enjoyment from the sight of the sleepy light on the water. She was also much pleased with a few words from the captain, which meant rough sympathy of some kind.—He did not know what was amiss with her he told the mate—"he reckoned the miss's temper might be a little out of order, or it might be some love trouble as was disturbing her." The mate thought she was only "enjoying ill health" that day. In any case the captain said a cheering word to her, and she felt the better for it. "It never does to strike one's colors, miss, when any other way can be found for it! There's more good days a-coming." He said this as he was stepping into the dingy to go on shore, and to his great surprise Lucy said, "Oh! if a boat is going on shore, I will go in it, and walk about a little."

She went, and strolled through dull St. Servan, and wondered where Mr. Richmond had stayed, and thought she would like to see the outside of the house—and then she passed one of the most tumble-down and rickety wind-mills in the world, and presently found herself in the mid-air railway which joins the two towns. Once in St. Malo, she went onwards, and walked about the walls, and finally arrived at a point where she was just above the causeway which led to the Grand Bey.

"And so that is the way he went that day we first met him," thought she. "Poor fellow, he had to toil painfully over the rough stones, and through these dull, dusty towns, while we glided smoothly over the water in a boat which ought to have been his. It is disgraceful that all these means of comfort should be in the possession of such stupid, commonplace, self-indulgent people as we are, whilst he who would do some good with them if he had them has to work under such difficulties! We are a thoroughly ignorant set of people. We just eat, drink, and sleep, or feebly amuse ourselves. I perhaps might be a little better if I were sometimes with him. I am sure he could improve me. I feel better already since I have seen him." Then she almost blushed when she remembered that ever since she had first seen him he had never wholly been out of her thoughts. "It would not do for me to lose my heart to him," said she to herself. "But that is absurd! How can I care for him when I have only seen him once? But," she added, mentally, "he is no stranger to me. His mind was revealed to me in his pictures. When I first saw them I felt I knew and liked him.—The circumstances which bind me to him are so peculiar, too; I cannot help thinking of him. But why do I say bind!" thought she; "do they not rather separate us! It is very hard to be separated thus from a man I could have liked so much!" She was during this soliloquy crossing the causeway to the Grand Bey. She was not doing it in absence of mind, for though her thoughts were wholly given up to Hugh Richmond she knew where she was going. She was taking pleasure, too, in the idea that her steps were being planted on the very stones where his had been such a short while before. She would run up to the summit of the island; she would stand where she stood with him then; she would try to recall his face while speaking, as accurately as she recalled each word that he had said. Then she would look for the brooch she had lost, and thus please Aunt Esther, who could not cease to regret it and then she would return before the tide rose. She had not forgotten the importance of doing this; indeed, she knew all about tides now that she was the owner of a yacht, but she knew there could be no danger from the tide for nearly two hours. She thoroughly enjoyed her solitary walk. Her thoughts were happy. She could never see Hugh Richmond, never be a friend of his, for he no doubt would always avoid her; but, in spite of himself, she would be his good angel, and would contrive that he should paint without any fear of having to work for money, or of being obliged to undergo any privation likely to stand in the way of his artistic development. She would in some way, entirely unsuspected by him, buy every picture he painted—she would hide them lest he learnt that she was the purchaser. He would rise to the head of his profession, and never know she had even this humble share in building up his fortune, and she would save a quantity of money out of her income, and persuade some one to die and leave it to him.—There would be much comfort and joy in these benefactions—and if she could not see him she could see his pictures. "I do wonder why I like him so much," thought she. "He talked well when he got to know us better—but it is not that—and he is very handsome; but I am sure I should never care for him for his looks alone—no, I like him because he paints so divinely, and still more because I have injured him."

She stood on the very spot where he had stood to make his sketch. She stood where he had stood by Chateaubriand's tomb. She had a perfect feast of retrospection. The sea was sparkling with blue and white brilliance—she had not time to think of it. The air was buoyant and light. Her heart was light, too, for she had made this plan for the future and it pleased her. Happy as she was she remembered that she ought not to stay here more than an hour and a half, and looking at her watch she saw it was time to go.—Her feet sped quickly over the grassy slopes—she did not mean to be imprisoned on this island. She saw something lying on the grass. It was a note-book. She knew it was Mr. Richmond's, for she had seen it two days before; but he had taken it with him when he went, for she had seen it in his hand when he was in the boat.—She opened it to be sure, and saw a note of an effect which he had shown her when he made it. Then he had been on the Grand Bey once more—had perhaps not gone to Quimperlé! She soon reassured herself by remembering that he might have returned here just before starting, and on she went to the steps—but halfway down them, and walking rapidly, she saw Mr. Richmond himself on his way to the causeway, which the sea was each moment approaching more nearly. "I have no time to lose," said she to herself "but I'll let him get on a little, and then I'll follow as quickly as I can." He soon reached the causeway and then walked on, and Lucy, when she saw that she could advance a little without any risk of being seen if he turned round, ran onwards too, and then hid behind some rocks until it was time for the next venture.—When he was nearly across she thought she might go, and ran quickly to the narrow path which he had so lately used.—But the tide was now coming in rapidly. Lucy had not gone more than fifty or sixty yards before the first wave washed gently over the edge of the stones which hunt up the causeway, then came a second and then a third, and then, alas! their gentleness departed, and she saw them leap up

The Philosophy of Lightning Rods.

A lightning conductor consists essentially of a long piece of metal, pointed at the end, whose business it is, not so much (as most people imagine) to carry off the flash of lightning harmlessly, should it happen to strike the house to which the conductor is attached, but rather to prevent the occurrence of a flash at all, by gradually and gently drawing off the electricity as fast as it gathers, before it has had time to collect in sufficient force for a destructive discharge. It resembles in its effect an overflowing pipe which drains off the surface water of a pond as soon as it runs in in such a manner as to prevent the possibility of an inundation which might occur if the water were allowed to collect in force behind a dam or embankment. It is a flood-gate, not a moat; it carries away the electricity of the air quietly to the ground without allowing it to gather in sufficient amount to produce a flash of lightning. It might thus be better called a lightning preventor than a lightning conductor; it conducts electricity, but prevents lightning. At first, all lightning rods used to be made with knobs on the top, and then the electricity used to gather at the surface until the electric force was sufficient to cause a spark. In those happy days you had the pleasure of seeing that the lightning was actually being drawn off from your neighborhood piecemeal. Knobs, it was held, must be the best things, because you could incontestably see the sparks striking them with your eyes. But as time went on, electricians discovered that if you fixed a fine metal point to the conductor of an electric machine it was impossible to get up any appreciable charge, because the electricity kept always leaking out by means of the point. Then it was seen that if you made your lightning rods pointed at the end you would be able in the same way to dissipate your electricity before it ever had time to come to a head in the shape of lightning. From that moment the thunderbolt was safely dead and buried. It was urged, indeed, that the attempt thus to rob heaven of its thunders was wicked and impious; but the common sense of mankind refused to believe that absolute omnipotence could be sensibly defied by twenty yards of cylindrical iron tubing.

It is not so well known that the brain and spinal cord are apparently conductors, and hence a lightning stroke on the head does not materially injure the brain beyond shattering the brains and causing temporary derangement. Most persons struck by lightning do not remember anything about the stroke, but others describe a sensation such as would be caused by their being struck a heavy blow, and some have likened the shock to what they would be supposed to feel if torn into small pieces.—Cornhill Magazine.

The Wintun Indians of the Sacramento Valley believe in three worlds, and that each has its peculiar class of inhabitants. The sky is smoke, while to the majority of Indians it is ice, and a few think it quartz crystal. Mountains were made by the burrowing of the mole god. Light and darkness are maiden goddesses. Rocks and other inanimate things were once living, and some rocks now live and speak, this being the Wintun explanation of echoes. Whirlwinds are little spirits seeking water to drink. Diseases are caused by mythical animals.

Down With the Dust!

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammersmen Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely and was passing out the door, when the Smith in peremptory tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smith handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to dae wi' these, Deacon?" "Why,' replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail yer thanks there and pay me sarpence."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

TUESDAY, JUNE 9, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

ALL AROUND TOWN.

Farmers.

Read T. Hurley's advertisement—Great Bargain of Land, &c. d-w

Baseball.

Mr. W. H. Dayman, Secretary of the Silver Star Baseball Club, of Peterborough, has received a challenge from the Yelverton B. B. C. The latter club wants to play here on Saturday, June 20th. We would like to see the Stars stir up or "fall." They have not made an example of any club up to this date during the present season.

Lawn Social.

A lawn social in aid of Ebenezer Methodist Church, Cavan, will be held at Mr. D. Sharp's, Cavan, on Friday evening, June 26. To attend this social will be a pleasant drive for a number of the young ladies and gentlemen of the town. Mrs. Daly, of the George street Methodist Church Choir, is expected to assist with the musical part of the programme. The Bethany Brass Band will also be present.

The Agricultural Grounds.

The work on the new agricultural grounds adjoining the Peterborough Driving Park has begun in earnest. The old fence, which surrounded the grounds previously, has been torn down and post holes are being sunk preparatory to building the new one. Everything is progressing favorably with the single exception of the opening up of George street to the Park. However, we will live in the hope that this work will be commenced ere the "leaves begin to turn."

The Race Arranged.

Mr. A. Elliott, Secretary of the Peterborough Driving Park Association, received a letter from A. Adams, of Port Hope, yesterday stating that the running race, mile heats, between Job Dickinson's "Wild Deer" and J. McLean's "Lady Macdonald," to which we have time and again referred has been definitely arranged and is to come off on the track of the Peterborough Driving Park on Monday, July 20th. The stakes are $500 a side and the money has been deposited in the hands of Mr. Adams. Another field day for the Park.

Bright and Newsy.

The Galt Reformer says:—We are in receipt of the first number of the EVENING EXAMINER, published at Peterborough. We have for years looked upon the Peterborough EXAMINER as the most wide-a-wake and enterprising weekly in Eastern Ontario, and this new departure shows that we are not mistaken. The new daily is just what we would expect from a gentleman of Mr. Stratton's ability and push—well-gotten-up, bright and newsy. It is a credit to the go-a-head town where it is published, and we have little doubt will meet with that appreciation which it deserves.

A Letter From "Dick."

Mr. M. Tierney yesterday received a letter from R. S. Kelly, better known as "Dick" Kelly, dated June 1st, from "Moosejaw," N. W. T., in which he says, that he has been laid up for six weeks in the hospital at that place, with inflammation of the lungs. The doctors at one time had very poor hopes for his recovery, and, as "Dick" expresses it, "thought he would soon be shipped in a little square box to Peterborough." At present, however, he is getting along nicely, and makes anxious enquiries about the Lacrosse Club of this town. Percy Myles, he says, by this time, has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant by General Middleton—an honor which he well deserved. He also mentioned that S. Rush, one of his comrades, and nephew of Mr. H. Rush, was quite well and enjoying a particularly good appetite, and winds up a very interesting manuscript by requesting his correspondent to send a paper with the account of the Queen's birthday sports, so as to get the news before he is called to the front.

LACROSSE.

One Game Each.

We stated in yesterday's issue of the "EXAMINER" that a scratch match would be played by the Peterborough Lacrosse Club last evening, on their new grounds. It was also announced that the park would be free to everybody who wished to go, and accordingly, last night, notwithstanding the chilly weather, eighteen or twenty members of the P.L.C. donned their uniforms of navy and white and repaired to the grounds at the appointed time. Owners of horse flesh took advantage of the kind offer of the Park committee, and shortly after 7 o'clock the track was literarally covered with vehicles of various descriptions, from the two wheeled "democrat" to the best "pair in hand" in town. At twenty minutes past seven the players took up their positions and played for 45 minutes, resulting in each sides getting a game. This is a good idea and should be continued. We understand that the Park Committee, seeing the beneficial result of encouraging parties to drive to the grounds, intend for the future to allow persons driving to enter the park on the evenings of scratch games, on payment of a very small fee, ten cents or thereabouts After the game was concluded the national sport received a very good advertisement by the rendering of the old P.L.C. song "Good-bye my lover, good-bye," by the members as they returned to town in the bus.

Just received a further assortment of Linen Edging, various widths. J. HESKINE. 2d-d

Roller Skates.

The recent shipment of skates which was received by the manager of the Parlor Rink recently, is giving the utmost satisfaction to the youngsters. Call and get a pair whilst the selection of sizes are on hand.

Cricket.

A cricket match between the Lakefield club and the juveniles of the Peterborough's will likely take place on the grounds of the P. A. A. A., in Ashburnham, on Saturday, the 13th inst. We hope to see the youngsters give a good account of themselves.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Moderate to fresh winds, mostly north-west; fine weather; slightly higher temperature. Fine and warm to-morrow.

The Ashburnham Council.

A special meeting of the Ashburnham village council was held on Monday night. The adjourned matter of considering the application of the Salvation Army for use of the Hall was considered. The application was not entertained. The payment of a few bills completed the business of the session.

Loud Gossip.

Two men yesterday discussed the respective amounts of money that each one possessed on the corner of George and Hunter streets. Discussion did not seem to reach the point very quickly, and accordingly the horse trainer reached after the bonanza king in such a way that the flies did not light on him for two minutes and thirty seconds. P. C. McGinty arrived in time to whisk their clothes.

Beautifully Printed.

The Berlin Telegraph says:—The Peterborough EXAMINER, comes out with an evening paper, larger than either of its local cotemporaries. It is beautifully printed and much taste is shown in its make up. The DAILY EXAMINER, like its weekly protype, will be a staunch advocate of liberal principles and measures. We wish it good luck.

A Rich Bicycle Treat.

Persons going to the Lansdowne Roller Rink on Wednesday evening with the expectation that they are going to witness something rare in the way of a bicycle exhibition will not be disappointed. Mr. Ed. Brown informs us that the gentleman—Mr. J. Hurst—who is coming to give the exhibition is the wearer of over fifteen medals which have been awarded to him at various places throughout Ontario.

The Work Commenced.

Men commenced this morning to carry out the programme of work recommended by the Street and Bridge Committee at the last meeting of the Council. The old sidewalk on George street, between Dalhousie and the C. P. R. station, has been torn up and gravel, taken from the town gravel pit on the bank of the river, is being dumped in its stead so as to give it on upward slope towards the depot.

Fine Farm For Sale.

Any person looking out for a chance to buy a large first-class farm in a thorough state of cultivation, with first-class buildings, and convenient to railway, church and school, should see the magnificent farm of Mr. Josiah Ball, three miles from Millbrook station, on the "Fallis line," Cavan. Read the mammoth colored posters announcing the sale, and giving full particulars of the exceptionally complete buildings and improvements that distinguish this farm.

Sunday School Institute.

There was a large attendance at the initial meeting of the Sunday School Institute in the lecture room of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Mr. J. W. Flavelle occupied the chair and Rev. Mr. McEwen, Provincial Secretary, conducted the class in such a ner as to elicit the warmest interest among those present. The subject dealt with was "The Sunday school teacher's working plan of the Bible." The meetings will be continued throughout the week till Thursday evening, inclusive, and Sunday school superintendents and teachers will derive great benefit from them.

QUITE CORRECT.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Your statement that the committee in charge of Court House Park "would not let the grass grow under their feet," must be correct, as a man was vigorously mowing down the same on Sunday morning.

Flags Afloat.

A "burst of the bunting" rules Peterborough to-day, flags flying from the Court House, Oriental Hotel, Foresters' Hall and from the flag poles of the steamer Golden Eye. The Court House flag is an indication that Judge Dennistoun is "at home" to-day, holding County Court; and the rest have more or less intimate connection with the presence of the Foresters in town.

Confidence in the Cows.

The grounds in front of the beautiful new terrace on Rubidge street have been levelled and put down to grass. We understand that there is such confidence felt in the exemplary conduct of the cow that it is not the intention to erect any fence to divide the lawn from the streets or the lawn of one tenement from that of the other. It is to be hoped that the experiment will be a success. The absence of fences in front of tidy, well-kept lawns would not only improve both the appearance of the premises themselves, but would save the expense of the unsightly fencing which costs so much for erection and repairs. The fences in Peterborough cost an immense amount of money, and, if the by-law restraining animals from running at large were enforced, are entirely unnecessary. Other towns and cities dispense with them, and there is no reason why Peterborough, which leads in almost every other respect, should be behind-hand in this matter.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME:

To the Right Worth High Chief Ranger, Vice-Chief Ranger, Officers and Members of the Right Worthy High Court of Canada, Canadian Order of Foresters.

BRETHREN,—It is with feelings of much pleasure and gratification that, as members of Court Peterborough, No. 29, we should have the honor of welcoming to our town for the first time such a representative body of men as the members of the Right Worthy High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters. We trust that your deliberations during the coming session will be characterized by the spirit of advancement and progress which we hope will be emphasized by the steady march of improvement, looking forward to the time when every city, town, village and hamlet will contain a contingent of the great army of the Canadian Order of Foresters. We, therefore, extend to you a most cordial brotherly welcome and trust that the memory of the hours spent in Peterborough will be recalled with feelings of pleasure in after years when the Canadian Order of Foresters shall rank second to none, and its beautiful and expressive motto—"Liberty, Benevolence and Concord"—shall be a household word through the length and breadth of our land. On behalf, therefore, of Court Peterborough, No. 29, we extend to you the courtesies embodied in a Right Royal Foresters' welcome.

Signed on behalf of Court Peterborough,

A. McNEIL, Chairman of Com. J. FRASER, Sec. of Com.

Bro. Elliott, R.W.H.C.R., replied on behalf of the High Court thanking the Peterborough Foresters for the reception given them, expressing the pleasure it afforded both officers and delegates in coming to Peterborough to hold the sixth annual session of the High Court. He eulogised the thrift and prosperity of Court Peterborough and hoped that the order would go on increasing in both influence and wealth.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The minutes of proceedings of the Executive Committee since last session of the High Court were read and adopted.

OFFICERS' REPORTS.

The High Chief Ranger, High Secretary, High Treasurer, and Chairman of Medical Board, presented and read their respective reports showing the order to be in a very prosperous condition, with peace and harmony prevailing throughout, and prospects never brighter for a largely increased membership than at present. The past year showed a gain of 25 new courts and 858 new members. At present there are 119 courts with a total membership of 4,358. During the year 23 death claims have been paid, leaving a balance at 1st of June to credit of endowment account of $6,986.53.

While the High Court had been paying the claims of the widows and orphans of deceased brethren, the subordinate courts have also been doing a noble share in the great work. They have during the year paid for relief other than endowment, $5,085.99; for medical aid, $2,957.66; burying the dead, $575, making a total of $8,618.65 expended in aid of members and their families.

The several courts have on hand in their different treasuries cash to the amount of $9,188.67, and the value of court property is $7,792.63.

THE ENDOWMENT CHANGES.

The discussion on the proposed changes in the endowment law will take place at this evening's session, when the proceedings will be conducted under the Subordinate Degree, for the purpose of affording members of local and visiting courts an opportunity of hearing the arguments on this, which in all probability will be the most important question before this session of the High Court.

The Court adjourned at six o'clock to accept the invitation of Court Peterborough to attend an excursion per steamer "Golden Eye," to Faucher's summer resort, a report of which appears elsewhere.

Facts About the Earthquake.

Awful Convulsions—Villages Completely Swallowed up—100 Killed.

CALCUTTA, June 8.—Additional despatches about the earthquake in Vale Cashmere says the whole village has been destroyed. Dubgood, Jamalapar and Ovan were engulfed in the awful convulsions. The fort at Gurais and the granaries in many parts of the Vale have been swallowed up. A large supply of rice and a considerable amount of money has been distributed throughout the Vale to relieve the distress of the people. It is estimated that one hundred persons have been killed.

COMPLIMENTARY EXCURSION

The Run down the River with the High Court Delegates.

We stated in yesterday's issue of the EXAMINER that a complimentary excursion would be run on the Steamer Golden Eye to Faucher's summer resort in connection with Court Peterborough No. 29 C. O. F. and accordingly, shortly after 6 o'clock last evening the members in company with the visiting Brethern headed by the Band of the Peterborough Fire Brigade marched to the Wolfe Street wharf where the steamer lay in waiting. With due credit to the promptness of Capt. Carson there was, as usual, no unnecessary delay, and shortly before 7 o'clock the boat shoved off from the wharf having on board fully two hundred passengers. The run down was made in one hour the party arriving before sunset, to find four tempting tables of eatables set in the spacious dining hall adjoining the hotel. After full justice was done to the good things on the tables, Mr. A. McNeil of Court Peterborough No. 29 took the chair at the "high" table encircled by the officers of the High Court, and proposed with a few appropriate remarks the toast of "Her most gracious Majesty Queen Victoria" which was duly honored, the band playing the National Anthem, as were also the toasts of the "Prince and Princess of Wales and all the Royal Family," the "Governor General, Lieutenant Governor and Legislative Assemblies and the House of Commons."

Mr. T. Dunn was called on for a song, and sung, by special request, "The Good Old Friends," for which he was loudly encored again and again. The Messrs. Dunn and Tierney responded by giving the trio, "In the Gloaming," at the conclusion of which the applause was such that those three gentlemen had to respond. The vocal piece in this instance was "Gently the Moon Leaps the Sky," and was given with indescribable melody, their voices of bass, baritone and tenor harmonizing beautifully.

The chairman then proposed the toast, "The Army, Navy and Volunteers," coupling with it the name of Mr. A. E. Gammage, H. S. That gentleman assured the audience that he felt highly honored in having his name mentioned in connection with such a toast; he would say that he was proud of the regiment to which he belonged—the Dufferin Rifles, Brantford. Any person who was acquainted with the reputation of that body of men would bear him out in what he said; he was sure that every patriotic Canadian would. Although that regiment was not called to the front in the Northwest, it was not that they were not ready and willing to go to a man. The people of Canada were watching with intense interest the movements of the "boys" who went, saw and conquered the uprising of a band of rebels.

Mr. D. D. Galletly sang "Hail to the Chief," in honor of the proposed welcome to be tendered to the Canadian soldiers.

The "High Chief Ranger and other High Officers" were subjects of the next toast In doing so the Chairman said that he was sure the Society would prosper under such an efficient staff of officers, and paid a glowing compliment to R. Baker, D.D.H.C.R. He (the chairman) appreciated everything that was done for the interest and promotion of the Society. Mr. R. Elliott, H.C.R., responded. He was glad to see the High Officers toasted in such a manner; he was not a brilliant speaker and therefore he would refer the responses to the orators.

Mr. E. H. Long, P.H.C.R., presumed that he was not a stranger to most of the brethern; he had made quite a number of speeches in the interest of Forestry and politics. He congratulated Court Peterborough on the hospitality which they had shown the visiting brethern; he was here last fall at the dedication of the hall, and therefore the hospitality of Peterborough was not unknown to him in the past as well as on the present occasion. He congratulated Peterborough on the neatness of their hall, which he considered the finest in Canada; in Peterborough he saw a class of men who would make noble Foresters; he knew with such a man as A. McNeil, C.R., at their head the Society would prosper. He would sit down and give room to others who had 60 pounds pressure to the square inch.

Mr. J. Tweed, H.V.C.R., said he was no speaker; he preferred to be a worker. The Executive Committee did all they could for the welfare of the society.

Dr. Stanley, C.M.B., said he had been referred to as an orator, but he declined to dub himself with that title. He did not think it would be advisable to talk Forestry, and as for his profession, if he dwelt on that it would be taken for egotism, he thought he should decline in favor of Mr. Baker, an referred with a good deal of wit to the circumstances which led to the present meeting in Peterborough. He hoped that the result of this convention would be productive of a great amount of stimulus to the Court.

Dr. Flock, M.R., said that Brother Long was very truthful in a great many things he said, especially when he—the speaker—was referred to as a great orator. He was glad he voted that the High Court should come to Peterborough. It was looked upon in western Ontario as being an A 1 town, and justly, too

He had never received such a right royal reception as had been accorded to the Court in Peterborough; he eulogized Dr. Stanley as chairman of the medical board and wound up the wittiest speech of the evening by thanking the chairman for toasting the high officers.

J. Neelands H. T. assured those present that he had never enjoyed himself so well as he had done since coming to Peterborough, and predicted continuous prosperity for Court Peterborough No. 29.

Mr. Thos. White H. A. thought it would be very injudicious for him to attempt to make a speech as he had been associating to much with brothers Long and Dowling; he would join the previous speakers in thanking Court Peterborough for the kind treatment shown towards the delegates; he thought that the Society had a very efficient staff of officers, he thought that Brother Long deserved lasting thanks for the manner in which he performed his duties.

Dr. Dowling H.A. did not think it was his place to give any taffy and he would call on Mr. Gammage.

Mr. A. E. Gammage H. S. was much pleased to say that the Society was prospering in every quarter, and paid a high compliment to Brother Watson of Court Peterborough No. 29 for his efforts in establishing new Courts.

Mr. R. Baker D. D. H.C.R. was not a speaker, he was more of a worker; he thanked the gentlemen for the compliment which had been paid him; he did not come prepared to speak, but was prepared to say that in the course of three years there would be a thousand Foresters in Toronto. He had been tolerably successful in establishing Courts in the Queen City. He would go back to Toronto with kindly feelings towards Peterborough.

Speeches of a similar character were made by Messrs. R. Stewart and other delegates. The Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges of Oddfellows were represented in speeches from Messrs. T. Workman and Dr. Clarke respectively. Mr. John Tweed sang two comic songs and a like number were rendered by the chairman, Mr. A. McNeil, in his usual style.

At this juncture it was announced that R. W. Abell, delegate from Court Rose, No. 18, Toronto, had sustained a slight injury on the steamer, on the receipt of which news the gathering dispersed after singing the National Anthem. It was ascertained that Mr. Abell's injuries were not serious. He had walked into the fire hole whilst his attention was called in another direction. Drs. Flock and Stanley were promptly on hand, and the patient rested well on the run back, which was made in about two hours, and which time was shortened considerably by the presence of the Fire Brigade Band and the vocal music of the Messrs. Dunn, Elliott and Tierney, whose singing was the subject of general comment throughout the two hundred excursionists.

BIG BEAR IN THE TOILS.

Five Different Forces on His Track.

WINNIPEG, June 9.—Big Bear has little chance of escape. Gen. Middleton, Gen. Strange, Col. Otter, Capt. Steele, and Col. Irvine with his mounted police are all after him in different directions. The country, however, is thickly wooded and extremely difficult to travel over. It is just possible, therefore, that by splitting into small parties the wily chief and his band of marauders may escape. As they are said, however, only to travel ten miles a day, their chances are decidedly slim.

The Fashion in Art.

In the August Century, G. W. Prothero, says, apropos of the paintings of "Mr. Watts at the Grosvenor Gallery": "The fashion of the age prescribes for art bounds which it cannot pass without forfeiting its universality. It is no longer the business of art to teach but to amuse; and if Orcagna or Michael Angelo were to live and paint again, it is doubtful whether he would not die in penury. We admire these masters of old days, because our instructors have dinned their greatness into our ears till we are fain to believe; but if the statue of Moses were to appear for the first time in next year's Academy, we should be told that his horns were ridiculous, and his beard half a yard too long. And so it is with Mr. Watts. Those who wish to be amused go away unsatisfied, and laugh at the power they cannot feel."

Milkman (to small boy): "Tell your mother she'll have to pay ready money for milk after this. I ain't going to chalk up any more." Small boy: "What are you going to use instead of chalk, Mr. Grange?"

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

The National Health.

Apart from politics, of which we fear the people in Canada are always surfeited, there is perhaps no other subject which attracts more of public attention now-a-days than the health of the people. The scientific world has made such minute, chemical and physiological discoveries regarding this and the other danger, that, to the unlearned, it is a matter for surprise how in the midst of such perils, from without and within, life can be sustained at all.

In a large manufacturing town, for example, whose numerous factories send up smoke in huge volumes from dewy morn' till eve, the people will be told that the air is vitiated with deleterious carbonic acid, which is certain to depress the vital energy and which, by creating fogs, will produce many of the diseases to which human flesh is heir. In a place like our own fair town, the inhabitants are warned at certain periods, that plagues may fall upon them at any moment, because they have paid no attention to the sewerage, or have neglected to fill up Spaulding's Bay, and the cisterns and wells are putrid and unwholesome, carrying destruction in their train. To drink the impure and muddy water of Toronto, scientists tell us, is most dangerous, as it contains ingredients fearful and awful to contemplate and is stored with disease-germs. And now we are told by excellent authority that epidemics of typhoid and scarlet fever are repeatedly disseminated by milk and that there is the best of evidence that diphtheria is spread through the same cause.

Then the Scott Act men tell us whiskey and wine are poison, and the Canada Citizen shrieks that the individual who holds ale or lager beer to be fit for anything but pigs, is a proper subject for an insane asylum. Another crank bids us beware of the evil effects of meat in any form; still another declaims against all canned fruits as most poisonous and injurious. And then come the still crazier cranks, who like the late Dean Edwards, denounce in the strongest language the enervating nerve-destroying influence of tea. No wonder that poor, starving Hodge holds up his hands in holy horror and exclaims, "what on earth is there left for me to eat or drink, if I am to listen to all these vapourings?"

Somehow or other in spite of these and a thousand other newly discovered dangers we manage to live and thrive, nay some of us, even contrive to enjoy life. And perhaps those who enjoy the best of health are of the very classes who know least of cranky scientific notions respecting food, and air and water, but who take thankfully what is set before them "asking no questions for conscience sake."

A sound mind in a sound body is unquestionably an inestimable blessing. And we venture to say that for splendid physique, power to endure fatigues and ability to encounter physical difficulties, our own countrymen are the equals of any nation in the world. The glorious achievements of "our boys in the Northwest away," have fully established the splendid powers of our volunteers, not only as martial heroes, courageous and undaunted in time of danger, but as men capable of enduring hardships on the march, and on the "tented field," such as seldom fall to the lot of tried and skilful veterans. The equals of these brave fellows are to be found in every city and town and hamlet throughout the Dominion. No! the race is not physically degenerating. The national health is as good, if not better than it was a century ago.

Civilization, of course, adds somewhat to the difficulties of maintaining a sound physique. But competition is the most injurious to the national health. The whirl and rush of business makes the luxury of repose unknown. Unless a man be born with an iron constitution the terrific pace will wear him out before his time. "To live long," says Cicero, "it is necessary to live slowly. Still with all the train of evils caused by the pressure of the times in which we live, by the dreaded increase of perils from adulteration and by the rapid increase of large cities, it is pleasant to be told that the average duration of life is actually lengthening and that the conditions of life are improved. This is the latest conclusion of those who make such questions a special study.

Noxious Weeds Act.

Knowing how the general welfare which every good and honest farmer feel it his duty to wages gainst the noxious weeds that always thrive regardless of good or bad seasons, rain or sunshine. With the marvellous thrift of spring growth this year the crop of weeds will get a start that will demand all the vigilance of the agriculturist to arrest. If the tidy farmer has a hard fight against the weeds, what evil will not arise from the neglect of the thriftless and slovenly farmer. In 1884 the Ontario Legislature, ever on the alert for the welfare of the farmer, enacted a stringent law, which should, in the interests of all be rigidly enforced. Following are the chief provisions of the Act:

"It shall be the duty of every owner of and, or the occupant thereof if the owner is not resident within the local municipality wherein the same is situate—(1) To cut down or destroy all the Canada thistles, ox-eye daisy, wild oats, rag-weed and burdock growing on his land, and all other noxious weeds growing on his land to which this act may be extended by by-law of the municipality, as often each and every year as is sufficient to prevent the ripening of their seed. (2) To cut out and burn all the black knot found on plum or cherry trees on his land, so often each and every year as it shall appear on his trees; and (3) To cut down and burn any peach nectarine or other trees on his land infected with the disease known as the yellows, and to destroy all the fruit of trees so infected.

"It shall be the duty of the overseers of highways in any municipality to see that the provisions of this act relating to noxious weeds are carried out within their respective highway divisions by cutting down or destroying or causing to be cut down or destroyed at the proper times to prevent the ripening of their seed, all the noxious weed-growing on the highways or road allowances within their respective divisions; such work to be performed as part of the ordinary statute labor, or to be paid for at a reasonable rate by the treasurer of the municipality, as the council of the municipality may direct.

"Any owner or occupant of land who refuses or neglects to cut down or destroy any of the said noxious weeds, after notice given by the inspector, or who knowingly suffers any of the said noxious weeds to grow thereon, and the seed to ripen so as to cause or endanger the spread thereof, or who suffers any black-knot to remain on plum or cherry trees, or keeps any peach, nectarine or other trees infected with yellows or the fruit of trees so infected, shall upon conviction be liable to a fine of not less than five nor more than twenty dollars for every such offence.

"Any person who knowingly sells or offers to sell any grass, clover or other seed, or any seed grain among which there is seed of Canada thistles, ox-eye daisy, wild oats, rag weed, burdock or mustard shall, for every offence, upon conviction, be liable to a fine of not less than five nor more than twenty dollars.

"Any person who knowingly offers for sale or shipment, or sells or ships the fruit of trees infected with yellows shall, upon conviction, be liable to a fine of not less than five nor more than twenty dollars.

"Every inspector, overseer of highways or other officer, who refuses or neglects to discharge the duties imposed on him by this Act shall, upon conviction, be liable to a fine of not less than ten nor more than twenty dollars."

THE SALVATION ARMY.

A MINISTER WITNESSES A SALVATION ARMY MEETING—WHAT HE HEARD AND SAW.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—My attention has been directed to an article in the Times of Monday last, challenging Ministers to do their duty with respect to the "Salvation Army." That evening I went to their meeting in the old Baptist Church. The Army had been marching through the streets after the fashion of the military generally, and, as do our French Roman Catholic citizens, in Montreal, on the "Fete Dieu," and other occasions. As I entered the Church or Barracks they were singing a hymn, and beating their drum and tamborines, and it struck me as somewhat lively and spirited; similar to what I had heard in the English Episcopal Church of this town, about a year ago, at a confirmation service, when the Bishop and the Clergy marched down the centre aisle singing and the congregation joined in the song, "We are marching for the war," etc. The people seem to like that sort of thing, and in neither case did I feel it my duty, as a Minister, to forbid it or protest.

Thus singing and praying in a very simple and earnest manner, the Army continued their service, for about twenty minutes. During this time people kept coming in till the place was crowded. Afterwards two of the "Salvation lasses," as they are termed, sung a duet, and it was certainly a very creditable performance; the two voices blended sweetly and harmoniously, and the sentiments sung were so pious and pathetic that had the editor of the Times been present, I am sure he would have felt pleasingly touched and affected, as many present were. After this, several spoke and exhortatory addresses were delivered. This was regarded, I believe as the military attack, and certainly some red-hot shots were fired. In other words, two or three of the addresses were very earnest and impassioned. The sentiments, however, were good; relating to Christ and His salvation, and the people were vehemently urged to attend to both and thus secure for themselves present and eternal happiness. As a minister, could I object to addresses of this nature? Surely not; and especially when I saw before me a number of persons who declare that within the last few weeks they have been influenced to abandon evil courses and learned to love and serve God and Christ. Was there, then, nothing to object to? Yes. Some one kicked my hat from under my seat; and I observed some of the young men and boys did this sort of thing for fun; and many evidently went there for a like purpose—but then it seemed to me, the Salvation people were not to be blamed for the misbehaviour of others. But it may be asked, did you not observe some very objectionable peculiarities among the Salvationists themselves? Yes. The peculiar dresses and bonnets of the Salvation lasses are, I think, objectionable; but no more so than are the dresses and bonnets of many other good people. Objections also might be made to some things that were a little indecorous. One of the "lasses," for instance, in her addresses doubled her fists a good deal and went for it lively in that way; but when I considered that the pugilistic exhibition was intended against that evil power, whom a minister once said it might offend polite ears to mention, my distaste somewhat subsided.

On the whole, then, the singing and the music, the praying and the speaking, and the entire service was of such a nature, despite the peculiarities, etc., that I do not think ministers would be justified in taking any such action as the editor of the Times suggests.

By a free and friendly discussion of these and other like matters, however, we may perhaps all improve. Such, at least, is sincerely the wish of

Yours respectfully,
G. H. DAVIS.

THE NICHOLLS' HOSPITAL

Discussed in the Town Council.

The council met in special session on Tuesday night. Present, Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, McClelland, Douglass, Rutherford, Menzies, and Yelland. In the absence of the mayor, Mr. Menzies was voted to the chair.

The chairman read the original letter of Mrs. Nicholls, submitted to the council last January, offering Moira Hall, with an endowment of $10,000, for the purposes of a hospital, and also the report of the proceedings of the joint committee of the town and county, published in the EXAMINER last January, which stated that Messrs. Cox, Davidson, and McClelland, were appointed to represent the town, and Messrs. Barnham, Sanderson and Strickland the county.

On motion to adopt the report, Mr. Cahill said he would like to know how the directors were to be appointed.

(The mayor entered and took his seat.)

Mr. Rutherford submitted that the committee hardly had a right to appoint themselves, as Mr. McClelland had intimated, for the year.

Mr. Davidson said the committee was only appointed to make preliminary arrangements.

Mr. Cahill inquired if taxes could be legally collected for the support of such an institution, since it was outside the corporation and one denomination excluded.

The Mayor stated that a general tax could not be levied.

Mr. Cahill could not accept the original offer involving the exclusion of Roman Catholics, or the amended form admitting Roman Catholics as patients, but excluding them from a share in the management. He questioned both the right to collect taxes under the circumstances, or the right to collect taxes at all. What would the cost of its maintenance be annually?

Mr. Davidson said the annual cost of the institution would be $3,000 per year, of which Peterborough's share would be $600.

Mr. Cahill pointed out that $5,000 would be a small estimate, for patients would come who would not be admitted and would be thrown as a burden upon the town. He did not propose to assent to an arrangement that would deprive him as a taxpayer of the right to a voice in its management.

Mr. McClelland said the institution had been all fitted up with beds, etc., ready for use, and it was unfortunate that Mr. Cahill had raised the issues he had done. A hospital was needed, and there would be no difficulty in overcoming by legislation any objection to levying a tax.

The Mayor assented, and added that the Legislature would also make a grant.

Mr. Cahill—If it were undenominational.

The Mayor—It is so now; all religious persuasions are admitted.

Mr. Cahill—I quite understand that.

The Mayor went on to say that it was Mrs. Nicholls' desire that the management should be as she had stipulated. He thought it a pity if anything should arise to prevent the town availing itself of so generous an offer, which might be confidently hoped would ere long largely increased so as to make the hospital self-sustaining.

Mr. Hartley agreed with the Mayor and thought Mrs. Nicholls had a right to impose the conditions upon which the grant should be made.

Mr. Menzies' remark that the hospital would relieve the charity tax, was combatted by Mr. McNaughton, who said the saving would only be about $150.

Mr. Davidson pointed out that the expense of four cases he cited, who would be fit subjects for the hospital, was $875 per year.

Mr. Menzies submitted a motion to dispose of the matter, but it was afterwards withdrawn.

The Mayor pointed out that the Council had only to decide upon the advisability of taking similar action as the County Council had done.

Mr. McClelland moved, seconded by Mr. Green,—That the offer of Mrs. Nicholls be accepted, and that the report of the Joint Committee be adopted.

Mr. Rutherford deplored the fact that the point raised by Mr. Cahill had been made. If this point were insisted on it would be better to revert to Miss Nicholls' original offer and impose a special tax upon Protestants only.

Mr. Kelly thought it would be unwise to reject the offer, but he held that if Roman Catholics were taxed to maintain the hospital they should not be excluded from a voice in its management. If this were insisted on it had better be made exclusively Protestant.

Mr. Yelland did not see why Roman Catholics objected since they would be largely benefited. Whatever sum the hospital saved would be a direct relief to ratepayers of both religious views.

Mr. Cahill reiterated his determination not to willingly accept the grant under the conditions imposed. He combatted the assertion that the majority of persons receiving municipal relief were Roman Catholics. It was unfair to exclude Catholics from a share in the management of this hospital, if they were called on to contribute to its maintainance. He eulogized the Council for its impartiality in the distribution of charity.

Mr. Rutherford urged Messrs. Kelly and Cahill to withdraw their contention and allow the town at large to receive the benefit of Miss Nicholls' munificent offer. The report was adopted only Mr. Cahill voting against it.

AGRICULTURAL AID.

On motion, Mr. Carnegie M. P. and Dr. Kincaid were heard in reference to a grant to the West Riding Agricultural Society.

Mr. Carnegie said they had come on behalf of the society, to see if the Council would not give some assistance in fitting up the fair grounds and aid in holding an exhibition worthy of the town, which now occupied a more promising position than any town between Toronto and Ottawa. The citizens had responded liberally and he hoped the Council would co-operate. He pointed out the benefit that would arise from holding a successful exhibition. There was required to make a prize list respectable enough to insure a first class exhibition, some $2000, and he would ask the Council to make a grant of $500 on condition that the County Council give a similar sum, and the citizens could be counted on for the balance.

Dr. Kincaid pointed out that farmers had last year sold a large number of horses and the prices ranged according to breed, and exhibitions had tended to produce a better class of cattle and horses.

Mr. Carnegie hoped the day was not far distant when there would be a Provincial exhibition here.

Mr. McClelland called attention to the immense benefit Toronto had received from the Industrial Exhibition and argued that Peterborough would derive a proportionate advantage from a similarly conducted exhibition.

Mr. Menzies gave notice of motion to appoint a committee to consider the proposal of making a grant to the Agricultural Society.

Mr. Kelly also gave notice of a motion to make a grant of $500, on condition that the County make a similar grant.

The Council adjourned.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

or,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The Leaden Casket," "Thorncroft's Model," &c. &c

in front of her with much of vigor and menace. She turned, they were leaping up behind her also, and with a slight scream she ran back to the shelter of the island. Hugh Richmond could not have heard her scream, for he was all but across the causeway, and beyond the sound of his voice; but he, too, looked back—saw her—recognized her and the danger she was in, and without a moment's hesitation ran back to her. He had so far to come that, quickly as he ran, the water was up to his knees before he reached dry land. Lucy had seated herself on a rock and was wondering what to do.

"Have you no boat coming for you to-day?" he asked hurriedly. She shook her head. "Then you have stayed too late! I can carry you if you will allow me, but we must not lose a single instant! Trust yourself to me—I am sure I can do it safely."

"Oh, no, Mr. Richmond, I will not endanger you!" cried she. "Why have you come back? Oh, how wet you are!"

"You surely would not have had me go, and leave you to get away as best you could!"

"I don't know," she replied; "you have no reason to care to do otherwise."

He demurred a little, and said, "You see, however, what my impulse was.—They say that people act most truly when they act on impulse. But allow me to carry you on shore. Please decide quickly—it is now or never."

"I could not think of it. I am quite as well able to wade through the water as you—if you will kindly give me your arm I will venture."

They went with all speed to the causeway, but no sooner did Hugh Richmond see it, than he said, "It is too late! We could perhaps go three parts of the way safely enough, but I could not answer for the fourth. Don't be under any apprehension about this," he added; "they are sure to see us from the walls, and send a boat. I am afraid your adventure is more disagreeable than romantic."

Lucy at once began to wave her handkerchief in a most energetic and vigorous manner. He did the same; but apparently no one was there at the moment to see them and respond.

"Won't your friends on board the 'Dorothea' send for you? Oh, by-the-bye, I am forgetting that they are not there to-day."

On this Lucy divined that he had seen the party go, and had thought that he could come here in their absence, and run no risk of meeting any of them.

"No," said she sadly, "no one will send for me. No one knows where I am. I thought, Mr. Richmond, you were at Quimperlé?"

"My journey was postponed. I am going to-night."

"Then you might have come to us yesterday?"

"Yes, I might—but I thought you would not care to see me again."

"Why should I not wish to see you again?" cried Lucy. "My great wish is to see you and Mrs. Richmond, and to be friends with you both—and if you excuse me saying it, to share with you what Mr. Kenrick so unjustly left me."

"You are mistaken," said he; "there was no injustice. He would never have left anything to us—my mother deceives herself. He and she were not on good terms; and as for me, I never even saw him. We had no claim on him whatsoever!"

"Mr. Richmond, you might treat me more kindly than your mother did. I went to ask her to share her brother's property with me, and she refused. It would have been very sweet and generous of her if she had said yes."

"Impossible! Neither of us could have done that! How could we have taken from you what was not intended for us? You are quite under a false impression, if you think you have done us any injustice—indeed, you have not."

"Ah! Mr. Richmond, you are just as proud as your mother, only you show it in a different way."

"Indeed, I mean what I say."

"Then why avoid me?"

"I won't avoid you if you do not object to seeing me. I thought you might dislike it.'

"Then we may be friends?"

"Of course we may. I am delighted to think you wish it."

"And your mother?"

His eyebrows contracted slightly. "Oh! my mother! I am afraid you must let her go her own way! She resents her brother's conduct, and always will; but she is wrong."

"Then there is another thing—Why would you not let me have your drawing?"

"I never knew you wanted it until after my mother had answered your note,at the same time you can understand that no one likes his pictures to be bought by way of making amends, however grateful he may be for the kindness which prompted such a feeling."

"How entirely you have mistaken my motive! When I tried to make that drawing my own, I had never even heard of you. I did not know that you were related to Mr. Kenrick until after your mother's note came. I wanted the Calderwater drawing for its own sake. It is divine! Do let me have it—you will make me so happy if you consent."

"You shall have it, if you will honor me by accepting it."

"Oh no, how can I? Why do you ask such a thing?"

"I should so like to give it to you.—Please accept it."

Lucy shook her head, and continued: "And you would not give me lessons, or come to Calderwater while I was there?"

"Can you not understand," said he, "that when people are situated as we are, it is almost better that they should not meet?"

"Yes when we were strangers; but now that we have met—now that you own you are not vexed with me about Mr. Kenrick's will—why should we not see each other sometimes?"

"There is no reason against it," said he. "It is a great pleasure to me to see you."

"And perhaps some day you will give me lessons?"

"I think you must not ask me to do that," he replied with great hesitation.

"Not ask you?" cried she. "Oh! please say why not?"

"I dare not give you lessons."

"Dare not!"

"Yes, dare not! I am a very poor man—I always must remain so—I am afraid it would not do for me to see much of anyone with whom my relations are so peculiar! Perhaps I am proud—but that is the truth."

"And you told me a few minutes since that you owed me no ill will!" said Lucy bitterly.

"There is a great gulf between us," said he.

"You talk of a gulf," cried Lucy, impetuously. "Do you think I care for money?"

"No, of course not; but you have it! I don't care for it, and I haven't it; but then no one would ever believe that I did not care for it—but you don't understand."

Lucy sighed. Perhaps she began to have some dimly-faint apprehension of his Swaim's Leading Counsel.

Judge Shellabarger is 64 years old and very gray. A Washington letter-writer says: "His forehead is high, his cheekbones hollow, and his eyes look out from under deep brows with a brightness which shows that the fires of intellectual activity are burning behind them. He has had a long public career. He was a member of the Ohio legislature as far back as the days of Frank Pierce. For ten years he served in the national congress, and during that time he took rank as one of its most able members. He represented, by the way, the Keifer district. He now lives here in Washington in a fine brick house in the fashionable northwest. He is literary in his tastes, and was last year the president of Miss Ransom's Classical society. He has a family, and about a year ago the whole of them joined the leading Presbyterian church here."—New York Evening Post.

Why the Prairies are Treeless.

The salvation of the great new prairie empire depends in great measure on the feasibility of cultivating forests to serve its farmers as windbreaks. The potency of a grove of leafless trees in shielding one from the winter wind is hardly credible. Its influence on the open prairie reaches houses a mile distant. The laws of all the northwestern states favor the planting of forest trees, and the subject employs not a little of the rattling rhetoric of their numerous orators. The existence of these laws was never questioned until recently. A few months since a professor of Harvard university after ten years of study pronounced these laws useless and unscientific. The learned professor announced that trees will grow where they ought to grow and will not grow where they ought not to grow; that the great inland prairie lacks trees because it has not a large enough rainfall to support them, and that the laws encouraging arboriculture will be futile. In traveling through western Minnesota we explained this theory with no little pride to our fellow-traveler, a teamster. The teamster made no reply except to quicken the pulse of his pipe. At length, having made sure that he had smoked it to the bottom of its socket, he drew the pipe from his mouth and pointed its handle toward a clump of native trees that skirted one side of a large mud lake. "Do you notice," he asked, "on which side of the lake those trees stand?" "The southeast?" "Well, that settles it." There are, as he afterward explained, hundreds of these lakes dotting the prairie land of Minnesota. Most of the lakes on their southeastern shores have clusters of forest trees. The reason of this is not far to seek. There are two winds there prevalent—the northwestern and southeastern. The southeast wind is the rain-bringer. The northwest is cold and dry. The prairie fires are spread by the northwest, never by the southeast wind. When the prairie fires swept over the prairie they burned the young trees on all sides of the lake except the southeastern, which was sheltered by the water. There could be no more conclusive proof of the power of the prairie fires to destroy the growth of forests even in soil favorable to their production. Massachusetts may well be proud of the wealth and leisure that enables her to secure astute professors to elaborate theories that a teamster can explode between two puffs of his pipe.

Down With the Dust!

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammersmen Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely and was passing out the door, when the Smith in peremptory tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smith handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to das wi' these, Deacon?" "Why," replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail yer thanks there and pay me saxpence."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

Parlor Roller Rink Prices.

Parties who would wish to enjoy a pleasant afternoon or evening at roller skating would do well to visit the Parlor rink, Water St.; the temperature is low and the prices are lower than the temperature.

The Market.

The market to-day was small. A few bags of potatoes sold like hot cakes for 35 cents per bag; butter took a drop from the price on Saturday last, selling to-day for 14 cents. Eggs were as usual, fresh, and 11 cents per dozen.

The Grange Trust.

A special meeting of the stockholders, in the County of Peterborough, of the Grange Trust, has been called for Tuesday the 16th, in the Council Chamber, Peterborough. Rumour says everything is not so lovely as was anticipated. At any rate the annual meeting was not called at the proper time and Peterborough County stockholders are going to enquire into this irregularity.

The Third Regatta.

The third annual regatta, on Lake Chemong, will be held at Chemong Lake, Bridgenorth, on Thursday the 18th June, inst., at 2 o'clock. Prizes will be awarded for rowing and paddling in double and single canoes. Mr. A. Elliott and Mr. Geo. Stevenson are the Judges and Mr. John McClelland the referee. Mr. Fobert is making arrangements to have a big day at the lake on the 18th inst.

Extended its Usefulness.

The Guelph Mercury says:—"The Peterborough EXAMINER, long an excellent weekly Reform journal, has extended its usefulness by launching out as a daily. The same spirit is shown in the preparation of its reading matter, and the same taste in the arrangement of the type in the evening edition as has characterized the weekly. May the proprietor reap the full reward of his enterprise."

Five Thousand Dollars.

Mr. Joseph Walton of Peterborough purchased by auction on Tuesday the 9th, inst., that valuable farm belonging to Mr. N. Steele, of Douro, for the sum of $4,550. Mr. Dean, of Bridgnorth, purchased the crop for the sum of $450. As will be seen by posters, Mr. Steele is selling off his farm stock, etc., on Tuesday the 23rd of June, previous to his removal with family to Oregon, where he purposes migrating as soon as business affairs are satisfactorily arranged.

Spicy and Entertaining

The Lindsay Post remarks:—"The enterprising publisher of the Peterborough EXAMINER has started a daily paper, and now provides a spicy and entertaining record of the daily events of the burg and the rest of the world. Peterborough is now having a boom in daily papers. The DAILY EXAMINER will take a leading place at once, and the energy and ability or its proprietor is a guarantee that the daily will become one of the institutions of the town. We wish Mr. Stratton success in his enterprise."

Ryerson Memorial Fund.

We have received a report of the condition of the Ryerson Memorial Fund with a list of contributors. The total amount subscribed is $4,081.42, of which Peterborough County, with 88 schools, contributes $53.65, an average of 61 cents per school. The committee state that at least $2,000 more are needed to enable them to erect a suitable memorial to the distinguished founder of our system of National education. There should be a hearty response on the part of all who have enjoyed the benefits of Rev. Dr. Ryerson's life-long devotion to the cause of popular education.

County Court and General Sessions.

His Honor Judge Dennistoun Presiding.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

To His Honor Judge Dennistoun:—

We, the Grand Jurors of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, in making our presentment, desire to offer our congratulations upon the evidence of the freedom of the county from crime, supplied by the light criminal docket at the present sittings of this court. In compliance with your Honor's instructions, we have made an examination of the gaol premises, and are pleased to report that we find the marks of scrupulous cleanliness and neatness conspicuous in every department. The prisoners express themselves as well satisfied with their treatment, both as regards the enforcement of discipline and the food supplied them. In reference to regular employment for prisoners, we would suggest the advisability of their labor being utilized, either on the Court House grounds or upon the streets of the town of Peterborough, and we think that arrangements could be made with the latter, by which prisoners might be given useful employment, and thereby to some extent, by their labor, make some compensation for the burden their maintenance imposes on the ratepayers of th county.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. E. HENDERSON,
Foreman.

Millbrook the Scene of Jubilation.

At a meeting of the County Orange Lodge, held at Lakefield on Tuesday, the 9th inst., and at a subsequent meeting of the District Lodge, held at Nassau in the evening, it was decided that the Orangemen of the town and county and the True Blues should visit Millbrook this year. Consequently, the invitation of the Millbrook brethren was accepted, and the 13th July (Sunday being the 12th) will be a big day in our sister village.

Firemen's Meeting.

The members of the Peterborough Fire Brigade held a meeting last night in their hall to discuss the question of having a demonstration here on July 1st. After a lengthy discussion it was decided to pass the day quietly. The members of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association intended to join the Firemen in any celebration upon which they might determine.

A Beautiful Window.

Something rich in the style of a handsomely dressed window is to be seen at the Gents' Furnishing Store of Mr. H. LeBrun. The effect is produced by placing mirrors on each side of the window in such a manner that a long prospective of the goods is produced. The optical illusion is so perfect that the line of goods in the windows seem to extend far away into the shops on either side and many people in want of the first class stock of gents' furnishings the Golden Horseshoe supplies, are seen incontinently bolting into McKee's hardware store on one side Rubidge's tobacco shop on the other, in search of suspenders, socks, neckties, etc. The discoverer of the idea and the dresser of the window was Mr. P. Corkery.

YOUNG'S POINT.

A NEW BUSINESS.

Our enterprising blacksmith, Mr. Richard Herd, fully alive to the wants of his numerous customers, has lately added a carriage-making department to his blacksmithing business. He has secured the services of a first-class painter and finisher, in the person of Mr. J. Fry, of Peterborough, and intends shortly to to erect a painting shop. Farmers and owners of rigs in this vicinity may now have their vehicles repaired without the trouble or expense of taking them to Lakefield or Peterborough, and should anyone require a new rig, no doubt Mr. Herd will be able to accommodate them.

A LARGE DRIVE.

About sixty thousand of Messrs. Rathbun & Son's logs are now lying above the dam and forty thousand more are lying at the head of Clear Lake, making in all probably the largest drive that has ever come down this route.

WEDDING BELLS

Merrily Ring for Albert Loch and Maggie Hamilton.

On Wednesday morning an interesting social event took place at the residence of Mr. Wm. Hamilton, Reid street, the marriage of his third daughter, Maggie, to Mr. Albert Loch of New York, son of Mr. Wm. Loch. The fathers of the happy pair being amongst our oldest and foremost citizens, the occasion enlisted the interest of hundreds of their friends. The wedding, however, was a private one, the guests being limited to the families of the parties. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. F. Torrance. The bride was assisted in the ceremony by Miss Alice Hamilton, her sister, as bridesmaid. She was tastefully and richly attired in a costume of India silk, trimmed with Oriental lace to match, with the customary veil and orange blossoms. The bridesmaid, Miss Alice, wore a costume of ivory white lace nun's veiling, trimmed with silk lace to match, the two costumes harmonizing charmingly. The bridegroom was supported by Mr. Fritz Gnaedinger, of Montreal. After the ceremony the bridal party and guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding dejeuner, after which the happy pair embarked on the 11.40 C. P. R. express, en route for Montreal, from whence they will proceed eastward. A large number of costly and beautiful presents was received by the bride, among which is a handsome and valuable clock, brought by Mr. Wm. Lech, from Germany. The case is of marble richly carved, and is surmounted by a bronze figure of a trumpeter. We hope it will mark many happy hours for the newly wed pair, to whom, with their hosts of friends, we extend our most cordial congratulations and warmest wishes for a long life of wedded happiness.

A Good Crew.

The Golden-Eye crew deserves the thanks of the Foresters and those who were on board for the promptness and careful manner in which the excursion down to Faucher's Hotel was conducted last evening. Although the river was full of logs in some places, the helm was handled in such a manner by Capt. Carson and J. Giroux that those impediments in most cases were escaped.

MARRIED.

BICKELL—WOOD.—At the residence of the bride's family, on the 9th, inst., by the Rev. J. M. Goodwillie, M. A., Mr. Henry R. Bickell, of Smith township, to Christina J., eldest daughter of James Wood, Esq., of Lakefield.

the court was held in the subordinate degree and a large number of local Foresters attended, to listen to the discussion of the proposed changes in the endowment plan of the order. The discussion occupied a considerable length of time, and it was one in the morning before the court rose. No decision was arrived at and the discussion was continued at this morning's session.

Third Day, Thursday.

The High Court resumed this morning at 9 o'clock. The following amendment to the endowment law was voted on and declared carried:—

All between 18 and 25 years of age to pay 60 cents per month.

All between 25 and 30 years of age to pay 65 cents per month.

All between 30 and 35 years of age to pay 70 cents per month.

And that all members in the Order in good standing on Nov. 1st, 1885, who are over the age of 25 years, to be rated at 25 years, i.e., to pay 65 cents per month, and all under 25 years of age to be rated at 18 years of age, i.e., to pay 60 cents per month. The above amendment to take effect on Nov. 1st, 1885.

The Court then adjourned for dinner.

DROWNED.

Willie Scriver, a 10-year-old son of John Scriver, was drowned above the bridge on Wednesday evening. He was last seen at 7 o'clock. Not returning home, his parents became alarmed, and, on making search, found his hat floating on the water. The villagers turned out on Thursday morning and at 9 o'clock the body was found east of the bridge.

NEW PARSONAGE.

Work on the new Methodist parsonage is going rapidly on, the roof was completed last week and the plastering of it will be commenced shortly.

ANGLICAN SYNOD OF TORONTO.

Thirty-Third Annual Session.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

TORONTO, TUESDAY, June 9.

In England May is the great month for the Ecclesiastical gatherings, while in Canada we prefer the balmy days of June. Already throughout Ontario, though the month is young, there have been several Church Parliaments held and the press is finding it somewhat difficult to provide space for very full reports of the proceedings.

From sedate country villages, busy towns and quiet rural districts alike have come forth the latent Liddons and would-be-Punshons and Spurgeons, big with importance and ready to pour out the thunder of their eloquence on every conceivable topic that may arise. As Punch says, the Rev. Jedediah Iniverfull is always on hand at the annual meetings.

The Church of England Synod for this Diocese is no exception to this rule, although it must be confessed many familiar faces among the laity especially are absent on this occasion. Some of them are engaged in fighting the battles of our country in the Northwest, others are busy protesting against that iniquitous measure, the Franchise Bill, in the House of Commons, at Ottawa.

The opening service was held at All Saints' Church, Sherbourne street. There was a fair attendance of country and city delegates. Morning prayer was said by the precentor, the Rev. J. D. Cayley; Canon O'Meara and Rural Dean Allen read the lessons, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Archdeacon Boddy.

At 2.30 the Synod met for the usual business session, the Bishop presiding. After prayer the Bishop read his opening address, which occupied nearly an hour and a half in delivery. It was exceedingly well packed with statistics of an interesting character, bearing on the financial and other growth and position of the Church throughout the Diocese. In the last four years there had been an increase of communicants, members of the Temperance Society and church fabrics. In nearly every other particular no improvement had been manifested. There was a serious falling off in the returns for the mission fund and the stipends of the clergy (regarding which he had before entered an indignant protest) showed still further diminution.

His Lordship also adverted to the proposed cathedral of St. Alban the Martyr, to the Domestic and Foreign Band of Missions, the C.E.T.S. and Jews' Society.

The report of the Executive Committee was afterwards taken up. It referred to the matter of the increase of the Superannuation Fund, in which the committee, though instructed to take action, had done nothing. The Rev. W. C. Bradshaw asked why nothing was done. While other denominations had been so successful in augmenting the stipends of the clergy we, although acknowledging the need for increased support, had been content to let the matter go by default. Subsequently a committee was appointed, with Mr. Bradshaw as convener, who will meet during the Synod and suggest methods for working up subscriptions to this Fund before the session closes.

The next business was the appointment of the various standing committees. Of Peterborough men, Rural Dean Beck is placed on the Mission Board, and the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw on the Sunday School Committee. Dr. Burritt retains his place on the Widow's and Orphans' Fund Committee. He is the representative of St. Mark's, Otonabee.

At six o'clock the Synod adjourned. There was a special service held at the church of the Holy Trinity, on Tuesday evening. The choir consisted of at least 100 voices, being formed from four of the city choirs. Canon O'Meara and Rural Dean Allen read the lessons; Revs. J. D. Cayley and John Pearson, the prayers, and the Rev. Hartley Carmichael, of Hamilton, preached a plain and pointed sermon, based on Acts xv., 6. The attendance was very large and the service from a musical point of view, above criticism.

Wednesday's Proceedings.

There was an unusually large attendance of members when the Synod met this morning at ten o'clock. The Archdeacon of York read the opening prayer.

The first business was the report of the Clergy Trust Committee. The receipts on account of income amounted to $24,148.58, a balance of $1,062.22 remaining on hand on the 30th of April. It is expected that the receipts for the forthcoming year will be $21,982.64, and that a few more of the clergy will be put on the fund during the year. A motion to invest the funds of the Trust in first mortgages on real estate in this Province to the extent of $100,000 carried.

RECTORY LANDS.

Mr. Logan, of Fenelon Falls, submitted the report of this committee. The action, Langtry vs Dumoulin, was alluded to very briefly, it being still sub judice. A discussion respecting the publication of the amounts paid to the city Rectors from the St. James Rectory Fund then took place, in which Dr. Smithett, Rev. John Langtry, Rev. J. P. Lewis and Dr. Snelling took part.

Rural Dean Allen thought that the committee should report their decisions upon petitions brought them, with their reasons for refusal. He related the circumstances of an application from his own parish and contended that the present course would have the effect of preventing lands being visited in the Synod. The Revs. John Davidson and S. Weston Jones also made some remarks in endorsation of Mr. Allen's statements. The report was adopted.

At this stage Ven. Archdeacon Boddy asked permission to invite Rev. W. Arnold, of Fort Erie; Rev. Hartley Carmichael, of Hamilton; and Rev. Geo. Forneret, of Dundas; to take seats on the floor of the house

MISSION BOARD.

Dr. Hodgins read the report of the Mission Board. The total receipts amounted to $9,946.82, being a considerable deficiency when compared with last year. Last year Toronto contributed $4,854.29 to Algoma. A special committee to consider the question of the permutation of missionaries was appointed by the Bishop.

The report of the Widow and Orphan's Fund was read by Mr. Tremayne. A long and desultory discussion took place respecting the various parishes now in default to this fund.

The report of the General Purposes Committee was read by the Rev. John Vicars, the "funny man" of the Synod, in his usual comical style, and was on motion adopted.

The report of the Sunday School Committee called forth an animated discussion, in which the Revs. O. P. Ford, W. C. Bradshaw, J. D. Cayley and Provost Boddy joined.

On motion of Rev. J. D. Cayley, seconded by Mr. Bradshaw, the report, with a few verbal amendments, was adopted.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The scrutineers of the vote reported the following members elected:—

CLERICAL.—Revs. J. Langtry, J. W. B. Beck, W. Logan, A. J. Fidler and Ven. Archdeacon Boddy.

LAY MEMBERS.—Messrs. C. J. Campbell, W. Ince, A. M. L. Howard, J. Carter and M. Crombie.

The Bishop appointed the following gentlemen as members of the Executive:

CLERICAL.—Rev's. Canons O'Meara and Dixon, Rural Dean Allen, John Pearson and Septimus Jones.

LAY.—Messrs. A. H. Campbell, J. G. Hodgins, Hon. E. Blake, R. Snelling and C. R. W. Biggar.

The Synod adjourned at 6 p. m. At 8 o'clock the annual missionary meeting was held in St. James' school house. There was a large attendance. Interesting addresses were delivered by the Bishop and by the Rev. Messrs. Ballard, of St. Thomas, and Forneret, of Dundas.

STILL CHASING THE BEAR.

Failure of the Forces to Find the Wily Chief.

WINNIPEG, June 10.—A despatch dated Middleton's Camp, June 6, and brought by courier, shows the general with his troops to have been at noon of that day 40 miles northeast of Fort Pitt, and about 10 miles from the position where Big Bear fought Major Steele. The seven camps of Big Bear have already been passed and it has been found necessary to keep pioneers ahead to widen the trail in the bush through which he is taking flight.

THE CRISIS IN ENGLAND.

Mr. Gladstone Asked to Reconsider His Resignation.

LONDON, June 10.—It is rumored the Queen has sent a telegram to Mr. Gladstone requesting him to reconsider his decision to resign. It is believed Mr. Gladstone under existing conditions will not consent to resume office.

LORD HARTINGTON SUMMONED.

LONDON, June 10.—The Queen has summoned the Marquis of Hartington, Secretary of State of War, to Balmoral. It is not known whether he is summoned as the representative of Mr. Gladstone, or is to be invited to form a new Cabinet.

THEY MUST OBEY.

LONDON, June 10.—A deputation of conservative members of parliament waited upon Sir Stafford Northcotte and the Marquis of Salisbury to-day and urged them to refuse office. Lord Salisbury stated that if the queen called them they must form a government.

KEENE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

What is going to happen? The weather is ungrumbleable.

The little daughter of Mr. Thos. Sherar, who had the bad fall and injury in a barn, is rapidly recovering.

The manly games are flourishing. Lacrosse, football, etc., etc., are the recreation of our "children of an older growth," nearly every evening.

Alas for our street arabs—they are many, and nightly crowd our walks in groups and hordes—poor little fellows! They have our sincere pity, for no one seems to care for them; they are coming up like weeds, without training or hope of it, and, as a natural consequence, evil thoughts and foul language occupy their minds and tongues, and passers bye and strangers wonder that such a lovely spot of earth as our pretty village and surroundings should be defiled by so vile and filthy an atmosphere as seems to pervade the very natures of most of our boys. Some of them are trying for better things. But the majority of lads (and some are little ones) who nightly make our streets populous are without any idea of modesty or manners, and a few seem almost beyond hope of reform. Parents, look to this! Some day you will feel this criminal neglect of your sons a load on your hearts, not to be shaken off.

Miss Gordon, sister of the talented architect of our new church, paid us a short visit this week for the purpose of viewing and making sketches of the lovely scenery in our vicinity. This section of the Province is rapidly becoming famous for its romantic beauty, and especially for its resemblance to some of the noted loch districts in Scotland.

Mr. Harper has given up his contract to the building committee, his work on the Presbyterian Church being finished, and the opening will take place on Sunday, 21st inst. Rev. Principal Caven, of Knox College, Toronto, occupying the pulpit, morning and and evening. The social on Monday will begin at 4 p.m., lasting till time for the speeches and music in the evening.

Police Court.

Robert Nicholls was charged by Chief Constable Johnston with having deposited offensive refuse in a public place. Found guilty, and adjudged to pay a ground rent of $5.00, falling due anytime within the next ten days. John Sullivan was charged by P.C., McGinty with having been drunk and disorderly on Water steet, yesterday. Sullivan's countenance bore evidence of harsh treatment received during his insensibility. Found guilty, and fined $2.00 or ten days. Having more time than money, he took the days. John Sullivan charged T. Cavanagh with having assaulted him, claiming that he was kicked in the face and ribs several times. Not having sufficient evidence to sustain his charge, the case was dismissed.

"Speaking about executions," said a stranger at the court house yesterday, "as far as I can see, the mere fact of hanging, the way it is done here, does not require a great amount of courage. Indeed, I think a man has very little courage who could not go through with the short ceremony necessary. After the trap falls the victim, as we have every reason to believe, becomes unconscious immediately, and does not suffer even as much as the strain upon the systems of the persons l ooking on. The only agony is that borne in getting ready, and ceases when the real work commences. When it was the custom to fix the rope in such a manner that the neck of the criminal was broken, there was more of a contortion of the muscles of the body, but the present system even lessens that.

I happened to get admitted to the recent execution of George Jones, and I must say I was impressed with the extreme slickness of the work. Everything was done that could lessen the suffering, and the contortions were slight at first and only lasted a short time. I can't help but contrasting the system here and the one in Japan, where I visited some time ago. If the people who are opposed to capital punishment on account of cruelty and suffering would visit an execution there and compare the two they would get an idea what a "barbarous" execution is. While I was at Yokohama I witnessed the public execution of a criminal. He was a fine-looking Japanese, in the prime of youth and strength, and was standing under a huge post, in the middle of a posse of guards. The post had a cross-piece. Nearly nude he was standing erect, but as motionless as a statue, and gazed straight before him.

Presently his jailer moved aside, and a gaunt, repulsive-looking native, the executioner, made his appearance, clad from head to foot in a dress of dingy yellow. Two assistants accompanied him, carrying half a dozen round bamboo rods. The assistants dropped the rods and stretched the criminal's hands over the crosspiece of the post. The executioner now dallied with the bamboos, and the poor creature still looked into the shadowy distance as though he was dumb. I watched him closely and thought I detected a pallor spread over his countenance. The executioner now spat on the pointed end of one of the pointed bamboos, and with a twisting, pushing motion thrust it easily into the flesh about half-way between the hip and the arm-pit. The poor wretch turned and looked at his tormentor, and his lips slightly opened, but he did not struggle. In a couple of minutes, though it seemed longer, the bloody point of the instrument emerged from the sufferers' shoulders, and a slight exclamation of satisfaction escaped the crowd. Then the executioner went to the other side with another bamboo and did the same thing.

During all this there was not a single groan or cry for mercy from the man. At this juncture, to my surprise, the executioner and his assistants picked up the remaining bamboos and walked away. I inquired what this meant and was told the execution was over. It was customary to leave the man that way, and he would die in a couple of hours or so. The bamboo would remain in him until he had expired. A Japanese executioner is taught to avoid the vital organs so as not to bring death too quickly, and the executioner's reputation is gauged by the length of time his victim lives. I tell you that is the kind of an execution that takes nerve, both on the part of the victim and the crowd, and the ones like the last, and also that of Tuesday next, are tame affairs to that compared with my Japanese experience." —Pittsburg Leader.

Peculiarities of Redwood.

California is nature's great and only storehouse of that useful and ornamental wood, which grows here in immense quantities, covering the earth's surface so densely that the sun's rays never reach the ground, and furnishing to the millmen 100,000,000 feet of lumber to the acre. The redwood has been introduced both in the Eastern States and in England, and wherever it has been used has found favor in the eyes of housebuilders, many of the almost regal residences of the East having as the outside finish the redwood in its rich, natural color. At present the only redwood shipped East is that used for finishing purposes, but it is only a matter of time when its many advantages will become known and it will be in general demand. No wood has ever been discovered that combines so many advantages for all purposes as this. It is easily worked; it may be used green just as it comes from the mill; it does not warp in drying nor shrink or swell by exposure to the weather; it burns slowly and when on fire is easily extinguished, because the wood contains no rosin; it is brittle and breaks off squarely, so that in case of fire the firemen have no difficulty in cutting their way from house to house, and it does not rot at the ground like most other woods, and fence-posts which have stood for thirty years are as sound to-day as when they were planted. The redwood grows only in California, the forests commencing a little south of this city and ending abruptly before reaching the Oregon line. —San Francisco Chronicle.

During three years the secret service of the Treasury Department has captured $1,200,000 in counterfeit paper currency. It will soon be burned. The amount of counterfeit paper money now in circulation is said to be less than at any time in the last twenty years. The most noted and skillful engravers in the business have been caught and put where they cannot do any mischief for a long period. The amount of spurious coin in circulation is, however, steadily increasing.

A new argument in favor of the English sparrow—they are fat and good for food.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either sell, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

Marriage and Divorce.

There seems to be, as yet, very little permanent improvement in the laws regarding marriage and divorce in the country to the south of us. A great amount of interest, it is true, has been excited on the subject, and some startling facts are occasionally put forth with respect to the increase of divorce, which the most intelligent and thoughtful of the people are beginning to ponder upon.

The law respecting divorce differs very considerably in different states, but this, instead of helping the matter, only makes confusion worse confounded. One lecturer has, indeed, publicly said that "a man who has been married, divorced and re-married, will, in travelling from Maine to Florida, find himself a bachelor; sometimes married to his first wife, sometimes married to his second wife, sometimes a divorced man, and sometimes a bigamist, according to the statutes of the states through which he is travelling." It is most surprising that such an abominably dangerous, not to say, supremely ridiculous, state of affairs should have been suffered to exist for such a lengthened period, without arousing the earnest opposition of those who value the sanctity of home. It certainly speaks rather badly for the morals of our southern neighbors.

Marriage in most states is looked upon as a merely civil contract. It is often made in no prescribed form. In some states it requires the presence of neither clergymen nor magistrate. Now it follows, as a natural consequence, that laxity in the law of marriage will invariably produce laxity in the law of divorce. Contracts which are loosely framed will always result in loosely fulfilled duties; and such laws imperil the purity of conjugal life and the sanctity of home.

The Governor of Rhode Island in a recent message says that the marriage contract is often set aside by courts with far less formality or scrutiny than other binding contracts and declares that the State bears a most unenviable reputation in respect to divorce and hopes that the laws will be so amended that it may no longer be a resort for those who cannot be divorced by the laws of their own States. In ten years there were 2,884 applications for divorce in this State, and of these 2,285 were granted. In Ohio the divorce court considers annually thousands of cases and the average number of marriages dissolved by this means alone in that State amounts to nearly two thousand annually. Divorce, indeed, is becoming so common everywhere that some people are asking if the "simultaneous polygamy" in vogue in Utah is a worse thing than the "consecutive polygamy" practiced elsewhere. The laws of New York expressly provided that "a defendant guilty of adultery shall not marry again in the lifetime of the plaintiff," such marriages being null and void. Under this law the Supreme Court for a long time decided that such guilty party could not contract a marriage out of the State which would be held valid in New York. This decision was, however, reversed about a year ago and now the parties are free to evade the laws of the State by getting the marriage rite performed elsewhere! So loosely drawn are the laws of some States that a change of residence by the head of a family may altogether prevent innocent women and children from knowing their legal position. Each State is sovereign and no national law can be made operative without amending the United States constitution.

The press should take the matter up and insist on uniformity. But let it be remembered that, whatever good may be obtained by seculiar alarm or policy in checking divorce, the true remedy must be of a more searching character. It must be a profounder force that regulates the passions and judgment in forming and protecting the marital tie itself, chastening not only its form but its spirit.

Wretched households and broken matrimonial pledges come of flighty engagements, immodest publicity and the setting aside of all parental control. The country, we believe, will gain infinitely more by preserving intact the purity of family and social life, by insisting on pure manners and right lives on the part of the young, and by holy home teachings and faithful example, than by the most stringent enactments respecting divorce though set forth with all the legal force and machinery of the entire nation.

Editorial Notes.

It is asserted that Mr. Thomas White is to succeed Sir Leonard Tilley as Finance Minister.

There is, it is asserted, trouble ahead in British Columbia. According to the Times of that colony open rebellion is threatened against the Dominion Government. The spirit of the people has been so aroused that, according to the above journal, "delay in granting redress will, beyond question, imperil peace." This may be mere empty vaunt, but the Government organs made light of similar indications in the Northwest, yet a disastrous outbreak proved that the numerous warnings of trouble were not unwarranted. It is to be hoped that the Government will lay to heart the costly lesson of the Northwest rising, and will not, by their criminal neglect, carelessness and incapacity, imperil the integrity of the confederation by allowing the asserted grievances of British Columbia to go without redress or, at least, respectful attention.

The Governor-General and our Agricultural Exhibitions.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, our Governor-General, is the Queen's representative in Canada. At the Provincial and Dominion Exhibition at Ottawa he expressed himself to the following effect: That he considered the name agricultural exhibitions was inappropriate; that he approved of the name of fairs; that fairs admitted amusements, and that he was in favor of giving the amusements. From his remarks it is plainly evident that he has been well posted in the opinions of the managers of our large exhibitions, and that he endorses the popular American plan which we are following.

Our readers are well aware that we have for years opposed the introduction of the race course or other extraneous attractions in connection with our agricultural interests at exhibitions. We cannot say that our opinions have changed or that our views have been adverse to the best interests of the farmer; but we must admit that our views do not accord with those that tend to dwarf the exertions of the plain farmer, or make him subservient to the more exciting attractions that can be introduced at agricultural exhibitions. Those that introduce the most amusements will most probably draw the largest concourse of people. The door is now apparently wide open for almost anything, and the people clamour for amusements. If there should be one or more receiving pay under the name of agricultural advancement who can devise any plan for the advancement of the agricultural interest in preference to amusements, or in what way they might be or should be separated, we should be pleased to afford a column to their views on the subject.—Farmers' Advocate.

SENATOR ALEXANDER'S REMARKS.

The Woodstock senator thus places the responsibility for the Northwest rising. In his speech in the Senate he said: "The prevailing feeling from end to end of the Dominion is that the disaffected party of half-breeds, at and around Prince Albert, were exasperated and driven to have recourse to arms from the continued inattention of the Department of the Interior to their land claims. Their representations through the Government agents were unheeded. They became soured and exasperated until their organizations culminated in bloodshed. Now the country is not disposed to accept the mere declaration of the Minister of the Interior made in this Chamber yesterday, that the half-breeds had no grievances whatever in relation to their lands or any other matter—that no complaint on behalf of the half-breeds was ever made. No one would venture to justify under any circumstances open recourse to arms, and the subversion of law and order—but if any of the members of this Government, or the officials appointed by them, have by inattention to or wanton neglect of their duties, brought about such an irritation and exasperation of feeling—that their conduct has in a large measure fomented a spirit of resistance and called forth a breach of the law—I say such members of the Government and such prominent officials should be placed upon their trials."

Mr. Alexander distinctly stated that ha the Government done their duty we should have been saved the bloodshed and all the horrors of civil war, and laid upon Sir John Macdonald and Sir David Macpherson the entire responsibility, adding,

"They are not only chargeable with the disasters brought about by their incompetency as heads of department, but with all the dire results direct and indirect of the outbreak. The prevailing sentiment of the country at this moment is, that they have by their trifling with this grave matter and by their criminal procrastination and inattention to duty, brought upon the Dominion the direst calamity that could possibly befall it."

CRICKET.

A cricket match was played between the East and West Ridings of the county of Peterborough, on Saturday afternoon. The wickets were pitched about 3 o'clock. Mr. R. C. Strickland was captain for the East, and J. E. Hammond for the West. Messrs. Ross and Clarin umpired for East and West respectively. The East was sent to the bat and were disposed of in short order for a total of 20 runs. The West following, scored 37. In the second innings the East did better, scoring 56; Messrs. R. C. Strickland, Wright, and Miles Hamilton contributing doubles. The West were disposed of in the second innings for 27, leaving the East victors by 12 runs.

MUNICIPAL.

The Court of Revision was held in the Council Chamber on Monday afternoon. The members of the Council were all present. Some changes were made which reduced the assessment roll about $4,000.00. After court of Revision the Council proceeded to their regular monthly business. After routine, the following accounts were ordered to be paid:—Isaac Watson, $30.38; Wm. Smith, $22.00; Augustus Morey, $22.00; Lem Godfrey, $15 00; John Rowe, $7.00; John Rogers, horse hire, $18.25; Dr. Bell, postage, etc., $2.18; Isaac Robinson, wages, $12.00; Wm. Harper, harness, $8.60; J. Griffin, extra work, $5. Total, $141.81.

Mr. Isaac Watson's tender was accepted for putting the drain along Queen street. His contract includes digging, filling in, laying pipes, cementing, and all complete to satisfaction of Council, at $2.00 per rod. Mr. H. Wynne and Mr. Geo. Roe both tendered, at $3.00 and $2.25 respectively.

Mr. R. C. Strickland, Councillors Cox and Isbister, were appointed a committee to see after the work.

The Clerk was instructed to notify the Weigh Scales Co'y that their scales must be immediately removed, as the adjoining property is going to be built on.

ACCIDENT.

A son of Mr. Jas. Morrison had his leg bruised in Messrs. R. & G. Strickland's mill on Monday last. Not seriously.

ONE OF PINKERTON'S FEATS

The Arousing Blood that Led a Murderer to Commit Suicide.

"I was just thinking," said Captain R. J. Linden, superintendent of Pinkerton's Detective Agency, "of the wonderful will power and untiring perseverance of Allen Pinkerton. Very few persons, unless they were intimately associated with him, would believe that any person could possess such a patient persistence, which surmounted obstacles that to ordinary men would appear like impassable mountains. Major Pinkerton was a man with a big heart. I don't think he knew how to do a mean thing. He was one of those honorable, fair-minded men, who, while giving everybody their due, exacted the same for himself. In matters of business he insisted on getting every penny that belonged to him, and once he made a promise it was lived up to if it cost him every penny he owned in the world. His likes and dislikes were intense. If he became your friend on the part of your enemy could change his opinion; but if he disliked you, neither arguments nor entreaties could shake him an iota.

NO AMOUNT OF CALUMNY

"Major Pinkerton's perseverance and ingenuity were the secrets of his success in all his undertakings. If he could not accomplish his purpose by one plan he immediately resorted to another. His mind was wonderfully fertile in expedients, and it was a rare thing for him to fail when he had once set his mind upon success. You can form some idea of his ready tact and capacity for planning in the case of the colored murderer Johnson, of South Carolina, who killed an enemy under the most brutal circumstances. Major Pinkerton was pretty positive as to the man's guilt, but it was impossible to obtain a complete chain of evidence. With the natural secretiveness of his race, Johnson refused to fall into any of the man-traps laid for him and make a confession, which was Pinkerton's object. After weeks of patient but abortive work, a novel plan was hit upon. The murderer was surprised one morning when he went to take a plow into a field to find it spattered with blood. In the open field where he was to work the murderer found along the course he was to plow. When he went back to the stable he was startled by seeing the bloody imprint of a human hand on the stable door. Every hoe, or rake, or other farm implement that the man picked up had blood on it. When nightfall came the murderer was so paralyzed with fear that his teeth were chattering and he was afraid to go to bed. He believed that the spirit of his victim was haunting him. The detective and his assistant noted these symptoms, and were confident that the right plan had been struck at last. It had been after a fashion, and there was a horrible proof given the next day. Johnson was found in the barn with his throat cut from ear to ear. He had killed himself rather than endure the tortures of a guilty conscience. I need not explain that the blood marks which frightened the murderer's guilty soul were the work of the detectives and not of spirits.

LITTLE POOLS OF BLOOD

"It was in that kind of detective work that Major Pinkerton excelled. He could change his tactics so that the man or men he was seeking would be led into a trap when they really thought they were getting out of one. There are scores and scores of such instances, but they have all been published from time to time as they occurred, and I do not suppose would interest you. It was one of Major Pinkerton's rules to conceal nothing from the public of public interest, after the work was done, and it was another inflexible rule to tell the public nothing before the job was finished or while it was in progress. From this he never departed, and his sons, William and Robert, who are their father's successors, will adhere to it as rigidly as the founder of the agency did."—Philadelphia Press.

Some Wise Cows.

The other morning, a very sultry one, two cows came to our gate, evidently on the lookout for something, and after being at first somewhat puzzled by their pleading looks the thought struck me that they might be in want of water. No sooner had this occurred to me than I had some water brought in a large vessel, which the poor animals at once sucked up with the greatest eagerness. The pair then sauntered contentedly away to a field near at hand. In about half an hour or so we were surprised and amused not a little by seeing our two friends march up to the gate, accompanied by three other cows. The water-tap was again brought into requisition, and the new-comers were in like manner helped liberally. Then, with gratified and repeated "boo-oo's" (a unanimous vote of thanks), our visitors slowly marched off to their pasturage. It was quite clear to us that the two first callers, gratified at their friendly reception, had strolled down to their sister gossips and dairy companions, and had informed them—how I can not say, can you?—of their liberal entertainment, and then had taken the very pardonable liberty of inviting them up to our cottage. This morning we were again visited by the first couple, bringing a stranger with them; and I have little doubt these morning calls will be regularly repeated, and afford my little household fresh pleasure and amusement in administering to their wants. The remarkable thing, to my mind, was the fact of the two first cows informing the others, as most assuredly they did, of the treatment they had received. I state the simple facts. I have in my time lived a good deal in the country, but never remember anything like this remarkable instance of the cow's intelligence.

P. S.—July 21.—Since the above was written our four-footed friends have never failed in their morning calls, generally bringing (to us) stranger sisters with them. On Saturday we had three strangers, yesterday one and this morning one.—Pall Mall Gazette.

meaning—to see that he was afraid that if he were too much with her he might learn to care for her more than it would be well for him to do. Possibly she felt that he never would allow himself to love her lest the world should say that he had wooed her only to win back his uncle's wealth. Be that as it might, she sighed, and said, "Ought we not to wave our handkerchiefs more vigorously? the people on shore do not seem to see us!"

"Yes, I think we ought. But they can easily see us without our making signals. One thing we must do, and that is, go up the hill at once, or we shall have the tide getting in between us and the steps. Let me give you my arm!"

"Oh, no, thank you," she replied, coldly—she was still wondering what his speeches could mean. Presently, while resting at the second flight of steps, she said, "You have been on the Grand Bey since we were here together. I have picked up your sketch-book."

"My sketch-book!" cried he. "Oh, thank you. I had a fancy to revisit the places I saw with you."

That was precisely what she herself had been doing. Could it be possible that any of the thoughts that had passed through her mind while doing this had also passed through his?

"I knew who you were," said Lucy "the moment you showed me your sketch."

"Did you, really? I saw that something had happened, but had no idea what it could be. Then you recognized my work? Miss Clavering, please accept that little drawing you liked in the Exhibition."

"Never!" cried she. "Why should all the generosity be on my side? You take nothing from me!"

"By-the-bye, I have your brooch," said he. "I looked for it yesterday, and could not find it—I found it this morning."

"Thank you," cried Lucy. "How pleased Aunt Esther will be, and how pleased I am too! It was a present of my father's to my mother before they married, and his father gave it to his betrothed too, and this ring was given by both of them in the same way. It is a posy-ring."

"Oh, is it!" he exclaimed, with some interest.

"Yes; would you like to look at it!" and so saying she put it into his hand. It was a massive gold ring, and engraved inside were two lines in old letters:—

My love for thee
My life shall be.

"How charming!" said he. "It must be an old wedding-ring. They all had posies long ago, and it was far prettier when they had."

"That depends!" said Lucy laughing.—"What do you think was the posy on the ring a great-uncle of mine put on his wife's finger when he married her?—I ought to tell you that he had already had three wives and lost them. This poor fourth bride, no doubt, thought that she had got a ring with some pretty motto, and instead of that it was:"

If I survive
I'll make it five.

He was actually telling her that if she died she would have a successor!"

"But don't you think she must have seen the ring before the wedding?" he inquired, with a smile.

"I am sure she did not! Would any woman have married him who had seen that?"

"People are wonderfully odd!" said he—and somehow or other he became very silent for awhile. Lucy was silent also, for the sight of the ring and the brooch had reminded her of all the Kenrick jewelry, the possession of which was such an annoyance to her.

Mr. Richmond, let us "be good friends," she at length exclaimed with some eagerness, and a strong wish to be diplomatic and persuasive.

"What shall I do to show you how much I wish it?" he replied, with one of his smiles, which were so pleasant to see.

"Come and pay me a visit in Chester Square and help me pick out the family jewels which your mother would most value. It makes me miserable to have them—do come."

"Please, Miss Clavering," said he, "please remember that we have our pride too.—We feel your goodness and kindness, but how can we receive from you in this indirect manner anything Mr. Kenrick did not wish to give us?"

"I hate pride!" cried Lucy. "Really Mr. Richmond, you and your mother have far too much of it!" She looked irresistibly pretty as she said this, the little air of pique with which she spoke, became her so well.

"If you were in my place you would act as I do," said he. "Besides, remember that all these possessions which afflict you so much are things about which I am entirely indifferent. I am a lowly-minded, unambitious man. If I have daily bread and health, I want nothing more than a little sunshine."

"I understand," said Lucy, in a tone which she knew to be one of slight vexation. "You are independent of your fellow-creatures."

"I! by no means! I am very fond of my fellow-creatures, when they are of the kind I like. I was intensely happy on the 'Dorothea.'"

They were sitting on the slope of the topmost hill. Lucy had fastened her handkerchief to a stick, and was waving it with intermittent energy; but in her secret heart she did not wish it seen just yet.

"Some of the people over there are quite certain to see us, and come," said Hugh Richmond. "Let me enjoy this unexpected pleasure for one half-hour longer in peace. When I see you waving that white signal with such good will, I feel as if a boat would come and carry you away in five minutes."

"It would carry you, too."

"Yes; but it would mean bidding you farewell a few minutes afterwards."

"We will talk for half an hour," said she gaily, "and then we must take active measures to procure our release."

"None will be needed. Some of the St. Malo people are sure to see us and come of their own accord. Each instant I expect to see a boat put off."

"Then, in point of fact, our adventure is not an adventure after all?"

"No; it is nothing but an opportunity for a quiet half-hour's conversation."

"Which we could have any day we liked," said Lucy.

He shook his head, and said, "Not many more such pleasures for me."

Lucy did not know what to say. She began to speak of books and pictures; he followed her lead, and talked so well that she let the signal handkerchief fall, and was completely content to stay where she was. The sea was struggling and moaning below them; they did not heed it; the hours were passing swiftly, they forgot to mark their flight. He talked and she listened. She listened and he looked at her, and each moment he was more and more convinced that she was the prettiest, and sweetest, and gentlest, and most lovable girl he had ever seen in his life. He wished the conversation could last forever. Could anything be more romantic than to sit here wave encompassed, alone with the beautiful girl who had played such a part in his history? She, all the while, was thinking what a dull life she

A Really New Fish Story.

Four ladies, a nurse and a 10-year-old urchin in blue petticoats, leaned eagerly over the gunwale in a boat off Atlantic City intent on capture. Suddenly the young lady of the party gave vent to a wild scream, and began wringing her hands over the side of the boat. The gulls continued to snap the unwary minnows from the reedy marge, the voracious schools of weakfish continued to take the hook as fast as it was lowered, yet heaven and earth were duly called to witness the maiden's distress. Playing the line from the tips of her fingers a hungry weakfish had captured the hook just as a diamond ring slipped from her dainty fingers down the cord. Weakfish have a peculiar practice, when the hook has struck, of opening their mouths and shaking their heads. The fish in question opportunely opened his mouth, received the ring on top of the hook and was at once pulled to the surface and to the young lady's rescue.—Philadelphia Press.

Towing a Hand-Car.

Our train stopped at a way station; by the side of the track stood a hand-car, with the name "The Bird" painted on it. The section boss and his men were there waiting for the passenger to get out of their way. "How did you come to name your car that?" was asked of the boss, who puffed at his black clay pipe and replied: "That was the result of an incident, your honor. 'Twas a good many years ago, whin I was a green'un on the section. One evening I was in a hurry to get from the 32nd mile-post, where we had worked that day, into town. Ye see, I had a girrul thim days—the same what's now down there in the cabin attindin' to the kids. It happened the track inspector was helpin' of me align a bad curve, and so whin No. 8 come along he signals her and gets aboard, it being a Saturday night and him anxious to git home over Sunday, ye know. An idea struck me all of a sudden, and so I said 'Get out the rope, byes, and hitch her on behind.' The boys did it, too, and soon we were whizzing toward town. 'The 'ta'ies won't be cold this night,' said one of the byes gleefully. 'This beats workin' of our passage all to the devil,' said another. At first we enjoyed it, but purty soon we got to going faster and faster, when it wa'nt so funny. The handles of the machine went up and down like mad; we had to let go our hold, an' if one of 'em had struck a man of us it 'ud killed him dead. We had to hang about the edges of the car an' it bobbin' up an' down an' jumpin' around like a rubber ball. I had just whipped out my knife to cut the rope with, whin, begeh, a wonderful thing took place. The hand-car just raised up herself off the rails and sailed right out behind like a flag. Up in the air like a streamer, three fut if an inch from the track—an' it's the God's truth I'm tellin' ye—we flew along like a birrud. The handles stopped workin', 'cause the wheels didn't touch nothin' but air, an' the danger of bein' brained was over. We was a-rannin' a mile a minute thin, an' for six miles we sailed in air lik a balloon. When she slacked up we was so lucky as to have the wheels of our hand-car come square down on the rails. Thin I cut the rope, glad, you kin bet, to reach the end of my first and last journey in the air. That's how my car come to be named 'The Bird.'—Chicago Herald "Train-Talk."

Down With the Dust!

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammermen Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely and was passing out the door, when the Smith in peremptory tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smith handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to dae wi' these, Deacon?" "Why,' replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail yer thanks there and pay me saxpence."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

Farmers,

Bridgenorth Regatta.

A splendid programme has been provided for the regatta to be given on Lake Chemong, at Bridgenorth, on Thursday, June 18.

In a Short Time.

We are informed that in a short time operations will be commenced on the Powell and Jones stove works. The building will very probably be situated on the corner of Bethune and Wolfe streets. Other sites were contemplated, but this we think will most likely carry, as the location is the most eligible in every way.

Music Over the Wires.

Whilst the Italian quartette were playing in the waiting room of the Oriental, the telephone circuit was thrown open in such a way as to connect Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, and other small villages around Peterborough which it would not pay the musical combination to visit. The former were electrified by the music, which they heard with great distinctness. Many of our townspeople enjoyed the same rich treat.

Anniversary Services.

The Masonic fraternity of Peterborough have extended an invitation to their brethren in the surrounding district to join them in attending divine service at St. Paul's church, on Sunday evening, June 21st., when a special sermon will be preached by Rev. Bro. E. B. Harper, D. D., of Collingwood, in commemoration of the anniversary of St. John the Baptist.

Good For $5,000.

Chief of Police Johnston has received from the Pinkerton, National U. S. Detective Agency, a circular offering a reward of $5,000 for the arrest of R. W. Scott, formerly paying teller of the Manhattan Bank, New York, who absconded from New York on June 1st, stealing and taking with him $100,000 of the funds of the bank. Scott is described as being about 45 years of age, about 5ft. 6in. in height, stout and square built, weighing some 165 or 170 lbs. If our local policemen have the luck to make the arrest, they will find it more profitable than the emoluments of their ordinary routine duties.

Sunday School Institute.

The third of the series of Sunday School Teacher's Institutes conducted in the lecture room of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, by the Rev. J. McEwen, Secretary of the Provincial Sunday School Association was held last evening. The attendance was larger than on any previous occasion, and the instruction on "The Bible lines of the Presentation and Propogation of the Truth" was very interesting. This evening will be the fourth and last at which will be renewed "The Vital steps in the Approach, the Process and Product of Teaching a Sunday School Lesson." It is to be hoped that the attendance will be as usual to-night. The collection taken up will be in aid of the Sunday School funds.

Enjoying Themselves.

The delegates to the Foresters' Convention, which is at present being held in Peterborough, are, we are glad to hear, enjoying themselves in every respect. Last night one of the high officers in union with a few of the brethren expressed surprise at the amount of fun to be had in our little inland town. With the Salvation Army marching behind fife and drum, the Saved Army singing psalms on the square and the Fire Brigade Band marching to the Lansdowne rink to the tune of "Scotch Lassie Jean," things were made lively for the good looking hundred or more gentlemen that at present are enjoying the hospitality of the town. This stirring state state of things is not, however, anything new or noticeable to our citizens, as it is of almost nightly occurrence.

Borough Brevities.

—Regular rifle practice at the ranges this afternoon.

—The frost is all out of the water works pipes.

—Many residents, with handsome lawns, are anxious that the Water Works Company should extend their system of mains.

—A large quantity of ammunition was purchased by local riflemen to use at the practice match this afternoon.

—No doubt an immense crowd will attend the bicycle exhibition by Professor Hurst, at the Lansdowne Roller Rink, to-night.

—Norwood is following Peterborough's example, and is vigorously excluding cattle, geese and pigs from the streets.

—There will be a meeting of the Peterborough Boating Club in the boathouse to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock sharp, to arrange for a canoe parade.

—The Register refers to the Norwood village fathers as "our village solans." Seeing that solan is a variety of goose, our cotem has a very sly way of working in its sarcasm.

—The roller rink craze has victimized at least one individual in Peterborough—a dry-goods clerk, who gets up at 5:30 every morning and goes down to the parlor rink for exercise.

—Secure your shutters. Smith, of Monreal, on whom the prophetic mantle of Vennor has fallen, predicts "grave atmospheric disturbances," in shape of cyclones, on June 24th—26th.

—Mr. T. Cahill is another citizen who has confidence in the good behaviour of the cows. He has laid down a fine lawn and boulevard around and in front of his new residence, King street, on two sides, and omitted the unsightly fence.

—The Secretary of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club received a communication from the Secretary of the Torontos with reference to arranging a match with our boys on Dominion Day. We can't work it, Fred. We are after Brampton scalps on that date.

PERSONAL.

Mr. A. Freeman, leader of the City Band, has been engaged as leader of the reorganized Norwood Brass Band.

The Winnipeg Daily Times of Friday, 5th June, says:—Dr. Harvey, wife and family, arrived from Peterborough, Ont., this morning en route to Oak Lake.

Rev. Father O'Brien, of Douro, came to Peterborough on Monday, to take up his abode for the future at parochial residence.

Professor Parker, late of Woodstock, the future organist of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, arrived on the 11:11 p.m., C. P. R. express, from the west, last evening, and was met at the station by a deputation of gentlemen from St. Paul's congregation.

In the first draft of stations of the Toronto conference of the Methodist Church, now in session, Rev. John Shaw, formerly of Peterborough, is stationed in Toronto as assistant at the Mission rooms, and Rev. T. Manning is assigned to Simcoe Street Church, Oshawa.

Mr. Donald Mackay, of Messrs. Gordon, Mackay & Co., Toronto, wholsale merchants, is in town to-day, his first visit in 30 years. His sensations on witnessing the marvellous growth of the town are similar to those of Rip Van Winkle on awaking from his long lethargy.

The Programme for To-night.

The Saved Army will hold a jubilee or trumpet meeting to-night in their barracks. Willie Mitchell, a blind boy, will read a portion of Scripture, followed by singing, etc. Admission five cents. Each person will be presented with a copy of the Trumpet on being admitted.

Practical Honesty.

Yesterday afternoon a young lad, named Patterson Barry who resides with his parents near W. Hamiltons foundry, found on Charlotte street, in front of Mr. Baptie's residence, a satchel containing a sum of money. Instead of dipping down for its contents as some of our town boys would do, and living high for a while on the various luxuries of the season, the lad at once brought the property to one of our newspaper offices, where it remained until the regular routine of consternation on the part of the loser, hunting up of the Chief of Police, etc., had been gone through, when it was restored to its owner. The boy who played the principal part should be presented with a lacrosse and rubber ball.

The Champion Cyclist at the Lansdowne

A few of the many medals of Pro. Hurst, the Champion Bicyclist, who will appear at the Lansdowne Roler Rink to-night, are on exhibition in McNeil's Clothing store window. Most of these are Champion medals, won in the United States. Members of the Peterborough Bicycle Club will meet Pro. Hurst at the Post Office corner, at 7:30 o'clock this evening, and escort him to the Rink, where an exhibition of his marvellous mastery over the Bicycle will be given. Admission 25 cents, with, or without skates. The rink will be open till eleven o'clock this evening, thus, giving skaters two full hours on the rollers. Prof. Kerr will lead in the grand opening march. This splendid programme should draw a large crowd to the Lansdowne to-night.

Bright and Vigorous.

The Toronto Tribune remarks that the "Peterborough EXAMINER is now issued as a daily. It is bright and vigorous and deserves success."

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather fo this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Moderate winds, fine warm weather.

Handsomely Printed and Well-Edited.

The Picton Times says:—"The Peterborough EXAMINER on Saturday commenced the issue of a daily edition. The first issue is very handsomely printed and well-edited, and if the daily keeps up to the standard the weekly has held in the past it will be an excellent paper.

Rapid Work.

Within two days Mr. Whitehair, contractor for the re-coating with rough-cast, has removed the old integument and applied the first coat to the exterior of the Commercial Hotel. When this is completed this building will be vastly improved in appearance. The inside is also undergoing thorough renovation. Mr. Kenealy is late with his second crop of spring cleaning, but he is making a thorough job of it this time.

Saved Army Excursion.

Arrangements are being made for a grand Saved Army excursion to Peterborough from surrounding districts on Wednesday, June 17th. A mass meeting will be held in the drill shed at 3 p. m. and addresses may be expected from Hon. Sidney Smith and a large number of officers.

New Insurance Map of the Town.

Mr. Samuel Softley, Insurance Surveyor, Toronto, representing Chas. E. Goad, Montreal, the well-known publishers of insurance plans, has just completed the work of revising the insurance map of the town. The revised maps will contain ground plans of all new buildings, drawn to a scale of 50 feet to an inch, and also all corrections required in the previously prepared plans.

Imported Eggs.

Mr. John McClelland, received to-day from England a box of eggs of various varieties, from birds that were winners of first prizes at the Palace Exhibition, London. We hope that Mr. McClelland's enterprising efforts to improve the breed of poultry in town and county at which he has been a leading factor in the past, will be rewarded with the best of success.

Liberal Donations.

The citizens of Peterborugh are awakening to the importance of securing the holding of a first-class Agricultural Exhibition in Peterborough, and are liberally responding to the appeal made by the directors of the West Riding Agricultural Society for contributions to its funds, which owing to the erection of new buildings etc., need to be largely augmented. On Tuesday the Directors set forth to canvass the town and were fortunate in securing the following contributions:

Borough Brevities.

—Civilization spreads. The early closing season has been adopted by Millbrook merchants—6.30 p. m. except on Saturday.

—The mania for boulevarding seems to be as infectious as the measles.

—The rythmic rattle of the lawn mower in many cases performs the functions of an alarm clock—about 6 in the morning.

—On Thursday evening a bicyclist nearly ran down a little child on the corner of Stewart and Simcoe streets. Both children and 'cyclists should be a little more careful.

—Mr. Richard Martin and his assistants, last night, repaired the break in the Waterworks on George street in less than two hours. Quick work.

—The baptismal name of the lad Barrie, who showed so much honesty in restoring a lady's purse, was Ernest Leslie, not Patterson, as we were informed.

—A philanthropic Town Councillor who advocates fenceless lawns does so on the grounds that the grass wont hurt the cows if they should go astray.

—A letter received from a member of the Midland Battalion, states that that gallant band is expected to reach home next month. It is time reception preparations were on foot.

—A man, apparently a farmer, was seen driving up George street yesterday with a bundle of lacrosse sticks in the bottom of his wagon. On being questioned by one of the P. L. C., he informed the enquirer that a Club had been organized at Young's Point.

Removal.

Mrs. Brown, milliner, will remove her business to the premises on Simcoe street, lately occupied by the Inland Revenue offices. The premises she vacates will be fitted up for offices for the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company.

Interesting Insurance Suit.

An important suit is to-day going on at the Toronto Assizes. Mr. John Burnham, of Cobourg, well known in insurance circles in this town, is bringing an action against the New York Life Insurance Co. to recover $3,000. This sum is the amount of a year's salary, which Mr. Burnham claims. Under an engagement as general agent he was to have that amount as a yearly salary, but for some reasons best known to the Company that engagement was arbitrarily cancelled. We understand that Dr. Bell and Mr. Wm. Ross have received summons as witnesses.

The Bowmanville Statesman remarks:—The DAILY EXAMINER is the latest newspaper enterprise in Peterborough. It has made a good start and with the excellent facilities in the EXAMINER office, we predict for it a successful career. Peterborough is one of the towns in Canada whose business men thoroughly appreciate the advantages certain to follow liberal and continuous advertising in the local papers. We understand that Peterborough is one of the most healthy towns, financially, in Canada, and with the push and journalistic ability possessed by Mr. Stratton, the DAILY EXAMINER is a guaranteed success.

PETERBOROUGH CHEESE BOARD.

Fortnightly Meeting.

The second fortnightly meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held in the Council Chamber on Thursday afternoon. Fifteen factories were represented, putting on board 969 boxes of cheese, as follows:

Factory.	Boxes.	Make.
Keene	124	Colored
Warminster	104	"
Treweme	120	"
Lakefield	73	White
South Dummer	120	Colored

South Douro	41	White
Warsaw	43	Colored
Myrtle	80	"
Pine Grove	67	Medium
Cherry Grove	90	Colored
Lily Lake	25	"
Total	969

The quotations from other markets were bulletined as follows:—Liverpool, cable, 36s.; Little Falls, N. Y., 5⅞ to 6⅛ cents; Woodstock, (June 10) 6¾ to 7 cents.

The buyers present were Messrs. C. E. Bartlett, Napanee; Benj. Green, Peterboro'; W. H. Wrighton, Peterborough; — Cook Belleville, and R. Thompson, Toronto. The bidding was spirited, ranging from 6 to 7⅛ cents, at which latter figure the lot boarded was taken by Mr. Cook.

Mr. Whiting, the cheese instructor for this county, has made his rounds, and the good effects are noticeable in a greatly improved quality of cheese, and a corresponding advance in price. Heretofore the cheese produced in this county has stood below that of say, Woodstock, but at the board meeting yesterday, Peterborough cheese brought higher figures than the latest Woodstock quotations.

RANGE AND RIFLE.

The Boys at the Butts.

The largest gathering of our local sharpshooters that ever assembled in connection with the monthly matches of the Peterborough Rifle Association went to the butts yesterday to see who was best man. Over thirty members popped away for a considerable length of time, and when firing was finished the following thirteen names were opposite the big figures:

Quarter-Master Sergt. W. H. Hill	47
Sergt. J. Stothart	47
Sergt. W. Bell	47
D. Cameron	44
F. Hall	38
Geo. Fitzgerald	38
D. Belleghem	27
F. Bennett	23
Lieut. E. Sanderson	21
Arthur Blade	21
W. Matthews	20
F. Bridgewater	18
E. Clegg	18

The above match was the first of a series of four matches that have been arranged to take place monthly for the Ontario medal. Prizes which are won at such matches consist of ammunition, dealt out according to the respective merits of the contestants. The regular annual Association match takes place in October.

A Magnificent Plant.

There may be seen in the show window of Mr. Harry Long's City Confectionery a superb sample of the hydrangea purpurea. The plant is now in full and splendid flower, the number of umbels in blossom being forty on the single plant, and the largest measuring 22 inches in circumference. The general appearance of this fine specimen is a luxurious mass of inflorescence, about the size of a bass drum, with a few stray leaves of vivid green struggling into view amongst the opulent clusters of purplish pink petals. The plant was grown and fostered into its present condition by the owner, Mr. J. D. Tully, of the City Pharmacy, who seems to have a corner on success in the cultivation of flower plants.

Dominion Day Doings.

A Splendid Pageant Proposed.

Dominion Day promises to be an exceedingly stirring day in town. In addition to the numerous excursions to come here on July 1st, it is expected that a splendid spectacular parade will take place. To-day the directors of the Driving Park held a meeting and decided to call meetings of the young men of the town, likely to take part in the projected programme. The meetings are to be held to-night, Saturday and Monday nights in the LansdowneRoller Rink. The idea, as proposed, is to have a grand parade on horseback representing various features and incidents of the Northwest war, including representations of the various corps engaged on both sides and representations of leading characters, such as General Middleton, Col. Williams, Big Bear, Pound Maker, and all the Canadian and Rebel celebrities. The procession is to be formed and after marching through the principal streets, will proceed to the Driving Park. Here, in addition to the lacrosse match for the championship with the Bramptons, there will be a programme of races, and handsome prizes for the winners in costume. There will also be prizes for the best costumes. The above is an outline of the proposed military-spectacular pageant, which may be modified by subsequent consultation and deliberation. It is to be hoped that our young men will give their aid to the enterprising members of the Driving Park Association in their efforts to arrange a demonstration worthy of the natal day of our Dominion. The spectacle will be a most unique and original one, and will doubtless draw thousands to town to witness it. Remember the first meeting in the Lansdowne Rink to-night.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

Nominations for the place to hold the next Right Worthy High Court Meeting were called for, and the vote being taken, it was decided to hold the next meeting at Chatham, Ont. Several other matters were discussed, after which the High Court closed at 2 a. m. to meet again on the second Tuesday in June, 1886, in the above mentioned town.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Moderate to fresh southerly and south-easterly winds, fair warm weather followed by a few local showers or thunder storm to-night or to-morrow, chiefly in the northern portion of the lake region.

A Painful Accident.

On Thursday night Mr. Jos. McClelland, editor of the Saved Army Trumpet, met with a painful accident. He was going to the Postoffice to mail a parcel of papers, and being too late purposed going to the station to mail them there. Intending to ride down with the mail postman, Mr. McClelland in trying to climb into the vehicle, fell. His arms being encumbered with the parcel of papers, there was nothing to break the fall, and he was thrown with great force on the left side of his body and head and stunned to insensibility and received painful bruises. He, however, recovered enough to make his way home. This morning he suffers considerable internal pain and feels keenly the effects of his severe shaking up.

HAVELOCK.

Mr. Boswell has just erected a saw mill near Havelock. He was in Campbellford, says the Herald, on Tuesday last, and took away with him a large smoke-stack ninety feet long. It was manufactured at Whyte's foundry. Mr. Boswell has another mill at the Narrows, both of which will be put into motion under his superintendence this year.

COBOURG.

COBOURG, June 11.—A man named Thos. Powell, a resident of the village of Kendall, township of Clarke, who had been on a visit to friends here, was missed about a week ago and no trace could be had of him. Last night his body was found in the creek here. An inquest is being held, but a verdict has not yet been arrived at. Foul play is suspected.—Guide.

LINDSAY.

LINDSAY, June 11.—Arrangements have been completed for holding a grand military, civic and society entertainment in this town on Dominion Day. It is under the auspices of the 45th battalion and the town of Lindsay, and will embrace a military review of those of the 45th battalion not in active service in the Midland regiment, the 34th Ontario battalion under Lieut.-Col. Donovan and Major Farewell, and the 57th Peterboro' battalion under Lieut.-Col. Rogers Major Bell, Capt. Edwards. The whole will probably be under command of Col. Villiers, deputy adjutant general, and Col. Cubitt.

CAMPBELLFORD.

We are informed that the Saved Army detachment here are wealthy enough to erect a building in which to worship, and that it is their intention to take a step in this direction soon. They have purchased an excellent lot on the corner of Bridge and Ranney streets, near school grounds, which they hope to make their future abiding place. The Army conduct is orderly and respectable, nothing of a simple, strange, or boisterous character about it, and the workers composing it have the financial and heartfelt sympathy of a large number of people.—Herald.

BIG BEAR ESCAPES.

General Middleton Abandons the Chase of Big Bear.

WINNIPEG, June 11.—The following convalescents left Moosejaw Hospital this morning, and will arrive in Winnipeg Saturday night:—Captain Clark, 90th; Capt. Lazier, Midland; Sergeant Hurrell, 90th; Sergeant Aikens, Midland; Corp. Kemp, 90th; Private Kemp, 90th; Privates Quigley, Gray, Foley and Marshall, 10th Royals; Private Hislop, 90th; Privates Powell and McLean, Midland, and Lowell, 9th. Capt. Doucet is not progressing as favorably as at first reported, but no danger is anticipated.

It is said that General Middleton has abandoned his pursuit of Big Bear, as after crossing Loon lake in the direction of Turtle lake it was found next to impossible to follow the wily chieftain through the dense forests and muskegs in which he has taken shelter.

BRITISH CABINET CRISIS.

The Queen Sends for Mr. Gladstone—She Also Consults the Prince of Wales.

LONDON, June 11.—The Standard says it is understood the Queen has requested Mr. Gladstone to transmit to her his views in full on the political crisis, in order that arrangements may be made to avert an immediate change in the ministry.

It is not expected that the Queen will accept the resignation of her ministers, or that a final decision will be reached concerning the question of changing the Government until Her Majesty's return to Windsor Castle. The Conservatives can do nothing until the Queen's wishes be made known, and meantime it is doubtful if the Liberal Cabinet can hold together, so great are the differences at present existing between its members.

THE SITUATION.

LONDON, June 11.—A courier arrived this afternoon with the queen's reply to Mr. Gladstone's letter. It is understood the reply contained an imperative summons for Mr. Gladstone's attendance at Balmoral and the premier left for Scotland immediately.

CONSULTING HER SON.

The Queen is in telegraphic consultation with the Prince of Wales and several members of the Privy Council. This is the first time she has sought the advice of the Prince on a state crisis. It is reported he advised the Queen to follow the constitutional practice and call the Marquis of Sailsbury to form a new Cabinet.

Another Tribute

To the Late Lamented Colonel Kennedy.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Wesleyan Missionary Society in Exeter Hall, London, on Monday, May, 4th, the Rev. Alex. McAulay, an ex-president of the conference, as reported by a London paper said:

"I have the permission of the chairman, (Sir W. McArthur, M. P., ex-Lord Mayor of London) to say a few words, and I will not detain you more than two minutes. There has just passed away from us one of the most distinguished colonists—a Methodist—and some persons are of opinion that it would be well for us to show our respect at his funeral, on Wednesday morning, at the Archway road, Highgate. I refer to Colonel Kennedy. He was chosen by Lord Wolseley and urged to take part in the Egyptian campaign. When it was announced that he would lead the voyageurs, who were to take our boats up the Nile and pilot them through the cataracts, there were not wanting abundance of Canadian boatmen to volunteer to follow him. He succeeded in his work, and in returning to his own country he was seized with a fatal disease in London, and died yesterday morning. He leaves a widow and seven children. He was a man of distinguished position in Canada. When I had the pleasure of attending his dying bed he gave me an answer such as that we like to hear from Methodists. When I asked him: "Have you peace with God?" "Yes," he said, "I believe I have; I know I have." I think this country may be proud of the zeal and loyalty shown by our colonists in sending us such a contingent to help us, and I trust that on Sunday morning there will be a number of Englishmen present to show their respect for the voyageurs who have accompanied him. I should like them to take back to Canada the feeling that this country recognizes their loyalty and the value of their labors." (Applause.)

Parliamentary Summary.

THURSDAY, JUNE 11th.

In the House of Commons a number of petitions in behalf of the senate's amendments to the Scott Act were presented. Hon. Mr. Bowell, acting minister of finance, stated in reference to the Dominion finances, that the net amount of the public debt of Canada on May 31, 1885, was $191,886,199, and the gross amount of the public debt on the same date was $258,711,060. The amount of Government notes in circulation was $14,998,315, and the amount of gold held by the Government was $2,287,707. The amount of the floating and unfunded debt of Canada was $62,214,625. The amount of loans negotiable by Acts of Parliament, authorising the Government to borrow, which remained unborrowed, was $4,895,181. Hon. Minister McLelan said the papers called for in re Northwest matters would be brought down in a day or two.

Rev. William Briggs was elected President of Toronto Conference yesterday.

A counterfeit $2 note has been detected in Montreal; it is said to be likely to deceive.

The Montreal deputation to Mr. Pope on the canal dues are very much dissatisfied with their reception.

Toronto Conference has passed a resolution condemning the Senate's action with regard to the Scott Act.

The municipal councils of the counties of Lambton, Ontario and Napierville, Quebec, have passed resolutions condemning the Franchise Bill.

Dr. Snelling has given notice of a motion in the Toronto Synod condemning the Senate's action in mutilating the Scott Act.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

The West Riding Society Grant.

At the last meeting of the council a deputation from the directorate of the West Riding Agricultural Society waited upon the Town Council to solicit a grant of $500 to the funds of the Society. It was urged that owing to the large demands made upon its financial resources by the expenditure of large amounts in erecting new buildings and preparing the new grounds for the coming fall exhibition, the Society stood in need of about two thousand dollars, to enable the Directors to present such a prize list as would admit of the holding of a first-class exhibition. It hardly needs any argument to show that the interests of the town would be well served by the council making the requested grant. A first-class exhibition open to the district, would attract an immense number of people to Peterborough for several days, and these could hardly visit the town without leaving a large amount of money to be distributed in all quarters, independently of the amount taken at the exhibition gates. Anything that promotes the spending of money in town cannot fail to benefit the people at large, for no matter what class of business receives the immediate benefit of such expenditure, the money will be principally spent in town and be distributed among all classes, so that ultimately the general public will reap the benefit. Toronto has been shrewd enough to see this, and the harmonious co-operation of the people (who voted $100,000 to the project) with the directors of the Industrial Exhibition, has made that annual institution a magnificent success. Not only has the Exhibition itself proved a financial success, but the citizens have been benefitted to a remarkable degree. It is estimated that last September, for a week at a stretch, 50,000 visitors passed the turnstiles of the exhibition grounds and that during the exhibition period a million and a half dollars was left in the city by the immense crowds that were attracted by what the modest Torontonians modestly dub "Canada's Greatest Fair." But for the presence of this not a thousandeth part of this special amount would have been left in the city. All Toronto works together in the matter as one man. The newspapers boom the exhibition, the business men bonus it with liberal subsidies, the people vote $100,000 grants and the result is that the amounts thus contributed prove a handsome investment in the interests of the city. What Toronto does in this respect, Peterborough is able to equal in a proportionate manner. This town is the geographical and commercial centre of the Midland district with its splendid environment of agricultural country, unsurpassed on the continent. There is no reason, except not seeing, by united exertion, that it is done, why Peterborough should not have a Midland Industrial Exhibition, to last several days, and daily attract thousands of visitors. The directors of the West Riding Society are taking the first step in this direction, and they should receive not only every moral but also a generous substantial encouragement. The ratepayers of this town will not, if we understand their spirit, sympathise with their representatives in any too cautious dealing with the aforesaid request for a grant to the society. The former will, we are sure, endorse the action of the Council in taking a broad and liberal view of the matter, and we are also certain that the business men of the town, judging by the manner in which half a score of our citizens, as noted in he news columns of our yesterday's issue, have contributed the exact equivalent of the sum asked from 8000 of our citizens, daily perform their share. Every citizen of Peterborough should stand by the town,

The "great constitutional lawyer" received yesterday his first knock-down blow in the new fight he instituting against Ontario. In the case of The Queen v. St. Catharines Milling and Lumber Company, Chancellor Boyd decided that the Dominion Government had no right to issue timber licenses based on the Indian title. The Indians he declared, had no proprietary rights in the soil.

Gladstone's Office.

It is quite melancholy to see the "Grand Old Man" ousted out of office and political life on beer, but his Tory opponents, in their inordinate thirst for office, seized on the first available pretext to pave the way to the realization of their ambition to warm the treasury benches. In order to do this, they have gone back on the traditions of the party and formed an alliance with the Home Rulers party. This alliance, while it may have answered their objects in the present sense, seems destined to give them no end of trouble in case they muster the courage to take the office they so ardently long for. The Tories of England have always favored the exercise of vigorous measures in regard to Ireland. If they, however, hope to retain the friendship and alliance of the Home Rule party and the Radicals they must swallow their past professions and policy, and, moreover, carry out a more or less comprehensive policy of "Home Rule" for Ireland. The Conservatives apparently fully appreciate the position in which their plotting to displace Gladstone has placed them: Now that "power" is within their grasp they manifest a strong disinclination to stretch forth thier hands to grasp it. They will find their victory worse than a defeat. In case they accept office they must find money to arrange the Crimea Act and settle with Russia, and all this in face of a large Liberal majority. The tax on tea, which they propose, will be far more unpopular than the tax on beer and spirits. Therefore they will probably refuse to take office. If they accept, the Liberals will not be sorry to transfer all the troubles to their shoulders. The effect of the vote on the negotiations with Russia may be extremely serious.

Patriotism, however loudly-mouthed at most times, is forgotten in the scramble for power.

One thing that will deter Lord Sailsbury from stepping into Mr. Gladstone's shoes will be the consequent necessity of a dissolution of Parliament and an appeal to the country. And if an appeal is made to the country on the question of taxing tea and sugar instead of beer, Lord Sailsbury will find himself left in a disastrous minority. Nothing would be less surprising than that Mr. Gladstone, as foreshadowed by yesterday's despatches, should reconsider his resignation and consent again to accept a responsibility form which his opponents, successful by a mere catch vote, in their own interests wisely shrink.

All Through the "Unpleasantness."

Letter From a Former East Riding Resident.

Mr. Wm. Drain, a former resident of the East Riding of Peterborough, now a settler at Prince Albert, N. W.T., sends the following letter to his uncle, Mr. Hugh Drain, of Norwood:—

PRINCE ALBERT, May 25th.

DEAR UNCLE,—We have had some terrible work here since I heard from you. I have been all through all the battles in this part of the country. Duck Lake was the first and Fish Creek the second. I had one of my horses shot in the hind legs and the fringe of my coat shot off. I have been a special courier ever since the rebellion broke out.

The soldiers made a clean sweep at Batoche. It was a terrible sight there after the battle. Half-breed women and squaws were to be found crying beside their dead husbands. In the charge some of the rebels would throw up their hands and ask for mercy, but the only mercy they got was a bayonet thrust, with the remark, "There's mercy."

I think the war is all over and I am not sorry. I have ridden 100 miles in 24 hours. I have been in the saddle day and night. I have had some narrow escapes. It does not trouble me at all now to shoot an Indian. Riel (said before his defeat) is going east to represent the North-West in general, and tell folks how he has been treated. He is quite a gentleman to talk to. I had a half-hour's interview with him after the first battle, when I and Tom Anderson went for the dead and wounded. I asked him what he wanted, and at length he said he wanted the Government to treat with him or else he would drive the police east, and also the H.B.C., and he would form a Government of his own. He said that he did not want us to fight against our own countrymen, but if we stayed by the police he would have to shoot us. He let us eat at the same table with the councillors. His men took care of our horses, and we had everything one could desire for supper. We loaded up with dead and wounded and started about 12 in the night for Prince Albert, a distance of 40 miles. The only time I felt serious was when I saw a lady in Prince Albert weeping over her dead son; I would rather see something else than that. I saw Dave at the battle of Batoche. He is well. He was up at Batoche with a message for the General.

NEWS CONDENSED.

The Rev. A. Cameron, Winnipeg, in a recent sermon said that "If the authorities in the Northwest were as vigilant as those at Washington, there would have been no rebellion."

The wife of John L. Sullivan, the slugger, sued for divorce but was refused a decree. It was proven that he was the hardest hitter, but when it came to drinking and smoking the wife was ahead of the slugger.

In the last issue of the Prescott Telegraph, Mr. John A. McKenzie, who has conducted the paper for the past eight years, makes his valedictory address and retires from the management of the paper. Wm. McKenzie, a journalist of Ottawa, will hereafter conduct the Telegraph,

OH, WHAT A SWEET DEATH TO DIE.

"Hennery, oh, Hennery! Do you love me?"

"Why do you ask Abigail? You know that I love you. What can I do to prove my affection, dearest?"

"Ithe cream," she sweetly lisps.

"But, dearest, do you know? A great many people have been poisoned lately from eating ice cream!"

"Ah! How lovely! Then let us die together, Hennery. Let this be a proof of your love. Oh, what a sweet death to die!" And arm in arm they hastened to their doom.

POISONED BY CANNED CORN.

STAPLETON, L.I., June 10.—The entire family of Wm. King, painter, were poisoned this morning by eating canned corn. One child is dead, and the remainder of the family are in a precarious condition.

They Traded Names.

"This minter about young folk buyin' reminds me of what happened two summers ago to my sister, or rather to her two little boys, or, more correct yit, to one of 'em. Them was two curi'us little boys. They was allus tradin' with each other. Their father deals mostly in horses, and they must have got it from him. At the time I'm tellin' of they traded everything they had, and when they had nothin' else to swap they traded names. Joe he took Johnny's name and Johnny took Joe's. Just about when they had done this they both got sick with sumthin' or other, the oldest one pretty bad, the other not much. Now, there ain't any doctor within twenty miles of where my sister lives. But there is one who sometimes has a call to go through that part of the country, and the people in that part is allus very glad when they chance to be sick when he comes along. Now this good luck happened to my sister for the doctor came by jist at this time. He looks into the state of the boys and while their mother was gone down stairs he mixes up some medicine he has along with him. 'What's your name?' he says to the oldest boy. Now, as he had traded names fair and square, he wasn't goin' back on the trade, and he said "Joe." "And my name is Johnny," up and says the other one. Then the doctor goes and gives a bottle of medicine to their mother, and says he: "This medicine is fur Joe. You must give him a teaspoonful every two hours. Keep up the treatment and he will be all right. As fur Johnny, he ain't sick much and don't need no medicine." And then he went away.

"Every two hours after that Joe, who wasn't sick worth mentioning, had to take a dose of horrid stuff, and pretty soon he took to his bed, and Johnny he just played around and got well in the nat'ral way. Joe's mother kept up the treatment, gittin' up in the night to feed that stuff to him, but the poor little boy got wuss and wuss, and one mornin' he says to his mother, says he: "Mother, I guess I am goin' to die, and I'd ruther than to take any more of that medicine, and I wish you'd call Johnny and we'll trade names back again, and if he don't want to do it, you ken tell him he ken keep the old mink skin I gave him to boot on account of his name havin' a Wesley in it." "Trade names?" says his mother. "What do you mean by that?" And then he told her what he and Johnny had done. "And did you ever tell anybody about this?" says she. "Nobody but Doctor Barnes," says he. "After that I got sick and forgot it." When my sister heard that an idee struck into her like you put a fork into an apple-dumplin'. Traded names and told the doctor! She'd all along thought it strange that the boy that seemed wuss should be turned out, and the other one put under treatment, but it wasn't for her to set up her opinion against that of a man like Dr. Barnes. Down she went, in about seventeen jumps, to where Eli Timpkins, the hired man, was plowin' in the corn. "Take that horse out o' that," she hollers, "an' you may kill him if you have to, but git Dr. Barnes here before my little boy dies." When the doctor come he heard the story, and looked at the sick youngster, and then says he: "If he'd kept his mink skin and not hankered after a Wesley in his name, he'd a had a better time of it. Stop the treatment and he'll be all right." Which she did; and he was.

Wild Dogs.

About eight miles from Poughkeepsie is the most remarkable breed of wild dogs, or rather half dog and half wild beast. According to the stories of the farmers in that vicinity, a female Newfoundland dog, a few years ago, gave birth to a litter in the woods. The dogs grew up wild and it seems took to running with foxes and animals of like kind, which resulted in another breed of animals, part dog and part fox, which are the terror of that part of the country. There are about fifty in all, as near as they can judge, and they run from the size of a Newfoundland dog down to a small fox dog.

They run in companies, and it is extremely dangerous for a man to come across them, for they are ferocious. Besides they have the cunning of the fox added to the higher intelligence of the domestic dog, which is such an assistance to them that it seems almost impossible to kill one of them, unless a man goes alone, and then, although he may shoot one, the rest of the pack will make short work of him. Hunters would much rather run across a pack of wolves than these dogs, for in this wooded district they come upon them unawares, kill their hunting dogs, and if the hunters do not beat an immediate retreat will attack them. In several cases hunters have been in this plight, and forced to climb trees in order to save their lives. Many stories are told of the remarkable cunning of these animals. Instead of cunning, perhaps, a better word would be "intelligence." When a party of hunters undertake to hunt these wild dogs, they are never able to find them, for seemingly they know very well their own strength, and though they may be a match for one or two men, they cannot cope with a dozen.—Kingston (N. Y.) Freeman.

Some Odd Things.

It strikes one as odd that the discoverer of a silver mine worth at least a million dollars is always ready to sell out for $500 in cash, and a barrel of whisky.

It strikes one as odd that the Oregon & Transcontinental people have so long been able to make certain operators believe that the moon is made of green cheese.

It strikes one as odd that the appalling list of weekly failures, crop failures, lockouts, and general outlook, is taken by bull speculators as evidence that stocks must go up.

It strikes one as odd that Dakota wants any more railroads, unless to freight the snow and ice out of the country, and bring in some family which won't be homesick inside of twelve hours.

It strikes one as odd that railroads which haven't enough cash in the bank to pay employes are loudly talking quarterly dividends.

A London bank has issued an order forbidding clerks whose income is less than $750 a year to marry.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

or,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The London Casket," "Thorncraft's Model," &c. &c.

had lived till now, and what dull, dull people she had dwelt amongst!

Mr. Richmond's sketch-book, the one Lucy had found, was lying open on her knee; suddenly a deep shadow fell upon it. She looked up quickly, and exclaimed, "I am very much afraid there is going to be a heavy shower!"

He, too, looked up in some alarm, and said, "We must really be thinking of getting on shore—I wonder no one has seen us."

"Is there not some danger if they do see us they will conclude that we belong to the yacht, and have a boat coming for us, and are independent of them and their help?"

"I don't know—but if so, we had better take means to undeceive them." He sprang on a broken-down wall, tied his handkerchief to a long stick and waved it backwards and forwards.

A few heavy raindrops fell. Lucy said, "We shall get very wet; and you, Mr. Richmond, are quite wet enough already."

"I am dry now. It is only salt water." He looked to see what provision she had against bad weather. Her dress was of some soft grey material, and she wore a little fichu of the same—that and a parasol was all she had to defend herself with. He had not even an umbrella, and now the rain was beginning to fall fast. He gave up for the present the idea of trying to summon help from St. Malo, and ran here and there to look for shelter. The storm was coming from the St. Malo side; he ran towards the opposite cliff, and after some search found on the very edge of it a bit of overhanging turf under which the loose soil had crumbled away. This roofed in a little space, but very inadequately. He took Lucy there; and as the rain came in a slanting direction from the other side, this place of shelter which he had found was sufficient to protect her.

"I won't stay here unless you do," cried she. "Am I to be dry, and you get wet!"

"There is very little room," said Mr. Richmond.

"There is enough for both of us," said Lucy—so he crept in and sat down by her. The cliff sloped away before them in broken terrace-like descents of half hills, half precipices, and they could perceive the heavy rains falling on the now leaden sea.

"We are tolerably dry here, but we lose our chance of making the St. Malo people see us," said Lucy; however, the rain is so heavy it can't last long."

Richmond who was accustomed to study skies, was afraid that it would last; but he said, cheerfully, "After all, this undercut bit of pasture-land is a great find for us. I'll scoop a little more soil out, I think. Sit still, Miss Clavering; I am going to work very gently—I won't throw any of it on you." He took a thin bit of stone and scooped away the earth delving in carefully, and leaving a thick mass of protecting turf above.

"It is not worth while to do that," said Lucy. "As soon as the rain clears away enough to let them see us, we must go and show ourselves. What a pity my people have chosen such an unfortunate day for their excursion to Dinan!"

"Are you cold?" he inquired very anxiously.

"Oh, no; I am quite comfortable. Now, really, Mr. Richmond, this is beginning to look more like an adventure."

"I hope for your sake it will not be too much of one. Are you hungry?" inquired Mr. Richmond.

"No, I thank you—but what o'clock is it?"

"Twenty minutes past five."

"Where are you going now? Don't put your head out. You will get so wet," cried Lucy.

"I must not stay here, I must go to the other side and see if I can't arouse the people on shore."

"Not in this rain!"

"I dare not wait any longer. We must make them see us now. It will be dark in an hour or two."

"Whether you go now or not, we are certain to be seen long before dark.—There are always a number of boats about."

"Will you excuse my taking off my coat?" asked he.

"Oh! don't go without your coat," cried Lucy. "What can you be thinking of?—Just look how it is raining!"

"That is the very reason why I am taking it off," said he. "A coat is a coat as long as it is dry; when once it is wet it is of no use whatever to anyone." He rolled it up, put it in a dry corner, and went.—He stood for an hour or more in the drenching rain, waving a handkerchief that would not wave, but, let him stretch it out as he might, dropped in a wet, soggy string by the side of the stick to which it was fastened. The rain which wetted him would have wetted the St. Malo folks, too; so none were abroad, or none looked over towards the Grand Bey.—Heavy as the shower was, Hugh Richmond never once relaxed his efforts. He felt that he must do all that in him lay to get Lucy away from that miserable place before nightfall. And then he could not help remembering how they had sat and laughed and talked, believing all the while that each moment might put an end to their captivity, until all at once they had begun to see it was by no means so easy a matter to get away as they had supposed. Hugh Richmond's heart sunk within him when he thought of the delicate girl who was his companion in misfortune being kept here without food or shelter till low water. "We can cross by the causeway about four or five in the morning but if we have to stay here until then she will not be able to walk." This was his thought, and it caused him to redouble his efforts, and dance and fling his arms above him, and gesticulate wildly before the eyes of those who were not there to see—and still the rain fell. It was falling more heavily now—so heavily that it was beginning to obscure all distant objects, and presently he could no longer see St. Malo, nor indeed anything but a blurred confusion of white raindrops.

Even then he did not desist; but suddenly he felt a light touch on his arm—he heard a sweet voice say, "Dear Mr. Richmond, give up trying to make them see you! Do come away! How can you stay in this dreadful rain?"

"How can you come out in it?" he cried almost angrily; for he was vexed to think she had left her shelter.

"I could not stay there so long, knowing you were getting wet," she answered, simply. "Come back to the cave with me. Let us make up our minds to wait until the tide goes down."

Whatever they decided as to that, the thing to be done now was to get Lucy out of the rain. He came down from the bit of wall on which he was standing; he turned to go back with her. He looked at her hat, which sat so daintly on her head that morning—it was shapeless, and the feather reduced to pulp; her dress was black instead of grey; her face splashed with raindrops. Nevertheless, he saw she was trying to be brave and cheerful—there was even an attempt at a smile on her lips. The closely cropped pasture-land was saturated with rain and intensely slippery. She stumbled and fell. She sprang to her feet with a laugh, which was but a faint one—but in another minute she fell once more. He helped her to

She Doted on Realism.

"Oh, I do so much like this book," said a lady, putting aside, with a weariness that could not be concealed, a work from the pen of a realistic novelist. "Everything is so natural. Why, it speaks of the heroine stopping on the stairway and tying her shoe."

"Very thrilling," replied her husband.

"Oh, no, dear, it is not thrilling, but it is so real. That's what I call fine art."

"It was no doubt necessary for the young lady to stop and tie her shoe, but I don't know that it was art. Any one of even slight digital education, can tie a shoe."

"Oh, you don't understand. The mere act of tying a shoe implies no art, but the fact that that the novelist should have spoken of anything so natural is art."

"Then, in your opinion, high art must be easily attained. I am thinking of writing a piece of high art. I feel the inspiration. Give me pen and paper."

Turning to a table he busied himself with writing, and then, calling his wife, said:

"Here's a chapter from my forthcoming book: 'The calf stood in the lot. A horsefly buzzed among the leaves of a peach tree. A gray-headed man, with a gouty limp, blew his nose and let down the back window. The calf switched his tail. A hawk flew over and a chicken squalled. The calf held up his head and said bah. A dog jumped over the fence and very cautiously approached the calf. The calf snorted and looked intently at the dog. The calf said bah, and the dog tucked his tail and jumped over the fence. Now, my dear, is not this realistic?"

"It's disgusting."

"It is perfectly natural. Take, for instance, the old man blowing his nose. How life like it is, quite as much as the picture of the young lady who tied her shoes. I make you tired eh? I see that you don't like realism."—Arkansaw Traveler.

The Queen of Siam's Thimble.

The thimble is a Dutch invention that was first brought to England in 1695 by one John Lofting, who began its manufacture at Islington, near London, gaining thereby both honor and profit. Its name is derived from the words thumb and bell, being for a long time called thumble, and only lately thimble. Old records say that thimbles were first worn on the thumb; but we can scarcely conceive how they would be of much use there. Formerly they were made of brass and iron only, but of late years steel, silver, gold, horn, ivory, and even pearl and glass have all been used for making thimbles.

A thimble owned by a Queen-consort of Siam is shaped like a lotus-bud, that being the royal flower of the country, and almost everything about the court bearing, in a greater or less degree, some impress of the lotus. This thimble is of gold, thickly studded with diamonds that are so arranged as to form the lady's name and the date of her marriage. It was a bridal gift from the King, who, having seen the English and American ladies at his court using thimbles, took this method of introducing them among his own people.—Dorcas' Magazine.

Down With the Dust!

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammersmen Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely and was passing out the door, when the Smith in peremptory tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smith handed him a "hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to dae wi' these, Deacon?" "Why,' replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail yer thanks there and pay me saxpence."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S on George street. Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Newsy.

The Owen Sound Advertiser says:—We have received the first number of the Peterborough DAILY EXAMINER. It is a six column four page paper, and is newsy and has the appearance of life. Friend Stratton has shouldered a big load, but we think he will be able to carry it through all right.

Canada's "Greatest Fair."

We have received from Mr. Hill, Secretary of the Toronto Industrial Fair, which is to be held this year from the 7th to the 19th of September, a copy of the Prize List, in which is offered over $25,000 in premiums, a large proportion of which is for Live Stock and Agricultural Products etc. The Directors announce that they are preparing an immense programme of Special Attractions, which they promise will eclipse any of their previous efforts. Any one desiring a copy of the Prize List or other information in connection with this Exhibition, will secure it by dropping a card to the Secretary, at Toronto.

The Cheese Industry.

Many persons do not appreciate the importance of the fortnightly Cheese Board meetings held in town. At the meeting yesterday, there were sold nearly 24 tons of cheese for over $4,200, to be distributed amongst the farmers and in turn to be spent in town. And neither the quantity sold or the price obtained was up to the usual mark. There will be an increase in both respects as soon as the market becomes settled. Peterborough county is excellently adapted to grazing purposes and it is to the interest of both farmers and towns-people to have our dairying stock improved as much as possible. One of the best ways of doing this is to maintain a good, well supported Agricultural Exhibition.

Sunday School Institute.

The fourth and last of the series of Sunday School Teachers Institutes was held in the lecture room of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, last evening. The attendance was much larger than on any previous occasion, and the instruction on "The vital steps in the approach, the process and products of teaching a Sunday School lesson," given by the Rev. J. McEwen, Secretary of the Provincial Sunday School Association, was very interesting. At the conclusion of the instruction a meeting was held and a committee appointed to further the interests of the Association and report in July. The collection which was taken up for the benefit of the Sunday School Association was a good one.

A Wounded Warrior Heard From.

Mr. Richard Cook, of this town, recently received a letter from his son, R. S. Cook, one of the late Capt. French's scouts, written from Saskatoon Hospital, wherein he vividly describes the three engagements in which he has taken part. We stated some time ago that Mr. Cook, who was wounded in the leg below the knee in the fight at Batoche, was doing well, but we regret sincerely to have to chronicle that a turn for the worse has set in in the wounded member, and for the five days previous to the writing of the letter the surgeons of the hospital have been undecided as to whether the leg would have to be amputated or not. He states in his letter that one of the last things that Captain French did was to carry him, in his helpless condition, out of the ravine the bullets from the rebel fire whizzing about them. Whilst being conveyed to camp in a wagon the horses ran away, and the pain endured from the wound during the time that that occurrence was in progress, can be better imagined than described. We hope the next communication will bring more encouraging news to the family of Mr. Cook. The many friends of "Dick," as his comrades of the "Rangers," familiarly called him, will regret to learn of the many misfortunes of their erstwhile genial companion in arms.

PERSONS leaving Peterborough for the summer months can have THE DAILY EXAMINER sent them by mail to any address, free of all postage.

LANSDOWNE RINK.

Prof. W. G. Hurst's Exhibition on the Bicycle—W. Lech Leads the Lads in the Mile Race.

The Lansdowne Roller Rink was not packed to its utmost capacity last night; nevertheless the assemblage present was sufficient to make the proprietor, Mr. Ed. Brown, smile.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the Fire Brigade Band marched to the rink and a sufficient number of lovers of the "rollers" marched after them to rent every pair in the place, leaving an audience of about 600, who eagerly awaited the appearance of the champion bicyclist. At 9 o'clock that gentleman appeared, attired in a pretty costume of garnet, intermixed with white satin, and for over twenty minutes he held the floor, performing evolutions on the bicycle which would be utterly impossible to describe. The principal features of the exhibition were the balancing feats which he performed on the two-wheeled instrument, for over five minutes without ever touching the floor with his feet, with the bicycle in the centre of the rink in every conceivable position. The performance was wound up by Mr Hurst leaping over the vehicle and turning two back somersaults. The mile race was the next feature of interest, in which W. Logan, H. Robinson, J. Shevlin, W. Lech, N. Garrison, Belleville, and B. Hughes started. Messrs. H. LeBrun, M. Giroux and J. J. Daly acted as judges, and R. H. Fortye set the boys "a rolling." The start was a good one, and B. Hughes led, but in turning the first corner "hammered the floor," and gave the lead to W. Lech, who held it throughout, winning by about fifty yards. The prize was a handsome silver medal chased with gold and appropriately designed, and was presented by Mr. Ed. Brown. The "Grand March," conducted by Professor Kerr, brought the evening's fun to a close about 10:30 p. m. During the night the band kept the wheels rolling to its sweet strains.

Sale of Property.

Mr. C. Stapleton, auctioneer, sold by auction, the McKeiver property, situated on Elm street, yesterday. Mr. John Sullivan, of the Peterborough House, was the purchaser, and is now the owner of the handsome brick house and quarter acre lot, after paying $1,360 hard cash for it.

Pretty as a Picture.

The Port Hope Times says:—The daily edition of the Peterborough EXAMINER is as pretty as a picture, and as full of news as many of the much more pretentious city dailies. The EXAMINER is deserving of a large patronage from the business men of Peterborough, and we hope its enterprising proprietor, Mr. J. R. Stratton, may find his new venture a financial success.

At Last.

The men engaged in the laying of the sidewalks have at last commenced operations on Wolfe street. The grading was commenced this morning and the lumber taken from the old sidewalk, which was rooted up from George street, between Dalhousie street and the C. P. R. Station, is being conveyed to the scene of action. It won't be first class—still, better than nothing.

Ready for Pupils.

Prof. J. S. Parker, organist of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, has occupied the rooms over E. J. Hartley's music store, and will be ready for the reception of pupils on and after Tuesday, June 16th inst. Professor Parker has had a large experience and comes to town with excellent testimonials from excellent authorities, as to his success in imparting musical knowledge.

Nearly Killed.

A gentleman from the vicinity of Hastings informs us that yesterday whilst a heavy freight train was passing through that village, a child of Mr. Scriver was noticed on the track by the engineer holding up its hands and seemingly laughing. Before the engine could be reversed she was struck in the breast and knocked some distance into the ditch to the side of the track; but fortunately not killed. We published in yesterday's EXAMINER the sad account of the drowning of a child of the same name, which took place near Hastings, on Wednesday last, and we presume this is another member of the family.

What is the Prospect?

Summer now being fairly with us, it is time to enquire what is to be the fortune of the public in the matter of open air music, by the Fire Brigade Band. We believe that the band is engaged every evening at the Lansdowne Roller Rink, and that the manager asserts that he is going to keep them to it all summer. It is to be hoped that some amicable arrangement can be made by which the members of the band can secure an off evening, to enable them to give an open air concert. The City Band being, we are informed, unable, owing to the absence of prominent members from town, to make engagements, Peterborough will have to submit to the prospect of a dearth of open air music.

March of Progress.

Even the Government offices have to give way to the progress of Peterborough. The premises formerly occupied by the Inland Revenue offices, Simcoe street, being required for a livelier business, these offices have been removed to the post office block, and now occupy the rooms recently used by Dr. Halliday as a surgery. The number of business places in town being fully occupied the Simcoe street shops were required for mercantile purposes. Anyway things are more as they should be under the new arrangement. The Customs and Inland Revenue offices and Postoffice are in close proximity, and if our children live to a ripe old age they may see them all under one roof in the "new" Postoffice building, to be built somewhere in town, at some exceedingly indefinite future time.

The Parlor Roller Rink.

The above institution is a cool, clean and comfortable resort for any person fond of roller skating. The skates are in good condition, well oiled, and running on the best quality of box-wood wheels.

Police Court.

This morning, Mary Malloy, an antiquated spinster, on the shady side of sixty, charged Margaret Hutchinson with having assulted her with a well-pole. Mary testified that she was not tampering with Mrs. Hutchinson in any way, except by rendering the sentimental words of the song "Pat Molloy," in a sweet vocal warble. She swore that the defendant challenged her several times; and without any provocation nearly "kilt" her with the above mentioned weapon. Annie Morontsey testified that Mary was brought upstairs in a neighbor's house insensible and bleeding. Mrs. Hutchinson swore that Mary fired two large stones at her whilst she (Mrs. Hutchinson) was in her own house, and that Mary was the aggressor. Mary's evidence, however, was the stronger, and the magistrate imposed a fine of $5 and costs—$3.80—payable in two days or 15 days in jail.

New Agricultural Grounds.

The City Fathers go Down on a 'Bus and Look Them Over.

Yesterday afternoon, at the invitation of Messrs. Carnegie and Dr. Kincaid, directors of the West Riding Agricultural Society, the Mayor and Council of Peterborough entered a 'bus at the Town Hall and were driven to the grounds in the lower part of the town. The corporate body represented on the occasion consisted of His Worship the Mayor, Messrs. Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, McClelland, Yelland and Menzies and the Clerk and Treasurer, Mr. Macdonald. On their arrival they proceeded to minutely examine the situation and were deeply interested in acquiring all the information the obliging directors were able to supply. They found work on the buildings in progress pretty well advanced and being PUSHED RAPIDLY.

The stables and stalls occupy the south and east sides of the grounds. On the south side are erected the commodious horse stalls, extending a distance of 643 feet and divided into single and double stalls. On the east side are the pens for horned cattle, sheep and swine, 650 feet in length, and divided into 120 compartments. All this 1,293 feet of stabling is securely roofed, the front of the roof projecting so as to form a cover over the walk that extends in front of the pens, affording a dry promenade for stock fanciers in wet weather. It is proposed to erect the

MAIN BUILDING

on the rising grounds in the centre of the enclosure. This will be of a permanent, substantial character, and the plan is such as will admit of adding transepts as circumstances will warrant. After looking over the Exhibition grounds proper, the visitors turned their attention to the

DRIVING PARK ADJOINING,

the track of which will be available to the Society during Exhibitions. While driving around the track the two directors, accompanied by two prominent City Fathers, got up a scratch race. The surgical director, however, distanced the capitalist-farmer's Clydesdale easily. The members of the Council were highly pleased with the appearance and capabilities of the new grounds, one of the previously strongest opponents to the site being particularly well pleased, and the chances of its making a great success, it may be assumed, largely increased by the visit made. We hope that not only the town and County Councils, but also our business men will fall in line and uphold the hands of the directors, particularly Messrs. Carnegie and McClelland and Dr. Kincaid, whose strenuous exertions on behalf of the success of the exhibition enterprise, must directly result in largely benefitting the town.

Saved Army.

Div. Capt. Munt will arrive in town this evening and remain over Sunday, to take part in the meetings.

Neat and Newsy.

Says the Omemee Herald:—The Peterborough EXAMINER now issues a daily paper in connection with their weekly. It is a neat, newsy and well printed sheet and we hope it will receive that patronage its excellence entitles it to.

A Good Chance.

If our present efficient street inspector wishes to commit accidental suicide, he might take a walk along the west side of Harvey street, where the chances of breaking his neck in the spaces left by the displaced planks would afford him at least twelve chances in the dozen.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

Is it to be Condemned and Reprobated.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—I am sorry my letter with respect to what I saw and heard at the Salvation Army meeting should so have disturbed the equanimity of the editor of the Morning Times. I can assure that gentleman that in supposing my few lines were penned under an "inspiration of malice," as he expresses it towards his paper, he is laboring under an entire misapprehension. Nor did I write at all in the interest of the EXAMINER, or at the instigation of its editor. My sole motive was justice; justice to myself as one of the ministers of the town, who were charged with remissness as to their duty; and justice to the people of the Salvation Army.

The Editor of the Times asked me if I heard of the "burglaries committed by officers of the Army;" and of the young girls enticed in its ranks? These are very serious questions indeed, and are such, I submit, as no Christian gentleman should propound in a public print, unless he is fully assured of the same. So far as I am concerned, personally, I have pleasure in replying, I have not heard, nor do I know of any such evils pertaining to the Army. But this I know, that evil characters and evil workers are to be found everywhere; and more or less in all religious Denominations. What then? Am I, on this account, to hold up these Denominations or churches to public opprobrium? To denounce and condemn, that is, the whole, because of the few? Would that be just or proper?

Then, with respect to the public parades of the Army, offending "the laws of morality, and the regulations of the town, and disgusting law-abiding citizens." I have not yet seen these offensive and disgusting exhibitions. I have seen the Army several times marching; but when I saw them, they marched very orderly, very much as the volunteers do, or the mason's or oddfellows, and others. When the children of Israel marched forth on the banks of the Red Sea, the damsels of Israel marched, playing their timbrels and singing, and dancing before the Lord. Will "Veritas," or the editor of the Times, say they were "cranks," or fanatics because they did this? Or that Moses was guilty of dirediction of duty in permitting it? David, the King of Israel, acted in a like manner amid the grand procession when the Ark was taken to the Tabernacle in Jerusalem. He danced before the Lord, it is said, with all his "might." How disgusting! So his queen thought. But no; he was full of sacred and exultant joy. May the editor of the Times be thus felicitated!

Do I then approve of the Salvation Army? In all that is good and Scriptural, and in all means that are harmless and yet salutary and effective.

Every minister and observing Christian knows this, that in all our towns and cities there are thousands of the population of the poor and the degraded lost ones who never come to the churches, and so far as the churches are concerned, therefore, are uninfluenced and remain in vice and degradation. But, now, if an organization is raised up, that by drums and tambourines and trumpets, &c., and marching through the streets, these crowds can be reached and influenced to attend night after night places of religious worship called barracks, and be thus drawn away from grog-shops and gambling halls and places of dissipation, and so, that they become ultimately pious and good citizens, what good man will forbid? Will the bishops and the clergy of the Church of England in the old land? No. They are forming and employing like organizations. Shall I then, sir, and "Veritas" and the editor of the Times forbid? May we be duly discriminate, and while we attempt to uproot the tares, be wisely appreciative and careful of the wheat, or what is good.

Yours truly,
G. H. DAVIS.

Anglican Synod of Toronto.

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Synod met at ten o'clock, the Bishop presiding. The Ven. Archdeacon of York read the opening prayers.

On motion Revds. C. H. Chandler and G. G. Ballard, of the Diocese of Huron, were invited to seats in the Synod.

The Audit and Printing reports which contained nothing of importance were received and adopted.

The Ven. Archdeacon Boddy read the report of the Committee on Sunday Observance. It stated that in the Dominion Parliament a bill on the subject had been introduced, but it was thrown out being ultra vires. Subsequently a bill, having for its object the prevention of Sunday excursions, was passed by the Provincial Legislature. The Committee, therefore, asked to be relieved, their duty having been fulfilled.

A long and interesting report on Religious Instruction in schools caused a very animated discussion in which several country members joined.

The Committee reported that an onward step had been taken during the year. The Ontario Government had authorized a new volume of Scripture readings for the schools, and had supplemented that order by a series of regulations rendering the work of religious instruction more effectual.

The Committee hoped that sufficient combined pressure would now be brought to insure weekly instruction in the Commandments and the adoption of the provisions by which religious instruction could be given in them during the hours of school teaching. The Committee was re-appointed.

In the afternoon session, Rev. John Langtry presented the report of the special committee appointed to consider a scheme for the permutation of missionaries. The Rev. W. C. Bradshaw also presented the report of the committee on the Superannuation Fund. These were received and ordered to be printed.

In referring to the Sec. House, Mr. A. H. Campbell stated that the contract for the erection of a house for the Bishop had been let and ground would probably be broken this week. The committee had in hand about $7,000 and there were subscriptions still due amounting to $5,000. It was estimated that the Sec. House would cost about $11,000 and he hoped it would soon be ready for occupation by the Bishop. (applause.)

The memorandum respecting the duties of Church Wardens was referred back to the committee with instructions to add to each section the authority for the proposition of law contained in it, the report to be considered at the next session of Synod.

Rev. Mr. Bradshaw read the report of the Committee on the Girl's Friendly Society.

He stated that the committee had been unable to do much during the year, the members not having attended the meetings, but asked for the re-appointment of the committee to take steps in conjunction with the Diocesan Council, to establish branches throughout the Diocese. The committee was appointed.

The Synod adjourned at 6 p.m., resuming work at 8 o'clock. The Lay Secretary read a fraternal resolution adopted by the Toronto Conference of the Methodist Church, and asking that an hour be named for receiving a delegation from the Conference. 12 o'clock on Friday was named for that purpose, and the Bishop nominated a committee to receive the delegation.

The sustentatation scheme was then taken up clause by clause, the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, chairman, explaining, in a lucid manner, the object sought to be attained and the methods to be adopted.

The report was passed.

After the adoption of the scheme, Mr. Biggar moved that the following be a special committee to carry out its provisions, in concert with the Executive Committee, viz:—Revs. W. C. Bradshaw and A. J. Broughall, Messrs. J. H. Mason, Alex. Marling and C. H. Green.

The Synod adjourned at 10.30 p.m.

The remainder of the report was received too late for to-days issue.

THE BICYCLE CLUB.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

I noticed a brief communication in last night's Review from Chas. A. Lawford, taking exception to my advertising that the Bicycle Club would turn out at 7:30 p. m., and escort Prof. Hurst to the Lansdowne Roller Rink, on Thursday evening, where he gave an exhibition of his wonderful feats on the bicycle.

Now, the facts are simply these; several members of the club suggested to me that it would be courteous if the P. B. C. would turn out and escort the finest living exponent of the bicycle to the rink. In my announcement in the press of the entertainment, I merely added that the club would do as suggested; not for one moment thinking but that all would be right. When 7:30 came I was as much astonished as the public, to see that those members who had so very kindly undertaken to make the necessary arrangements, had failed to do so. If there is any grievance over the club not turning out, I think, under the circumstance, we are the sufferers. We propose in every case carrying out at the rink all we announce, and no one regrets more than the management of the rink that a trifling disappointment did occur in the free list portion of our programme.

I am informed by members of the club that Mr. Lawford wrote his note to you without consulting the club, and, although his name as captain appears appended, it has no significance in this instance, being placed there without authority.

Yours truly,
ED. BROWN,
Manager Lansdowne Roller Rink.

A Cat and Chloroform.

There is mourning in a Fair Haven household, says the New Haven News. There is a little grave under a pear tree in the yard, and there are tears in abundance, and neglected ribbons laid tenderly away in consecrated receptacles. There has been an unintentional murder within that house of mourning. Said the unwilling taker of life, as he sobbed over the past:

"We had a pet cat who wore a neat little collar, but in an evil hour I bethought me of a cat that wore ribbons or rings in his ears. Our Tom was handsome and deserving, and must be decorated. So to save him pain I consulted a druggist, who gave me a small vial labeled 'Chloroform, Poison,' after closely questioning me as to my knowledge of its use. I procured an eyelet punch, a piece of string, and some olive oil, and proceeded to business.

"I drew a sock over poor Tom's head and tied it. I poured a few drops from the vial, where his nose should connect, but this only seemed to cause unusual activity, and I feared he would jump through the window; so I emptied the vial on the moist spot. The effect was soon perceptible. Tom lay motionless. I took him up, laid him on the table, and pinched him. Then inwardly blessed that science that permitted us to perform operations even on the lower animals without causing pain. So I went to work with the deliberation of a professor and punched holes in Tom's ears. I picked the pieces out to be sure there was a perfect orifice, then threaded an oiled string and tied it as a preliminary to the anticipated gorgeous ear-rings he was to sport.

"It was a complete scientific triumph, and for the moment I felt equal to the performance of almost any surgical operation, for Tom was still sleeping, perfectly oblivious in fact. I almost wished he had a tumor or something I could cut out, but the time had come to resuscitate. I procured cold water, opened his mouth, and poured some in, then bathed his brow, rubbed and pinched him—to no purpose. I laid him out under an apple tree to sleep it off for two hours. He made no sign.

"Tom is buried under a pear tree; there were no flowers. My wife is continuous in her upbraiding. She has cut up a loaf of bread, used a pound of butter and two boxes of rough on rats, making wads for every hole and corner. She has just shown me plates, clothing and even a pillow-sham marked with absolute evidence of mouse carousals, for now poor Tom is dead, and I am looking up a kitten."

Cutting Women's Noses.

The horrible crime of mutilating women by cutting off their noses is so common in Bombay as to call for the most stringent repression, and nothing, we imagine, will repress it but the free use of the lash. In the Sessions ending yesterday, Mr. Justice Scott had to hear three—we might say five—of these cases, one after the other. He postponed his sentences for a week, and we were in hopes that he would in each case order the criminals to be flogged within an ace of their lives.

Eventually, however, he sentenced them severally to what he had ascertained to be the usual punishment, three years' rigorous imprisonment. We are inclined to regret that the learned Sessions Judge, new as he is to the country, did not throw precedent over altogether. Surely these are cases in which the lash would be at once the most fitting punishment and the best deterrent.

Estimated by the misery inflicted, even the most severe penalties would seem too trivial, and if the law does not permit of flogging in the cases of such cruel mutilation, the law should be altered. The miserable women who are mutilated in this way are, of course, rendered hideous ever afterward; and because they are women it is simply impossible to calculate the misery and degradation that they will experience during the rest of their lives. No amount of imprisonment will eradicate a crime that is still evidently a customary form of marital punishment among the lower classes. But a wholesome terror of the cat-o'-nine tails is common to the degraded classes all the world over.—Times of India.

The Good of a Timely Shower.

"I was mighty thankful for that rain we got yesterday."

"Yes, it did the corn a world of good. How many acres have you got planted in corn?"

"I've got no corn planted this year at all. I wasn't thinking about crops."

"Well, how then can the rain benefit you?"

"You see I don't often get a decent dinner at home, as my wife says she can't cook in hot weather, but yesterday there was to be a church picnic, and she fixed up a lunch basket for the preacher's table, but it rained so the picnic could not come off. To keep the preacher's lunch from spoiling we had it for dinner, and it was the best dinner I've had since we were married. There was no end of chicken and jellies and that sort of allevistions. Don't tell me the rain yesterday didn't do any good. It was the most refreshing shower we had here for years."—Texas Siftings.

Alexander Mason, a well-known man about town, a particularly frequent lounger about the Morton House, New York, was coming out of his residence a few evenings ago when he met half a dozen friends who were about to enter in a body. They started back on seeing him. He asked for an explanation, and they read to him the death notice of Alexander Mason at a house just two doors away. And it was not a fictitious notice either. But the strange part of it was that the dead man of that name was utterly unknown to Mr. Mason. He had been his neighbor for years, yet he had never seen or heard of him.

Sharp-Sighted Indians.

One of the most curious traits of the Ayan Indians, recounted by Lieut. F. Schwatka in a late number of Science, is their power of seeing the motion of a fish in water. The Yukon is very muddy, so much so that when an ordinary pint cup is filled with it nothing can be seen until the sediment has settled. The water is ten or twelve feet deep and the river wide. Yet when a solitary salmon comes up this river its coming is notified, its position identified, and it is often caught in a hand-net. Some person, generally an old squaw, is on the lookout in front of the huts on the bank. At her call a man runs to the beach, picks up his canoe, paddle, and net, and guided as first chiefly by the advice of other Indians who gather on the shore, but as he approaches relying more on himself, shoots the canoe into the proper position, and, while he regulates its movements with his left hand, plunges the net to the bottom with the right. When it is remembered that the mouth of the net has an area of only about two square feet the power to catch a solitary salmon by thrusting it directly into its course seems almost miraculous. No white man could see any evidence of the motion of the fish, yet the natives assert that motion is communicated from the bottom to the top. Out of seven attempts watched by Lieut. Schwatka two were successful, though the fish were swimming from 250 to 300 yards from the bank. Several hundred fishes caught in this way are in their houses and on their foldings.

How It Is Done.

A clerk in a New York store, receiving $1,000 a year, supports himself, wife and child, and saves part of his income. This is how the wife speaks of the management at home: "When we were married we made up our minds to live so as to be able to put something in the bank each month, and we have not yet failed to do so. We figure that our $1,000 a year gave us about $2.73 a day, and we based all our estimates of expenses on that. We pay $20 a month for this flat, and we rent out the front parlor for $8 a month, which brings our rent down to $12 a month, or about forty cents a day. The landlord pays the water bill for the whole building, and as we do not burn gas we have no gas bills. The oil that we burn costs us 30 cents a month in the winter, and, of course, much less than that in the summer. I do my own housework, and therefore we save the servant's wages and what the servant would waste. As for fuel, we use ten tone of coal a year, the average cost of which last year was about $6.50 a ton, brought into the building; that makes 17 or 18 cents a day. Edward makes a good deal of fun about my buying the provisions for our table, because I will not let the cost of what we eat go above a certain amount each week. Some days we do not eat any butter, other days we go without milk, and in warm weather we only have meat once in four or five days. I spend $4 a week and no more for provisions."

The Left Side the Better.

The left side of the face is the right; statistics prove the paradox. Artists always put the best touches, finest shading, and most delicate tints on the left side of the profile. Actors, actresses, and public singers always make a half turn to the right when they wish to impress their audiences. Young ladies desirous of bewitching their gentlemen friends always walk on the right hand side. Why? Because science has shown that the left side of the face is the more beautiful, or less ugly. The left hand is more magnetic than the right, the left breast has a more graceful contour than the opposite, and the glance of the left eye has a bewitching power of which the right is hopelessly innocent. The theme will bear intrinsic expansion, but we forbear to pursue it. The remarkable part of the now well-known fact is that the discovery was made by the Chinese. In the year 9381 Ah Hing Fy Foy had a family of 17 daughters. They were all left-handed, and were greatly sought in marriage by members of the royal household. So irresistible were the charms of these moon-eyed maidens that every man who looked upon them became enslaved. To save the Empire from internecine war for their possession, the Emperor made an edict that the daughters of Ah Hing Fy Foy should be allowed to have 13 husbands each, but that in the future all left-handed girls should be strangled at their birth.—San Francisco News-Letter.

Cuban Courtship.

As a natural sequence to the restraint under which Cuban lovers are held, there are a great many small intrigues and innocent endeavors to circumvent the detectives. There are eloquent glances, signals, fun-talk, and the sly interchange of notes. Then the iron-barred window, instead of being a protection, becomes a great convenience. It is more than the front with us. She knows when he will pass by, and stands inside with a fair hand clasping the bars of her cage and waits for him. They stand there with the iron between them and talk. Every day it is so, and if mama wishes to stop it she must come and stand in the window also. There are other respects in which the young man has a hard time. He must come every day. He must, and she holds him to the strict letter of this law. He is bound to show, by every means in his power, that he holds all other woman in contempt and detestation. He must not dance with any other, and had better not be caught holding on to any other window bars in any other street. He tells his near friends about it, and she all hers, and the matter is diligently discussed. If he should fail to come around regularly every day he has to tell a satisfactory story. I have known her to send for brother after him. He takes his revenge after marriage.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 7.]

Charles Heavysege.

"None but an author knows an author's cares,
Or fancy's fondness for the child she bears."
—Cowper.

In a work of such magnitude as "Saul," which was the chief drama written by Charles Heavysege, it is most difficult to select short passages to convey any real or correct idea of the entire poem. By exhibiting a brick, you give a person but a poor idea of a stately building, and a few drops of water are not very suggestive of the glories of the ever-rolling ocean. So is it also in attempting to pourtray the great drama of "Saul" by giving a few quotations. We will, however, do what we can in this impossible task, hoping that the little knowledge we may supply will cause all our readers forthwith to drink still more deeply from this Pierian spring.

Here is David's encounter with the giant Goliath, a fine piece of imaginative writing. Three soldiers are watching him as he winds his way down the hill side to where the giant stands, and one of them says:—

"See our serried soldiers stand
Breathless and fixed, like statutes, or as woods
Sleeping in the brief calm before the storm.
We cannot see our champion: but he's winding
Down the hill-side, for thither the giant turns
His angry eyes. Lo, how he watches him!
And now he rises up, and now again
He is seated. Hark! he is calling on the youth.

Third Soldier—

The King is much to blame in this—
To let a stripling go where powerful men
Declined to venture. List how the monster
Less in rage than in his disappointment,
At such a trifling quarry. He is cursing
"The youth now by his gods, and now, in scorn,
Calls for an arrow of some babe of Gath.
But the youth answers not."

Goliah (down in the valley)—

"Now by the great Dagon!
"Where have they found thee, dumb, approaching fool?
Presume no further;—dost thou hear me, boy?
Back to thy king, thou idiot! Am I
A dog, that thus thou comest to me with staves?
Thou cattle driver, back, and get thee gored
To death by thine own herd;—no nearer me.
Dost thou despise my warning? Hear me, young
And listless stranger; get from these dread bounds,
O'er which, to every Hebrew, I have hung
Death's bloody banner. Still approaching? Then
I'll let thee walk beneath destruction's archway,
Into the vaulted and sepulchral den,
Where lie all thy forerunners. Come boy, come Upon me, and with my naked hands
I joint from joint will rend thee, and thy flesh
Give to the birds and beasts, to be their food."

Sentinel—

"May Heaven forfend!"

Second Soldier—

"Hist! for the shepherd's answering."

David (heard)—

"Oh boastful giant, impious son of Oath!
Trust not too much to thy prodigious strength,
Nor in thine armour, that till now has been
Invulnerable unto mortal dint:
Nor scorn me for my youth and seeming weakness.
Complete in arms, and covered with mail
Thou comest to me: but I come unto thee
In the name of Him—who is the Lord of Hosts—
Defied. He will deliver thee this day
Into my hand; and I will take from thee
Thy head: give your army's carcases
To the wild birds and beasts, that all may know
That there is certainly a God in Israel,
And that this is His battle."

First Soldier—

"Brave boy!"

Sentinel—

"See how the monster rises in his rage."

Second Soldier—

"He needs not stride so, for the youth retreats not."

Sentinel—

"Now let us all send prayer apace to heaven;
Mightily pray for the champion of our country."

Third Soldier—

"The shepherd runs to meet the angry monster;
Ay, whirl thy sling, poor wretch—ay, leap along
A-toward death's fist, like to a bounding ball!"
[David slings a stone and Goliah falls.

Second Soldier—

"Great Heavens! now shall the sparrow pierce the eagle!
Surely the days of miracles are returned;
For who had counted that this youth could sling
A pebble through that cincture of thick brass!

Sentinel—

"We thank thee, Lord, we thank thee, God of Israel!"

First Soldier—

"That youth is or the devil or an angel;
Either an angel or a youngling devil!
Oh, he's an angel, or should be so enrolled;
That shepherd's worth his weight in gold."
[A great shout heard.

Sentinel—

"Hark! how the army shouts! and see the shepherd
Is standing on the carcass of the giant,
That lies like one of their own stranded hulls,
While the rude blows of his own scimetar
Assail him; as the yet stout lashing storm
Beats on the wreck that shall no more go seaward."

Second Soldier—

"His head is off; and that great tongue of his,
That long hath uttered threats too great for mortals,
Shall brag no more for ever. Silently he died.
For the great groan, with which the savage spirit
Left the huge body, was o'erwhelmed and drowned
In the clangor of his falling."

We have quite filled our allotted space and yet we have given little idea, we fear, of the excellence of our author's Chef d'œuvre. As he is, so far as we know, the only successful dramatic poet Canada has produced, we think his works claim a more extended notice, we shall, therefore, in another number, give further extracts to prove his genius and rare execution as a brilliant writer.

The Scott Act.

We are frequently asked the question, "What is being done with regard to the passing of the Scott Act." To-day we interviewed a prominent supporter of the Act and his reply was, "We are awaiting the action of Parliament. Should they adopt the amendments made by the Senate there would be no use submitting the amended bill to the people, as the Act would only be a farce if carried. All preliminary arrangements are completed previous to applying to the Government to appoint a day for polling.

Dr. J. G. Holland, in a letter to the press, says:—"Labor is the truly honorable thing among men. There is not a neatly-graded lawn, a pretty garden, or a well-trained tree that does not tell of it. It builds magnificent cities, creates navies, and bridges rivers, and lays the railroad track, and infuses every part of the flying locomotive. Wherever a steamer ploughs the waves, or the long canal bears the nation's inland wealth; wherever wheat fields wave and mill-wheels turn, there labor is the conqueror and the king. The newspaper, wherever it spreads its wings, bears with it the impress of toiling hands. Should he not have the best wife and prettiest children in the world! Should not the man that produces all that we eat, and drink, and wear, be honored? To us there is more true poetry about the laborer's life and lot than any other under heaven. It matters not in what calling a man toils, if he toil manfully, honestly, efficiently, and contentedly.

IMPERISHABLE FLOWERS.

There was recently exhibited, by Sir Joseph Hooker, at a meeting of the Royal Society, some leaves and petals of flowers and some twigs and mosses which were removed from the tomb of the founder of the eighteenth dynasty of Egypt, who died 3,500 years ago. The vegetable remains were treated in warm water until they sufficiently expanded to allow a determination of their species, and in most instances an identification sufficiently close to allow them to be classified. And, as an evidence of the stability of vegetable types, the mummy flower plants were the same as those now existing. The blue Water-Lily, Nympha Cerulea, the white Water-Lily, Nympha Lotus, the Willow, Salix Safsaf, seeds of the Juniperas Phœnicea, and several grasses, together with a lichen, indigenous to Greece, were found and identified.

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

What the Age has a Right to Expect of Christian Men and Women.

Christians Must not be Prejudiced Against Things that are New.

Christians Must be Active, Useful and Aggressive.

Everyone Should do his Share Towards Making the World Better.

The text was from Esther iv., 14: "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" Dr. Talmage said:

Esther, the beautiful, was the wife of Ahasuerus, the abominable. The time had come for her to present a petition to her infamous husband in behalf of the Jewish nation, to which she had once belonged. She was afraid to undertake the work lest she should lose her own life; but her uncle, Mordecai, who had brought her up, encouraged her with the suggestion that probably she had been raised up of God for that peculiar mission. "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?" Esther had her God-appointed work: you and I have ours. It is my business to tell you what style of men and women you ought to be in order that you may meet the demand of the age in which God has cast your lot.

If you have come expecting to hear abstractions discussed, or dry technicalities of religion glorified, you have come to the wrong church; but if you really would like to know what this age of you as Christian men and women, then I am ready, in the Lord's name, to look you in the face. When two armies have rushed into battle the officers of either army do not want a philosophical discussion about the chemical properties of human blood, or the nature of gunpowder; they want someone to man the batteries and swab out the guns. And now, when all the forces of light and darkness, of heaven and hell, have plunged into the fight, it is no time to give ourselves to the definitions, and formulas, and technicalities, and conventionalities of religion. What we want is practical, earnest, concentrated, enthusiastic and triumphant help.

In the first place, in order to meet the special demand of this age, you need to be an unmistakeable, aggressive Christian. Of half-and-half Christians we do not want any more. The Church of Jesus Christ will be better without ten thousand of them. They are the chief obstacle to the Church's advancement. I am speaking of another kind of Christian. All the appliances for your becoming an earnest Christian are yet at your hand, and there is a straight path for you into the broad daylight of God's forgiveness. You may have come into this tabernacle the bondmen of the world, and yet before you go out of these doors you may become Princes of the Lord God Almighty. You remember what excitement there was in this country years ago when the Prince of Wales came here, how the people rushed out by hundreds of thousands to see him. Why? Because they expected some day he would sit upon the throne of England. But what was all that honor compared with the honor to which God calls you—to be sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty: yes, to be queens and kings unto God. "They shall reign with him forever and forever."

But, my friend, you need to be aggressive Christians and not like those persons who spend their lives in hugging their Christian graces, and wondering why they do not make any progress. How much robustness of health would a man have if he hid himself in a dark closet? A great deal of the piety of the day is too exclusive. It hides itself. It needs more fresh air, more out-door exercise. There are many Christians who are giving their entire life to self-examination. They are feeling their pulses to see what is the condition of their spiritual health. How long would a man have physical robust health if he kept all the days and weeks and months and years of his life feeling his pulse instead of going out into active, earnest, everyday work?

I was once amid the wonderful, bewitching cactus growths of North Carolina. I never was more bewildered with the beauty of flowers, and yet, when I would take up one of these cactuses and pull the leaves apart the beauty was all gone. You could hardly tell that it had ever been a flower. And there are a great many Christian people in this day just pulling apart their Christian experiences to see what there is in them, and there is nothing left in them. This style of self-examination is a damage instead of an advantage to their Christian character. I remember when I was a boy I used to have a small piece in the garden that I called my own, and I planted corn there and every few days I would pull it up to see how fast it was growing. Now, there are a great many Christian people in this day whose self-examination merely amounts to the pulling up of that which they only yesterday or the day before planted. O, my friends, if you want to have a stalwart Christian character, plant it right out of doors in the great field of Christian usefulness, and though storms may come upon it, and though the hot sun of trial may try to consume it, it will thrive until it becomes a great tree, in which the fowls of Heaven may have their habitation. I have no patience with these flower-pot Christians. They keep themselves under shelter and all their Christian experience is a small, exclusive circle, when they ought to plant it in the great garden of the Lord, so that the whole atmosphere could be aromatic with

THEIR CHRISTIAN USEFULNESS.

What we want in the church of God is more brawn of piety. The century plant is wonderfully suggestive and wonderfully beautiful, but I never look at it without thinking of its parsimony. It lets whole generations go by before it puts forth one blossom; so I have really more heartfelt admiration when I see the dewy tears in the blue eyes of the violets, for they come every spring. My Christian friends, time is going by so rapidly that we cannot afford to be idle.

A recent statistician says that human life now has an average of only thirty-two years. From these thirty-two years you must subtract all the time you take for sleep and the taking of food and recreation; that will leave you only about sixteen years. From those sixteen years you must subtract all the time that you are necessarily engaged in the earning of a livelihood; that will leave you about eight years. From those eight years you must take all the days and weeks and months—all the length of time that is passed in sickness; leaving you one year to work for God. Oh, my soul, wake up! How darest thou sleep in harvest time and with so few hours to reap? So that I state it as a simple fact that all the time that the vast majority of you will have for the exclusive service of God will be less than one year!

"But," says some one, "I liberally support the Gospel, and the church is open and the Gospel is preached; all the spiritual advantages spread before men, and if they want to be saved, let them come to be saved; I have discharged all my responsibility." Ah! is that the Master's spirit? Is there not an old book somewhere that commands us to go out in the highways and the hedges and compel the people to come in? What would have become of you and me if Christ had not come down off the hills of heaven, and if He had not come through the door of the Bethlem caravansari, and if He had not, with the crushed hand of the crucifixion, knocked at the iron gate of the sepulchre of our spiritual death, crying, "Lazarus, come forth?" Oh, my Christian friends, this is time for the inertia when all the forces of darkness seem to be in full blast, when steam printing presses are publishing infidel tracts, when express railroad trains are carrying messengers of sin, when fast clippers are laden with opium and rum, when the night air of our cities is polluted with the laughter that breaks up from the ten thousand saloons of dissipation and abandonment, when the fires of the second death already are kindled in the cheeks of some who only a little while ago were incorrupt. Oh, never since the curse fell upon the earth has there been a time when it was such an unwise, such a cruel, such an awful thing for the Church to sleep. The great audiences are not gathered in the Christian churches; the great audiences are gathered in temples of sin—tears of unutterable woe their baptism, the blood of crushed hearts the awful wine of their sacrament, blasphemies their litany, and the groans of the lost world the organ dirge of their worship.

Again, if you want to be qualified to meet the duties which this age demands of you, you must, on the one hand, avoid and, on the other hand, not stick too much to things because they are old. The air is full of new plans, new projects, new theories of government, new theologies, and I am amazed to see how so many Christians want only novelty in order to recommend a thing to their confidence, and so they vacillate and swing to and fro, and they are useless and they are unhappy. New plans—secular, ethical, philosophical, religious, cis-Atlantic, trans-Atlantic, long enough to make a line reaching from the German Universities to great Salt Lake City. Ah, my brother, do not take hold of a thing merely because it is new. Try it by the realities of a judgment day. But on the other hand do not adhere to anything merely because it is old. There is not a single enterprise of the church or the world, but has sometimes been scoffed at.

There was a time when men derided even Bible societies, and when a few young men met near a haystack in Massachusetts and organized the first missionary society ever organized in this country there went laughter and ridicule all around the Christian church. They said the undertaking was preposterous. And also the work of Jesus Christ was assailed. People cried out:—"Who ever heard of such theories of ethics and government? Who ever noticed such a style of preaching as Jesus has?" Ezekiel had talked of mysterious wings and wheels. Here came a man from Capernaum and Gennesaret and he drew his illustrations from the lakes, from the sand, from the ravine, from the lilies, from the corn-stalks. How the Pharisees scoffed! How Herod derided! How Judas hissed! And this Jesus they plucked by the beard and the spat in his face and they called him "this fellow." All the great enterprises in and out of the church have at times been scoffed at and there have been a great multitude who have thought that the chariot of God's truth would fall to pieces if it once got out of the old rut. And so there are those who have no patience with anything like improvement in church architecture, or with anything like good, hearty, earnest church singing, and they deride any form of religious discussion which goes down walking among every-day men rather than that which makes an excursion on rhetorical stilts. Oh, that the church of God would wake up to an adaptability of work! We must admit the simple fact that the churches of Jesus Christ in this day do not reach the great masses. There are 50,000 people in Edinburgh who never hear the gospel. There are 100,00 in London who never hear hear the gospel. There are at least 300,000 souls in the city of Brooklyn who come not under the immediate ministrations of Christ's truth; and the church of God in this day, instead of being a place full of living epistles, read and known by all men, is more like a "dead letter" post office.

"But," say people, "the world is going to be converted; you must be patient; the kingdoms of this world are to become the kingdoms of Christ." Never, unless the church of Jesus Christ puts on more speed and energy. Instead of the church converting the world, the world is converting the church. Here is a great fortress. How shall it be taken? An army comes and sits around about it, cuts of the supplies, and says: "Now we will just wait until from exhaustion and starvation they will have to give up." Weeks and months and perhaps a year pass along, and finally the fortress surrenders through that starvation and exhaustion. But, my friends, the fortresses of sin are never to be taken in that way. If they are taken for God it will be by storm. You will have to bring up the great siege guns of the gospel to the very wall and wheel the flying artillery into line, and when the armed infantry of heaven shall confront the battlements you will have to give the quick command:—"Forward! charge!"

Ah, my friends, there is work for you to do and for me to do in order to gain this grand accomplishment. Here is my pulpit and I preach in it. Your pulpit is the bank, your pulpit is the store, your pulpit is the editorial chair, your pulpit is the anvil, your pulpit is the house scaffolding, your pulpit is the mechanic's shop. I may stand in this place and, through cowardice or through self-seeking, may

KEEP BACK THE WORD

I ought to utter; while you with sleeve rolled up and brow besweated with toil may utter the word that will jar the foundations of heaven with the shout of a great victory. Oh, that this morning this whole audience might feel that the Lord Almighty was putting upon them the hands of ordination. I tell you every one, go forth and preach this gospel. You have as much right to preach as I have or as any man has. Only find out the pulpit where God will have you preach, and there preach.

Headley Vicars was a wicked man in the English army. The grace of God came to him. He became an earnest and eminent Christian. They scoffed at him and said: "You are a hypocrite; you are as bad as ever you were." Still he kept his faith in Christ, and after a while, finding that they could not turn him aside by calling him a hypocrite, they said to him: "Oh, you are nothing but a Methodist." That did not disturb him. He went on performing his Christian duty until he had formed all his troop into a Bible class, and the whole encampment was shaken with the presence of God. So Havelock went into the heathen temple in India while the English army was there and put a candle into the hand of each of the heathen gods that stood around in the heathen temple, and by the light of those candles held up by the idols, General Havelock preached righteousness, temperance and judgement to come. And who will say on earth or in Heaven that Havelock had not the right to preach? In the minister's house where I prepared for college, there was a man who worked, by the name of Peter Crog. He could neither read or write, but he was a man of God. Often theologians would stop in the house—grave theologians—and at family prayer Peter Crog would be called upon to lead; and all those wise men sat around, wonderstruck at his religious efficiency. When he prayed he reached up and seemed to take hold of the very throne of the Almighty, and he talked with God until the very heavens were bowed down into the sittingromo. Oh, if I were dying I would rather have plain Peter Crog kneel by my bedside and commend my immortal spirit to God than the greatest archbishop arrayed in costly canonicals. Go preach this Gospel. You say you are not licensed. In the name of the Lord Almighty, this morning I license you. Go preach this Gospel—preach it in the Sabbath schools, in the prayer-meetings, in the highways, in the hedges. Woe be unto you if you preach it not!

I remark again that in order to be qualified to meet your duty in this particular age you want unbounded faith in the triumph of the truth and

THE OVERTHROW OF WICKEDNESS.

How dare the Christian Church ever get discouraged? Have we not the Lord Almighty on our side? How long did it take God to slay the hosts of Sennacherib, or burn Sodom, or shake down Jericho? How long will it take God, when He once arises in His strength, to overthrow all the forces of iniquity? Between this time and that there may be long seasons of darkness, the chariot wheels of God's Gospel may seem to drag heavily; but here is the promise and yonder is the throne, and when Omniscience has lost its eyesight and Omnipotence falls back impotent and Jehovah is driven from His throne, then the Church of Jesus Christ can afford to be despondent—but never until then. Despots may plan and armies may march, and the congresses of the nations may seem to think they are adjusting all the affairs of the world; but the mighty men of the earth are only the dust of the chariot-wheels of God's providence. And I think that before the sun of this century shall set the last tyranny will fall. With a splendor of demonstration that shall be the astonishment of the universe. God will set forth the brightness and pomp and glory and perpetuity of His eternal government. Out of the starry flags and the emblazoned insignia of this world God will make a path for His own triumph and returning from universal conquest. He will sit down, the grandest, strongest, highest throne of earth His footstool.

"Then shall all nations' song ascend
To Thee, our Ruler, Father, Friend,
Till Heaven's high arch resounds again
With 'Peace on earth, good will to men.'"

I preach this sermon because I want to encourage all Christian workers in every possible department. Hosts of the living God, March on! March on! His spirit will bless you. His shield will defend you. His sword will strike for you. March on! March on! The despotisms will fall and paganism will burn its idols, and Mahomedanism will give up its false prophet, and Judaism will confess the true Messiah, and the great walls of superstition will come down in thunder and wreck at the long, loud blast of the Gospel trumpet. March on! March on! The besiegement will soon be ended. Only a few more steps on the long way, only a few more sturdy blows, only a few more battle-cries, then God will put the laurel upon your brow, and from the living fountains of heaven will bathe off the sweat and the heat, and the dust of the conflict. March on! March on! For you the time of work will soon be passed, and amid the outflashings of the judgement throne, and the trumpeting of resurrection angles, and the upheaving of a world of graves, and the hosanna and the groaning of the saved and the lost, we shall be rewarded for our faithfulness or punished for our stupidity. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting, and let the whole earth be filled with His glory. Amen and amen.

SPOOPENDYKE.

He is Afflicted with a Sore Foot.

"My dear," whimpered Mr. Spoopendyke, hobbling into his wife's room and throwing himself into a chair with a desolate expression of despair on his visage. "My dear, there is something the matter with my foot, and I can't make out what the trouble is."

"I know!" exclaimed Mrs. Spoopendyke, hovering over him with affectionate interest and solicitude. "I think it's rheumatism."

"No, it ain't rheumatism, either!" growled Mr. Spoopendyke. "It is something worse than rheumatism, and if it goes to my heart it may kill me!"

"Maybe it's a stone bruise," suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke, not realizing that a great deal of the sentiment and most of the danger are taken out of a malady when it is definitely ascertained what the malady is. "All you want is some liniment and you will be all right by to-morrow."

"That's all you know about it," grunted Mr. Spoopendyke, who was not to be put off with so small a disaster as a stone bruise. "I tell you, that I have got some trouble with my foot that threatens my life, and you stand around there like a cork in a bottle, and talk about it as though I hadn't got one leg into my coffin as far as my hip. Here I am kicking at death's door with a game foot, and all the interest you have in the matter is to shoot off a vast amount of intelligence about stone bruises. I tell you, it's something that ain't to be trifled with. Now, what are you going to do about it?"

"Are you sure it isn't a corn?" hazarded Mrs. Spoopendyke, timidly. "Sometimes corns hurt worse than anything else; but I never heard of people dying of them."

"No, it isn't a corn!" howled Mr. Spoopendyke, nursing his foot and glaring at his wife with a mingled expression of rage and pain. "What d'ye think this foot is, anyway; an agricultural district? When did you ever hear of a corn that reached from the heel to the knee? Which of your friends ever had a corn that hurt clear to the ear?" and Mr. Spoopendyke touched his foot carefully to the floor and eyed his wife narrowly to see if she noticed the expression of agony on his face.

"If it acts that way it must be a bunion!" exclaimed Mrs. Spoopendyke triumphantly. "All you have got to do is take your boot off and put your slippers on."

"That's it," yelled Mr. Spoopendyke, hauling off his shoe and firing it across the room. "When a man is dying of inflammatory rheumatism, it's only a bunion! You've got it! A pain that starts at the toe, runs to the back of the neck and ties in a hard knot over the spine is a bunion! Show me the bunion!" he continued, sticking his leg out straight and pointing his finger at the offending foot. "Take this digit in your lily white hand and place it tenderly on the dod gasted bunion before I die and forget what killed me! Pick it out of the surrounding anatomy!" he yelled, wriggling his foot and bouncing up and down in his chair in a delirium of rage. "Pluck the bunion from its mountain fastness on the hoof of Spoopendyke an' hold it up to the gaze of the same!"

"Does it hurt—?" commenced Mrs. Spoopendyke, soothingly.

"Hurt!" roared Mr. Spoopendyke, springing from his chair and dancing around the room like a flea. "Of course, it don't. It tickles! Hurt! It's a picnic! Say, my dear," and his voice was low and tender. "Say, my dear, instead of going into the country this summer we'll lay in a stock of bunions and wear 'em around for our health and recreation! Hurt!" he shrieked, breaking out in a new spot. "Hurt! It feels like a band of music! That's what it is, a bunion! It took you to hit it! When I get time to fit you up with a full beard and a bottle of whisky I'm going to start a dispensary with you! If you'd only improve your mind until you reached the standard of intelligence of a moderate donkey you'd only need a stolen corpse and a bad smell to be a first-class medical college!"

"Say, dear," observed Mrs. Spoopendyke, who had been carefully exploring her husband's boot; "Say, dear, I think I have found out what the trouble is. It isn't a bunion after all. Here's a peg sticking out here about a quarter of an inch. If you will have that taken out I don't believe you will suffer any more."

Mr. Spoopendyke jammed his hat over his eyes, shoved his feet into his slippers, grabbed the obnoxious boot and started for the door with a withering look at his wife as he went out.

"I don't care," murmured Mrs. Spoopendyke, as the front door slammed vindictively; "I don't care. If he has it taken out, he has to admit that I was right, and if he doesn't it will hurt him till he dies. I don't know which will be the worse for him, but he will have to do one or the other." And with this crowning triumph still in her mind Mrs. Spoopendyke began to scare the flies out of the room with a sheet, wondering why a fly who has been half smashed against one window frame will insist on coming in at the other window to be smashed over again.

Wilkins was Fighting.

Muscle don't make anybody belligerent. On the contrary, it is a law of nature that the most muscular men are the kindest in disposition. They hardly ever get mad. I've seen these puny fellows who could hardly knock a fly off a wall, get furiously mad and buckle up to a man twice his size. One of them sort got mad with Judge Hammond while he was making a speech against him in a justice court, and danced up and down behind him and struck him in the back as hard as he could drive. The judge's back was two feet and a half wide, and he simply looked around with a smile of surprise and said:

"What you doing Wilkins, what are you about?"

"I'm a fightin'," said Wilkins with a hyena scream, and the judge just went on with his speech.—Bill Arp.

"Good night," he said, as he at last tore himself away and stepped out upon the porch. "Wait a minute," she said, "until I chain up the dog. It's about time for the milkman, and they are not very good friends."

They Hear the Sirens for the Second Time.

The weary sails a moment slept,
The oars were silent for a space,
As past Hesperian shores we swept,
That were as a remembered face.
Some sifter haze of hopeless years,
In shade, when the shadows meet,
Dim through the mist of many tears,
And strange, and, though a shadow, sweet.

So seemed the half-remembered shore
That slumbered, mirrored in the blue,
With heavens where we thought of yore,
And ports that ever-veil we knew,
Then broke the calm before a breeze
That sought the secret of the West;
And Hellas all we swept the seas
Towards the Islands of the blest.

Beside a golden-sanded bay
We saw the Sirens, very fair;
The flowery hill whereon they lay,
The flowers set upon their hair.
Their old sweet song came down the wind
Remembered music waxing strong—
Ah! now no need of cords to bind,
No need had we of Orphic song.

It once had seemed a little thing
To lay our lives down at their feet,
That dying we might hear them sing,
And dying see their faces sweet.
But now we glanced, and, passing by,
No care had we to tarry long;
Faint hope and rest and memory
Were more than any Siren's song.
—Andrew Lang's Ballads.

WIT AND HUMOR.

You may talk of your dainty daisies,
That make your heart pit-a-pat,
You may gleefully sing sweet praises
Of the maids both lean and fat.
But of all the lasses on land or sea,
The jolliest, giddiest girl for me
Is the girl with a "haystack" hat.

The ladies still call on the distinguished Tom Acton. They like to see the tons of shining gold and the bales of greenbacks. One charming little miss was given a $10,000 bill to hold for a moment the other day. She demurely replied, "Thank you ever so much," and opened her tiny purse preparatory to depositing it snugly therein. She had it partly folded when the genial Assistant Treasurer started and said: "My gracious, I didn't give it to you to keep." The little lady opened wide her beautiful eyes, and as she returned it innocently said: "I beg your pardon—I misunderstood you."—New York Morning Journal.

"Wake up!" exclaimed Mrs. Mulberry in a loud whisper, as she punched the slumbering Mulberry in the short ribs with her elbow the other night; "wake up; I'm sure I hear a burglar down in the dining room." "Don't disturb them, then," said the drowsy Mulberry, turning over on the other side. "Be just as quiet as you can, and maybe they will eat some of that fruit-cake you have in the pantry."

A Waterford (Me.) correspondent relates an anecdote of Artemus Ward, which he thinks has never been in print. Mr. Abbey, manager of the opera house in San Francisco, at one time telegraphed to him as follows: "A. Ward—What will you take for twelve nights in San Francisco?" Ward received the telegram while lying on the sofa. Without rising, he turned it over and wrote on the back: "Mr. Abbey—Brandy and water. A. Ward."

Dr. Henry Leffman, a chemical expert, lectured in Philadelphia a few evenings ago, to a semi-professional audience, on what he called Euthanasia, or the property of putting certain useless individuals comfortably out of the way. His idea was thus expressed: "The evolution of humanity to a higher form cannot be accomplished without some method of preserving and propagating the best of the species. Had we, as human beings with all our present powers, been placed on this world in association with a race as much above us in capacity and power as we are above the lower animals, a system of selection would have been applied which in a few hundred generations would have produced a much better humanity." Having laid these foundations, the lecturer asked to what extent the law might control life "in cases where to the certainty of a fatal disease is added intense physical misery," and in the cases of the birth of monstrosities and idiots.

Grand Concert.

Arrangements are being made by the sisters of the Convent for a grand concert to be held shortly in St. Peter's Cathedral. It is expected to be a rare musical treat.

Murray Street Baptist Church.

The Rev. A. H. Munro will preach at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. His subject in the morning will be "The Three Graces," and in the evening, "Solomon in all His Glory."

Lawn Social.

A strawberry social in connection with the Murray-street Baptist Church will be held on Thursday evening next on the grounds of Mr. John Walton, Hunter street. Admission 15 cents.

Heat.

The past couple of days we are having a fair sample of the coming dog days. Flowers are beginning to bloom and farmers are beginning to wear smiles which speak volumes for the satisfaction at their "thuseas" of the weather.

A Paper Worthy of the Town.

The St. Thomas Daily Journal:—The Peterborough EXAMINER, one of the staunchest liberal journals in the province, now issues in daily form. If it gets the support it deserves it will succeed. Peterborough is the live town of the east, and it now has a paper worthy of it.

Prob'n Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meteorological office:—Moderate to fresh southasterly to south-westerly winds, mostly fair, warm weather, with local showers and thunder storms, more particularly towards evening and at night.

A New Industry.

New industries are rising in Peterborough on every side. The latest new departure has been made by Messrs. Scott and Scrimger, produce and provision exporters. On Friday they shipped for the U. S. markets a case of duck eggs, straight. The quantity, 19 dozen, is nothing unusual, but the variety is uncommon. It is the first time that duck eggs have been shipped from Peterborough in a separate case.

Willow and Wicket.

At the meeting held on Thursday evening, the Peterborough Cricket Club selected the following eleven to meet the Toronto on Wednesday next, June 17th:—Messrs. Carter, Cravein, Rogers, Hamilton, Miles; Hamilton Max; Sabine, Montgomery, Rutherford, Cooper, Hammond, and Norley, (coach). The above list is subject to correction and change. It is understood that the Toronto club will be held to its engagement for Wednesday.

St. Paul's Church Choir.

We are pleased to note that Prof. Parker is meeting with good success in organising a choir for St. Paul's. He is receiving more applications than can be entertained. A preliminary practice was held last evening at which over thirty candidates were present. It is proposed for Prof. Parker to select the voices he deems best suited for the choir, and submit the names for approval to the church session, which will ultimately decide upon the composition of the choir, which will, when finally organized, consist of about 26 or 28 voices.

Peterborough A. A. A.

At a meeting of the Treble A—Amateur Athletic Association—of Peterborough, held on Thursday evening, it was decided to offer four medals for competition the present season among the members. These medals are to be competed for fortnightly and are given for mile, half-mile and 100 yards foot races and mile bicycle race. The first of these events will take place on Monday evening, June 22nd. The grand final meeting will be held at the close of the season to decide the permanent possession of those medals obtained on which require to be won twice in succession.

Serious Scaffold Accident.

Three Men Fall—One Badly Injured.

This morning a serious accident happened to workmen employed on the Commercial Hotel, George street. Three men were at the north end of the front engaged in pencilling the plaster. Joseph Johnston and Joseph Hillier were working at the corner, and Mr. Wm. Whitehair, the contractor, stepped up to them. The combined weight caused the bracket which supported the planks of the scaffold to give way, and the three men were, with the scaffold, hurled to the ground. Joseph Johnston escaped unhurt. Mr. Whitehair, in his fall turned over and over, and striking a telephone pole at the edge of the walk was thrown on his back on the street. He was, however, not much hurt. But Jos. Hillier was hurled violently against the telephone pole and thence to the sidewalk, and the heavy planks falling on him, seriously injured him. He was picked up insensible, and carried into Kenealy's hotel, and Dr. Kinsmid summoned, who at once removed Hillier in his carriage to his home in Englishtown. Dr. Kinsmid says that no bones are broken; nor does he think there are any serious internal injuries. The shock to the system, however, was a severe one.

Another Excursion.

Messrs. Hooper and Locke, of Woodbridge are in town making arrangements for a large Sunday School excursion to Peterborough on Saturday next.

The Rangers not to Go.

The senior Captain of the 57th Battalion says that the Rangers will not, as stated in a telegraphic despatch published yesterday, go to Lindsay on Dominion Day.

A Narrow Escape.

This afternoon as Mr. and Mrs. Wasson, were driving along McDonald street, near the Railway Crossing, a train dashed along, and, before they could stop their horse, his nose almost touched the cars. On account of the wind they could not hear either whistle or bell.

The Way the Weather has.

Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist, supplies the following memoranda of the variations of the thermometer and barometer:—

It Gets Ahead.

The Minden Echo says:—The latest step in the journalistic line is the issue of a large daily newspaper by the Peterborough EXAMINER. The paper is a credit to the publisher, Mr. J. R. Stratton, and really so far as typography is concerned its gets ahead of anything we have seen issued from a country office.

Methodist Church.

The following is the arrangement of services in the several churches to-morrow: George Street Church, Rev. Geo. H. Davis at 11 a.m., Rev. I. Tovell at 7 p.m.; Charlotte Street Church, Rev. I. Tovell at 11 a. m., Rev. F. McAmmond, B. A., at 7 p.m.; Ashburnham, Rev. F. McAmmond at 11 a. m., Rev. G. H. Davis at 7 p.m.

St. Andrew's Organ Fund.

The Committee of Management of the Mendelssohn Quintette Club Concert, have handed to the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church the handsome sum of $55, the net proceeds of the recent concert. This is very gratifying, in the light of the usual results that follow the bringing of expensive oratorical or musical attractions to town, and considering that this is the first time the Quintette Club has appeared in Peterborough, the result is exceedingly gratifying. The members of the Committee of Management are entitled to the gratitude of both the public, for providing them a magnificent musical entertainment, and also of the Ladies' Aid Society, of St. Andrew's Church, for the handsome donation of $55 to the organ fund, which now amounts to $400.

Court House Park.

Workmen are busily engaged in laying down the walks in the Court House Park, the outer walks have been nearly completed on the west and south sides and the converging walks are well underway. The central walk, leading to the beautiful central flower plot and extending around and beyond this to the fountain, which will occupy the site of the band pavilion, is ready for the gravel. The old band pavillion has been moved further up on the slope, northeasterly, and is placed under the sheltering protection of a venerable red oak. One thing that delays the work is the difficulty of procuring labour; the utilization of the prisoners on the park work does not make the staff any too large. The work of placing a boulevard on the west front of the park is progressing rapidly.

Dominion Day Pageant.

The meeting at the Lansdowne Roller Rink last night was a most encouraging success. There was a large attendance of young men and the idea of the Dominion Day pageant was enthusiastically entertained. A large number of young men who give a guarantee of the excellence of the coming parade, enlisted for the day. Preliminary arrangements as far as was possible, were made. Owing to the pressure of business on Saturday evening the meeting announced for that time has been abandoned, and there will be a meeting held at the Oriental Hotel on Monday evening next, at 9 o'clock, to further complete preparations. From the spirit with which the young men enter into the undertaking it is certain that the grand military, spectacular and historical pageant and parade to be held on July 1st will be the most novel, brilliant, interesting, amusing and instructive spectacle ever presented on the streets of Peterborough. Thousands of excursionists from a distance will be in town that day, and thousands from the surrounding villages and country will flock to town to see the magnificent parade.

Come Home.

Ministers and laymen who have been attending conferences and synods have returned home.

Off for Oregon.

To-day Mr. Alex. Elliott, up-town agent of the C. P. R., sold Mr. Nicholas Steele, Lakefield, for self and family, ten tickets for Oregon, over the C. P. R. and its connections. Mr. Steele will start in a few days.

The Market.

There was a fair attendance to-day. Butter was plentiful, selling in lots from 12 to 13 cents; small lots, 15 to 16 cents; eggs, less plentiful, bringing 10½ to 11 cents; wheat, spring, 83 to 85, fall, 80 to 83; fn barley and rye, nothing doing; Oats, 36 to 37; peas, 60; wool, 17, receipts increasing.

Completing the Century.

To-day the EXAMINER Bookbindery put the finishing touches to the hundredth volume of "Picturesque Canada," bound in the short time since the last parts of this work were delivered. The last batch of twenty-five and several volumes of "Virtue's Shakspere" and "Master Pieces of French Art," in all the glory of gold and morroco, may be seen for a few days at the EXAMINER office. First-class strong binding and fine finish of this class of work is a specialty of the EXAMINER bindery.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Jas. Gale, of the West Durham News, Bowmanville, gave us a call on Friday.

We are pleased to notice that Mr. A. McNeil, Chief Ranger of Peterborough Court, C. O. F., has been appointed to an office of the High Court of that order.

The many friends of Rev. Mr. Manning will regret to learn that he is called away from his attendance at the Toronto Conference by the death of his father. His congregation will especially regret that to the pain of sundering the many pleasant associations he has formed in Peterborough, is added the grief of family affliction.

BIG BEAR GETS AWAY.

The Reported Abandonment of the Chase Confirmed.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 12.—A despatch from Fort Pitt announces the arrival of Howie, a scout, with despatches which confirm the reported retirement of Gen. Middleton from pursuit of Big Bear.

Howie says the bodies of six Indians were found on the ground where Major Steele fought them, one being that of Cut Arm, chief of the Onion lake reserve.

Forty rebel prisoners, including those taken at Battoche by Gen. Middleton and a number taken since by the police, left yesterday under escort for Regina.

Nothing is known of the fate of the McLean family, but it is feared that to help him in his flight Big Bear has murdered all the prisoners who have not got away.

SIR JOHN TELLS A STORY.

A few nights ago Sir John Macdonald told a story intended to illustrate the idea that he can hold out as long as the opposition in the Franchise Bill discussion. And the following is the story:

An Indian, years ago, in Prince Edward county, who had committed a murder and was condemned to death. All the ministers of the place, anxious to give him consolations of religion, had instructed him as to his future state. One day he called his jailor, Maguire, and said:

"What kind of a place is hell?"

Maguire gave a description.

"Are there many there?"

Maguire replied in the affirmative.

"Who was the first man go there?"

"The devil," was the reply.

"How long has he been there?

"Thousands of years."

"Well," said the Indian, at last, "if he can stand it I can."

Sir John's characterization of himself as the Indian that did the murder, and on the way to future retribution may strike some as too accurate to be jocular. It must be a solemn thing for the Conservative party to see whither he is leading them.—St. John's (N. B.) Telegraph.

Elsewhere is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

Prob'e Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meteorogical office:—Moderate to fresh south-east and south-west winds, fair continued, very warm weather; with local showers or thunder storms in Western Ontario.

Crop Promises.

Mr. W. H. Wrighton, produce and commission merchant, has made a drive through the eastern part of the county. He is a keen observer and his judgment may be relied on. He says that the prospects are exceedingly good. Fall wheat is looking well, and hay will make a big yield. Spring crops are also thriving, though recent slight frosts have set them back slightly. In spite of the late spring grain and growth are as far advanced as at the corresponding time last year. Farmers from other parts of the county report in a similar manner.

Imperial Liberality.

Peterborough will enjoy the bounty of the British Government to the extent of $750. It has ordered that £100 be paid to each widow of a Canadian voyageur, and £50 to the mother of each voyageur who lost their lives in the Soudan Expedition. Mrs. J. E. Falkner will therefore receive $500 and the heirs of the late Mrs. Sherlock, mother of Mr. J. A. Sherlock, $250.

Canoeing News.

This year it is proposed to make canoeing more of a club matter than it has heretofore been. On Friday night a special committee was appointed to look after the matter. This committee proposes to hold its first meeting this evening in a practical way—in canoes on the Little Lake, at 7:30, and invites all the other members to turn out at the same time, for the purpose of having a little preliminary practice in paddling together, and afterwards to have an upset race and swimming parade.

Juvenile Cricket.

A keenly contested cricket match between the junior elevens of the Peterborough and Lakefield clubs was played on the grounds of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, on Saturday. The result was a decided victory for the home players. Exceptionally good cricket for youngsters was shown throughout the match. The fielding on both sides was admirable; but the batting of the Peterborough boys was sufficiently superior to give them the lead of 65 runs, which the score-book showed to their credit when the last stump fell.

Anglican Synod of Toronto.

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

THURSDAY—CONTINUED.

The following is the text of the report of the Sustentation Committee; referred to in yesterday's issue:—

1. The committee recommended that immediate action should be taken to augment the stipends of our clergy so as to reach at least the following standard:—

Class A—Consisting of clergymen who have ministered in this diocese 15 years and upwards, $1,200 in addition to parsonage if any.

Class B—Consisting of clergymen who have ministered in this diocese 10 years and upwards, $1,000 in addition to parsonage if any.

Class C—Consisting of clergymen who have ministered in this diocese five years and upwards, $800 in addition to parsonage if any.

2. That the amounts collected and the income of the present fund be distributed pro rata among all those entitled, as above, to participate therein.

3. In order to augment the fund the following steps appear to your committee to be necessary:—

1. To obtain accurate statistics showing (a) the number of church families and unmarried adults earning their own livlihood in each parish; (b) the amount annually contributed during the past two years by each parish towards the clergyman's stipend; (c) the amount so contributed by such parish during the said period for all other church purposes; (d) the number of clergymen belonging to each of the above classes (A.B.C) who now receive less than the minimum amounts above mentioned: (e) the total amount per annum required to augment the stipends of the clergy as above. 2. When the above information shall have been collected and analyzed, the committee recommend the preparation of a circular embodying in concise from such statements and will show the present position of the Church in this matter, and what parishes are contributing according to their ability. (3) The committee further recommend that energetic action be then taken to disseminate this information as widely as possible, and as means to this suggest, inter alia—A. The distribution of these circulars to every Church family in the diocese. B. The appointment of one or more clergymen to bring this important subject before our congregations by sermons and addresses, to solicit individual subscriptions, and to take up annual or other collections, for which collections your committee recommend that special envelopes be provided.

4. Lastly, the committeee suggests that in the distribution of the fund, regard should be had to the amount now contributed by the parishes requiring aid, and although they cannot yet formulate a complete set of regulations, they are of opinion that no parish should participate in the bennefits of the fund which has not contributed at least $200 per annum towards the support of its clergyman.

FRIDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The Synod reassembled at 10 a. m. On motion of the Rev. John Langtry, seconded by the Rev. C. R. Bell, the Canon passed last year empowering the Bishop to set apart a parish where no application had been made by the people living within the proposed boundaries, was confirmed.

Mr. Carter's motion to amend the constitution providing that the standing committee may meet on other days than those specified, at the discretion of the Bishop, was carried.

Mr. Campbell moved, that instead of meeting in August, the first meeting of each standing committee should be held on the day after its appointment. This resolution also passed.

Mr. Biggar moved that the Rector of the Church of the Ascension should participate equally with the other Rectors of the city in the distribution of the St. James' rectory surplus. He fully explained the position of the church at the time the original motion passed in 1883, and stated the church had received $30,000 as an endowment. This, however, was coupled with such curious and impossible conditions and restrictions that the authorities had consented, together with the executors, to compromise the matter, by allowing the amount that he asked to be applied in payment of a large debt on the church thinking this preferable to accepting money on conditions which would inevitably lead to litigation. For this reason he asked that the Church of the Ascension be in the same class as those of other parishes which, like it, without endowments, were now receiving assistance from the Rectory surplus. His resolution carried.

Mr. Bradshaw then moved the placing of the new parish of St. Barnabas on the list of those entitled to participate in the surplus distribution. The resolution passed.

ALGOMA MISSIONS.

Rev. Canon O'Meara moved that all clergymen who have removed, or who may hereafter remove, to the Diocese of Algoma shall retain their right to participate in the benefits of the clergy commutation Fund. The motion was opposed by the Rev. George Love, but after a long discussion and the offering of several amendments thereto was carried in the affirmative.

At this period, it being 12 o'clock, the deputation from the Methodist Conference, consisting of Revs. Drs. Sutherland, Potts, Dewart and Whthrow, Hon. Justice Rose and Mr. Warring Kennedy, reached the platform and were introduced to the Bishop.

Stirring congratulatory addresses, full of fire and feeling, were made by the Bishop, Provost Body and Hon. S. H. Blake, in behalf of the Synod, and by Dr. Sutherland, Dr. Dewart, Dr. Potts and the Hon. Justice Rose, representing the Methodist body.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Synod resumed at 2 p.m. with a much depleted attendance.

The Rev. John Langtry and Provost Body both offered motions respecting the appointment of the Executive Committee in future, the one to make it consist of about 70 members, the other proposing that the Committee should consist of 30 members. Both motions were earnestly discussed, but the upshot was they were both voted down, the majority of the members considering that the present plan worked very well and ought not to be meddled with.

A motion providing for the appointment of a special committee to consider and report to next Synod a satisfactory method for the application of proportional or cumulative voting passed without discussion.

A great part of the remainder of the session was taken up with miscellaneous business of little public interest.

Dr. Snelling brought up a motion respecting the conduct of the Senate on the Scott Act, but amid cries of "no politics," and "no Grit here," it was withdrawn.

NORTHWEST REBELLION.

A resolution expressing devout thanks to God for answers to prayer in suppressing the rebellion in the Northwest, and alluding to the loyalty and devotion of the volunteers, and conveying sympathy to the sick and wounded, trusting that recent events will foster among us a more brave and patriotic spirit and knit together the several provinces of the Dominion, passed unanimously.

The usual votes of thanks passed and the Bishop in bringing the business to a close congratulated the members upon the prompt and ready manner in which the work of the Session had been carried on and also on the unwonted harmony and brotherly feeling that had characterized the entire proceedings.

The Synod closed at 7 p.m. his Lordship pronouncing the benediction.

MIDDLETON'S MOVEMENTS.

Big Bear Still Abroad.

FORT PITT, June 14.—Gen Middleton, with Cols. Herschmer's, Boulton's and Dennis' mounted men and two Gatlings, returned here last night from an unsuccessful chase of Big Bear. The morass, which prevented further progress, was a mile and a half wide near Loon Lake. In the afternoon orders were issued for all the mounted force, with the Gatlings, to hold themselves in readiness to proceed to Beaver River at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning. The general expects by this move to intercept Big Bear's retreat, as he is now going almost due northward. The country to which he has retreated is terra incognita to white men—no trains, continued succesion of hills, forests, muskegs. The 90th battalion and Grenadiers remain here till the general returns.

THE BRITISH CABINET CRISIS

"Between the Devil and the Deep Sea."

SALISBURY SOLICITING HELP

The Tories Saddled With the Fruits of Their Folly.

THE QUEEN AND THE SOUDAN.

LONDON, June 13.—A special despatch to the Globe says that it was a dramatic moment in the House of Commons last night when Mr. Gladstone rose, in the most crowded house of the session, and announced that the Ministry he had formed in such triumph, and conducted so faithfully through good and evil report, was no more, for whatever may be the result of the crisis the present Cabinet will never come together again. Mr. Gladstone labored under great excitement. He spoke with dignity and self-control, but there was a pathos in his voice which won the sympathy of all parties.

Inasmuch as he announced his resignation before the Queen's written reply could reach him, it was evident that his telegram to her, after sending a dutiful communication, was of importance. I understand that it was a declaration that under no circumstances could he continue in office, hence the promptness of the Queen's acceptance. Of course, many things may occur, Mr. Gladstone's health may change, but I can state positively that his present intention is to fight the Tories through the elections, in the next Parliament.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION

may be thus summed up under the present aspects of things:—First, it is certain that the Conservatives are in a tight place. Finding their victory worse than their previous defeat, their position is perfectly described in the words of the Spectator this morning—"Between the Devil and the deep sea." Any budget they introduce must be less popular than Mr. Childer's. In the Russian negotiations they will be compelled to follow exactly the policy which they have done. Nothing but denounce. In the Egypt affair it will be impossible to find any happy issue from the imbroglio. A Turkish alliance would give great offence throughout the country and the Continent; indeed Austria is already beginning to show signs of alarm at the prospect. Finally, as reagrds Ireland, if they propose the slightest form of coercion the Parnellites will upset everything else the Conservatives attempt in the Commons, and they will then have them instantly; but if they drop coercion, they will simply stultify all their previous action, and convict themselves of having no interest beyond party ascendancy. Their plight is a pitiable one, and the desperate expedient alone remains, namely, soon after coming into office to dissolve Parliament, as it is in the power of the leader of the House to do, and to force the election on the old franchise. This would set the country on fire, but it would not be surprising if they should do so rather than suffer the humiliation of holding office and playing the enemy's game. There is a growing perception of the fact that they are in a cleft stick and it is provoking great

AN ENORMOUS MAJORITY AGAINST

BITTERNESS IN THE TORY ORGANS.

The Saturday Review this morning says:—"The administration of the country, even for four or five months, by hands clean from the blood and white from the foulness which smirch the hands of Gladstone and his colleagues will be a positive good, the magnitude of which is unquestionable." All this is testimony to the masterstroke with which Mr. Gladstone with the consequence of their own criminal folly, but it would be wrong to overlook the fact that there is serious feeling in many Liberal quarters against the methods by which this Liberal defeat was secured. There is a second aspect to the situation. In spite of Lord Richard Grosvernor's letters to the papers yesterday, describing his whips' telegram to get the party together for the vote, it is impossible to ignore the fact that the Ministry, to say the very least, made no special effort to win. The facts of my previous despatch on this subject are undeniable. Three questions will settle the matter:—First, why was not the whip used for urgent occasions sent out, namely, the whip underlined with five lines? Second, why were not the members told that the division would be critical? Third, why was not the debate adjourned, which was perfectly easy? This by a letter to the Times this morning, signed "An Old Radical," whom I know to be a man whose record entitles him to great respect. He says:—"Public opinion will see that such a resignation really means either suicide from sheer cowardice or a calculated political transaction of a character hitherto simply unheard of in English political life." This is too strong, but I am compelled to show that there are two sides to the question.

SUDDENLY SADDLED THE TORIES

FEELING IS FORCIBLY EXPRESSED

SPEECHES TO COME.

The speeches of Chamberlain and Dilke at the Cobden Club annual banquet at Greenwich to-night are awaited with the greatest possible interest, because it is known that they will be political manifestoes.

SALISBURY'S PLANS.

It is not believed that the Marquis of Salisbury will seek assistance from any of Gladstone Ministers in framing his policy towards Ireland. His plan will be to split the Liberal party completely by proposing a measure the same as the Marquis of Hartington, Mr. Gladstone's War Minister, and a majority of Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet insisted on, continuing coercion in spite of the opposition of Sir Charles Dilke, Mr Jos. Chamberlain, and Mr. Trevelyan. Such a line of Irish policy would be almost certain to lead to at least a temporary coalition between moderate Liberals and Tories against the Radicals and Parnellites, and give the new Government a tremendous majority. It would be hard to guess what would become of the Irish Home Rule under a Government whose very start in power was based upon its determination to maintain coercion in Ireland.

WANTS MORE SOUDAN.

In well informed circles it is thought that the Queen's entourage strongly favour a renewal of the Soudan campaign, the retention of Egypt, the settlement of the Anglo-Russian dispute on the Granville-Giers agreement, a renewal of the alliance with Germany an entente with Turkey, and no special cultivation of an entente with France.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

How the County is Concerned.

A day or two ago we endeavored to show how it was the duty, and to the advantage, of the town to contribute liberally in aid of the West Riding Agricultural Society, and now we wish to impress upon the members of the County Council the necessity and advantage of aiding in a similar manner the finances of this organization. The outlay of the Society this year has been very large, and in addition they propose getting up a prize list for the coming fall that will enable them to present such attractions as will draw a large number of exhibitors from every part of the district. They further propose to make arrangements for the holding of the Provincial Exhibition here. That it will benefit the town to have a first-class annual exhibition here all readily admit. One cannot see, however, how the town can be benefitted without the surrounding country joining in the enjoyment of the advantage. The farmers in the fall usually find that they have on hand a large surplus stock of farm produce, for which the slow demand makes slow prices. Now, a large and successful exhibition, lasting several days and attracting large crowds, will demand an extra supply of food. Thus the farmers will find a ready and extensive demand for their surplus produce at good prices, which otherwise would have to be sacrificed or thrown away. Not one-twentieth part of the extra profit thus derived would be required to pay the increased taxation a liberal grant would entail.

It may be urged that the farmers, living within an easy reach of the town would only be benefitted. But the results of holding successful exhibition of stock in Peterborough could not help but touch advantageously every farmer in the country. The raising of grain as a money making crop is yearly becoming more uncertain and less profitable. Continual over-cropping has exhausted the fertility of the soil, and the people are largely turning to stock raising and cheese making. To secure the highest results and best success in these, the stock must be improved. Scrub stock brings scrub prices. And everybody admits that nothing has done more to improve the stock of the country, than agricultural exhibitions. They have led to enterprising farmers importing, at large outlay, thoroughbred stock. In most cases they have had to buy animals without seeing them, a condition manifestly to the disadvantage of the buyer. But with a high class exhibition in town, the farmer can personally inspect specimens of the best cattle on the continent, can make his own choice if he choose to buy, can deal personally and directly with stock owners and therefore run no risk of "buying a pig in a poke." We are sure it needs little argument to convince either the people or their representatives in the County Council, that in giving the Agricultural Society a liberal grant they are serving the best interests of the people of the county. The Town Council of Peterborough has decided to make a grant of $500 conditional on the County Council making an equivaleut one.

Editorial Notes.

To use an astronomical phrase, the Anglican and Methodist churches are coming into "conjunction." The sessions of their respective synods and conference were simultaneous in Toronto this year. A deputation from the Methodist body was warmly welcomed by Bishop Sweatnam in a most cordial speech, conveying his own and the Church's satisfaction at thus meeting a deputation of the great body to whom they were united by so many ties of affection and tradition, and with whom in late years they had been united in common efforts in effecting great Christian aims in the matters of temperance and public education. Mr. S. H. Blake spoke on behalf of the laity, welcoming the deputation. Rev. Dr. Sutherland, Rev. Dr. Dewart, Rev. Dr. Potts, and Judge Rose responded in the most hearty terms, and their remarks were received by their brethren of the English Church with a warmth that betokened a most hearty sympathy with their work and objects. The prospect of Methodist union half a dozen years ago seemed less probable than a more intimate relation of the Anglican and Methodist churches seems now. If there should be no organic union, there will be a joindure of moral forces, with untold capabilities for good.

There have been added to the communion of the Methodist church, during the last year, an army of over ten thousand new members.

The Senate is receiving condemnation on every side, for its mutilation of the Scott Act, by the Wine and Beer amendments. All the Methodist conferences, as well as the Presbyterian Synod, have denounced its unwarrantable and uncalled for interference with an act which so many of the people have emphatically pronounced in favour of. Leaving the merit of the Act out of the question, the immense majorities in its favour in the counties affected, should have taught the Senate respect for the popular will, and have stayed their vandal hands.

Parliamentary Summary.

FRIDAY, JUNE 12th.

In the Commons yesterday another discussion took place respecting the petition against the Franchise Bill, signed by the Wiarton Conservatives, which Mr. McNeill seems unwilling should be allowed to rest. The result of the discussion was to show that Mr. McNeill had visited Wairton, seeking by the aid of a couple of Government employees to induce those who signed the petition to recant, and that, except one or two cases, nothing like recantation had been accomplished. Bills respecting entries in public books of account, and the Act reagricultural fertilizers were read a third time. The House went into Committee of the whole again on the resolutions in favor of granting lands to North-Westerp railways. The first discussed was the Manitoba South-Western which occupied a long time. Mr. Blake pointed out that the Canadian Pacific had made itself a rival of the South-Western, and, after 57 miles of the road was built, managed to secure control. At first the arrangement was to allow the company to buy lands at a dollar an acre, but changes were made when the C.P.R. secured control. At last the Canada Pacific said they should have a bonus of $6,400 a mile, but with a land grant of 6,400 acres a mile for the whole extent of the line, including the part built they would try to raise money to build the road, but they were not sanguine of success. Since then there was nothing to show that they had a better chance of success. He asked the Government if they had reason for believing that this grant would build the road. He favoured the grant Sir John Macdonald, instead of replying, went into a general discussion on the Canadian Pacific, and was followed by Sir R. Cartwright and others on the same line. The resolution was passed. The other resolution was in favor of a bonus to the Manitoba North-Western, but Mr. Edgar pointed out that according to the papers the Government demanded twice as much as the company was ready to perform. He favoured the grant. After some discussion Sir H. Langevin said he would give an explanation at a later stage. The resolutions were passed and reported. A resolution authorizing the loan of thirty millions was concurred in, and a Bill founded on it was passed through all its stages. A resolution providing for certain amendments to the Inland Revenue Act was passed with the exception of a clause authorizing the Governor to impose an additional duty of five cents a gallon on spirits, which was withdrawn after Mr. Blake had pointed out its irregularity.

LAKEHURST.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Divine service has been conducted every Sabbath morning, since the 3rd ultimo, by Mr. J. E. Duclos, B.A., divinity student of Queen's University, Kingston. The Sabbath School has been organized, and Mr. W. J. Stone and Miss Lizzie Chase appointed teachers; Mr. John Smith, librarian. Mr. Duclos has charge of the Bible class. Both service and Sabbath School will be continued till autumn. On Wednesday evenings prayer meeting is held, after which there is a practice of sacred music. It has been resolved by the young people of the congregation to hold a Sunday School pic-nic near Sandy Lake, on Wednesday, the 17th instant.

The rain last week has done much good; the grain has assumed a greener color and is growing rapidly. A heavy hay crop is expected this year. On June first grass measured, on M. William H. Taylor's farm, seventeen inches.

Mrs. Record, who was dangerously ill this spring with pulmonary disease, is recovering fast under Dr. Lloyd's treatment. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites did her a great deal of good.

Mr. John Cameron, of Asphodel, with his bride, paid a visit to his sister, Mrs. Thompson, on Saturday, the 6th inst. The happy couple returned home the following Wednesday.

MANITOBA CROP PROSPECT.

The Winnipeg Sun has taken some pains to enquire, and is assured, from the best information obtainable, that the crop prospects throughout the whole of the province and the Northwest were never brighter than at present. The fine, open weather in March enabled the farmers to commence spring work exceptionally early, and the wheat was all sown a fortnight ago. The warm rains of the past ten days came at the right time to give the seed a good start. It is now all up and looks as well as could be desired. Farmers are now busy sowing barley, oats and flax. Potato planting is almost universally finished, and there are reasonably sanguine expectations of good crops. The area of wheat sown is much larger than last year, more particularly in Southern Manitoba, from Cartwright to Emerson. In fact all over the Province and the Northwest, the prospects of a bountiful harvest have not been so bright at this season for the past four years, and the crop is fully a month earlier than it has been for years. This is gratifying intelligence, and should the present promises be fulfilled, there is an excellent prospect, with the low rates of freight on grain which will prevail next season, of our farmers having an unusually favorable season and receiving better prices for their products than they have had heretofore.

PIGMY TREES AND MINIATURE LANDSCAPES.

In some ways Chinese and Japanese gardeners are the most successful of any in the world. They can control and direct the growth of plants to a degree that seems really marvellous until the principle upon which it is done is known, when, as in many other matters, it becomes quite simple.

The Chinese have such a strong liking for the grotesque and unnatural, that the handiwork of their gardeners is not as pleasing as that of the Japanese gardeners. The Chinese understand the dwarfing of trees; but their best work is in so directing the growth of a tree or plant that it will resemble some hideous animal which is only fit to exist in nightmare.

The Japanese, on the contrary, are remarkable for their love of what is beautiful and graceful, and, consequently, ugly forms find no favor with them. Every Japanese has a garden if it be possible; but, as space is valuable in Japan, only the very rich can have large grounds, and the family in moderate circumstances must be content with a garden often smaller in area than the floor of one of our hall bedrooms in a narrow, city house.

Nevertheless, that small garden must contain as many objects as a large garden, and, of course, the only way of accomplishing the desired result is to have everything in miniature It is no uncommon thing to see a whole landscape contained in a space no greater than the top of your dining-table. There will be a mountain, a stream, a lake, rocky grottoes, winding paths, bridges, lawns, fruit trees, shrubs, and flowers; all so artistically laid out as to resemble nature itself. In the lake will swim wonderful, filmy-finned gold and silver fish, and not unfrequently the tall form of a crane will be seen moving majestically about the tiny landscape.

This seems wonderful enough; but what will you think when I say that almost the same landscape is reproduced on so small a scale that the two pages of St. Nicholas, as it lies open before you, can cover it! In this case, a tiny house is added; delicate green moss takes the place of grass, and glass covers the lake where the water should be. Counterfeit fish swim in the glass lake, and a false crane overlooks the whole scene, just as the real crane does the larger landscape. The mountain, winding walks, bridges, and rocky grottoes are in the little landscape; and real trees, bearing fruit, or covered with dainty blossoms, are in their proper places.

These trees are of the right proportions to fit the landscape, and they are, consequently, so tiny that one is tempted to doubt their reality; and more than one stranger has slyly taken the leaves or fruit between the fingers, in order to make sure that the dwarfs do truly live, and are not like the fish and crane, mere counterfeits. These miniature landscapes have been successfully brought to this country; and on one occasion a lady of San Francisco used one of them as a centre-piece on the table at a dinner party, greatly to the wonder and admiration of her guests, who could scarcely be convinced that the almost microscopic apples on the trees were genuine fruit.

And now comes the question—how is the dwarfing done? The principle is simple. The gardener merely thwarts nature. He knows that, to grow properly, a tree requires sunlight, heat, and nourishment from the soil. He takes measures to let the tree have only just enough of these to enable it to keep alive.

To begin, he takes a little seedling or cutting, about two inches high, and cuts off its main root. He then puts the plant in a shallow dish, with the cut end of the root resting against a stone, to retard its growth by preventing nourishment entering that way. Bits of clay the size of a bean are put in the dish, and are so regulated in kind and quantity as to afford the least possible food for the little rootlets which have been left on the poor little tree. Water, heat, and light are furnished the struggling plant in just sufficient quantities to hold life in it without giving it enough to thrive on. In addition, any ambitious attempt to thrive, in spite of these drawbacks, is checked by clipping with a sharp knife or searing with a red-hot iron.

After from five to fifteen years of such treatment, the only wonder is that the abused tree will consent even to live, to say nothing of bearing fruit.—John R. Coryell, in St. Nicholas.

THE STINGING TREE.

The "stinging tree" of Queensland is a luxurious shrub, pleasing to the eye but dangerous to the touch. It grows from two or three inches to ten or fifteen feet in height, and emits a disagreeable odor. Says a traveller: "Sometimes while shooting turkeys in the scrubs, I have entirely forgotten the 'stinging tree' till I was warned of its close proximity by its smell, and have often found myself in a little forest of them. I was only once stung, and that very lightly. Its effects are curious; it leaves no mark; but the pain is maddening, and for months afterward the part, when touched, is tender in rainy weather, or when it gets wet in washing, etc. I have seen a man who treats ordinary pain lightly, roll on the ground in agony after being stung, and I have known a horse so completely mad after getting into a grove of the trees that he rushed open-mouthed at everyone who approached him, and had to be shot. Dogs, when stung, will rush about whining piteously, biting pieces from the affected parts."

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

A Welsh Classic.

An unlettered clergyman wanting a place
(His manners were genial and pleasant his face)
Received a kind letter inviting him down
To preach to a church in a large country town.

The town was uncultured, old-fashioned and plain;
The principal business was harvesting grain.
And none of the church members ventured to speak
A word of the Hebrew, or Latin, or Greek.

For this very reason they wished all the more
A scholar well grounded in classical lore;
While a candidate might just as well stay away
If he didn't quote Hebrew at least once a day.

The divine about whom this odd story was told,
By the Times of Manhattan, was cunning and bold,
And knowing they wished for a classical man,
Though he didn't know Latin, he hit on a plan.

For he thought, "We shall see how much shrewdness avails,
Though I cannot read Greek, I'm a native of Wales;
If a few Welsh expressions I cautiously use,
It may rival the Hebrew in pleasing the pews."

On the critical day, with exceptional grace,
With well-attuned voice, and well-controlled face,
He read from the Bible a passage or two,
And remarked, "My dear friends, this translation won't do.

To be sure 'tis correct, but if beauty you seek,
Hear the rythmical sound of original Greek!"
Then boldly a medley of Welsh he recited,
And marked the effect on his hearers benighted.

The children gazed up with a wondering stare,
Their mothers assumed an intelligent air,
While the deacons all nodded, as much as to say
That Greek was by far the more excellent way.

A still bolder venture he hasarded next,
By a curious way of announcing his text:
"These words, as my hearers have noticed, of course,
Have lost nearly all their original force.

In the Hebrew how clearly the thought flashes out,"
And more of his Welsh he proceeded to spout;
When what was his horror to spy near the door,
A jolly old Welshman, just ready to roar!

Overcome with remorse foreseeing the shame
Exposure would bring to his reverend name,
The preacher's mad impulse at first was to run,
But the Welshman's round face, so brimming with fun,

Suggested a possible plan of escape,
Which none but a terrified parson could shape:
He bravely confronted that dangerous smile,
And coolly continued his sermon awhile,
Till at length, without showing the least agitation,
He rallied himself for a final quotation.

"The rendering here is decidedly wrong,
Quite different thoughts to the Chaldee belong;"
Then Welshman in pulpit to Welshman in pew,
In the barbarous dialect they alone knew,

Cried: "Friend! By the land of our fathers, I pray,
As you hope for salvation, don't give me away!"
The joke was so rich the old Welshman kept still,
And the classical parson is preaching there still.

Battle With an Alligator.

Robert Carroll, a trapper and hunter, while trapping for otters on West Choctawpatchie river, in Alabama, had a terrible fight with an alligator recently.

Seeing the water agitated in a hole near the river, and supposing that otters were fishing therein, he mounted a pole on a tussock just above the water's edge. His steel traps were in a sack suspended from his neck. His only weapon was his hatchet. He sat on the pole, with a mass of vines at his back. He held his weapon ready to strike an otter, should one arise.

Soon he saw a young alligator near him. He caught it up and it uttered a cry. In an instant there was a terrible splash of water, and a huge alligator, with distended mouth and glittering teeth, rushed for him. With little hope of escape he fell back upon the vines, and as he did so kicked the pole from under his feet.

The terrible jaws closed on the pole and crushed it. Carroll tried to interpose the traps but a vine had caught them and partly held him down. Seizing his hatchet he struck into the open mouth of his assailant. It closed on the weapon, and with great difficulty he saved the hatchet. Getting free from his traps he dealt the alligator a fatal blow on the skull as it made the next charge.

He secured the skin and such teeth as had not been destroyed in the fight. The length of the alligator was about nine and a half feet. The hole was its den. Alligators rarely attack human beings.—N. Y. Sun.

An eccentric Binghampton, N. Y., man, who is married but does not live with his wife, proposes taking an excursion to Europe next spring, and to defray all expenses on certain conditions. The party must consist of ten or more unmarried couples, the females to do the "popping of the question" prior to the voyage. On board the steamer there is to be one or more weddings each day until the trip is finished.

Just Like John.

A woman clad in deep mourning went through the menagerie yesterday, stopping to admire each of the animals in turn, and every now and then applying her handkerchief assiduously to her eyes, says The Burlington Free Press. When she came to the camel, it was evident that she had come to stay. She sat down on one of the posts that held the rope and began to catechise the attendant.

"This is the camel, ain't it?"

"Yes'm—and the finest specimen in this menagerie or in any menagerie in the country."

"Do tell! How that reminds me of John! John was always at the head of the heap. Now, do tell me some of the peculiarities of the camel—won't you?"

"Yes, ma'am. He has a long neck."

"Just like John! He had the longest neck you ever saw on a man. Gracious! I wish you could have seen the standing collars he used to wear. Come, now, tell me something more."

"The camel, has the largest natural hump of any animal in existence."

"Just like John! You never saw a man that could hump himself as John could, when had a mind to."

"The camel is also a great traveler."

"Just like John! I never could keep him at home nights."

"He is called the ship of the desert."

"Just like John! He could get more pie aboard than any other man in Vermont."

Just then the lion began to roar, and the woman started on the dead trot to see how much meat they could eat at one meal. "Say!" cried the attendant of the camel. "There's one thing I hain't told you about this animal—the most important of all."

"What's that?" cried the woman, turning round in her tracks.

"He can go for weeks without drinking a drop of water."

"Just like John!" exclaimed the [illegible] "You never saw a [illegible] began to roar so loud that [illegible] lost to the attendant of the [illegible] and he forgot all about the little incident until later in the day, when he saw a female in black in front of the monkeys' cage, and heard her explain, by way of comment or some remark of the keeper—

"Just like John!"

A. T. Stewart's First Love.

Near Lake View cemetery, which contains the dust of Garfield carefully guarded by a detachment of United States regulars, is an old burying ground, formerly used by the people living in the country east of Cleveland, writes a correspondent from Cleveland. Among other lots is one containing three green mounds, carefully kept, and planted over each of which is a modest slab of white marble. On one is out the name of William Morrow, on another that of David Morrow, and on the third that of Abbie Morrow. The old sexton, a kindly man, with long gray hair, said: "I knew the Morrows well. David and William were brothers, and Abbie, their sister, kept house for them. They were nice, quiet people, although somewhat peculiar. The sister was never known to smile, and no wonder, for she died of a broken heart."

The Morrows lived near Belfast, Ireland, on a little farm they called "The Knock." They were in comfortable circumstances, had been well educated, and were Presbyterians in faith. Near by them in Ireland lived the father of the late A. T. Stewart. The two families were intimate and the children grew up together. Young A. T. Stewart and Abbie Morrow were childish lovers, although Stewart was several years her senior.

When a lad, as you well know, Stewart left Ireland and made his way to New York to better his fortune. He corresponded regularly with his little sweetheart across the waters, and it was understood that when he had prospered, he was to go back to Ireland and marry the lass he had left behind. Years rolled by and death came. First it took away Abbie's father, and a few months later the mother, unable to bear her grief, followed her husband. The children retained the farm and prospered fairly. Stewart's father was dead and his old mother lived on her little place and strained her eyes hopefully towards America. Finally she died and Stewart went to Ireland to settle the estate.

While there he renewed his engagement with Abbie Morrow, and spoke so well of the United States that William and David Morrow were induced to sell their farm, and, with Abbie, came with their former friend to New York. Stewart realized about £500 from his mother's estate, which he invested in Irish linens and laces. These he had shipped to New York, and they formed the foundation for the great establishment which afterwards bore his name.

The Morrows had friends in northern Ohio, and so they came to Cleveland. They purchased a farm in East Cleveland township, built a comfortable house and were soon known as substantial citizens. This was nearly sixty years ago. They seldom visited the village of Cleveland, except to purchase or dispose of produce.

A few months after they came to the state of Ohio A. T. Stewart paid them a visit. He was cordially welcomed as the promised husband of the sister, remained a few days, and returned to New York. That was the last Abbie Morrow ever saw of him. He was doing well in New York and was rapidly making a fortune. His letters became brief and less frequent, and finally ceased altogether. Finally the news of his marriage reached the brothers. They kept it from their sister as long as they could, but finally had to tell her of her lover's inconstancy. She was too high spirited to peddle her grief among her acquaintances, and kept about her household duties in a quiet manner for thirty years. Then they laid her away on a hillock in the center of the farm. Afterwards her remains were taken up and interred here. Every year of her life Stewart sent her a silk dress, but she never wore any of them. As fast as she received them they were laid away untouched, and when she died her brothers returned them to the donor. She received many offers of marriage, but never again put her trust in man.

County Council.

The June session of the County Council will open in the Court House to-morrow.

Condolence.

Rev. Mr. Tovell on Sunday morning referred feelingly to the death of the Rev. Mr. Manning's father, which took place last week.

Beautiful Binding.

Step into the EXAMINER office and see the handsome binding that is being done. A number of books are on exhibition for a few days.

Foot Ball.

On Saturday a match game of foot ball was played at Hazel Brae by teams from the Home and the club in connection with the Y. M. C. A. After a spirited struggle the victory fell to the Hazel Brae lads.

Provincial Exhibition.

We have received the prize list of the Provincial Exhibition, which is to be held in London this year, from Monday, Sept 7th, to Saturday, September 12th. The prize list is a generous one.

The 12th of July.

Nearly all the Orange Lodges of the county are bound for Millbrook on the 12th of July. At a meeting of the Lakefield District Lodge held on Tuesday last they decided to fall into line.

A Home Thrust.

At the conclusion of the services in the George street church on Sunday night Rev. Mr. Tovell, pastor, alluded to the working of the Conferences and denounced in strong terms the Senate for stooping to nullify the popular will in mutilating the Scott Act, which such large majorities, where it had been adopted, had pronounced in favor of.

Encomiums for English.

The Fenelon Falls Gazette says:—"Mr. J. J. Brandon has a cedar canoe made by Wm. English, of Peterborough, who confines himself exclusively to canoes, and in his own line has no successful rival. It cost $30, is sixteen and a half feet long, 32 inches beam and will carry eight persons in fair weather. The outside is painted drab, the interior cream color, and for lightness and elegance, combined with strength, appears to be all that the severest critic could possibly desire." say we all.

Young Men's Bible Study.

The young men's Bible class, led by the Rev. A. H. Munro, will meet on Tuesday evening, in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, at 8 p. m. A series of lessons in the Old Testament is now in progress, the life of Samuel being taken up at present. Mr. Munro will be glad if all who have attended the class since its formation will be present to-morrow evening, and with them any other young men who would like to join in this interesting study.

The Midland Reception.

Port Hope is stirring in the matter of giving a public reception to the Midland Battalion on their return home. A public meeting was held on Friday evening. Resolutions were adopted, recognizing the bravery of the Midland boys; endorsing the idea of an enthusiastic reception, and pledging the warmest co-operation in any plan adopted, to give the Midland a suitable reception on their home-coming. The Town Council was requested to take the necessary action in conjunction with the citizens. Col. Rogers informs us that delay in action in Peterboro' arises from the uncertainty of the date on which the battalion will return? We have no doubt that Peterborough will do its share at the proper time. It would be well, however, to not delay too long. If other places are allowed to anticipate us in making the preliminary arrangements, there is no probability that Peterborough will be selected as the place where the reception will be given.

Wanted, a Volunteer Organist.

The Young Men's Christian Association will be glad if some young man will volunteer to play the organ in place of Mr. J. F. Holden, who has left town.

Closing Sermon.

It is expected that the Rev. Mr. Manning will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday morning in the Charlotte street and in the evening in the George Street Methodist Church.

Newsy and Brightly Edited.

The Whitby Chronicle says:—"Peterborough now has three daily papers. The last to take this form was the EXAMINER, long and favorably known as a liberal weekly paper, which on Saturday afternoon appeared as a handsomely printed, newsy and brightly edited evening paper of twenty-four columns.

Exceedingly Creditable.

The Belleville Ontario says:—The EXAMINER came out in daily form on Saturday, and the two numbers so far received are exceedingly creditable specimens of journalism, and the typographical arrangement is good. The EXAMINER is on the right side of politics, and at this juncture, when misgovernment has nearly ruined the Dominion, and a faction is endeavouring to shut the mouths of the people and destroy representative institutions, we say, more power to its elbow

A New R. C. Parish.

On Friday of last week Fenelon Falls, says the Gazette, was visited by Bishop Jamot, of Peterborough, who delivered a lecture in the R. C. church in the evening, and another next morning before his departure for Victoria Road, where he formed a new parish, of which Father McCloskey is to have charge. The territory embraced by the new parish has hitherto been served by the priests residing at Fenelon Falls, but the distances to be travelled were so great that the Bishop thought it advisable to station one at Victoria Road, and he has accordingly done so. Father McCloskey, who has been Father McEvoy's coadjutor for the past sixteen months, is popular with all who know him, and many besides the Catholics will be sorry to lose him.

West Riding Society.

At a well attended meeting of the Directors of the West Riding Agricultural Society, on Saturday afternoon, a move was made to widen the scope and area of the constituteney of the Society. A resolution was adopted to call the next exhibition the "Peterborough Central Exhibition," and the 29th and 30th of September, and the 1st of October were fixed as the date. In addition to the contributions published in a recent issue of THE EXAMINER there were announced that of Mr. Millar, $10; C. Leary, North Monaghan, License Inspector, special prize for best bull, $3.00; Mr. Jos. Redmond, prize of $15 for cattle, and Mr. J. Vance, Manvers, $10 special prize for Berkshire pigs. The prize list will be about treble the amount of that offered at the last Central Exhibition held in the adjoining county last fall. The directors are showing a commendable energy and enterprise and we are sure their efforts will be warmly supplemented by our citizens generally. Peterborough is the best town in the Dominion and every enterprise in connection with her should correspond.

Days of Barbarism Brought Back.

On Sunday evening during the progress of the Salvation Army proceedings two stones were thrown through the windows of the old Baptist Church, where they meet. The missiles were evidently thrown from Simcoe street or from Aylmer, street south of the buildings. Fortunately no one was injured, but the crash added an unpleasant element of sensation to the services. A vigorous search failed to discover the miscreants. The police should see that the good name of the town for order should not thus be injured. While the methods of the Salvation Army may not meet with general approval, its object should be respected. A hint from the civilization of eighteen hundred years ago might be timely. Old Gamaliel, in the persecution of the early evangelism of the Apostles, gave sound advice if the work were of man it would come to naught, if of God it was vain to attempt to overthrow it. The day of stoning, burning and hanging, drawing and quartering religious opponents is long past.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the bands off our 5c. Cable 5c., and sell them (the "Cable" cigars) in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also put our brands on cheap trashy cigars, palming them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the brands off our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the El Padre cigar) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (15c.) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a musty, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c.) ten cents for our (5c.) "Cable" cigars, and (15c.) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c.) cigars; as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidely protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be perjudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they where smoking an imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

Knights of Labour.

A call is made for all members of the Knights of Labour, members of the trade organizations, and workingmen generally, to assemble at the Temperance Hall, Water street, on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Matters of vital interest to both employe and employer will be discussed. It is to be hoped that this meeting will not be forgotten.

Extending Telephonic Talk.

To-day Mr. H. W. Kent, the courteous, obliging and enterprising local representative of the Bell Telephone Company, went to Campbellford to complete arrangements for the establishment of a telephonic exchange in that vigorous and vim-ful village. If our southern neighbors are as fluent in talk as they are active in business enterprise, the new exchange will be a paying investment.

A Happy Conjunction.

The County jail is at present a felicitous combination of general hospital and lunatic asylum. Of the seven or eight prisoners incarcerated therein, only one is able to dispense with doctor's doses and strait jackets. The remaining unfortunates are either maniacs, imbeciles or invalids. It is hardly in consonance with modern civilization that either mental or bodily infirmity should be practically regarded and treated as a crime.

To be Pushed Rapidly.

We are glad to see that Peterborough's most important new manufacturing enterprise, the "Powell & Jones Stove Works," is to be pushed on with all vigor. Preparations are being made to push on the work with all possible despatch at once. The new buildings are to be erected on the corner of Bethune and Wolfe streets, west of the Grand Trunk Railway track, and they will be of a first class stamp. They will consist of one building three stories in height 38x100 feet. At right angles to this will be run out another three story building, 38x40, connecting the first mentioned building with the moulding shop, which is to be 80x80 feet, one story in height. As soon as the completion of some nearly finished building operations relieves sufficient workmen, the new buildings will be began. They will not be of a temporary or flimsy character, but substantial and permanent structures. The walls will be of solid brick and the division walls internally will also be of brick.

TUESDAY, JUNE 16, 1885.

A Supposed Case of Suicide.

A Despondent Wife and Mother Drowns Herself in the Otonabee River.

This morning, about 4.30 a.m., as Mr. Armstrong, night watchman at the C.P.R. Depot, was crossing the iron bridge he noticed something like wearing apparel lying to the side of the track near the fourth pier, which attracted his attention. On going to the spot he discovered that the articles in question evidently being composed of a shawl, hat, a pair of black cotton gloves, and hoop-skirts. Naturally, the usual suspicions which would occur to the mind of any person, viz., suicide flashed across the mind of Mr. Armstrong, and on seeing footprints leading towards the water's edge he also directed his attention that way where he found further of his suspicions at the brink of the deep stream on the Ashburnham side in the shape of a pair of rubbers. He at once collected the articles and had them sent to the police station where they remained until about 11 o'clock this morning when they were identified by Mr. Wm. Scollie, as belonging to his wife; who was missed from her home last night about 10 p.m. On enquiry from Mr. Scollie, it was learned that the unfortunate lady has for some time been suffering from ill health, her ailment being of a hypochondriacal character, under the depressing influence of which she evidently became wearied of life and sought to end it in the manner to which all the circumstances above recited point. A vigorous search was at once instituted, but up to the time of this writing without result.

BELONGED TO A WOMAN;

CONFIRMATORY PROOF

Dominion Day.

The Sons of England in Peterborough, while cherishing fondly the legends and recollections of 'Ome, enter into the celebration of Dominion Day with such spirit that they might be properly called "Sons of Canada." On July 1st, excursion trains will bring from Toronto and other points on the line, about two thousand "Sons of England," and a large number will also come from Belleville. The local brethren are making complete arrangements for extending them real English hospitality—hotel keepers having been notified of the extra demands which will be made upon their resources, in the way of roast beef, beer and plum-pudding. An excellent programme of proceedings has been arranged, and will be announced in full to-morrow. The programme includes a procession at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, headed by the Fire Brigade band, which, after moving through the principal streets, will proceed to the Central Park, Separate school grounds and drill shed, which have been secured for the day. A programme of old English sports and games will be carried out. Prominent among the features of the proceedings will be a representation of the May Pole dance, and the crowning of the May Queen, a time honored English custom, deeply rooted in the national heart. The custom supplied the text for Tennyson's beautiful poem, "The May Queen," and last May, at Knutsford, Cheshire, England, there were 25,000 persons present to witness the ceremony. In the evening there will be a grand promenade concert in the Drill Shed, at which the handsome prizes won at the games will be presented by Geo. A. Cox, Esq, Mayor of Peterborough. A grand display of fireworks, free to all, will conclude the days proceedings.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable", or "El Padre" brands of cigars which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w

PERSONAL.

Home From the War

Army Excursion.

The Saved Army excursion to our town takes place to-morrow (Wednesday), and promises to be a large one. The reports received are very encouraging, and arrangements for the entertaining of the friends are completed. The Hon. Sidney Smith is to arrive this evening, and we have no doubt that a large number will be glad to hear him.

T. V. C.

Mr. Page, Dominion Chief Engeneer, and Mr. Goodwin, Contractor, were in town this morning. Rumonr says that the visit is caused by some difference between the contractor and local engineer, which induced the contractor to have a re-survey made of at least, some portions of the work, and it is believed that Mr. Page is here to examine and report upon the differences. They proceeded to Burleigh this morning.

St. Andrew's Society Pic-Nic.

A preliminary meeting of the St. Andrew's Society was held yesterday morning with reference to the annual pic-nic. Nothing was [definitely arrived at. It was decided, however, that all the members should be notified at once that a special meeting would be held on Friday evening, 19th inst, in the usual place, the rooms adjoining the Council Chamber, for the purpose of deciding as to the place and time for the picnic, the particulars of which will be announced through the columns of the EXAMINER.

W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held on Monday afternoon in the room of the Young Men's Christian Association. There were seventeen members present. After the meeting had been opened by prayer, the president announced that five ladies had joined the Union since the last meeting, making the membership 83. A communication from Jane Alexander, superintendent of the legislative work, was read, asking the Peterboro' branch to memorialize the Dominion Government, praying that the proposed amendments to the Scott Act, recently adopted by the Senate, be not passed, but that the law be allowed to remain as at present, was received, and the secretary was instructed to prepare the memorial, have it signed by the officers of the Union and forwarded to the Government without delay. A committee composed of Mrs. D. Smart and Mrs. R. H. Green was appointed to confer with the honorary members, Revs. Messrs. Tovell and Torrance, and Dr. Fife, requesting their assistance in having the leading men of the town write the members for East and West Peterborough, Messrs. Hilliard and Burnham, asking that they vote against the Scott Act amendments of the Senate when brought before Parliament. Mrs. R. H. Green gave an address on the success of the Scott Act in Halton, which was appreciated by the Union. After Mrs. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Meharry were instructed to collect all the unpaid membership fees, the meeting adjourned.

Prof. Dorenwend in Peterborough.

Our readers will notice in another column of this paper the advertisement of Professor Dorenwend, of the Paris Hair Works, Toronto, in which he announces a visit to Peterborough with an extensive and select stock of fashionable hair goods, such as Langtry, Pompadour and Parisian Rangs, Water Waves, Switches, Wigs, Toupees, etc. His goods have obtained a most high and well known reputation as being of the best workmanship, durable, good quality and cheap, and we can highly recommend them to all who are in want of a first-class article in this line. Don't fail to visit the Professor; he will be at the Grand Central Hotel on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 17, 18, 19, 20.—d-15-2t.

A PERTINENT REMARK.

A Muncey town Indian has been tried for having whiskey in his possession. A white man in a license county is not liable to trial for the same offence, unless he steals or illegally distills it. The Muncey town Indian who is in the eyes of the law not competent to be trusted as a white man is with a bottle of whiskey, is in the eyes of Sir, John Macdonald competent to be trusted with a ballot! —Ottawa Free Press.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

June Session.

Opened the Hall.—Text of the Warden's Address.

The June session of the Council began at at the Court House to-day, at 2 o'clock p.m. The following members were present:—Messrs. R. C. Strickland, Warden; ham Stephenson, W. H. Walsh, J. P.; Stephenson James, Brown J., Elmhirst, Kidd, Maloney, Crough, Mansfield, Hicks, Forster, Lang, Stewart, Sanderson Fitzgerald and Foley.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

The Warden took the chair and delivered the following address:—

NORTH-WEST REBELLION.

GENTLEMEN,—I am pleased that I can congratulate you on there being every appearance of a peaceful and prosperous year, though at one time the outlook was by no means promising, owing, first to the backward spring, and secondly to the trying ordeal through which our county was then passing, viz.. the rebellion of the half-breeds and Indians in the Northwest. A call was made on the volunteers of this county to assist, in conjunction with other volunteer forces, in quelling the outbreak, and you will know how nobly they have responded to the call. Nor need I name those from this county who have found a soldier's grave on the distant prairies; these facts are now matters of history, and I only allude to them on this occasion to say that it is a source of congratulation to this Council that they have not refused pecuniary assistance to the volunteers of this district when appealed to in the past, and our reward has been that the volunteers so assisted have shown, when called upon by the country, that they could do more than play the soldier and among the many who have notably distinguished themselves during the campaign was one who was formerly a member of this Council and Reeve of Lakefield (I mean Col. C. A. Boulton, commanding "Boulton's Scouts,"); and owing to the pluck, bravery and endurance of our volunteers, peace, happiness and security has been reinstated in thousands of homes in the North-West Territories. I have reason to believe that an appeal will be made to you during this session on behalf of the volunteers of this county, and I feel sure it will receive your favourable consideration.

GRAND JUNCTION VS. PETERBOROUGH.

The case of the G. J. Railway against the County of Peterborough has been tried. The judgment has, as was anticipated, been in favor of the County. The company has, however, given notice of appeal, and it is expected that the case will be brought before the Court of Appeal in September. The evidence adduced at the trial did not differ materially from that given in the former proceedings and the County may therefore confidently expect a favourable decision from the Court of Appeal.

FLOATING BRIDGES.

With regard to the Pidgeon Creek bridge, the county's position is, in my opinion, very unsatisfactory, as the onus of keeping up this bridge is thrown almost entirely on the county. I think it your duty to take some decided action this session in insisting on the county of Victoria sharing the expense of maintenance. At present the bridge is much out of repair, and something will have to be done immediately to ensure the safety of the travelling public. After a close examination of the bridge, along with the county engineer, we concluded it would cost about $500 to repair it. The Mud Lake bridge will also require considerable repairs at once, it not having sufficient floating power.

COURT HOUSE PARK.

The resolution passed at the last session of this Council, offering the Horticultural Society a lease of the Court House grounds and a grant of money to aid in improving them, has been accepted by the Society. A lease was drawn up by the committee appointed for that purpose and duly executed; the lease is for twenty one years from Jan. 1st 1885, and I trust that ere long the public will have reason to fully appreciate your action in this matter.

BRIDGE, BIG CHUTE, BURLEIGH.

You will remember that the state of the bridge across the Big Chute, at Burleigh, was brought before the Roads and Bridges Committee last session and action was deferred until the Council ascertained what the Dominion Government intended doing about building a swing bridge. During last month I was informed by the Reeve of Burleigh that this bridge was not safe, and, in consequence, went up with the County Engineer and examined it. We found the bridge in an unsafe condition, and, therefore, I instructed the Engineer to make a report of what repairs he thought necessary, and have them made at once.

YOUNG'S POINT BRIDGE.

Being notified by the contractor of the Young's Point Bridge that it was completed, the Young's Point Bridge Committee met at Young's Point on the 12th of February, and, after a close examination by the County Engineer, the committee received the bridge from the contractor, who performed his contract to the entire satisfaction of the Engineer and committee.

WALLACE POINT BRIDGE.

Owing to the resolution passed in the January session, regarding the building of a bridge lower down the river, in lieu of Wallace Point bridge, I received several letters and a petition protesting against such action, also a telegram from the Wardes of Northumberland and Durham, asking me to meet him in Peterborough, which I did on the 18th day of March, with the Wallace Point Bridge Committee. He urged that this county should take immediate action in building a new swing bridge at Wallace's Point, as the present one was in a dangerous condition; but, owing to the action this Council had taken in having the matter laid over until the present session, I could do nothing but instruct the County Engineer to watch the bridge closely and make any repairs he thought necessary.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

In compliance with a resolution of this council I prepared a memorial to be forwarded to the Minister of Railways and Canals, urging upon him the advisability of a farther grant sufficient to ensure the early completion of that portion of the T. V. C. running through this county and also in accordance with another resolution, I communicated with the Wardens of Counties, Mayors of towns and Reeves of villages, on the line of the T. V. C., and with the Secretary of the Montreal Corn Exchange, for the purpose of forming a deputation to wait upon the Dominion Government. The deputation arrived at Ottawa on the 11th March, and had an interview with the Minister of Rialways and Canals, and Sir John A. Macdonald. We received assurances from them that work on the T. V. C. would be pushed forward with all practicable despatch but some delay in the continuation of this work has been caused, no doubt, by the attention of the Government being taken up with the unfortunate rebellion in the North-west before referred to. But I am now pleased to be able to inform you that the contractor on the Burleigh section of the canal has begun work and it is likely that considerable progress will be made during the next six months. I am sure that this Council is alive to the importance of this work and will not cease their efforts until it is completed.

LOST REPORT.

Shortly after the close of the last session, I received a communication from the Clerk of the County, calling my attention to the fact that, the detailed report of the School Inspector, which you had ordered to be printed, could not be found. I would advise that the chairmen of the committees should be particular in seeing that all papers are placed in the committee boxes, as it is important that papers belonging to the County should be preserved.

MEMORIALS.

I regret to inform you that a grant of money has not been made for the purpose of connecting Burleigh and Buckhorn roads, and your petition asking that all appointees whose salaries the County Council of any municipality pay, should be placed in the nomination of the respective councils, has not, up to the present, been complied with. These are matters of importance to the county, and no doubt you will again bring this before the Local Government.

COURT HOUSE IMPROVEMENT.

A new vault has been constructed for the use of the Clerk of the County Court, and certain changes have been made in the Registry office, and heating facilities have been applied to both these offices. I would suggest, that the Town Council of the town of Peterborough be applied to for the proportion of the expenditure properly payable [by the town.

At this session of the Council, it will be your duty to equalize the assessment of the several municipalities, and to provide for the current expenses of the County. The Report of the County Auditors, with financial statements, will be laid before you, all of which I commend to your careful consideraton.

R. C. STRICKLAND, Warden.

Peterborough, June 16th, '85.

On motion of Mr. Moloney, seconded by Mr. Welsh, the following gentlemen were appointed a Committee to report on the Warden's address:—Messrs. Stepenson, W. H., Lang, Stewart, Sanderson, Kidd and the mover and seconder.

On motion the various communications, accounts and other papers in the hands of the Clerk were referred to the different Committees.

NEW MEMBERS.

The Warden stated that Mr. Walsh had been elected Reeve of Asphodel, in place of Mr. Brown, and Mr. Foley had been appointed Deputy Reeve of Douro, and that both gentlemen had filed their certificates of election.

On motion of Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. Stewart, Mr. Walsh was appointed on the Committees on which Mr. Brown had acted, and Mr. Foley was appointed on the Property, Petitions, Schools and Printing Committees.

MR. BURNHAM HEARD FROM.

Mr. Strickland read a letter from Mr. John Burnham, M. P. P., Reeve of Ashburnham, on the Nicholls Hospital; it will appear to-morrow.

The Council then adjourned.

EXTENT OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

The British Empire covers nearly a sixth of the land surface of the earth. The entire surface of the globe is estimated at 197,000,000 square miles, of which a little more than a quarter, or 51,500,000 square miles, are land, and the total extent of the British Empire is 8,990,211 square miles, which may be tabulated thus:—

	Square miles.
Great Britain and Ireland	121,115
Indian possessions	1,568,351
Other eastern possessions	89,000
Australasia	3,181,344
North America	3,620,549
Guiana, etc	108,000
Africa	270,000
West Indies	12,707
European possessions	199
Various settlements	26,171

The population of this enormous Empire is estimated at 310,225,000 souls, and well was it said to be "a power which has dotted the surface of the whole globe with her possessions and military posts, whose morning drum-beat, following the sun and keeping company with the hours, circles the earth with one continuous and unbroken strain of the martial airs of England."

An unsightly and unnatural growth of superfluous hair on the face or arms of a lady, is a most disagreeable disfigurement. Many attempts have been made to discover something that will remove this blemish, but Prof. Dornewend alone has been successful. He (after many experiments) discovered an article which will remove all unnecessary hair from face or arms without causing pain or leaving marks of application. Ladies, if you are troubled with superfluous hair, don't fail to get a bottle of "Eureka," it may be had from the Prof., who will be at the Grand Central Hotel on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 17, 18, 19 and 20. d15-2t

THE REVISED VERSION.

Many an old sinner will rejoice to find that by the revised edition of the Old Testament "the way of the transgressor is hard," has been modified into "the way of the treacherous is ragged." Nor are we longer to be told that "all is vanity and vexation of spirit." This familiar passage is now to be read, "all is vanity and striving after wind," which takes all the poetry out of it.

HARVEST FOR THE LAWYERS.

In addition to Riel's, a number of cases will doubtless be sent down from Battleford and Prince Albert for trial, and there will be such legal business in Regina as will make Winnipeg lawyers turn green with envy.—Winnipeg Sun.

Prompt Measures.

Prompt means should be used to break up sudden colds, and cure coughs in their early stages. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam does this most speedily and effectually. 24-2t

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

Australian Common Schools.

The educational policy in the great southern continent colony has witnessed many curious developments.

A State grant was made at first, which was divided proportionally among four denominations, viz., Church of England, Presbyterian, Wesleyan and Roman Catholic. After a time the schools retrograded very much, and the smaller denominations getting no advantage whatever, a system of national schools was adopted, and there was an improvement in the quality almost immediately. This Board, which resembled very closely, both in organization and in the methods it adopted, that known so well in Britain, began to encroach upon the Denominational Board and was favored in Parliamentary grants. At length, all the schools were placed under one Board, the National, and aid to denominational schools was withdrawn altogether after three years' notice. So the system which began in a complete subjection to one church ended in independence of all churches.

Now the sequel of the school policy in Australia is one not without interest, in view of the difficulties which statesmen and prominent educators admit still exist in our own school system.

The problem which the Australian Government had to face was how to merge these various religious interests into one Board, give each a voice and place and yet not altogether abandon the distinctions. It had been enacted that the secular instructions which were taught by the schoolmaster were to include religious instruction and moral teaching, but not dogma of any special kind. A law of this kind is always hard to operate. The people were dissatisfied. The clergy and zealous members of different denominations objected to this indefinite kind of religious instruction. They desired to retain that feature of the first plan which allowed them the privilege of giving their children definite instruction in the faith of their parents, and at the expense of the state. Accordingly an additional clause was enacted providing that "certified religious teachers shall have access to the public schools, and one hour in five shall be available for the special religious instruction of the children belonging to the church of the visiting religious teacher." This was in addition to the religious instruction without dogma, by the appointed teacher of the school.

But this arrangement, which is far ahead of any of our Canadian laws, did not succeed as well as might have been expected. The clergy were called away to do this special teaching, or laymen were engaged to perform the duty, and the upshot of the whole matter was, that the work was so indifferently or carelessly performed that the law became a dead letter.

When the Bishop of Sydney, who is also Primate of Australia, went out from England, he took hold of this school question vigorously, and got the various diocesan synods to promise that they would be responsible for the necessary expenses to carry out clerical teaching in all the schools. The Minister of Public Instruction also promised to facilitate special religious instruction by the clergy as the law provided. And the various denominations agreed to assist each other by mutual arrangement and concession to carry out this special and separate teaching.

This is the condition of affairs in Australia at present. In each public school there is reading of the Scriptures, prayer, general religious instruction, and one hour in five some certified person is permitted to give instruction to the children belonging to his denomination.

It is considerably in advance of the recent provisions for Ontario schools. The Order in Council enacts that the Lord's Prayer is to be used in all our schools, and selections from Scripture must be read, but without comment or explanation. The Ten Commandments may be repeated, if the trustees so desire, once a week; and should they choose, arrangements may be made to close the ordinary school work earlier so as to admit of definite religious instruction. The advantage is certainly on the side of Australia; but combined effort might procure the same thing for Ontario.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

Editorial Notes.

The Napanee Express remarks that it is "somewhat strange that whenever an election is at hand in Lennox a government dredge appears in the (Napanee) river." There is nothing strange about it. There is an election pending in Lennox. For three years Munson and his dredge have been prominent factors in Tory electioneering operations, and its present use to promote the success of the Ottawa candidate in a local election is just what might be expected.

Sir John's supporters declare the opposition of the Liberals to the Franchise Bill is "obstructive." But the many amendments they forced to the original measure shows that that obstruction was justifiable.

Sir John's Franchise Bill does not seem all the iniquity its opponents make it. The chieftain laid violent hands on the timber and minerals of Ontario, claiming them for Indians. But forseeing that he would be, as he has been, discredited as a constitutional lawyer by Chancellor Boyd, who declared for Mr. Mowat's contention that the timber belonged to this Province, he wished to make reparation to the Indians. This fine example of sentimentalism would be perfect if behind it were not "Old To-morrow's" object of making the Indians useful for his own purposes. Sir John makes every body useful to himself, or ignores and crushes them if possible.

S. DAVIS AND SONS' CIGAR MFY.

The Home of the "El Padre," "Cable," "Modern," etc—A Monster Establishment for the Manipulation of the Fragrant Weed.

The city of Montreal boasts the possession of scores of colossal structures devoted to the interests of trade and commerce, structures that afford the strongest evidence of the extent of her manufacturing, import interests. Prominent among these is the new premises erected by the above mentioned firm, whose brands of cigars are a household word throughout the Dominion. These brands are the "El Padre," "Cable," "Modern," and others, and no other guarantee of excellence is needed to the connoisseur than that his cigar bears either of these well-known stamps.

THE CIGAR PALACE

is located on Cote-street, in the very heart of the city, and its seven storeys of graceful architecture from a prominent feature amid its busy surroundings. In exterior beauty and interior capaciousness and business convenience it is doubtless the most complete structure of the kind in America. The front is made increasingly attractive by two pictures que towers; one at either corner, and the stone, iron, and brick materials are blended into chaste architectural effects. The factory has a frontage of 88 feet and a depth of 106—an area of nearly 10,000 square feet. The stairways are in the towers, separated from the main building by wrought iron doors. The conveniences and steam elevators are also in detached towers, thus leaving the immense rooms unobstructed. Though the firm has but recently entered the new buildings, yet its history dates back for many years, and its career has been marked by honors won in competitious with the largest manufacturers of the world. At

PARIS IN 1867

Messrs. Davis & Son secured the first Medal, for best quality cigars, and at Philadelphia in 1876 the medal for the best value. In this latter competition the contest was for value of goods at a given price. Of course the "El Padre" and "Cable" have been succesfully shown at the Dominion and Provincial Exhibitions, and the newer brands; "Modern," "Very fine," "Hello," etc., are rapidly coming into favour. The "Modern" as a 10 cent and 15 cent article, is made a specialty of.

"THE BOARD OF TRADE."

The official organ of the Montreal Board of Trade notices the firm in the following terms:—

"No cheap lines of cigars are manufactured. Their goods are placed before the trade at prices ranging from $20 to $75 per thousand. Volumes might be written in the various departments through which the 'leaf' passes before it reaches the sorters, classifiers, and packers.

"Throughout the house is noted for its courteous and liberal dealing with its customers having, by the promptness and good faith it has always shown to patrons, and keeping one of the largest and best stocks in the Dominion, built up a large and productive business. Their trade is on the increase and for this reason, coupled with the advantages they are offering, we have deemed it a duty to call their establishment into prominence, although it needs it not, as the tongue of good report has brought this house into greater popularity than we can do in a cursory sketch.

"The fine executive noticeable in the system employed to handle this mammoth industrial pursuit, emanates from that close relationship found between the senior Mr. S. Davis and this three sons, E. H., M. E., and M. B. Davis. They are among the very foremost of Montreal's enteprising, public spirited, and responsible citizens, and have reflected, throughout their entire business career of 22 years in our midst, the highest credit od the city.

THE TORONTO BRANCH.

The enormous dimensions to which the trade has grown have rendered it necessary to provide for the demands of the western portions of the Dominion, and, therefore, a branch has been opened at Toronto, which is under the management of E. H. Davis, a member of the firm. The object in view in establishing this branch is not for the shipment of goods—for this is done from the head office at Montreal—but to provide convenient sample rooms and western headquarters for the large staff of travellers employed.

NOTES.

The population of an ordinary village finds employment in this one establishment, as fully seven hundred hands are needed.

The whole premises are about to be illuminated with the incandescent electric light.

Each flat has an office for its superintendent, situated in front, the windows of which are of stained glass.

Wardrobes, lavatories, etc., are provided on each flat.

The cost of the buildings and equipments aggregates $100,000.

The firm make a specialty of the fine and pure quality and flavor of the leaf used.

The furnace and Brush boilers are in a separate building in the rear, and steam is conveyed to the engine and throughout the main building by iron pipes.

All the doors are of iron, and the factory is therefore rendered as nearly fire-proof as possible.

TOWN COUNCIL.

A Lengthy Meeting and Little Definite ly Arrived at—Fire Protection Discussed—Conditional Grant to the Agricultural Society.

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday evening in the Council Chamber.

It was thought about 7.30 that there would not be a quorum, but shortly before eight o'clock the following took their seats: Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, McClelland, Yelland, Douglas, Rutherford, Menzies and Hartley.

On motion of Mr. McClelland, Mr. Menzies, in the absence of the Mayor, took the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and the following

REPORTS—FINANCE.

Mr. Davidson then read the following report from the Finance Committee:—

To the Mayor and Town Councillors of the Town of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN,—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend the payment of the following accounts:—

Chairman.

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT.

Mr. A. Rutherford, chairman, read the following report from the Fire, Water and Light Committee:—

The Fire, Water and Light Committee beg to report and recommend that the request of the fire brigade asking for $400 to provide them with a new hose reel and clothing be granted, providing the above sum will not at any time be asked to be further increased. We also recommend the purchasing of 200 feet of hose.

A. RUTHERFORD,
Chairman.

CHARITY REPORT.

To the Mayor and Town Councillors:

GENTLEMEN,—The Charity Committee beg to report that the sum of $60 be granted to the Lavery family to enable them to return to Ireland, $50 to be expended for tickets, and $10 for other necessary expenses.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

R. H. GREEN,
Chairman.

Report adopted.

EXEMPTION BY-LAW.

The by-law which was prepared since the previous meeting, for the exemption of proposed new industries from further taxation, was then read for the first time.

Most of the councillors thought that this was a serious matter, and one which desired a good deal of attention. The wisdom of passing the by-law depended a good deal on the nature of the industries which were to be introduced.

Mr. Yelland thought it would not be fair at all, for instance, to allow any manufacturing industry in which Peterborough men were already engaged, to enjoy any privileges over men who have payed taxes and are likely to pay taxes for some time to come.

On motion of Mr. McClelland, seconded by Mr. Yelland, the committee of the whole rose, and the matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

FIRE PROTECTION.

The by-law for fire protection was then introduced and read the first time. Considerable discussion took place, each councillor advocating the rights of his respective ward to a better protection.

During the second reading of the fifth clause a spirited discussion took place in which Mr. Rutherford took an active part. Mr. E. B. Edwards, town Solicitor, gave his opinion in the matter and referred to an Act passed in the Legislature of 1861, with reference to the right of a municipality incurring debt by way of contract for more than the current year.

This led to a vast amount of talk, and finally, on motion of Mr. McClelland, the Council went into a Committee of the Whole and arose without any definite action, leaving it pending, the matter being thoroughly looked into.

GRANT TO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Moved by Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. Douglass, that this Council grant the Agricultural Society $500, on condition that the County Council give $750. Failing that the town grant a sum pro rata with the county, the sum not to exceed that first mentioned.

An amendment proposed by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the committee named by Mr. Menzies meet and agree to the amount to be given, and that a by-law be prepared in accordance with the same.

The amendment was put and lost, and the original motion carried.

SONS OF ENGLAND.

Messrs. Brundrett and Wand were heard as representatives of the Sons of England, asking for a grant to assist them in giving a display of fire works on July 1st.

On motion of Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Green, the sum of $50 was granted.

The meeting then adjourned to meet at the call of the Mayor.

regain her feet, but this second time he drew her hand within his arm, and as she still slipped, he put his arm round her, and supported her firmly. "Do not mind my helping you in this way," said he. "I cannot let you fall every moment—and it rains so hard, we must walk quickly."

Just then the violence of the rain abated a little, but they were both miserably wet.

"It begins to be something more like an adventure," said Lucy, with a feeble attempt at gayety. She had not quite lost her spirits.

The entrance to their cavern was slippery, and below it was a slight precipice, but he got her in safely. It was a poor little miserable place which only afforded them room enough to sit; but the bit of overhanging turf protected them from the rain, and it was a great thing to have even that. He shook her dress for her, and then he took, his dry coat and spread it over her shoulders.

"That is why I kept it dry," said he.—"I thought we might want it."

"Yes, but I am not going to take your coat and leave you wet and shivering there."

He insisted, but she put part of it over him—and then they could but sit and watch the rain as it fell on the now blotted-out sea.

"We are lucky to have this little cave," said she, cheerily. "Mr. Richmond, what should I have done without you?"

Her lips were blue and her face was pale; she shivered as she spoke. He, too, was colder than he had ever been in his life; but he was more used to roughing it than she.

"Rub your hands," said he, when he saw how she was suffering.

She tried to thank him and obey; but her teeth chattered, and her hands seemed powerless to do much in the way of moving. He took her hands and chafed them, and restored some circulation. He drew her nearer to him. "Do not mind what I do," said he. "You must not get too cold."

The rain grew less heavy, but twilight was fast approaching. "I will make one more attempt to bring help," said he. "Is there any chance of a boat from the 'Dorothea' coming?"

"I am afraid not—the captain will think that I have met with friends in St. Malo. There are some people whom we know at one of the hotels there, and some at Dinan as well. I daresay they will send to seek me in both places when once they become alarmed, but that will not be until ten or eleven o'clock."

"I will go out and make the round of the island again. Promise me to sit still until I come back," said he, and wrapped her carefully in the dry coat.

"Yes; but don't be long, I shall be afraid until you return."

He enjoyed her absolute dependence on him, but he went very thoughtfully away. "How patient she is," said he to himself; "and yet she is wretchedly cold, and tired, and hungry." He went to the St. Malo side and made signals until darkness closed in. He went to the steps—nothing was there but water, and then he saw that all hope was over till morning dawned and the waters went back. As he stood in brief despair, a flash of vivid lightning, blue and angry, darted down and seemed to strike the ground quite near him. It was startling in its suddenness, and was followed almost instantaneously by a crashing peal of thunder. His first thought was Lucy, and the need there was for him to hasten back to her. There was pleasure in the idea of rejoining her. wretched, damp, and cold as the cave was, for the moment he felt it to be a home, with Lucy for its mistress. He ran with all haste over the slippery grass, but a second flash of lightning came before he reached his goal, and when he got there, Lucy was crying. He felt that he ought not to have left her so long.

"Don't cry," said he, tenderly, as he sat down by her; but she laid her forehead on his shoulder and did but sob the more.

He drew her towards him. "Don't cry," he again said; it is but a little more patience, and then you and I will walk away over that abominable causeway of theirs, and enter their stupid, unhelpful town, and state our grievances strongly."

She tried to say it was the thunder she was afraid of now—a fact he knew already—but her teeth chattered, and she trembled too much to be very intelligible.—Her hands were icy cold; he chafed them and wrapped her more closely in the coat which had done them such good service—but each flash of lightning made her tremble still more. It was not a cold night, but the damp was excessive.

After a long time the thunder passed away, and Lucy seemed to fall into an uneasy sleep. He sat there in the darkness, listening to her breathing, wishing for the light. The rain cleared away. One by one the stars cut their way through the dense veil which hid them from sight.—The thunder was over, and all that he heard was the ceaseless wail of the cruel sea. Lucy's head was resting on his shoulder and his arm was round her. She was sleeping quietly now, and she was warmer, for very gently had he laid his hand on her face to feel. Presently with a sigh and a faint shiver, she awoke. At first she did not know where she was. She put up her hand, felt his face, and started back and away from him.

"Do not move away," said he. "We are perhaps thus saving each other's lives."

She bethought herself of how cold he, too, must be; he had given her his coat, and must be aching with cold. She touched his shoulder; his clothes felt dank and chill.

"You have given me your coat," said she. "I am warm, and you will catch cold and die!" and while speaking, she began at once to take it off. His hand restrained her.

"I will not let you take it off. I have part of it. It will soon be morning, and then we can go. I am not cold. I am so happy to be here to take care of you."

Did the hand he held slightly press his? He thought it did.

"How miserable poor dear Aunt Esther and Lettice will be! How miserable I should be myself if it were not for you!" said Lucy.

"We will go the moment day dawns."

"But can you bear it till then?" she asked. "You are icy cold, I am sure.—Your clothes make me start when I touch them."

"I am very happy," was his answer. "I shall never be so happy again."

Lucy said no more; he, too, was silent, hours passed. During this time there was an interval of unconsciousness on Hugh Richmond's part, though he would have denied that he had been asleep. When he became once more aware of where he was, his first thought was that he missed the sound, faint though it was, of Lucy's breathing. Her hand had slipped away from his grasp. He sought it, but his own ached so he could scarcely move.—When he found it, it was cold and stiffly clenched. She had fainted. He chafed her hands. He called her by her name; her head was lying against the chill wall of the cave; he could not arouse her.—Her hat had fallen off, her hair was dank and wet wet with dew—as he bent forward to raise her, one long coil of it grazed his cheek. It was so cold that it seemed to cut him as with a knife. Still he could

A Badger Baiting.

An amusing incident in the unwritten history of Abraham Lincoln is told by the Hon. Ward H. Lamon of this city.

While the gentlemen were law-partners in Illinois, and before Lincoln was thought of for President of the United States, they happened to visit an agricultural fair in an inland town of Tennessee.

Lincoln was in high spirits and seemed bent on fun. While casting about for such amusement as the exposition afforded Lincoln discovered an attraction in the shape of a turneddown flour-barrel containing a badger.

"Fifty dollars for a dog that will haul the badger out of the barrel," shouted the red-faced man who owned the outfit. "Fifty dollars I say, to the dog that can haul out the badger."

There were a few takers of the badger man's offer, but the luckless dog-owners who invested 25 cents in the experiment invariably lost in the speculation, for the badger's teeth were sharp, and every dog that entered its stronghold came out in a jiffy, while the ferocious animal inside held the fort and grinned all over.

Mr. Lincoln hit upon a happy thought. Taking Ward to one side they found a lank countryman with a still lanker mastiff.

"Want to make $50 with that dog?" asked Lincoln.

"Course I do," replied the hayseed.

The dog was bartered for, and as Lincoln approached the badger man, elbowing his way through the crowd, he said:

"I'll invest a quarter in your game sir."

The badger operator looked at Lincoln's hungry dog and smiled as he took the silver quarter.

Lincoln caught the dog and led it up to the barrel. Hastily grabbing the mastiff, he threw it into the opening 'tother end first. There was a pause only of a second, and then followed a lively scrape inside the barrel.

"Hold on there" cried the manager. "Fair play——"

But he was too late with his remonstance. Out sprang the badly frightened dog with the badger sticking to his hindquarters. The crowd parted, and away went the dog and badger into the inner field of the race-track. The badger stuck like a brother, teams ran away, women fainted, and the crowd roared. Lincoln fairly went into spasms of mirth, the fun was so enjoyable.

The countryman owning the dog was paralyzed, as was the badger-owner, who set up a great howl and was mad enough to fight.

"Produce your $50," said Lincoln to the badger-keeper.

"Foul play, foul play," cried the chagrined gamester, "and I'll never pay it."

Here is where Lamon came in serviceable. Catching the badger's friend by the neck, he cried:

"Give up the $50 or I'll wallup you."

Lamon's herculean proportions were too argumentary to be trifled with, and the money was handed to Mr. Lincoln, who in turn gave it to the countryman.

The dog was well paid for, and the badger business closed up for want of a badger.—Denver Tribune.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Piano Recital.

We understand Prof, Parker will give a piano recital in his rooms on Monday evening next.

Balsam Grove Pic-Nic.

The tenth annual pic-nic of Balsam Grove and Rescue Temple Temperance Lodges, Otonabee, will be held at Idyl Wild on Wednesday, the 17th of June, 1885. The steamer Golden-Eye will leave the Peterborough Wharf at 7 o'clock a.m. Good quadrille band for dancing. Tickets 50 cents, ladies 25 cents. All are invited.

One of the Best.

The Canada School Journal remarks:—"The PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER has commenced publication as a daily. It has long been one of the best of our weekly exchanges, and we wish the enterprising proprietor every success in his new venture. The town and time seem ripe for the advance step."

Substantial Sidewalk.

A splendid sidewalk has been laid down on the section of George street between Dalhousie street and the C.P.R. depot. The old one between Sherbrooke and Dalhousie streets is being torn up to continue the new walk northward as far as the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets. When finished a first class walk will present itself.

The Team Chosen.

A meeting of the Peterborough Ameteur Athletic Association was held last evening, at which it was finally decided that the following would be the team that would represent the Peterborough Cricketers in their match with the Torontos to-morrow:—Hamilton, Miles, Hamilton, Max, Hammond Craven, Carter, Rogers, Norley, Rutherford, Sabine, Montgomery and Hatton.

Sale of Furniture.

Mr. Stapleton will sell the furniture of Wm. Ross, at the latter's residence, Water street, east of the market square, on Monday June 22nd. There is a large quantity of household furniture in good repair to be offered and the sale will be strictly unreserved; the goods must be sold as Mr. Ross is removing west. The goods include piano and sewing machines. A good chance for bargains.

A Fine Collection.

There is a fine collection of taxidermy in window of the C. P. R. Express Office, consisting of a deer, lynx, bear, beaver and two owls. The work is done in a most artistic manner, by Mr. B. Hudson, naturalist and taxidermist. Brock street. Not only is the mechanical part well attended to, but the natural and life-like position of the various figures is simply perfect. The specimens attract great attention.

Deaf Mutes.

The Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, Belleville, closed to-day, and this morning a number of pupils passed through Peterboro' on their way home to Lindsay, Blackwater, Beaverton and Midland, in charge of Prof. Denys. There is only one pupil now in attendance at the Institution from here, a little boy named W. J. Emery. They all seemed happy and contented in the prospect of again getting home for the holidays.

Very Creditable

The Cobourg World says:—We have received several copies of the Peterborough DAILY EXAMINER, the publication of which began last Saturday. It is a very creditable sheet,—as we would have expected from our knowledge of the weekly. It contains 24 long columns of matter; and the public appreciation is manifested in the fact that one half of them are occupied by the business men. The news department is well sustained, especial care being taken with local matter. The DAILY EXAMINER is well worth supporting; and we hope its publisher, Mr. Stratton, may realise more than satisfaction as the result of his venture.

RECOGNIZING MERIT.

A Pleasing Presentation.

A very pleasant affair took place on Monday evening at the office of the Singer Manufacturing Company, George street. Miss Sarah Anderson, the office lady, was surprised to see all the employes gather in the office, but her surprise was delightfully intensified when Mr. W. Bush, assistant manager, came forward and read the following ADDRESS.

Miss Sarah Anderson:

We, the undersigned managers and employes of the Peterborough office of the Singer Manufacturing Company, desire to take this occasion of testifying to the excellent and exemplary manner in which you have discharged the duties of office lady during your incumbency of the position. You have always been found faithful at your post and, while guarding with all the vigilance the interests of the Company, you have borne yourself with such courtesy towards its numerous patrons that you have worthily won the respect not only of both these but also the respect and esteem of those associated with you in the service of the Company. We have been daily witnesses of your fidelity and efficiency in the position you have so ably filled. As a recognition of your services and as a token of the high esteem in which we all hold you, we request your acceptance of this gold watch, trusting that it may mark for you the golden minutes of the hours of a long and happy life, rich with the enjoyment of all earthly blessings.

H. Lashby, Manager,		W. Bush, Asst. Man.,

I. Dormer,	"	John Mason,	"
C. Gunsolace,	"	E. Frost,	"
John Flemming,	"	J. Foley,	"
W. Turton,	"	J. F. Benson,	"
F. H. Taylor,	"	A. Flooder,	"
W. McLean,	"	C. Richard,	"

The watch is a beautiful time-keeper, and its presentation is a genuine tribute to her efficiency as recited in the address. The young lady, to whom the presentation was a a complete surprise, was too much overcome with emotion to make a reply in words. She is considered the best office lady in the employ of the Company in the eastern district.

Oil Paintings.

Mr. C. Stapleton recently received from the various studies of the Art Union of New York, a beautiful collection of oil paintings. They represent the scenery of the Hudson River, and many beautiful rustic scenes. They are to be seen in the store east of Hall, Innes & Co's. dry-goods store.

What Does He Mean?

Is the editor of the Port Hope Times retrograding? He remarks that "Gen. Middleton has captured Poundmaker, Lemman, Yellow Mud and Breaking Ice. The Lemman and the Breaking Ice will go well if taken in proper spirit." The most liberal construction on temperance principles cannot make any "spirit" "proper."

Certain to Come.

Mr. J. E. Hammond, secretary of the Cricket Club, received a telegram this morning from the Toronto eleven, stating that they would be sure to come to-morrow. A splendid match may therefore be expected on the grounds of the Athletic Association, in Ashburnham, to morrow. The match will begin promptly at 10:30 [o'clock a. m., instead of 11 a. m.

The Coming Bicycle Tour.

"Mr. S. G. Retallack, Canadian agent for the Big Four Bicycle organization, who are to make a tour through a portion of Canada, passing through Belleville on July 10th, is busy," says the Intelligencer, "making the necessary arrangements. One of the chief events on the programme is a one hundred mile race, from Cobourg to Kingston, for which the fastest riders on the continent have already entered. This will be one of the greatest races on record. The prize—a magnificent gold medal—is on view in the window of Mr. Retallack's store. It is confidently expected that the record will be lowered in this race, in which there will be twelve competitors." We could name one or two Peterborough wheelmen who would stand a good chance in the hundred mile race.

Becoming Generous.

At the meeting last night the members of the town council opened their hearts to the extent of $1,010. They made a conditional grant of $500 to the West Riding Agricultural Society; $400 to the Fire Brigade, for hose reel and uniforms; and $50 to the Sons of England, for fire works on July 1st; and $60 for assisted emigration—to send the Lavery family back to Ireland. We do not propose to criticise these appropriations, but simply to call attention to a sudden attack of generosity. While all this is being done, however, there is a gentleman on Charlotte street, who built a fine brick residence on that street eight years ago. In that time he has paid a large sum in taxes, and yet he has not had a cent of money expended in street improvements. He and his family have had to walk through mud, shoe deep, every spring and fall. Generosity in respect to other things is good, but justice in the matter of street improvements to patient ratepayers is better.

The Chiefs on the Path.

A meeting of the Driving Park Committee was held last night at the Oriental and was well attended. A number of the "boys" turned out and showed a considerable amount of enthusiasm in the project which is on foot at the present time for the celebration of Dominion Day. After considerable time had passed and a large amount of wisdom had been brought to bear on the matter, the following gentlemen consented to do their utmost towards making the grand turn-out a success:—Messrs. A. Moffat, J. Fanning, H. Phelan, W. A. Sanderson, A. Elliott, J. E. McIntyre and H. LeBrun. It was decided to offer prizes for the best Indian costume on horse-back. The first prize will be cash to the amount of $15 or a gold medal; the second $7 cash and the third $3. A half mile horse race, in heats, best two in three, will also take place, the horses to be bestridden by the amateur braves, for which three prizes of fifteen, seven and three dollars respectively for first, second and third places will be given. It is expected that such a programme will draw out a large number of representatives of the various pet warriors. Another meeting will be held to-morrow evening at the Lansdowne Rink at 8 o'clock to complete arrangements.

The Market.

The market this morning was not overflowing with farmers and consequently the produce went at a little higher figure than last Saturday. Butter sold at 15 to 16 cts.; eggs at 11 cts., and potatoes brought 35 to 40 cts. per bag.

Architecture.

We draw attention to the card of Mr. Hanley, Architect, which appears in another column. Mr. Hanley is not only an architect, but also a practical builder of large experience. As a sample of his work, we would refer our readers to the new residence now in course of erection for Mr. Roper here, which is in every respect a model of neatness. Orders left at the Grand Central Hotel, will receive prompt attention.

A Strict Father.

A father, whose son, about 16, is a devoted Salvationist, came to the door of the Salvation Army barracks, Aylmer street, and had an active altercation respecting his son taking part in the proceedings. The father complained to the officers that his son came home late, and when he got home he "had so much religion in him he couldn't sleep," "his appetite was bad," and "he was away from home every night." A compromise was effected, the father consenting to the son joining the Army three nights in the week on condition of his getting home at 10 o'clock.

Horticultural Society.

A meeting of the Directors of the Peterborough Horticultural Society was held in the offices of the Bank of Toronto yesterday afternoon. The arrangement of the prize list for the coming exhibition was discussed. An offer from Mr. A. C. Dunlop to give $100 if ten others would give $10 each, for assisting in beautifying the park, was laid before the meeting. It is thought that there will be no difficulty in securing the necessary number of tens. An application of the Sons of England for use of the Court House Park on July 1st was not entertained, owing to the unfinished condition of the grounds. The Park Committee were instructed to prepare rules for the guidance of the public frequenting the park. After discussion of general business the meeting adjourned after giving the President of the Society, Mr. Roper, power to engage a suitable man to attend to and watch over the park for the season.

Pigeon Creek Bridge Deputation.

Mr. Charles Fairbairn, reeve of Verulam, and Mr. T. H. McQuade, reeve of Emily, met the Road and Bridge Committee of the County Council this morning, asking for a grant to place the Pigeon Creek bridge in a good state of repair. The county of Victoria gave a grant of $150 upon condition that Peterborough placed it in good condition and assured all future repairs. During the discussion it was learned that Emily would not assist by a special grant, and Victoria county was not anxious to father the bridge, and did not seem very friendly towards it. The members of the council seemed to be in favor of moving the bridge to Gannoa's Narrows, where it was thought it would be of more convenience to the general traffic coming to Peterborough. It was afterwards carried in committee that the Warden be instructed to close the bridge until such time as some interested parties guarantee to assure one half the expenses of its maintenance.

Some British officials traveling on the Russo-Persian frontier with their servants crossed the frontier casually at Chai. They were arrested by Russian officers, who took them prisoners to Askabad.

BOROUGH BREVITIES.

—There was a slight touch of frost last night in some parts of the suburbs.

—The Fire Brigade feels better over the certain prospect of securing their new hose reel.

—Mr. Hall, confectioner, was out last night on the river trying his steam yacht. It worked well.

—It is reported around town that the funeral of the Silver Star Baseball Club will shortly take place.

—The external repairs on Kenealey's Hotel are nearing completion. When finished, the house will look as good as new.

—None of our four policemen came across any noodlums last night, and consequently the orchestra chairs at the police court this morning were empty.

—The Lacrosse team should practise hard between now and the 23rd if they wish to keep up their reputation as being "the staff" of the central district.

—Peterborough's floating population is pretty large to-day—a score of County Councillors and their entourage, the Saved Army people, in their picturesque costumes, and a baker's dozen of Toronto cricketers.

—Young men who are anxious to figure conspicuously on Dominion day in the shape of Gabriel Dumont or any other North-West "wolf" should attend the meeting to-night at the Lansdowne.

—The Lacrosse grounds at the Driving Park are expected to be second to none in Canada on the 23rd, when Beaverton will try and down the Peterboroughs for the Central District championship medal.

—A number of persons are of opinion that the town councillors showed considerable fickleness in treating the by-law for exemption of the Dickson estate new buildings from further taxation on Monday evening at the Council Chamber.

Willow and Wicket.

The cricket match between the Peterborough eleven and Toronto began at ten o'clock this morning. The home team went first to the bat, and piled up a score of 95 runs, to which Max. Hamilton contributed 30, Rogers 20, Craven 9, and Norley 7.

Toronto took the bat at 12.30 and the last wicket fell for 120 runs, Jones making 25, Collins 22, Brock 16 and others double figures. As we go to press Peterborough is at the bat.

On Its Base Again.

The corn car which came to grief on Monday, at the end of the track, east of Mulhern's mill, is once more on its axles, being brought to that position by five or six men with the assistance of a locomotive. Although the car was shattered considerably, still the damage will not prevent it from carrying many more loads of corn for the future.

Just as We Predicted.

Mac was out for a spin on his new bicycle last night. He "excurted" through the various streets of the town in fine form, and at good speed, from six o'clock until about eight, and being satisfied that he had "downed" Prof. Hurst as far as speed was concerned, repaired to the corner of Simcoe and Queen streets, where he indulged in a series of balancing feats. A little fellow brought the bicycle home for him.

A HUGE SWINDLE.

Startling Plot and Successful Denouement.

For some time a rumor has been circulating in this vicinity, that a gentleman living not a thousand miles from Peterborough, was the hero, or rather, victim of one of the coolest, cleverest and most rascally, plots that ever decked the graceful pages of a classic dime novel. As other parties have received similar letters, we give, though the events happened some time since, the following warning recital. The party referred to is not generally considered a soft subject to fool with, and why in this case he forgot his standing rule of conduct, "not to trifle with the business heel of a mule," and how that caution and horse-sense, which is so characteristic of his every day life, deserted him under the following trying circumstances, will ever remain a startling conundrum to those well acquainted with him.

PRELIMINARY NEGOTIATIONS.

Some time ago, a private and very confidential letter was received in town from some parties in New York, stating that they had a large sum of money in their possession, which they did not desire, for stated reasons, to pass on the other side of the line, and which they wished to dispose of "dirt cheap." They wrote, they said, on friendly information that he was a man of business and honor, and especially relied on his keeping everything secret and inviolate, and in conclusion, for a sum vastly inferior to its real value, they offered him the whole "pot," $3,500. They also commented on the fact that there would be no possible risk; and after some correspondence, they designated a place in New York at which the intending purchaser might interview the vendors and complete the transaction; and further, as a sample of the "stuff," and as a guarantee of its intrinsic excellence and of everything being O. K., they, with commendable forethought, sent him a $10 note, in order to have it tested, and which was found to be the proper thing.

The game seemed square, and the prospects of a speedy haul loomed up bright and fair. Our hero would like to behold the mortal white man who could get the "Deadwood" on him. Where the danger? Who better could take care of himself "anywhere and everywhere?" This history will answer these questions succinctly.

THE GAME STARTED.

One wide-awake Canuck started to New York with his "pile"—$850 in hard cash, and registered at a hotel according to appointment, at which place he was to meet the agent of the other negotiators, and having given the sign required met his man. After being conducted through by-streets for a short time in order to bewilder our clear headed citizen and to prevent the chances of his again recognizing the place of rendezvous, they conducted him upstairs into a room in a quarter of the town, the exact position of which he is now unable to identify. There on a table the money was piled in crisp notes in a heap beautiful to the vision, and the object of the trip was ready to be consummated, and in his mind our hero stood a wealthy aristocrat.

But the best laid plans of men and mice "gang aft aglee." The parties to the contract could not come amicably to terms and in the heat of the hour our enraged subject of Her most gracious Majesty jumped up to leave the room and wash his hands of the whole affair, but fitful Nemesis ruled otherwise. As the former turned he was met by the cold yet impulsive steel of two revolvers, presented at his head by two "gents" behind him and by the metallic words, D——n you if you don't sit down we will blow you to —— "well—a place where Greeks and Romans dwell,"—(to put it enphoniously.)

THE GAME COUNTERED.

This wise though harsh flank movement of the hostile foe put to rout the wits of our national representative and knocked him "cold." He well knew that grand old rule of equity, that equality is equity and that two of a kind can "bust" a single every time, especially when the former has all the weapons. He had fallen, alas! into hard times. But here the irreproachable honesty so characteristic of our Yankee cousins, predominated. They protested that they meant no harm; that they only wanted him to be reasonable; that they had gone to a lot of trouble; that they only desired a square deal and everything above board; that there was to be no double shuffling on either side and as a matter of generosity and justice they packed up in a box the whole sum of money agreed upon and handed it over. This seemed to be the acme of squareness and unselfishness and all seemed well along the Potomac and recognising the inevitable, with a hungry look at the precious $850 our worthy Canuck passed over his money. But further as a matter of precaution on their part, and to guard against any possible trouble in the matter from detectives or otherwise, they advised him to "express" the box to Buffalo and from that place to remove it to Canada. This would eradicate, they thought, all possible scent of the detectives and any future trouble whatever; this was considered advisable after consideration of the matter. In order to carry out the project one of party took the box to carry it to the express office along with our now highly-elated Peterborough speculator. Unfortunately, in going downstairs leading from the room to the street the lamp went out, and before it was re-lit it is believed that a "pal" of the person who was carrying the box with the funds, exchanged it for a duplicate box filled with light sawdust or ashes. At any rate a box was carefully expressed to Buffalo in the name of the confiding Peterborough visitor, who paid the charges and was careful to get the receipt thereof, and it was not until he had got to Buffalo, released the box and in the privacy of his own room at the hotel had opened the box that the height and depth and breadth of the infamous swindle was unfolded to his dumbfounded senses.

DEAD SEA FRUIT.

Instead of the real crisp Canadian notes smiling out of the box in the consciousness of thir innate beauty, purity and excellence, there lay a small heap of dirty sawdust. The story, unfortunately, is but too true, although it has a sort of tinge of romance about it, and we give it in the interests of the public lest others equally guileless should be caught by the innocent looking bait on "the other side (or rather end) of the line."

THE NOR'-WEST RISING.

Only a Dropping Fire of News.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 19.—A despatch from the camp of Gen. Strange, dated June 13th, and Straubenzie yesterday, announces the arrival in camp of 23 Chippewayan Indians, deserters from Big Bear, along with the priests who induced them to surrender. Each Indian surrendered two Winchester rifles. It was learned from one of the redskins that they were with the Cross under Big Bear in the fight at Frenchman's Butte. They expressed hatred of Big Bear, and say they only joined in consequence of him having hostages. Col. Williams with the Midlanders Strange's camp and General Middleton is on his way Frog Lake.

Riel's Doings.

Riel is still closely guarded. He rises at six, and of late has apparently taken a cheerful view of the situation. He never leaves his cell, except when taking exercise in the open air morning and afternoon. His new religion is uppermost in his thoughts, and when not engaged at correspondence he gives himself up to earnest devotion.

The civic authorities have decided to present an address to Gen. Middleton on his return from the front.

Among the wounded who have arrived here are:—Capt. Lazier, Midland; Sergt. Aikens, Midland; Privates Quigley, Gray, Foley and Marshall, 10th Royals; Privates Powell and McLean, Midland.

An Absurd Scare.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N.W.T., June 16.—Excitement was caused at 11 o'clock last night when Clark and wife, settlers here, rushed into the camp, reporting that over a hundred men were marching on us. The Fusiliers turned out quickly and scouting parties were sent out. After about an hour they returned and reported that a small herd of ponies coming over the hill had caused the scare.

BRITISH CABINET CRISIS.

Lord Salisbury's Cabinet Making.

LONDON, June 16.—One report in circulation this afternoon regarding the conference held to-day between Lord Churchill and the Marquis of Salisbury is that the two leaders became reconciled, each granting concessions in relation to the administration of affairs, and that a cabinet is now being formed on the basis of the agreement between them.

Bright Prospects for Erin.

DUBLIN, June 16.—T. D. Sullivan, M. P. for Westmeath, presided at a league meeting here last evening. He said that coercion now was impossible. The Irish members of Parliament, he said, will treat the Conservative cabinet about to be formed in a manner not dissimilar to that which characterized their treatment of the Gladstone ministry, if the Conservatives should treat Ireland in the same way as the Liberal government had done. The prospects for Ireland, Mr. Sullivan said, were never brighter.

Sir Stafford to be Shelved.

LONDON, June 16.—It is semi-officially announced that Sir Stafford Northcote will be created a peer and be given a minor place in the cabinet; that Lord Salisbury will be Premier and Secretary of State for foreign affairs, and that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach will be Chancellor of the Exchequer and leader in the House of Commons.

THE PLAGUE IN SPAIN.

Flight of the People Before the Terrible Ravages of Cholera.

MADRID, June 16.—There were five new cases of cholera here yesterday and one death. In the city of Valencia there were two fresh cases. In the province of Valencia there were forty-eight new cases and twenty-seven deaths. The city of Murcia reports forty new cases and seven deaths, while the other parts of the province report twelve fresh cases and four deaths. In the provinces of Castellon de la Plana yesterday there were eighty cases of cholera and sixty deaths. Thirty thousand people have fled from Murcia. The city of Murcia alone yesterday there were, according to the latest returns, sixty-four fresh cases of Cholera and thirty-nine deaths. In the province of Murcia outside of the city there were fifty cases and sixteen deaths.

PARLIAMENTARY SUMMARY.

TUESDAY JUNE 16th.

In the House of Commons Hon. Mr. Bowell, acting Minister of Finance, introduced a bill to authorize a loan of $1,700,000 to meet expenses incurred in the Northwest rebellion. Sir John Macdonald stated that the fishery clauses of the Washington treaty were still under the consideration of the government, and he hoped they would come to arrangements with the government of the United States on a much wider trade basis than heretofore, Hon. Mr. Pope, acting Minister of Railways, amid dead silence on the ministerial benches, moved the resolutions in relation to the additional relief to the Canadian Pacific railway by a change in the terms of the loan of last year. Hon. Mr. Chapleau followed in support of the resolutions, having spoken from 3 o'clock till 6 and afterwards from 8 to 10 o'clock. Mr. Blake followed in an incisive speech.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Wm. Cook, a member of G Company, Midland Battalion, has arrived home on leave, owing to the death of his father, the late John Cook.

Mr. W. Ford, Travelling Auditor for the Dominion Express Company, arrived in town last night and is registered at the Grand Central.

Rev. Father Lynch, who for many years was Parish Priest of Peterborough, arrived in town last evening, accompanied by Rev. Father Casey of Campbellford.

Mr. S. H. Rogers, of Peterborough, and D'Arcy E. Strickland, of Lakefield, are writing at the four days examinations at the Adjutant-General's office, Kingston, for entrance to the Royal Military College.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

June Session.

FIRST DAY—TUESDAY—(CONTINUED.)

THE NICHOLLS HOSPITAL.

The following letter was read be the Warden at the session of the County Council yesterday :—

HOUSE OF COMMONS, OTTAWA,
June 15th, 1885.

MY DEAR STRICKLAND,—I am in receipt of a letter from the Mayor calling a meeting of the Joint Committee in regard to "the Nicholls Hospital," for Thursday, the 18th. I regret that I will not be able to attend, but I hope to be at the Council on Friday. I regret my absence the more as it is probable the whole question will have to be reconsidered. This I consider probable from the fact that when the report of the Joint Committee came before the Town Council on Monday last, Mr. Cahill, speaking for the Roman Catholic portion of the ratepayers, objected to the adoption of Mrs. Nicholls' proposition. As you are all aware, the proposal, when it was first brought before the Council was objectionable to most all of its members, but as modified by Mrs. Nicholls, was accepted by the Council without dissent or objection. Even as the proposal was modified I did not feel satisfied with it, but as the persons that might have been expected to object raised no objection, I did not think fit to raise any. If that unanimity in our Council ceases, as I presume from Mr. Cahill's remarks it will, I shall certainly, when the matter comes up again object to our going any further with the project. A hospital, no doubt, is needed, but it should be established on such a basis as to receive the cordial support of the ratepayers without reference to creed or nationality. If a hospital is established according to Mrs Nicholls' plan, (with an exclusively Protestant Board) to be supported by a general rate, notwithstanding the objection of the Roman Catholic ratepayers, we might be called upon to support a hospital, controlled by a Board exclusively Roman Catholics, also by a general rate ; we want one hospital and not two. The proposal to make the institution exclusively Protestant and supported by a rate on Protestants only, would be equally objectionable, as then I have no doubt a Roman Catholic one would be established, supported by separate taxation. The desire to establish a hospital arises from a wish to assist suffering humanity and if aided by public taxation, it should be established on such a basis as will be satisfactorily to all creeds and of the question of representation on the Board as raised by Mr. Cahill, speaking for his co-religionists is not satisfactorily met, I shall oppose any further action of the County in the matter.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN BURNHAM.

R. C. STRICKLAND,
Warden County Peterborough.

After the Committee on the Warden's address had met the Council resumed to meet a deputation composed of Messrs. Carnegie, Dr. Kincaid, McClelland and H. Davidson from the West Riding Agricultural Society,

SOLICITING A GRANT.

These gentlemen then addressed the Council urging upon them the importance of making a liberal grant to the Society for exhibition purposes.

Mr. Thos. E. Bell, of Smith, called the attention of the Council to the laxity of the lease made by the Society with the owner of the property and hoped that the Council would look into this matter fully before granting any sum of the people's money.

Mr. Kidd objected to taxing the people of the East Riding for the purpose of building permanent buildings in the West. The Municipality of Dummer gave $200, Douro gave a grant, and the Douro and Dummer Agricultural Society gave $235, to assist in erecting buildings, etc., in the East. In view of this fact, and that the East Riding Society was in a flourishing condition, and using their own means, he could not consent to his township being further taxed for buildings in the West Riding. Mr. Kidd handled his subject carefully, and spoke purely from an East Riding standpoint. Equal rights for the East was in his mind.

The matter was referred to the Finance Committee, on motion of Mr. Moloney, seconded by Mr. Hicks.

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY.

The principal part of the morning was taken up in committees, a brief session being had to pass the following report of

COMMITTTEE ON WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

The Special Committee on the Warden's address reported as follows :

1. Your committee concur with the Warden in his congratulations on the bright prospects of a peaceful and prosperous year. When your committee recall that the year 1885 was heralded in by civil rebellion among the Indians and Half-breeds of the North-West Territories, at a time, too, when this country was watching with grave anxiety the strained relations between the Motherland and Russia, and when your committee now behold the very backbone of our own rebellion broken and the peaceful solution of the Imperial difficulty, your committee consider that this Council and country have good grounds for congratulation.

Your Committee wish to pay high tribute to the noble response made by our citizen soldiers at the first call of danger and to the courage and endurance they have since displayed in their arduous and trying duties, and especially do they desire to recognize the bravery and military skill of Colonel C. A. Boulton, a former member of this Council, who, as commander of Boulton's scouts, had a lion's share in the hard fighting.

Your Committee also wish to put on record their appreciation of the Midland Battalion, who, in the last grand charge at Batoche, exhibited a valor which did credit to the ancestry from whom they are sprung.

Your committee cannot but regret the loss of life of many volunteers, who died in defence of public peace and order, and especially do they deplore the loss of Captain Edward T. Brown, who died so bravely a soldier's death ; and your committee recommend that a memorial of condolence of this council be forwarded to his family, sympathizing with them in their great affliction.

2. Your committee are pleased to be able to report the successful issue of the Grand Junction Railway suit.

3. Your Committee approve of the suggestion of the Warden in reference to the Pigeon Creek bridge, and beg to recommend that all reference to bridges in the Warden's address be referred to the Road and Bridge Committee.

4. Your Committee are pleased to note the improvements made by the Horticultural Society on the Court House Park, which augurs well for its future beauty.

5. Your Committee justly appreciate the assurances from the Minister of Railways and Canals and Sir John A. Macdonald that the work on the Trent Valley Canal will be pushed forward with all practicable despatch, and would urge the Council to use all possible endeavours to have this undertaking completeed at the earliest moment.

6. Your committee regret that the report of the Inspector of Schools for the county of Peterborough has been lost, and recommend that the chairman of the respective committees should take care that all important papers are preserved.

7. Your committee recommend that the Council of the town of Peterborough be required to defray their proportion of the charges of repairing and heating the offices of the Registrar and County Court Clerk in the town of Peterborough, according to statute.

8. Your committee recommend that the matter of the equalization and assessment of the municipalities composing the county of Peterborough be thoroughly discussed by this Council.

9. Your committee urge that a memorial be drawn to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, praying that a grant be given for the opening up of the road between Burleigh and Harvey, as memorialized at last session.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN MOLONEY,
Chairman.

June 17th, 1885.

PORT HOPE.

BURGLARIOUS ATTEMPT.

On Tuesday morning, says the Guide, an attempt was made to blow open a safe in the office of Mr. Alonzo Spooner, lumber shipper, dealer in babbit metal, coal oil, &c., on the corner of John and Dorset streets. Entrance was effected by simply forcing the door by a pressure from without ; no tools were used for the purpose. The window had been tried, but failing to come open as easy as expected, was abandoned for the door. On the floor inside stood a lamp close to the safe with the glass removed and placed out of reach, while upon a paper also upon the floor was a quantity of black coarse powder and a small horn. Close to the key hole in the safe a hole about an eighth of an inch in diameter had been bored, powder inserted and exploded, but without success, as the lock was found to be uninjured, and would freely turn when the key was inserted. Nothing about the office had been disturbed except the lamp. Mr. James Yeo, nightwatchman of the Midland shops, noticed several flashes of light in Mr. Spooner's office about two o'clock this morning, and started up from the railway to investigate. When he reached John street he was told to "halt," by a man standing on the road, and not having any firearms was compelled to do so. Two men inside the building then came ont, and the three ran down the middle of the road, carrying their tools with them. Mr. Fred. Hobbs, who was on extra duty last night, was standing on the corner near Plain's hotel when the three came down. He attempted to stop them and gave chase. The burglars threw some of their tools at him and fired two shots from a revolver. Mr. Hobbs chased them some distance towards the Grand Trunk railway station, but not being armed, turned and went up the street. Procuring a revolver, he returned and went to the G. T. railway. The night operator, Mr. T. Bell, informed him that he had just seen three hard-looking characters go up the track. Hobbs went in the direction indicated and found two men in separate box cars, arrested and brought them to the lock-up. They were brought before R. H. Holland, P.M., this morning and remanded.

APSLEY.

SAD DROWNING CASE.

Once more we have been called upon to chronicle the sad news of a drowning occurence which took place in the above-mentioned place on Monday evening about 5 p.m. The victims were two boys, aged respectively about eight and eleven years ; children of Mr. Joseph Hawley. It appears that after school was dismissed the little fellows went to enjoy a bath in the stream which runs to the south of the village. The younger of the two getting into deep water cried for assistance to his brother, which cry was responded to bravely, though without success and the result was the drowning of both. Only a few others were at hand, and therefore the circumstances can be better imagined than described. The school teacher happened to be crossing a bridge on the stream some distance below and noticed the body of one of the boys floating down underneath where he walked, and on investigation discovered the circumstances of the case, which has cast a gloom over this peaceful village where the family of the children reside. Both bodies were recovered, one soon after the drowning and the other considerably later. This is the third death that has occured in the family within three weeks.

How He Got the Milk.

Grattan's uncle, Dean Marley, had a good deal of the humor of Swift. Once, when the footman was out of the way, he ordered the coachman to fetch some water from the well. To this the coachman objected that his business was to drive, not to run on errands. "Well, then," said Marley, "bring out the coach and four, put the pitcher inside, and drive to the well"—a service which was several times repeated, to the great amusement of the village. To this may be added a story of Harrison Gray Otis, who found one morning at the breakfast table that the milkman had not brought any milk. He asked each of several servants to go to the grocery for some. All declined on the ground that it was not their business. He then ordered his carriage and asked the housekeeper to go in it to the market and soon had some milk.—Every Other Saturday.

Forfeits.

They sent him round the circle fair,
To bow before the prettiest there.
I'm bound to say the choice he made
A creditable taste displayed,
Although—I can't say what it meant—
The little maid looked ill-content.

His task was then anew begun—
To kneel before the wittiest one.
Once more that little maid sought he,
And went him down upon his knee.
She bent her eyes upon the floor—
I think she saw the game a bore.

He circled then—his sweet behest
To kiss the one he loved the best.
For all she frowned, for all she chid,
He kissed that little maid, he did.
And then—though why I can't decide—
The little maid looked satisfied.

A Home Market.

Several gentlemen from different States were discussing the merits of their particular homes.

"Kansas is a great State. We raise sixty bushels of corn," said a man from Kansas; "and 200 bushels of potatoes to the acre."

"But have you Kansas people any market for your produce?" asked a man from Connecticut.

"Certainly they have," responded an envious Texan, "they raise enough grasshoppers and potato bugs to eat up ten times the corn and potatoes we can raise."—Texas Siftings.

Household Hints.

Gingerbread may be varied and wonderfully improved by the addition of a cupful of grated cocoanut.

Headaches almost always yield to the simultaneous application of hot water to the feet and the back of the neck.

Sick rooms where there is diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever, etc., should be impregnated with the odor of equal parts of turpentine and carbolic acid.

Cold boiled turnips make a nice garnish for roast beef or lamb. Cut them in thin slices, and browned in butter, pouring hot gravy over them. Place them on the platter around the meat.

The best way to free a wardrobe infested with moths is to burn sulphur in it. Camphor will prevent their coming. The cheapest and surest method is to keep furs in a drawer, and as you fold them pepper them well with common white pepper.

A good way to arrange fruit in a dish for an ornamental piece is to set a glass tumbler in the centre of the dish around and over it put a thick layer of moss; then not nearly so much fruit will be required, and it can be arranged very handsomely.

Cases Alter Circumstances.

A report having been circulated that coal oil had been discovered on a certain farm in Maryland, a resident of Baltimore, who happened to be in the vicinity when he first heard of it, proceeded to the farm to find the owner away and nobody around but the hired man.

"My man," said the Baltimorean, "is it true that oil has been found on this farm?"

"Well, there's oil on the pond back there."

"Where does it seem to come from?"

"Well that depends," was the hesitating answer. "My boss owes me $48 for work. If he pays me to-day as he agreed to the oil comes from under a clay bank. If he puts me off any longer it comes from a barrel buried in the mud. That's the way I'm fixed, stranger, and if you've got speculation in your eye you'd better come around and see me later."—Wall Street News.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

not arouse her. A slight tint of grey in the sky enabled him to see a white poor something, which was Lucy's poor, pale face. He felt for her pulse; it had stopped. What if it had stopped for ever!

He struggled to rise to his feet, but oh! the pain that it cost him to do so! He stretched his aching limbs, and then he took Lucy in his arms. If it was possible to wade across that causeway he was resolved to do it, and to bear her to the town and seek help before it was too late. Not without an effort on his part to save her should an end come to her dear life.—But how cold and stiff he himself was, and what agonies of pain clustered about each joint of his body! Wearily he struggled on his way with a grief in his heart such as he had never felt before.—This sweet, patient, sympathetic Lucy was now very dear to him. She never stirred. Her head lay on his breast like a dead woman's; her hands hung down, and were cold, and stiff, and numb. He tottered as he went, for he was chilled to the bone with the long night in his wet clothes; but if he died for it he would get her to a place of safety. Suddenly, when he was very near the steps, he heard a loud cry, which seemed to rise from the sea. He tried to answer it, but his voice was frozen. Again he heard a cry, a cheerful English cry, such as sailors use. How terrible if a boat were near and he could make no answer to its offer of help, and so lost it. No sound would issue forth from his lips, and his knees trembled beneath him as if they must give way. "I dare not venture down those steps," thought he, "until I have recovered some strength. It would be most terrible if I fell with her." Ill as he was, he still tried to make his way to the top of the steps. There he would wait, and rest, and pray.

Oh, joy! A light was there, and he saw dark figures of men rushing up the steps towards him! They had seen him on the heights above them, struggling to bear his burden. Philip Mostyn was there and six stout sailors, and deep was the gratitude Hugh Richmond felt as he yielded up Lucy to them. One long mesh of her wet hair had wrapped itself round his neck; he did not know how, he was much too weak to know anything; he felt them unwind it. They carried Lucy into the boat. They almost carried Hugh Richmond also. They covered them both with rugs.

"Send a man off at once to St. Malo for a doctor," gasped Richmond. "She has been unconscious so long that there is no time to lose." He himself helped to pour some brandy between her lips, then he sank back and knew no more.

CHAPTER X.

Lucy had been ill for a fortnight; and more than once the doctor had looked so grave, and had shaken his head so ominously, that all feared she would not recover. She herself did not expect to do so, and had asked to be buried on the Grand Bey. Few were the words she spoke during this illness, but once a day when Philip returned from seeing him she asked how Hugh Richmond was. He, too, was suffering from what he had undergone on that terrible night, and very anxious she would have been on his account had she not always received a reassuring reply. "Thank God!" said she, more than once, "thank God that you can tell me that he is nearly well! If he had been really ill after that night I never could have been happy again, for it was my fault that he was there; he came back to help me when he was safely off the island. In every way I have been fatal to him."

"Nonsense, Lucy; he is all right," said Lettice; but as she spoke she did not look so cheerful as she might have done, only Lucy's head was turned away and she did not see her.

At last Lucy was well enough to be carried on deck, and from that day she rallied. Nevertheless, she was intensely weak, and could neither read, nor speak, nor do anything but breathe in the balmy air.

She was lying on deck as usual—it was the fourth afternoon since she had first left her cabin—when Philip came on board—he had been on shore to inquire how Hugh Richmond was. Philip did not approach Lucy; in her present state of weakness she was not allowed to speak to more than one person at once, and Aunt Esther was sitting by her. Lettice drew him away to the other end of the vessel, and there they talked earnestly.

"Go to him, dear Aunt Esther," said Lucy, "and ask how Mr. Richmond is today."

Aunt Esther rose and went, but just then Lettice came past and answered the question she read in Lucy's anxious eyes saying, "Don't be uneasy, Lucy, Philip says he is going on very well."

"I wonder he does not come to see me if he is so well," said the weary, weak girl, and sank back on her cushions.

Aunt Esther looked eagerly in Lettice's face. Lettice went below, but made Aunt Esther a sign to follow her. Lucy did not mind being left alone. She liked looking into the sky, or watching the sailors, and occasionally saying a few words to the captain, who came day after day and gazed pityingly down on her. She had a great regard for the captain, and it had grown greater during her illness, for he was a perfect gentleman in his quiet thoughtfulness. Aunt Esther went below—but she made the mistake frequently made on board a yacht—she forgot how difficult it is to say anything in any part of it without being overheard. Lettice did the same thing. She had summoned her aunt to follow her in order that they might have a secret conversation, and she chose for the scene of it a cabin with a skylight close beside the cushion on which Lucy's head was resting. Lucy could not have avoided hearing every word they said, except by moving away, a resource not easy to one who was scarcely able to stand. But the first words she heard aroused her attention so painfully that she had no thought of moving.

"How is he really, Lettice asked Aunt Esther.

Lettice burst into tears, and said, "They say he cannot outlive the night! Philip saw the doctor."

"Poor young man. How dreadful!" said Aunt Esther when she could speak. What a shock it will be to Lucy when she hears of it!"

"That is the very thing we shall have to be so careful about! She must not hear it until she is much stronger!"

"It is almost wrong to keep it from her!"

"It would kill her if she knew. She suffered quite enough when she had really done nothing to injure him. This would hurt her terribly—for mind, he has lost his life for her."

"But is there no hope?"

"Oh, no, there is none! Is it not strange, Aunt Esther, he has made the same request poor dear Lucy did when she was at the worst?—he has asked to be buried on the Grand Bey."

"Do you think it is because he loves her a little?"

"I don't know—it looks very like it.—Philip has had a most distressing scene with him. He says it was terrible! Mr. Richmond seized his arm and held him, and tried to make him take him back to the yacht when he came. He says he

[To be Continued.]

A man had packed in from Placerville that day, and Pat found him near where the Bank of California now stands. It was all plaza then—all open country and sagebush along the present line of C street. The packer had just one fifty-pound sack of flour left. The price was $26. Pat handed the Placervillian the gold, got back $4 in silver, and, shouldering his flour climbed the hill to the cabin. Mackey took the $4, and giving it to the cook, sent him in search of bacon, tea, and sugar. When the flapjacks began to brown, and the savor of the bacon pervaded the cabin, the spirits of both the regular inmates and transient boarders went up to the fair weather notch, and it seemed that there was nothing more in the world to be desired.—Virginia City Enterprise.

An East India Version of the Flood.

In East India there is a legend that ages ago mankind became so very bad that God determined to destroy all except just enough to begin with anew. The exceptions were mostly preserved along with pairs of all sorts of animals, in a golden palace on a mountain top. A boy and a girl, born of parents who were "neither good nor bad," had been previously carried off by an angel from the respective homes on the day of their birth and were brought up in a crystal palace suspended in mid-air, where they were tended by a mute female figure of gold. When they grew up they were married, and a girl was born to them. The destruction of the wicked having been effected by fire, the earth was thereby greatly smirched. So giants were sent to wash it clean. They used so much water that a deluge was produced, and the waters rose so high that the golden palace and its inmates were in danger of being submerged.

Not long since an economical real-estate owner wrote his own placard and displayed the legend "To Wrent" on one of his buildings. Of course everybody laughed at it. Irritated by the circumstance, he inquired of a friend the cause, and was told that he had misspelled the word "rent." He said he could easily change that, and speedily the sign "Two Let" was dangling before the vision of an amused public. That was a case of the "wrent" being made worse.

One afternoon as the Hon. C. W. Raines, a lawyer well known in Western New York, was traveling over the Central, he was approached by the conductor, who was one of his innumerable friends, and who announced that he wanted his advice on a rather delicate matter. "Well, what is it?" said the lawyer. "Well, Mr. Raines, the fact is, there's a big two-fisted fellow forward in the smoker that won't pay his fare." "Well?" "Well, what I want to ask you is this: Had I better let him ride free or take a licking?"—Drake's Magazine.

Among other occasions not already enumerated when a drink is necessary to one's health and happiness may be mentioned the following: When you have heard good news; when you have received bad news; when you are in danger of taking cold from becoming overheated; when you feel feverish, or fear that you may feel feverish, after or before being exposed to the cold; when you have purchased any article of clothing; when you are to attend a wedding, a funeral, a christening or a horse-trot.—Boston Transcript.

Still Merrily Rolling.

The Parlor Roller Rink is still the fashionable resort for those who want to enjoy themselves on wheels. As we have often stated before, the place is kept in excellent condition and the skates are no exception to that rule.

The Toronto Team.

The members of the Toronto Cricket team arrived in town this morning and are registered at the Oriental Hotel. The following gentlemen are playing in the match to-day: Messrs. J. O. Heward, J. Collins, D. W. Saunders, A. G. Brown, E. D. Boswell, A. Winslow, R. C. Martin, W. W. Jones, C. N. Shanley, U. T. Brock and H.C. Scadding.

The Grange Trust.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Grange Trust in the County of Peterborough was called for yesterday afternoon, in the Council Chamber. It was thinly attended and the management did not receive that condemnation that was expected. A statement of the receipts and expenditures has been placed on our table. We will give a brief synopsis in a few days.

Picnic on the Golden-Eye.

The steamer Golden-Eye left her wharf his morning at the usual hour to convey excursionists to the picnic which is being held to-day at Idyl Wild in connection with the Balsam Grove and Rescue Temple Temperance Lodges, Otonabee. A number of persons went from Peterborough to enjoy the sail and sights down the river, as well as a square meal, which is assured them on reaching their destination.

A Midnight Search.

Several men were out all last night searching for the body of Mrs. Scollie, who is supposed to have been drowned in the Otonabee river on Monday night. A few of the men used grappling irons, attached to the end of ropes, and meandered in various directions down as far as the point; whilst others engaged in search, assisted by the glimmer of large torch lights, which up to this time has proved fruitless.

Neat and well Edited.

The Southern Manitoba Times, published at Emerson by Mr. G. Walton, a former resident of Peterborough says:—We are pleased to acknowledge upon our list of exchanges, the Peterborough DAILY EXAMINER, a neat and well edited daily, commencing life at our old home. We congratulate the proprietor upon his commendable enterprise and hope we shall live to see the DAILY EXAMINER as large and important a daily as we know the energy, grit and push of our old friend will make it.

Saved Army Gathering.

Every train coming into Peterborough this morning, brought its consignment of Saved Army soldiers, and the street parade to-day presented a very gaudy appearance, dotted in so many places by young men in miniature policemen like style. The Central Park was the chief centre this afternoon, where the various representations of different Armies gathered and indulged in a series of hymns, knee drills, etc., mingled with picnic feasting.

Chemong Lake Regatta.

Remember the grand regatta on Lake Chemong takes place at Bridgenorth on Thursday, June 25th. The programme will consist of baseball in the Park, to the music of a good brass band. A quadrille band will be on the grounds for dancing. A splendid view of the boat races, which are a big part of the programme, can be had from the Park or from Fobert's Hotel. This will be a gala day for Bridgenorth, and fine sport and enjoyment will be afforded on Thursday, June 25th.

Is it Cholera?

The Kingston Whig says that a prominent physician of that city states that he has within the past two weeks attended two patients, who had all the symptoms of Asiatic cholera. They had bad attacks, but are now both well.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day, is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Light to moderate winds, mostly westerly; fine weather and slightly higher temperature.

Forestry.

The committee of the Peterborough Court, No. 29, C. O. F., who had charge of the reception of the visiting Foresters here at the late convention, meet to-night in their hall, to transact business in connection with the said reception. The regular meeting of the Court will take place on Friday evening next.

Drain Tile.

Mr. Curtis, of Messrs. Curtis & Son, brick and tile factors, has left at our office a first-class drain tile. It is well-moulded and burned and, under a sharp blow from a hard substance, rings like a bell. The inner surface is perfectly smooth, presenting no unevenness of face to impede the ready flow of water. The sample is from a kiln of some 15,000 just burned by the firm. It may be seen at our office and prices and other particulars learned by those desiring to purchase as good drain tile as are made in Canada.

A Race Between "Willy and Billy."

A race on roller skates has been arranged between Willy Lech and Billy Logan, and will take place on Friday evening, June 26th, at the Lansdowne rink. The distance will be one mile, and the one coming in second best won't get the handsome gold medal which is to be put up for competition by the manager of the rink. If "Billy" gets the lead on the start of the race, a good many are of opinion that it will be a sort of "funeral procession," with "Willy" taking the part of chief mourner and vice-versa.

A High-Minded Horse.

Mr. J. E. McIntyre's horses enjoyed some of the green grass on the outskirts of the Driving Park on Sunday last; and when the groom went down on Monday morning one of them was enjoying the highest seat on the grand stand. Without enquiring into the personal motives of the ambitious equine in selecting so high a seat, we might venture the opinion that it did so to enjoy a trial burst of speed made by his accommodating mate. Planks and ropes had to be brought into requisition in removing the animal from his strange and lofty position.

A Pointer for Port Hope.

Mr. Ed. Brown, the manager of the Lansdowne Roller Rink here, was in Port Hope yesterday and visited the "Roller" of that town. Ed. says the rink in that 'burg is a very nice one, but was surprised to find the "boss" of the institution on his knees on the floor of the rink—not praying, but using a sandpaper to remove the stains of oil. He informed the proprietor to some extent, and likely to-day a horse is hitched to a grindstone and saving sandpaper and the knees of the manager's trousers. You don't "catch Ed. on his knees" very often.

Knights of Labour.

A large and decidedly business like meeting of the mechanics of Peterborough (at least a large portion of them) was held last night at Trennum's Hall, on Water street. The chair was taken by Mr. Croly, who briefly stated the object of the meeting, and Mr. James Bryson acted as secretary. Mr. George Ball, Mr. J. Bogin and others, expatiated to a considerable extent on the merits of such a union as the above in a town like Peterborough, and judging from the tone of the various promoters of the movement, it is very probable that ere long the society will be organized in full, and have a good membership in Peterborough. Mr. John Swinton's paper, issued in the interest of labour organizations in New York, found its way to the Hall, and was the object of careful scrutiny by a great number of those present.

Geological Survey of this County.

On yesterday afternoon Messrs. Coste and Vautilet, of the Dominion Geological Survey, were in town on their way to begin the geological survey and exploration of the northern portion of Peterborough and Victoria counties. They will begin operations in the eastern part of the county—in the township of Methuen—joining on the work of last season, which was completed as far as the western boundary of the county of Hastings, when the work was concluded last year. The belt under survey is 48 miles in width, and extends northwards of the chain of lakes, which are therefore the southern base line of the belt of exploration. The survey will be, it is expected, pushed this season through this and the adjoining county on the west, Victoria. Mr. E. Coste is the geologist and mineralogist, and Mr. Vautilet the topographer. Their report will, considering the probable presence of minerals of great economic value, be awaited with great interest.

Prof. Dorenwend in Peterborough.

Our readers will notice in another column of this paper the advertisement of Professor Dorenwend, of the Paris Hair Works, Toronto, in which he announces a visit to Peterborough with an extensive and select stock of fashionable hair goods, such as Langtry, Pompadour and Parisian Bangs, Water Waves, Switches, Wigs, Toupees, etc. His goods have obtained a most high and well known reputation as being of the best workmanship, durable, good quality and cheap, and we can highly recommend them to all who are in want of a first-class article in this line. Don't fail to visit the Professor; he will be at the Grand Central Hotel on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 17, 18, 19, 20.—d-15-2t.

BOOK NOTICE.

Godey's Lady's Book for July is the 661st appearance of this venerable Magazine. Like old wine it gives one the fruition of age. The number for July needs no especial recommendation as it exceeds in beauty and merit any previous appearance of this old-timed Magazine. Its illustrations are rich and beautiful, while its reading matter, dressmaking, household and recipe departments are replete with entertainment and information. A house without Godey's does not know its loss as each month it contains practical hints of far more value than the price of the Magazine. Those desiring to try it may subscribe for the balance of the year for one dollar, which allows every subscriber a selection of a full-size cut-paper pattern each month. As these patterns are noted for their accuracy, more than the price of the Magazine is received in the value of the patterns. Address, J. H. Haulenbeek, P.O. Box H H, Philadelphia.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

SMITH'S MARKET.

An unsightly and unnatural growth of superfluous hair on the face or arms of a lady, is a most disagreeable disfigurement. Many attempts have been made to discover something that will remove this blemish, but Prof. Dornewend alone has been successful. He (after many experiments) discovered an article which will remove all unnecessary hair from face or arms without causing pain or leaving marks of application. Ladies, if you are troubled with superfluous hair, don't fail to get a bottle of "Eureka," it may be had from the Prof., who will be at the Grand Central Hotel on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 17, 18, 19 and 20. d15-2t

The other is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention. For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Light to moderate winds, mostly west and south; fair weather and slightly higher temperature.

Lansdowne Rink.

On to-morrow, (Friday) evening, at the Lansdowne Rink, there will be a mile race open to all on roller skates, for a handsome medal presented by Mr. Ed. Brown, the manager. It will be the first of a series of three races which is to take place, and the "flier" winning the majority becomes the owner. Don't forget the children's carnival which will be held on Saturday afternoon at the same place.

The Return Match.

The Peterborough cricketers go to Toronto on the 24th, of this month to play the return match with the team that played here yesterday. It is probable that they will send their very choicest men on that journey; something which will have to be done if they wish to score as well as they did yesterday. A team from the Torontos, though perhaps not a representative, one will again visit Peterborough about the second week in July.

Bright, Sparkling and Full of Life.

The Hastings Star says:—Our esteemed exchange, the Peterborough EXAMINER, now issues a daily evening edition, and although it is the last of the weeklies which have blossomed into dailies in that town, it is not by any means the least. In fact it comes before the public, a full fledged chicken, bright, sparkling, full of life, and would put to shame many city dailies, and will without doubt, enjoy a long and prosperous career, a success which we heartily wish may be attained by the enterprising publisher, Mr. Jas. R. Stratton.

County Councillors' Outing.

There was no session of the County Council this morning. The members occupied the time by working in committees, and at noon started for a trip to the "Lake Country" to inspect the condition of the Young's Point and Burleigh bridges. They set out from town at noon, a lively 'bus load of representative wisdom, with a press representative as ballast, behind a spanking four-in-hand, and drove to Lakefield. Here the steamer Cruiser, kindly placed at the disposal of the party by the popular and ever obliging Captain, was waiting to convey them to their destination.

A Pretty Little Craft.

This morning at 10 o'clock, Mr. A. D. Faucher's Steam Yacht was pushed into the Otonabee river, with the usual ceremony incident to the launching of a craft. The affair attracted quite a crowd of spectators who gathered to see the trim and tight little nautical beauty, take to the water like a duck or as Byron more poetically puts it, "like a thing of life." She sits on the water as gracefully as a swan, and is very creditable—under the circumstances—to the builder and designer, Mr. T. H. Delaney of Cobourg, who commenced his work on May 7th. The boat measures 34 feet from stem to stern, with a mid-ship measurement of 7 feet, and a depth of 3 feet. The boiler, which contains thirty-two flues, was supplied by Mr. Wm. Hamilton, as well as the handsome, upright 5 horse-power engine. We understand that is the intention of Mr. Faucher, to run two trips daily down the river, as soon as Mr. M. McFadden will have finished his part of the contract, viz:—the building of the hurricane deck.

Rhubarbarity.

Mr. Wright, of Wright & Peyton's pump factory, showed us to-day something rare in the rhubarb line. The stock exhibited was taken—with permission of course—from the Rev. V. Clementi's garden on Aylmer street, and measures 29 inches in length and 7 inches in circumference. The leaf has a spread of surface about the size of a well-developed cart wheel—measuring 36 inches in diameter.

Saved Army Excursion.

At an early hour yesterday the visitors began to pour into the town from Toronto, Lindsay, Brighton, Cobourg, Port Hope and Campbellford to attend the grand salvation meeting, under the auspices of the Saved Army. The following are the officers that were present:—Gen. H. P. Lindsay, Div. Capt. Munt and staff-Capt. Wyatt, (in command of the procession) Capts. Clarke, McGregor, Pratt, White, King, Rich, Wilson, Munro; Lieuts. Hopper, Boyler, Carswell, Soanes, Armstrong, Letts, Gubbins; Cadets Benson, Job, also delegates, Wm. Battell, Dr. Stephenson, Mr. Doxsee, W. Thorndike, G. B. Sproule, R. Weir and W. Rogers and the Hon. Sidney Smith, of Cobourg, about 350 Saved warrors, besides an audience of about 800. The General of the Army in command, the troops, at 2.30 assembled in the Drill Shed, and had a real hallelujah time (as they term it). After singing "All hail the power of Jesus' name;" G. B. Sproule and Staff Capt. Wyatt, led in prayer. Then the Hon. Sidney Smith addressed the audience, and related his conversion and incidents in his life, which were listened to very attentively. After the meetings, the troops formed two deep, and marched to the G.T.R., Station, singing their Army hymns. We must congratulate the Cobourg and Brighton corps, on their very handsome banners. We must say the Cobourg banner is about the finest piece of work that we have seen for some time and hope the other stations will follow the example set by the above mentioned corps. The Cobourg banners were the work of Mrs. Burke, Cobourg, and the Brighton banner the work of Mr. Rattenbury, Cobourg. At 5 o'clock most of the visitors bid adieu to the "plate glass city," after spending a very pleasant day. Another large meeting was held in the Opera House in the evening, which was addressed again by the Hon. Sidney Smith.

BOROUGH BREVITIES.

—The Salvation Army attacked a large crowd on the Square last night.

—The cheerful house-fly is able to be about again.

—A circus eastward bound passed through Peterborough on the C. P. Railway early this morning.

—The man with the expansive pants had a narrow escape last evening; a vicious dog attacked the outskirts of his garment.

—The picnic held at Idyl Wild yesterday, under the auspices of the Good Templars, of Otonabee was a delightful success.

—To-day's probabilities promise delightful weather for the lawn social at Mr. John Walton's grounds, Hunter street, to-night.

—The approach of the hot weather suggests the enquiry as to what is being done towards providing swimming baths for the public.

—The Toronto cricketers, when leaving on the train, acknowledged that they would have been beaten if yesterday's match had been played to a finish.

BURDENS OF BURLEIGH.

A Liberal Compromise With Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos.

On Wednesday last, Mr. F. Elmhirst Reeve, and Mr. Duncan Anderson, Treasurer, of the united townships of Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos, waited upon the Finance Committee of the County Council, with regard to the old indebtedness of this municipality. They fully explained the present deplorable state of the townships' finances, the unfortunate manner in which the business of the townships had heretofore been transacted, and the inconceivable manner in which money had been disbursed, prior to Mr. Elmhirst's term of office. They urgently wished the affairs of the township to be placed on a responsible footing. It must be understood, they pointed out, that the finances of the townships were in anything but a flourishing condition, as the county could not avoid knowing. It was to be taken into consideration that there was a large area of unpatented lands, which had been assessed, but upon which no taxes could be collected, and the burden fell heavily on the bona-fide taxpayers. The people of the township had passed a hard winter, money was exceedingly scarce, and everything pointed to the urgency of some measure of compromise and relief for the township being agreed upon. Mr. Elmhirst wished, during his term of office, to get the financial affairs of the township on such a basis as would admit of their paying the rate as they had done in the past three years. The indebtedness of the townships to the county was $600 and Mr. Elmhurst proposed in the interests of the township to pay $200 in full settlement of the claims of the county. The members of the Committee, while sympathising with the townships and with the commendable efforts of the Reeve, to further their interests, thought the proposition of Mr. Elmhirst would do the county less than justice, and the counter proposition was presented to the effect that the county would be willing to accept $300 in cash in full satisfaction of its claims. The Reeve accepted the proposition and engaged on behalf of the townships to see that the mouey was paid by the first of August, to which the committee assented. Mr. Elmhirst's successful efforts to improve the financial condition of these townshhips will be fully appreciated by the ratepayers. These municipalities have passed through some very trying financial crisis, and a measure of relief such as has been secured will be exceedingly welcome to them. Three years ago the debt to the county amounted to $1,275, and the county two years ago compromised with the townships on the liberal scale of 50 per cent. reduction, which limited the liability to $600. But this the ratepayers felt had become too great a burden, and Mr. Elmhirst has omitted no efforts nor exertions, till he has reduced the amount to $300. Now the united townships should understand, that hereafter they must stand on their own bottom. They must take a leaf from the lessons of the past. If they choose to elect as their representatives in the future, men who will let township matters go at such loose ends, that it requires three years hard work of another representative to loosen the tangle and secure relief, they must accept the situation. The County has dealt most liberally with Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos in the past, and it cannot be expected to make any further concessions. With the careful and economical management of the past two or three years, there is no fear but that the townships will be able to stand alone, and to live within their means. If the people consent to another reign of extravagance and incapacity such as led to the embarrassment, from which they are just relieved, they cannot reasonably hope that the County will again come to their relief.

OTONABEE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Court of Revision met pursuant to adjournment. All members present, the Reeve in the chair.

On application of Thomas Coward, the E., pt of Lots 7 and 8, in the 12th Concession, were directed to be erased from Non-resident Roll, and assessed to Thomas Coward, he having become tenant of the same. The assessment Roll as amended was confirmed and passed.

Council met pursuant to adjournment, all the members present. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. Mr. Thomas was allowed to have the assembly room of the Town Hall, for dancing class, on payment of 50 cts per night, etc. The Council agreed to pay Mr. John Bell 40 cents a rod for 20 rods of lawful wire fence, when completed, opposite his land on River Road; also to Mr. Richard Matchett the same for 10 rods opposite his land on said road when completed. The Treasurer was directed to pay the following sums, viz: To James Millar and John Frost, $1 each, for moving drift wood from bridge on Base Line, 6th con.; James Hayes, for gravel, $5.90; Adam C. Thompson, for cedar, $4.48;. Matthew Breckenridge, for cedar, $23.40; Robert Evans, for gravel, $10. The Clerk was directed to give A. A. Stewart an order for a road scraper. Council adjourned until Monday 20th July next.

SOMETHING NEW IN COOKERY.

A gentleman seated behind a plate of beef and beans in one of our coffee and cake saloons on Park row said to the waiter:

"Bring me a napkin."

"A what?"

"Napkin."

The waiter shook his head dubiously.

"I don't believe we've got any," he said, "but I'll ask the boss. P'rhaps he'll send out for it. How do you want it cooked?"

HUMAN NATURE THE SAME EVERYWHERE.

A good deacon of one of our city churches meandered along one of the docks yesterday, and, noticing a group of boys fishing, he commenced to reprove them for breaking the Sabbath. In the middle of his harrangue he stopped suddenly to ejaculate: "Look out, bub; you've got a bite," to a small boy whose attention had been distracted from his line.

Big Bear in Danger of Capture.

FORT PITT, June 16, via. STRAUBENZIE, June 17.—Col. Osborne Smith and 250 men of the 92nd, are on the north side of Beaver River. Col. Otter is at Turtle Lake and Col. Irvine is en route for Green Lake with the road from there to Carlton patrolled It seems as if Big Bear was coralled. All here hope the final halt will soon be called.

BRITISH CABINET CRISIS.

Salisbury's Cabinet Making.

LONDON, June 18.—Early this morning the ministerial situation was believed to hang on the acceptance of a peerage by Sir Stafford Northcote, who would thus forego the leadership in the House of Commons. This is opposed strongly by Lord Randolph Churchill and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach. If Sir Stafford takes his coronet there is every likelihood that Salisbury can complete his cabinet by Friday.

The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon has an editorial believed to have been inspired by M. Lessar, of the Russian section of the Afghan boundary commission, couched in angry terms. Is says unless Salisbury wishes to deepen the conviction of Russia that his ministry is a menace of war he will cancel the appointment of Churchill as secretary of state for India.

THE SCOURGE OF FIRE

Port Hope Destructively Visited

Between two and three o'clock yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon says the Port Hope Times, the north-east corner of Beamish's flour mill was discovered to be on fire. In a few minutes the whole Fire Brigade was on the spot, and things began to look as if all the adjoining buildings would be wiped out by the devouring element. All hope of saving the flour mill was soon abandoned, and the energies of the firemen were directed toward the saving of the plaster mill and salt storehouse. So hot was the fire, that people standing a hundred yards away were compelled to cover their faces. The flames caught a stable then an ice-house, and in their course the flames swept everthing in their way, checked only when they had consumed every building on the east side of the street. Willing hands had, however, removed all the contents with the exception of the lime and ice storehouses. For some time it was very doubtful whether the dwelling houses on the opposite side of the road could be saved, and when the fire was checked, as far as the eye could reach, the gardens and side of the road were strewed with flour, machinery, office desks, furniture, barrels, etc. The ties on the iron railway bridge took fire, but notwithstanding, the 3.45 express run the gauntlet of the flames, and shortly after a freight also passed slowly over. The burning mill was a terribly magnificent spectacle.

As soon as the full extent of the danger was seen, the Cobourg steam engine was telephoned for, but did not arrive until almost all use for it had passed. The buildings burned to the ground are besides the mill, a lime, two barrel, and ice storehouses, and a double dwelling occupied by Messrs. Noah Wood and Brian Sherry, a stable and a large cooper shop. The loss cannot at present be rightly estimated, but will be a very large sum. It is some years since Port Hope has had so large a conflagration. The fire is supposed to have originated from spontaneous combustion, and those who first saw it say that in a moment the corner of the building was enveloped in flames. The loss is only partially covered by insance.

Lastingly Loyal.

The genuine Canadian requires a deal of knocking about in foreign lands to eliminate his loyalty to his native land, and the process is hardly ever thoroughly completed. A Peterborough Canadian, now a resident in New York over 20 years, hearing that a monument was to be erected to the memory of the late Capt. Brown, who died at Batoche like a brave soldier, "with his back to the field and his feet to the foe," writes to a gentleman in town, enclosing his contribution to the fund. This gentleman, who, by the way, was a former member of No. 1 Company, Pool's Rifles, writes that though he did not remember Capt. Brown, he was glad to give to a monument to his memory on general principles of patriotism. He signs himself "A Briton" and was one of the contributors, to the New York medal, shot for annually by the Rifle Association. We have reason to be proud of being Canadians.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Slattery, assistant Inspector of weights and measures for the Belleville Division, paid the town a flying visit yesterday.

We have to offer our congratulations on the occasion of the marriage of Mr. Nathan R. Lee, a former resident of this county, to a young lady of Milwaukee, where he now resides. He resigned his bachelorhood on May 29th.

She Thought She Would Change the Subject.

"Always," said papa, as he drank his coffee and enjoyed his morning beefsteak, "always, children, change the subject when anything unpleasant has been said. It is both wise and polite." That evening on his return from business he found his carnation bed despoiled, and the tiny imprint of slippered feet silently bearing witness to the small thief.

"Mabel," he said to her, "did you pick my flowers?"

"Papa," said Mabel, "did you see a monkey in town?"

"Never mind that. Did you pick my flowers?"

"Papa, what did gran'ma send me?"

"Mabel, what do you mean? Did you pick my flowers? Answer me yes or no."

"Yes, papa, I did; but I'd fout I'd change the subject." — Philadelphia Quis.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of

Farmers' Institutes.

The Commissioners of Agriculture, with the characteristic thoughtfulness of the farmers' interests, shown by the Ontario Cabinet, in providing for the establishment of Farmers' Institutes in every electoral district gives practicel testimony to the importance of these organizations. At the last session of the Ontario Legislature, he obtained a vote authorizing him to make a grant of $25 to every Institute that may be organized, on condition of an equal grant being made by the Council of the county in which the electorial district is situated, and subject to certain regulations approved by him. These regulations require. 1. That an Institute be composed of not less than fifty members, each paying an annual fee of 25 cents; 2. That a majority of the board of management shall be practical farmers; and 3. That at least two meetings of each Institute shall be held annually in different parts of the district. There will be found few to belittle the importance of more liberal interchange of ideas between farmers, of the necessity of unity of action among them, and the desirability affording them some organized medium of communicating their successes or failures to each other. We have boards of trade, labor unions and combinations of lawyers, doctors, dentists, merchants, manufacturers, and of almost every craft or calling except farmers. The Farmers' Institutes seem to be just the thing desired, and no doubt the present session of the County Council will witness the consideration of the subject, There can be little reason to doubt that the County Council will add its equivalent of $25 to secure the Government grant of a similar sum for each of the electoral districts of this county. At its recent session the Hastings Council made a grant of $25 to each of the three electoral districts in which the county is divided, and surely Peterborough county cannot afford to allow itself to be outdone in enterprise and liberality by its eastern neighbours.

Editorial Notes.

The nominations for Algoma took place on Tuesday, polling a week later. Mr. Lyon is the Liberal candidate and Mr. Abbott the Conservative standard bearer.

Voting on the adoption of the Scott Act takes place in Lincoln, Middlesex and Perth Counties to-day. While their electors are giving their opinion on the Scott Act and of the Senate's mutilation, their representatives will be discussing the same subject in the House of Commons.

It is to be regretted that John Bright has been prostrated with illness, similar to that which compelled his retirement from the British Government 15 years ago. He has been ordered by his physicians to take a long rest from both public and private business. Unfortunately this will prevent the old war horse from participating in the coming electoral contest, when his voice for reform and progress in the reorganized constituencies would be a great power. But Mr. Bright is 74 years of age, and he cannot be expected to continue for ever in the fight.

THE CANADIAN ELDORADO.

Marvellous Richness of the Silver Deposits in Lake Superior.

A Sarnia despatch says: Passengers by the steamer United Empire from the north shore of Lake Superior state that business is booming in the mining district. Oliver Donains, of Silver Mountain Farm, has an opening on his mining location on the east side of the mountain revealing a deposit of native silver ten feet from the surface, which assayed from $2,000 to $24,000 per ton. H. Montgomery, an old miner and prospector of Nevada, has made some thorough investigations, and says his wildest dreams are more than realized, and that the silver deposits around Silver Mountain are truly marvellous.

HE DID NOT BELIEVE IN DOCTORS.

The Count de V——, prime minister to the King of Sardinia, affected mystery so much in all his transactions, both public and private, that, happening to hurt both his legs very severely, he employed a surgeon for each limb, while each was kept ignorant that the other was employed. The treatment, therefore, adopted by the medical men, and the nature of the drugs they administered, being quite inconsistent, the consequences proved fatal to the minister.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I was somewhat surprised at a letter which appeared in your daily issue of the 6th inst.; but, as the statements in that letter were so utterly without foundation, I was satisfied with the note you kindly inserted in the front page of the same paper. This note however, did not appear in your weekly of the 11th inst.; and the letter itself has attracted general attention; I therefore find some further notice necessary. No change has taken place in the ordinary day's work of the Institute; no subject has been dropped; the masters are and have been working over-time; and they authorize me to say that they have not recommended any pupil to withdraw from school and study at home.

Believe me yours truly,
WM. TASSIE.

KEENE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Henry Burnham, Esq., of Port Hope, is in our village this week.

Mrs. McMurchy, formely Miss Galloo, is visiting her relatives here. She is lovelier than ever, which proves that "happiness is a great beautifier."

Mrs. Bradburn of Peterborough, is at Dr. Harrison's.

Mrs. Joseph Taylor, who was so dangerously ill, is recovering, we are glad to say.

Mrs. Widow Dickson was unfortunate enough to lose a valuable cow, (her only one), last week.

Professor F. A. Thomas of Toronto, has organized an orchestra class here, also he has a bi-weekly class in dancing.

The grounds around the new Presbyterian church were levelled last week, by a "bee" of the members. The improvements thereby is something wonderful.

The old church looks diminished, and its glory is departed, yet it has served its generation well, and holds many happy memories. Rev. Mr. Andrews alluded in a most touching manner, in his last sermon in it, to the passage of years, his own occupancy of the pulpit in the old building for thirty-three winters,—the many pleasant associations connected with those years, and the hopes for the future, in the use of the new and imposing structure which looks down so benevolently on its aged friend, and almost parent, "the auld kirk."

Rev. Mr. Tozeland leaves us soon. He has kindly cancelled his services on the twenty-first, on account of the Presbyterian Church opening, which generous considerateness is wholly in keeping with his usual career amongst us. He is a most pleasing speaker, fervid and eloquent, and, fired with christian zeal, has won many trophies to the cause of his Master. Mr. Tozeland carries with him the earnest loving regards of his own people, and the hearty good-will of all who were in any way associated with him and the best wishes of Keene and all the other localities under his charge follow him and his amiable and accomplished lady. The Rev. Francis Johnston is his successor in this place.

The road work is progressing finely over the township, the weather being very favorable. Otonabee is noted for its extra good roads, and we endorse its fame, but we regret exceedingly that some of the most beautful drives are being spoiled by removing the trees; truly a "slaughter of the innocents," as nothing adds to the picturesque appearance of our gentle slopes and fertile vales so much as the graceful foliage of the small "forests by the wayside" Spare the trees good friends, they don't hurt you, or the roads either, Expend your energies on gravel instead of the axe, and your township will continue to be one of the loveliest in the Dominion.

HOW TONY SOLD ROSEBUDS.

He was only a dog, but a very smart dog, indeed. He belonged to the class known as Shepherd dogs, which are noted for their sagacity and fidelity. His master was a little Italian boy, called Beppo, who earned his living by selling flowers on the street.

Tony was very fond of Beppo, who had been his master ever since he was a puppy, and Beppo had never failed to share his crust with his good dog.

Now Tony had grown to be a large, strong dog, and took as much care of Beppo as Beppo took of him. Often, while standing on the corner with his basket on his arm, Beppo would feel inclined to cry for very loneliness; but Tony seemed to know when the "blues" came, and would lick his master's hand, as much as to say, "You've got me for a friend. Cheer up! I'm better than nobody! I'll stand by you!"

But one day it happened that when the other boys who shared the dark cellar-home with Beppo went out early in the morning, as usual, Beppo was so ill that he could hardly lift his head from the straw on which he slept. He felt that he would be unable to sell flowers that day. What to do he did not know.

Tony did his best to comfort him; but the tears would gather in his eyes, and it was with the greatest difficulty that he at last forced himself to get up and go to the florist, who lived near by, for the usual supply of buds. Having filled his basket, the boy went home again and tied it round Tony's neck. Then he looked at the dog and said:

"Now, Tony, you're the only fellow I've got to depend on. Go and sell my flowers for me and bring the money home safe, and don't let any one steal anything." Then he kissed the dog and pointed to the door.

Tony trotted out in the street to Beppo's usual corner, where he took his stand. Beppo's customers soon saw how matters stood, and chose their flowers and put the money in the tin cup within the basket. Now and then, when a rude boy would come along and try to snatch a flower from the basket, Tony would growl fiercely and drive him away.

So that day went safely by, and at nightfall Tony went home to his master, who was anxiously waiting to see him, and gave him a hearty welcome.

Beppo untied the basket and looked in the cup, and I shouldn't wonder if he found more money in it than he ever did before.

That is how Tony sold the rosebuds; and he did it so well that Beppo never tired of telling of it.

Longfellow said, "In this world a man must be either anvil or hammer." Longfellow was wrong, however. Lots of men are neither the active hammer nor the sturdy anvil, they are nothing but bellows.

A Little Boy-Lover of Mine.

A face to-day on the street I met,
How deeply browned and bearded grown,
With a look in the eyes I can't forget
For 'twas a village I have known;
Long years ago when my step was fleet,
When brightly my youthful eyes could shine,
This very man I chanced to meet
Was a little boy lover of mine.

Did he recall me when we passed
So near upon the crowded street?
We both of us were walking fast
When our rapid glances chanced to meet;
But I saw his eye-lids give, I the't,
A swift and recognising sign,
And I said myself, "He has not forgot,—
This little boy-lover of mine."

Ah, what has happened in all these years
Of rapid, ever changing life?
Has it been a season of bitter tears,
Of fiercest struggles, weary strife?
Or have happy wife and children made
His passing years seem so serene
That the old-time joys have begun to fade
As if, alas, they'd never been?

O little boy-lover of mine!
Those days were happy though so short,
But the glow of their memory still doth shine
Within my hearts' most tender thought;
When we reach the other shore, I'll wait
To meet no recognining,
But I'll come and greet at the Beautiful Gate
This little boy-lover of mine.

How a Fan was Confiscated.

The other day a gentleman in passing through the Niagara Falls country bought a feather fan, for which he paid $3. On his way to this city the railroad conductor informed him that he would have to pay a duty of $1 50 to the custom officials at Detroit, which news was received with surprise, somewhat spiced with indignation. As he pondered over the matter he observed that the conductor was watching him closely, and concluded that he was acting to a certain extent as "spotter" for the customs officials. "I wanted to 'down' that conductor," said the gentleman in relating the incident, "and watching my chance I took the fan out of the box and wrapped the box, empty, up again just as I had received it. Then I put the open fan carefully under the lining to my overcoat. Presently, when I was sure the conductor was looking at me I wrapped the box up in my overcoat. When I got on the boat to cross the river I was conscious that the conductor had posted the customs man and so I was not surprised when the official walked up to me and taking my overcoat unwrapped it letting the fan box fall out. 'How much for the fan,' says he. 'Three dollars,' says I. 'The duty is $1 50,' he continued, and I responded with, 'Not much!" He allowed that he had no alternative, he must confiscate the box and fan, and that I could get it at the customs office by calling and paying the duty. So I let him take it, and for all I care, he is welcome to the box."—Detroit Free Press.

Henry Marston, one of the best known men in New Orleans, likes to tell about a visit once made by him in company with his father to General Washington, then President. Mr. Marston, now past ninety-one years, says that young as he was at the time of the memorable visit the features of the great man were fixed so strongly in his mind that he never will forget them.

Theo. Voruz, of Antioch, Kan., writes that he has a petrified bird nest, which became so through the action of water in a small stream near his home. In the water is a white stony substance which adheres to all objects thrown into the stream. The straw in the formation of the nest and three eggs that were in it when placed in the water are all perfect, but covered with stone an eighth of an inch in thickness.

YOUNG MEN

By an Eminent Divine

THE REV. DE WITT TALMAGE SAYS:—"How a man with no surplus of estate, but still enough money to pay the Premium of a Life Insurance Policy, can refuse to do it, and then look his children in the face and say his prayers at night, on going to bed, expecting them to be answered, is a mystery to me that I have never yet been able to fathom. Procrastination is the Devil's deception." Go to-morrow morning and pay for a Policy.

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The Leaden Casket," "Thorncroft's Model," &c. &c must see Lucy once again before he dies. He has asked to see her every day, and gets so anxious about it and so excited that it makes him ill, they say Philip did not know what to do. It seems dreadful to refuse such a request. I don't know what poor Philip would have done if the doctor had not come—and even the doctor could not quiet him; nothing will quiet him but seeing her."

"But they did not make him understand how ill she was?"

"Yes; but he wanted to come to her.—He has heard that she is on deck—he wanted to be brought along side the yacht. they might hide him, or do what they liked to prevent her knowing he was there, but he must see her once more before he died."

"And they refused him? I could not have done that! It is very hard when he is dying."

"What could they do? If he had come Lucy would have discovered he was there. Mr. Richmond's doctor has forbidden Philip to go again, for the more Mr. Richmond sees him, the more he is reminded of Lucy. His wish to see her amounts to delirium."

"If he saw her he might recover," said Aunt Esther.

"Oh, no, he cannot recover—the doctor says that is impossible; he must know. Philip has thought it well over, and has made up his mind that it would be very wrong and very dangerous to yield to him, and nothing will induce him to risk Lucy's life."

"Well, he may be right," said Aunt Esther; "but it is very hard to deny such a wish as that! I begin to think poor Lucy was right when she said she was born to do him harm."

"We are going to dine out to-night," said Lettice; and she began to pull out some of the drawers, and to get out her dress for the evening. "I am hardly equal to it, but perhaps it will prevent my thinking of this dreadful business!" Aunt Esther was not listening now; she was sitting in a corner, crying.

"Don't do that!" cried Lettice, when she saw her. "If Lucy sees your eyes are red she will ask what is the matter." Aunt Esther dried her eyes—every feeling of her heart was always sacrificed to Lucy's good.

"Aunt Esther," said Lettice, "are you to be trusted? It will be terrible if you let Lucy discover what we are so anxious to keep from her! Mind, if you do, Philip will not let her go—he told me he would rather use force to prevent it than see her do such a thing; he knows it would kill her."

"I shall not be the one who tells her,' said Aunt Esther; I dare not take such a responsibility on myself."

"If you do tell her, mind it is on your own responsibility that you do it, for both Philip and I think it would be dangerous."

"Be easy, I will say nothing; but my heart aches for that poor young man. I think I will go to her."

"Aunt Esther, if you see Lucy's maid, do send her to help me to dress. It is lucky it is only a family party to-night, for I am fit for nothing but sitting down to cry."

Before Aunt Esther went on deck, Lucy had summoned the captain. "Stoop down and listen to me," said she; "no one must hear what I say to you." Her voice was changed, her face white as marble; the captain was afraid to look at her. "I am in great trouble, captain dear, and you must help me."

As the captain afterwards said to the mate, "When she used those melting words, 'captain, dear,' I felt I'd have gone barefooted over the world for her, and set out to do it over again as soon as I had got back; and all I said was, 'You may rely on me miss.'"

"And you will keep all I say secret?"

"I swear I will."

"Send a man on shore at once to get a carriage; it must wait by Fort Solidor.—The driver must stay there till he sees why it is wanted, even if he has to stay all night."

"It shall be done," said the captain, quietly.

"And captain, if Mr. Mostyn gave one order and I gave another, which of us would you obey?"

"You, miss, on my word of honor—you are head-captain here."

"Then send for the carriage now. Let no one hear you give the order. Speak in a whisper Hush, go now—here some one is coming."

It was Lettice, who ran up to say a word or two before dressing. Lucy's face was hidden by her handkerchief. She said she had covered it because her head ached, and the light hurt her eyes.

"If I were you I would go to bed," said Lettice, and then she sat silently by Lucy awhile, glad that she need not talk to her. She, too, was deeply grieved about young Richmond. Presently she went to dress. She was going to dine at Dinan, with an uncle of her husband's. Lucy was still on deck when they went off in the gig. It was to wait there to bring them home.

"Now, captain," said Lucy, "put me in a boat and come with me. What shall we do to prevent them seeing me get in?"

"They can't see us," said he—"that French vessel hides us—once in the boat they will not see you—but Miss Clavering you are not in earnest about going on shore as ill as you are?"

"Even if it kills me, I'll go," said she. "Captain, be kind, and do not say anything to try to stop me. It won't hurt me, and may save a life."

She was lifted into the boat; then she said to the captain, "Please go and tell Miss Moore that I know Mr. Richmond, is ill, and that he wants to see me. Tell her I am going to him. Beg her to come with me, but not to say anything to me about going. She cannot make me give it up—he would not have been ill if he had not saved me, and I must go."

"Yes, miss, you must go," said the captain, "and I will tell her to use no words to try to stop you."

He came back almost immediately with Aunt Esther, and so well had he counselled her, that she sat down by Lucy's side and took her hand in silence. The captain followed—Lucy had asked him not to leave her. She was now sobbing quietly, but even before they reached the shore she had checked herself and dried away her tears. Now that she had carried her point, however, she felt all the misery that lay before her. She could walk a little and under excitement could have done more; but no sooner did they reach the shore than the captain said, "By your good leave I'll save you the little bit of walking," and carried her to the carriage. Lucy's courage failed her when once in the hotel. She sank into a chair. The landlord and his wife came to comfort her, but had no true comfort to give, for the doctor still said that his patient could not outlive the night. He had had a severe attack of inflammation of the lungs accompanied by fever and delirium, and was worn out by weakness and want of rest. Down came the doctor—a Scotchman—the same who attended Lucy, and cut short all the landlord and his wife were saying.

"Miss Clavering," said he, "I had no idea you would venture on such a step as Timmins does space work for a leading city magazine. He also writes stories. His opinion of the literary judgment of one of the editors of the magazine, whom we will call Smith, is extremely poor, as the following anecdote clearly shows: He had turned in a love-story entitled, "Left; or, Ethel Mowbray's Tryst," but, for some reason or other, after it had been favorably passed upon by several readers, it was condemned by the owner of the magazine, and, of course, that settled it. Among those who had reported favorably upon it, was Smith.

"It almost passed the gauntlet," said Timmins, mournfully, to a friend. "Just see how many thought well of it—Bulzer, Peterson, Salter, and Smith; that makes five."

"Only four," suggested his friend.

"But some one must have told Smith it was good, else he would not have known it, so he counts as two.—Boston Globe.

The old cynic sat on the back seat of the dummy watching a young couple behind him who were very tender and devoted. His hand was holding hers and she was as happy as a turkey that finds itself alive when the market closes for Thanksgiving. "Happy, aren't they?" said his friend. "Happy, yes. Stirring nature with a spoon."

"I think, darling, that if your father would help me along in the world we would be supremely happy. Kiss me, pretty," coolingly remarked a Madison street dude. The old man happened by the door at this time, and, overhearing the remark and the osculation, stepped in and helped the young man along. The old man's boots had just been heavily half-soled. — Brooklyn Times.

The particulars of the Freedom affair have at length come to hand. It seems that Freedom was skating round the rink in company with Kosciusko on the evening in question, when her foot slipped in attempting the grape-vine roll, and she went over, carrying her partner down on top of her. "Freedom shrieked when Kosciusko fell!" Of course; so would any other girl in her place. Kosci must have weighed 275 pounds, without his skates, at that time.

The celebrated Abernethy having asked a candidate at his examination what means he would use to promote perspiration in a particular disease, the student exhausted all the resources of his memory and imagination, and still the pertinacious old man continued to bore him with, "Well, sir, and if that failed, then what would you do?" The lad, driven to his wits' end, at length exclaimed: "Then, sir, I would send him to you to be examined; and if that did not make him sweat, it is my opinion his case would be hopeless."

A Crow who was bitterly complaining that winter had deprived him of the opportunity of scratching for corn was overheard by the Rat, who said: "But you must remember that it is only after the farmer gets his corn in the crib that I have any show at all." "Winter is my enemy," put in the Hare, "because it leaves my tracks in the snow to be followed." "And only for that," added the Dog, "I'm afraid I should not taste of hare once a year." Moral—Dame Nature realized that she couldn't satisfy everybody and she didn't try to.—Detroit Free Press.

The Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, JUNE 18, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Prompt Measures.

Prompt means should be used to break up sudden colds, and cure coughs in their early stages. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam does this most speedily and effectually. 24-2t

Ladies' Bible Class.

The Rev. A. H. Munro will meet the members of the Ladies' Bible Class to-morrow afternoon at the Y.M.C.A. rooms at 4 p. m, This interesting and instructive series of lessons is awakening a lively interest and securing a constantly increasing attendance.

Energy and Pluck.

The Napanee Standard says:—The DAILY EXAMINER is the title of Peterborough's latest newspaper. It presents a very creditable appearance and both in matter and manner gives evidence of good judgment backed up by energy and pluck—barring its politics, of course. We wish it a prosperous career.

Health of the District.

The monthly bulletin of the Provincial Board of Health reports the diseases most prevalent in the Midland district during the months of March and April in the following order of prevailence and percentage of frequency:—Influenza, 17.8; pneumonia, 9.3; anæmia, 9.2; consumption, 8.8; bronchitis, 6.9; neuralgia, 6.9.

A Strawberry Festival.

The first Strawberry festival of the season will be held this evening, on the lawn of John Walton, Esq The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance, and a very enjoyable entertainment may be expected. The proceeds will be given to the Ladies' Aid Society of Murray Street Baptist Church. We hope to see a large attendance.

Insurance Movements.

Messrs. Geo. A. Morrison and A. Wilson, agents for the North American Life, Norwich and London, Phœnix, Hand in Hand, and other accident, life and fire insurance companies, have moved their offices from their former place to the rooms over J. D. Tully's drug store, where they will be found for the future, and where the lowest rates are offered for insurance on life and property. Note the sign, "The People's Insurance Office."

Final Meeting.

The final meeting in connection with the Dominion day celebration, was held last night at the Oriental. The number of young men who intimated their intention of taking part in it, was considerably increased; and judging from the spirit which was shown no doubt it will be a grand success. Any one wishing to be the hero of Fish Creek, Batoche, or Duck Lake can do so, and get full information by applying to Alex. Elliott at the Dominion Express office.

Lacrosse.

Mr. G. H. Giroux, Hon. Secretary of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, this morning received a communication from Mr. James S. Garvin, of the Toronto L. C., signifying his willingness to referee the match on Tuesday next, the 23rd inst., between our boys and the Checkers, of Beaverton. Mr. Garvin filled the position of referee here in September last, and by his genial manner made numerous friends in this town. The match on Tuesday will be very interesting, as it will be the first championship contest of the season; and the fourth tug which the Checkers will have made for the Central District medals.

R. C. Pic-nic.

The arrangements for the Roman Catholic pic-nic are now complete. The prizes for the various sporting events have been collected and, as will be seen by looking at the posters, are well worth competing for. The ladies in charge of the refreshment tables are also working with the same vim that characterised their movements at the bazaar held last fall, and that feature of the programme—by the way, a very important one—will not be behind in making a success of the parish pic-nic, which takes place in Wallis' Grove on Dominion Day.

WILLOW AND WICKET.

Fine Batting and Fine Bowling – The Home Team, Though Technically Beaten, Give a Good Account of Themselves.

As we briefly stated in yesterday's EXAMINER, a match took place on the grounds of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, between elevens representing the Peterboroughs and Torontos. It is to be deplored that when a game takes place in our town that some of our best cricketers are prevented from making an appearance on the crease. In the match yesterday the home team lacked three of its best players, who had to abstain from going to the grounds on account of business of a pressing nature. As it was, however, the boys showed up in excellent form, and had the match been played out, it was the general opinion from the five hundred persons who witnessed the contest, that the visitors would have to "go west" branded with defeat. In the first innings Max Hamilton, whose batting and bowling throughout the entire contest was much admired and at times loudly applauded, piled up a score of 31 runs, falling a victim after a reign of about thirty minutes to the catching of Shanly. Rogers kept his weather-eye open and scored 20 before Scadding could induce the ball to touch the wickets. Craven left for 9, and Norley had to retire on 7. The remaining seven of the home team could not see any more than 4 chalked to their highest scorer when the last wicket fell; and two of them walked in on duck eggs. The innings wound up with a score of 95 runs.

The Toronto went to the bat after luncheon, and when two hours of hard labour had elapsed retired with a score of 120, supplied by eleven contributions varying from 1 to 25 runs, the latter number being given by Jones, who batted for all he was worth. By careful study Collins, Brock, Winslow, Scadding and Shanly managed to account for 22, 18, 11, 10 and 8 runs, respectively. In their second innings the Peterboroughs made up for lost time and induced the scorer to write 134 on the book before Scadding reached Sabine's wickets. In this innings Norley made the largest hit of the day, scoring 50. Max Hamilton was credited with 28, Rogers 24, and Craven 8. The visitors once more appeared and when time was called at 5.45 p.m., had lost 3 wickets for 28 runs, 13 of which were credited to Jones, with that gentleman still on the green. However, they were proclaimed victors, as, under the regulations, when a match cannot be finished on time, the scores of the first two innings decide the merits of the contesting teams.

The following is the score:—

The above was the state of affairs when time was called. The visitors left for home on the 6.45 C. P. R. train. It is probable that the teams will come together shortly again.

Y. M. C. A.

A special meeting of the members of the Y.M.C.A. is to be held at their rooms to-night at 8 o'clock. Mr. T. S. Cole, Provincial Travelling Secretary will be present. Every member is expected to be on hand.

Boatsmen Bound for Bridgenorth.

A number of our citizens went up to Bridgenorth this morning to witness the canoe races which take place on Chemong Lake this afternoon. It is expected that good time will be made in some of the races, especially if Mr. Geo. Nicholls, of that place, makes his appearance in a double hunting canoe. A number of Indians from the northern section of the country have signified their intention of taking part in the various events, for which thanks to the enterprise of Mr. Fobert, liberal prizes will be offered. Messrs. H. Lebrun and Geo. Stevenson, of Peterborough, are amongst the judges.

Painful Accident.

Yesterday afternoon four little boys were enjoying themselves in the yard to the rear of Mr. Graham's Agricultural office on Hunter street. The enjoyment consisted of each boy, in his turn, taking a ride on a horse-power kept in motion by the other three. It came to Charley Myett's turn and that little fellow, instead of sitting on the outer edge of the machine, stood on the iron plate in the centre of it; but ere it had revolved a half dozen times, became dizzy and fell, the thumb of his left hand coming in contact with the large cog-wheels, and receiving such a severe crushing that it had to be amputated. The little fellow bore the operation bravely and this morning was doing as well as could be expected.

BRIDGENORTH.

(From Our Own Correspondent,)

Everybody will be certain to attend the grand picnic and sports in the park at this place on Thursday, June 25th. The programme will include exciting boat and canoe races on Lake Chemong, and in the intervals lacrosse, base ball and foot ball and other sporting events will be presented Brass and string bands will be on hand, the latter to supply music for dancing. Don't forget the day and date, June 25th. A grand day of enjoyment is ahead of you. Come and join the happy throng.

KANSAS HAS A NEW SCOURGE.

PARSONS, KAN., June 17.—There is now making its appearance in this vicinity a scourge equal to the grasshopper. Large fields of corn, standing on an average of eight inches high, looking fresh and green in the morning, before night become withered and dead. Examination discloses in each hill a myriad of worms—ranging from one inch and a quarter down to one-eight of an inch in length. Nearly every piece of corn is more or less infested. The eggs from which the worms are hatched are supposed to be deposited by a small yellowish white fly.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

FRIDAY, JUNE 19, 1885.

COUNCILLORS' EXCURSION.

Inspecting Burleigh and Other Bridges.

Charming Combination of Busi- and Pleasure.

What our Solons Did, Said and Saw.

Yesterday, upon invitation of Mr. Geo. J. Chalmers, of the steamer Fairy, the members of the County Council (with Mr. J. E. Belcher, C. E., and Mr. J. R. Stratton, of the EXAMINER) availed themselves of the opportunity to make a trip up the lakes to inspect the condition of the bridges at Lakefield, Young's Point and Burleigh. By arrangement the 'bus, behind four sturdy horses, started from Cavanagh's hotel about noon, and arrived at Lakefield at one o'clock. After doing aldermaic justice to the dinner, which, by the forethought of the Warden had been kindly provided at Purser's hotel, the visitors examined the Lakefield new iron bridge, and found it in good condition, with the exception of requiring a fresh coat of paint. Several Lakefielders, whom the imposing group of visitors gathered, suggested that the colour be different from the present one—something that would have less of a funereal appearance.

LOOKING LAKEFEILD OVER.

Upon invitation, the saw mills of the Messrs. Strickland, conducted by Messrs. Cox & Todd, were visited and inspected with great interest; the new and improved machinery that has been recently added, was the subject of much commendation. This mill has six million feet to cut this year, which it will easily accomplish as it has a capacity of 50,000 feet per day, and can turn out 20,000 shingles and 20,000 laths daily, besides supplying the current demands for bill lumber and timber. The water head is 14½ feet, and the also of the mill is 60x80 with two double tramway tracks half a mile long, running alongside the river to the piling grounds.

The newly erected woolen mill of Messrs. Gemmel & McKee were next visited. It is being fitted up with the latest machinery and will soon be in full operation. It has 11 feet of water head, a capacity of 30 horse power, and is 30 x 53 feet on the ground. A large stock of wool in the store room shows that this new venture will receive the appreciation and patronage of the farmers.

The next visit was to the large planing mill, occupied by Mr. Peter Baptie, which seemed to have all the work it could conveniently do. Its water head furnishes 50 horse power driving force.

A new grist mill, we are informed, will soon be erected on the full roller system. The visiting Councillors were much impressed with the industrial activity of Lakefield and its magnificent water power resources.

ON BOARD THE FAIRY.

After these premises had been duly examined and appreciated the party proceeded to the wharf, where the steamer Fairy was awaiting them. They were joined by Councillor Isaac Garbutt, W. H. Casement, Postmaster, Dr. A. Bell, Village Clerk, and Jno. Dinwoodie, ex-Reeve. After leaving the wharf the first object of importance passed was the residence of Mr. John Crickmore, barrister, late of Osgoode Hall. A beautiful green slopes to the water's edge, giving it a fine appearance from the river. Next appears a large granite building, the residence of the late Colonel Strickland, and now occupied by his son, R. C. Strickland Esq., Warden. This fine rural residence stands nearly in the centre of a 240 acre farm, situated partly in Douro and partly in Lakefield. From the house, westward, a beautiful stretch of green meadows and grain fields slope gradually down, terminating in rich bottom lands, knee deep in pasturage, in which thoroughbred Durhams were adding to their sleekness. Mr. Strickland hopes he will be able to make a good showing at the Central Exhibition this fall. His herd was purchased from Mr. James Russell, of Richmond Hill, and Mr. George Ball of Bond-Head. Next we pass a large square building in old English Cottage style, the home of Mr. H. J. Lefevre, a native of Jersey Island, and son-in-law of Mr. Kivas Tully, chief architect of the Ontario Government.

After steaming through the "Three Islands," on the right appears the handsome brick residence of Capt. Grieves. This property was owned by the late Col. Moodie, and is dear to every Canadian admirer of the late Mrs. Moodie, as the place where she wrote "Roughing it in the Bush." A glimpse could also be caught of the residence of the late John R. Rogers, referred to in the above captivating history.

After passing Hetherington's Narrows, we observe a neat frame structure, occupied by Dr. Douglas, V.C., whose name has come prominently before the public in connection with his plucky canoe excursion down the South Saskatchewan to render medical assistance to the volunteers wounded in the Fish Creek fight. He has lately returned to his family, passing through Peterborough within the week, as noted in THE DAILY EXAMINER.

YOUNG'S POINT, ARRIVE.

On reaching Young's Point, the place where the second grist mill was built in the county by "Paddy" Young, Esq., J. P., who yet lives jovial, hale and hearty, the party was met by Mr. James Chalmers and Mr. D. Costello. Mr. Chalmers took great pains in showing the visitors the points of interest in this northern village, to whose prosperity and progress the Messrs. Chalmers, father and son, have contributed in no slight degree.

THE NEW STEEL BRIDGE,

recently erected by the Canton Bridge Company, of Toronto, was examined with great interest, and pronounced a strong and durable structure. It consists of two spans of 100 feet each, with an approach of 75 feet on the Smith shore and 25 feet on the Douro side. The bridge presents a neat appearance, but there needs the placing of warnings against fast driving. Mr. Chalmers complains of young men from Peterborough making it a race course on Sundays.

A run was next made over the saw and shingle mills, which were busy, the former cutting 1,000 ties per day for Messrs. Rathbun & Sons, and the shingle mill turning out about 20,000 to 25,000 cedar shingles per day. At the flour mill, Mr. Donald McLean was busy, turning out, he asserts, as good flour as can be had in the county.

The locks built about 1870, presented a good appearance. At present the Ontario Government are putting the gates into thorough repair.

OFF FOR BURLEIGH.

After leaving Young's Point the steamer passed a boom of square timber moored to the shore, of about 1,300 pieces, under charge of Mr. A. Brooks, and belonging to Mr. Thos. Buck, of Norwood. Gentlemen experienced in the timber trade pronounce this the finest lot of square timber that ever passed down the river. It is on its way to Lakefield, where it will be shipped via G.T. R. to Quebec. It was towed down the lakes by the steamer Fairy, whose elfin name belies her sturdy pulling powers.

The next point of interest is the "Battery," the quarry where the stone was got out for church building purposes in Peterborough and for the locks at Hastings.

The next stopping place was a call at "Partridge Lodge," the summer residence of Warden Strickland. The island has a picturesque position and presents a beautiful view from either end. It is two and a half miles from Burleigh Falls. The next halt called was at

BURLEIGH FALLS.

Examination of the work done on the approaches of the new wooden bridge, was satisfactory, and approved of. The party then proceeded over the rocky paths to the "Big Chute" bridge. This bridge requires immediate repairs and the engineer, Mr. J. E. Belcher, proposes strengthening it by an arrangement of timber props, which will relieve the decayed bent from all strain. The expense will be about $100. The Council agreed to this pending the deliberate action of the Dominion Government in building the Trent Valley Canal.

On the way from this bridge to Perry's Creek Bridge, the Reeve of Burleigh, Mr. Frank Elmhirst, called the particular attention of the Reeve of Harvey, Mr. Hicks, to the very dangerous state of the road, which might any moment mulct the township is a big bill of damages. As Harvey is not bothered with an overflowing treasury, it is probable the County will make a special grant to put this heart-breaking bit of roadway into passable repair.

OFF FOR, AND ON THE WAY HOME.

After enjoying refreshments at Burleigh Falls, the steamer was again boarded, and after a delightful steam down to Lakefield the party embarked on board the 'bus for town. On the way down, the meeting was organized, the Warden in the chair, and a series of national, patriotic, political and personal toasts were proposed and responded to in stirring—especially when the wheels struck a boulder—speeches, interlarded with songs in all keys and of all characters. The party also passed votes of thanks to Mr. Chalmers, of the Fairy, and all others who contributed to the pleasure of a most pleasant trip, which terminated by the arrival in town at about 10:30 p. m.

THE SCOTT ACT.

The Senators' Amendments Voted Down.

Discussion in the Commons

The whole of the time of the Commons yesterday was occupied with the Senate's amendments to the Scott Act. The first question was upon the Senate's proposition to allow doctors to dispense liquor as medicine. This was hotly opposed by the temperance men, but at last adopted by the House by voting down the proposition to reject the amendment by 75 yeas to 84 nays. Then came up the case of the unlicensed druggists. It was pointed out that according to some legal opinions, these would be prohibited from selling pharmaceutical preparations, containing preprations of bay rum etc. It was proposed to declare that this was not the purpose of the Act, but the proposition was in such a shape as to give them power to sell doctors' prescriptions containing spirits if they were not more than eight ounces. These sales could be carried on without record, whereas those druggists licensed under the Scott Act to sell spirits were obliged to keep a record and make returns. The motion to strike out the Senate's amendments in this respect was rejected by 75 yeas to 90 nays. The Senate's amendments to sell spirits for mechanical, manufacturing, or pharmaceutical purposes without record or any other restriction was strongly objected to, and the amendment to reject it was carried. A clause was introduced providing a penalty for the infringement of the law by doctors, which was adopted. The clause making it necessary for doctors to keep record of the spirits dispensed was proposed, and, after some discussion, carried. An amendment restoring the schedule of the form was adopted. Mr. Jamieson moved an amendmeat rejecting the wine and beer clause for the reason, among others, that the passage of the clause would be a breach of faith with the people. After some discussion Mr. Small moved an amendment making he Senate's wine and beer amendment apply only to future Scott Act contests. After some discussion this was lost on a vote of 78 yeas to 86 nays. Mr. Cameron (Victoria) moved an amendment providing that in every Scott Act county after the Act had been in force a year the question of exempting wine and beer should be submitted to the people. This was lost without a vote, and Mr. Jamieson's motion rejecting the wine and beer amendment was adopted without a vote, and the House adjourned immediately.

Prof. Parker's Piano Recital.

Invitations have been issued for a piano recital to be given by Prof. J. S. Parker, organist, in the lecture room of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, on Monday evening next, June 22nd. A fine programme has been prepared consisting of pianoforte solos —classical selections by Prof. Parker, a vocal solo by Mrs. Chambers, and violin solos by Prof. Doucet. Those favored with an invitation will enjoy a rare musical treat.

Strangers in Town.

An excursion party numbering about 200 arrived in town to-day on the regular C. P. R. express at 11.40 a.m. from Agincourt. It was under the protectorate of the Mount Melderam Lodge of Sons of Temperance, Mr. J. Tidsberry having charge of the excursion arrangements. The excursionists seemed to be very interested with the surroundings of our town and many of them visited the Little Lake Cemetery, Driving Park and other points of interest. They return this evening on the regular 6.45 train going west.

(Ab)original Puns.

Last evening a party of lively maidens at the tea table, wearying of discussing the affairs of their neighbors, turned their attention to Big Bear. "Big Bear is nearly captured," said one; "at least he's hemmed in." "I'd rather hear," said another, "that he's felled;" and another added, "I'm afraid the volunteers will be pretty well tuck-ered out before he's gathered in." "And there may be a good deal of gore before the baste is captured." "Sew I say," said another. "Stop," cried another, "for mercy's sake; you give me a stitch in the side; I can't bear it any longer." "Strike-her-on-the-back; it isn't the puns, her bread and butter's gone bias."

A CANNIBALISTIC CHRISTIAN.

AN AFRICAN PRINCE SEIZES NINE VILLAGERS AND HAS THEM COOKED AND EATEN.

LONDON, June 18.—The native African prince, Allagoaha of the Brass river territory Upper Guinea, while trading at a native village was shot at and wounded in the shoulder by a native, who escaped. The prince took nine villagers as hostages, and, failing to produce the would-be-assassins, he had them cooked and eaten. The missionaries say the prince professed to be a Christian.

A POWERFUL IRONCLAD.

LONDON, June 18.—The British navy today received an important addition in the shape of the twin screw armorbelted ram Benbow, which was launched to-day from the slip of the Thames iron-works and ship building Company. The ceremony of christening was performed by Mr. Gladstone. It is by far the most powerful ironclad afloat. Over 10,000 tons of metal have been used in her construction. She is built entirely of steel, is 380 feet long, 68 feet 6 inches beam, 37 feet deep and has a displacement of 10,000 tons. The engines of 9,500 horse-power will, it is estimated, give her a speed of 17½ knots per hour, making her not only the most powerful, but the fastest armor-clad afloat. Her armaments consist of two 110 ton steel guns, which will fire a projectile weighing 2,000 lbs., 16½ inches in diameter, and propelled by the enormous charge of 900 pounds of powder. She will also have 10 6-inch rifle breech-loading guns, 12 6-pounder quick-firing guns, 10 4-barrel 1-inch machine guns, and 4 5-barrel 4-5 inch machine guns. She is also fitted for torpedoes, having five apertures for their discharge.

BRITISH CABINET CRISIS.

Salisbury's Sorry Success at Cabinet Making.

Gladstone Expected to Resume Office.

LONDON, June 18.—All reports regarding the composition of the new Cabinet concur in the statement that the Earl of Carnarvon will become Viceroy of Ireland, and that Hon. Edward Stanhope will be President of the Board of Trade. Lord George Hamilton is named for first Lord of the Admiralty, Lord John Manners is mentioned for Postmaster-General, Right Hon. Edward Clark, who represents Plymouth in Parliament, will be Attorney-General, Right Hon. John Eldon Gorst, M. P. for Chatham, is named for Solicitor-General.

Mr. Gladstone delivered up to the queen to-day the seals of the office of Prime Minister. The queen gave an audience at Windsor to-day to Sir Stafford Northcote.

The unexpected developments to-day in the march of events render it quite possible in the opinion of many Liberals that Mr. Gladstone, however much he may be disinclined, will be compelled to return to office. It is reported that the Marquis of Salisbury demanded from the retiring ministry a more comprehensive promise of support than they were prepared to give. It is believed by many Liberals also that the visit of Mr. Gladstone to the Queen at Windsor Castle had a connection with this subject of a return to office. Conservatives, on the other hand, have not a doubt but that the Marquis of Salisbury will except office.

THE SCOTT ACT VOTING.

Carried in Two Counties. Defeated in One.

STRATFORD, June 18.—The opponents of the Scott Act scored a success in Perth by 108 majority and one place to hear from, which will increase the total.

ST. CATHARINES, June 18.—The Scott Act was carried in Lincoln county by a majority of 574.

LONDON, June 18.—Returns received from Middlesex give a majority for the Scott Act of 2075.

VARIETIES.

Those who have declared that the American navy is dead are mistaken. The daughter of an admiral is announced as engaged.

It is said that Jean Ingelow never gets tired of writing poetry. No, of course not. That's a way poets have. It's the one who reads the poems who get tired.

It is rather curious that no one who has yet claimed to be the originator of the phrase, "Painting the town red," Perhaps it slipped in when nobody was looking.

A little girl, while on a visit to her grandmother, had been seriously ill, and as she grew better was spoken of as convalescent. Thinking it would be very smart to use so long a word, she wrote home: "Dear mamma, I am happy to say that I am convulsive."

"Granby," said the managing editor, turning to one of his subordinates, "I notice a very glaring error in that battle reminiscence you have just written up." "That so?" "Yes; you forgot to speak of the bullets as 'the leaden hail.' Such criminal negligence will not be tolerated on this paper, Granby."

FRUIT AGAINST GRAIN IN CALIFORNIA.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—The crop reports from the principal wheat growing counties of the state show that the yield will not exceed 24,000,000 bushels, or about three-sevenths of last year's crop. The probabilities are that next year's acreage will show a large decrease, while the fruit area will be largely increased. The fruit crop of all kinds throughout the state will be large and good.

The most successful counterfeit of the dime is said to be made of glass mixed with some base metal by a process unknown to ordinary workers in metal and glass. The counterfeit looks exactly like the genuine 10-cent piece, but on being struck with a hammer it is crushed to pieces.

The Mormon bill should be extended so as to include Kentucky, or at the very least to include Dr. Hirschberg, of Louisville, in that state. He has married, successively, a German, a French girl, an Irish maiden, a mulatress, and six young American damsels. He is now, very properly, in the cold embrace of a jail.

In Queensland, immunity from punishment induces the white men to think nothing of taking the lives of natives, and the latter are killed for stealing a few pieces of tobacco, as was the case with a skipper at Dufaure Ireland. For a trifling theft he shot three men whom he suspected.

The amount of the deposits in the English postal savings banks last year was $200,000,000, and that of the French banks was a little lower. The rate of interest in England is 2½ per cent., and deposits of a shilling and upward draw interest. By this system the poorest depositor has a stake in the integrity and prosperity of the Government.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by Him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

FRIDAY, JUNE 19, 1885.

Y. M. C. A.

It will be remembered that about three months ago, at a meeting called by Mr. G. A. Cox, committees were appointed to wait on the employers of young men to ask their aid in sustaining this work, Some of the Committees went to work at once and met with good success, but through pressure of business, others were not able to do their share, consequently the whole amount was not raised, and as the subscriptions were taken conditionally on the whole fund being subscribed, the Association has not been able to use any of the amount secured. The matter was placed before a meeting of the members of the Association last night, and a number volunteered to canvass for subscriptions. The desire is to have the fund complete by next Tuesday night. The Associa has been doing a good work and their influence is increasing all the time. Of late there has been considerable result in the spiritual work, and the good done in affording an attractive place in which young men may spend their spare hours, either in the daytime or evening, is not easily calculated. If the fund they are seeking to raise now is secured, they will be placed on a permanent financial footing, and the results of the work will, doubtless, be much greater in the future. We trust that any of our readers approached by the canvassers will send them away rejoicing in having obtained a good subscription.

GOLD MINING IN INDIA.

It is perhaps not generally known that glowing accounts came from the vast empire of Hindostan not long since, respecting discoveries of enormous deposits of gold in certain districts. Scientists and skilled metallurgists predicted that a veritable golden age had arrived which would exceed in its auriferous wealth all that had been realized in Australia. They predicted that great organic changes as regards the price of food and manufactures were imminent and that society must prepare for an entirely new order of things.

Soon there came upon the scene the active pioneers of all enterprises of this kind. The promoters of public companies with the usual respectable and responsible individuals as directors was at once projected. Prospectuses were issued, capital was at once subscribed to work "the diggings" and the stock exchange of London cheerfully assisted the task of "floating" the companies by granting quotations in the shares. Of course the promoter, having completed his task, took his profit and then disappeared from the scene.

The directors and shareholders were then left free to develop "the splendid mineral properties," which they had secured by the outlay of so much capital, and at once they set to work. They secured mining engineers to carry out preliminaries, purchased the most approved machinery for quartz crushing, washing, melting and assaying, and engaged skilled miners from Cornwall and Australia to give the benefit of their experience to the companies and to secure the auriferous deposits without delay.

What has been the result? Have new fields of enterprise, through the gold deposits of India, been opened up to the hungry capitalist and the skilled labourer? Is there to be a rush of adventurers and of the huge army of nondescripts from all parts of the world, to this new El Dorado? We think not.

As usual, the specious representations and predictions made by the promoters of these gold companies have not been realized. Failure and disappointment in fact are to be recorded in every instance. Practical men, from the results which have been achieved, have arrived at the conclusion that the gold fields of India have yet to be discovered.

We have seen the report of one of these gold mining companies. It began under most encouraging and cheering prospects. The results are disappointing and unsatisfactory. At the diggings 480 tons of quartz were crushed by a most difficult and tedious process. Two separate essays of their large quantity of ore were made, and the mean result was a yield of 32 grains of gold per ton of quartz. When "milled" the quartz yielded 64 ounces seven pennyweights of retorted gold, and with a few ounces present in the "tailings," the entire yield from the 480 tons of ore amounted to only seventy ounces! the outlook for the shareholders under such circumstances is certainly not a very cheerful one. The collapse is indeed complete, the very names of these Indian mines have passed out of the stock exchange price lists, and it is very unlikely that the unfortunate shareholders, who were caught by the glitter of the prospectus and the wily tongue of the promoter, will ever receive any reward for their enterprise. Until our knowledge is more advanced and our means of extracting gold, when found, less costly and complex, it may be desirable to hesitate before throwing good money after bad, by investments in gold mines anywhere, of which nothing positive is known.

There is certainly enormous mineral wealth in Canada, but even here we do not know that gold has been revealed in sufficient quantity to yield a fair profit to the explorer and immediate returns to the capitalist when crushing must be resorted to. Perhaps in one or two instances great results have been achieved at Silver Islet and elsewhere, but these returns have been very uncertain and not a little hazardous and fluctuating. So far as India is concerned the conclusion is forced upon us that gold deposits have not been found in sufficient quantity to give any appreciable returns for the capital invested. The same thing has been said, we know, by many experienced men regarding our own Dominion. Others, more sanguine, maintain that there are vast mineral deposits in many parts of our country, and that if sufficient capital could be had to invest therein so as to develop them to their utmost, the returns would be found profitable and, indeed, exceedingly remunerative. It may be so, yet we are of the number of those who maintain that, in such matters, it is well to bear in mind the old adage, "all is not gold that glitters."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hon. Mr. Pope is blessed with a very convenient blindness or his powers of observation are to be much distrusted. Last summer, durring his trip to the Northwest, he noticed that the C. P. Railway was exceedingly well built; now that the railway company is asking for further aid he has a most vivid recollection of it. But he was utterly unable to take note of the grievances of the people, of so grave a character, that very soon after his visit the issue of them was open rebellion. None is so blind as he that will not see.

PARLIAMENTARY SUMMARY.

THURSDAY, JUNE 17th.

Mr. Blake's speech on the Pacific Syndicate relief scheme was concluded this afternoon, and well deserved the tumultuous cheers with which it was greeted. The last two hours of his speech were devoted to the masterly and complete exposure of the Syndicate's stock-jobbing and dividend-paying operations. He proved that the whole affair was a gigantic swindle from beginning to end, and that the new proposed arrangement meant not only that the government and the country would never recover a dollar that has been loaned to the Company, but that it would be in the interests of the Company to make default soon, because then the Government would not only have to buy out the stockholders, but pay off fifteen million dollars of bonds, which it was proposed to allow them to issue. The damaging facts and figures presented by the leader of the Opposition cannot be controverted. They are based on returns prepared by the Government and Syndicate. The route through the Selkirks he showed to be impracticable because of snow slides and avalanches. The Syndicate have already received from all sources subsidies equivalent to over $139,000,000, to complete a road which, according to Sir Chas. Tupper's estimate, was only going to cost $50,000,000.

Mr. Blake concluded his speech at half-past five, and Mr. Ives, of Richmond, and Wolfe, took the floor amid groans and laughter. He said he was going to perpetrate a joke, but failed. Perhaps he thought his attempting to reply to Mr. Blake was an immense joke. Possibly it was with the view of disparaging Mr Blake's magnificent speech that Mr. Ives was put up to follow him, but the spectacle of Mr. Ives being put up to defend his father-in-law's outrageous jobbery was not a joke but an exhibition of brazen indecency. The affection of Mr. Pope and Mr. Ives for the Pacific Syndicate is thoroughly understood. The Syndicate if kept afloat, have promised to make Mr. Pope's International a part of their through line. Mr. Ives eulogized the Syndicate but was careful not to touch the stock jobbing and dividend paying operations. He was not ready to proceed when Mr. Blake sat down, and he asked that it might be called six o'clock, so that he might get his points from Mr. Abbott.

WILL THE EVIDENCE BE DESTROYED.

According to Rev. Caleb Parker, of Prince Albert, N.W.T., the Dominion Government has possession of all Reil's papers and records which have been kept very systematically, and in which many prominent people are implicated. That many important developments are yet to be made is the general belief; but the trouble is that they are in the hands of the Government, who, since their reputation and, perhaps, their further political life may depend upon them will, as has been the past experience, have no hesitation in giving them to the flames, or otherwise disposing of them for once and forever, upon the principle that "dead men tell no tales." The destruction of this damning evidence will, we doubt not, be considered essential, the more so as scapegoats, whose absence and consequent silence has, if report be true, already been provided for. The persons who announce that the Government have secured the papers are reliable witnesses, who may, perhaps, be acquainted with the facts that the documents disclose. On this account it may be that, despite the Ministerial endeavors, the entire "murder will out," The Government will, therefore, do well to allow a clean breast to be made of the whole business, particularly since, whatever may be the fate of Monsieur Riel, he may desire that the public be made aware of his version of the case. There must be no withholding of essential facts, no matter whom the exposure of the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, may affect.—Montreal Times.

The children of the late B. S. The Japanese women advertise the number of their years by the arrangement of their hair. Girls from nine to fifteen wear their hair interlaced with red crape, describing a half circle around the head, the forehead being left free, with a curl on each side. From fifteen to thirty the hair is dressed very high on the forehead, and put up at the back in the shape of a fan or butterfly, with interlacings of silver cord and a decoration of colored bails. Beyond thirty a woman twists her hair around a shell pin, placed horizontally at the back of the head. Widows also designate themselves, and whether they wish to marry again.

Recent figures show that the consumption of liquor in the United States has far outstripped the growth of population. The number of gallons consumed yearly since 1840 has increased as follows: 1840, 71,000,000; 1850, 94,000,000; 1860, 209,000,000; 1870, 292,000,000; 1880, 506,000,000; 1883, 655,000,000. While the population has only trebled in the last forty years the consumption of intoxicants is nearly ten times greater than it was in 1840, and the amount of money expended in the purchase thereof is twenty or thirty times greater. Our annual expenditure for liquor now exceeds $800,000,000.

Mexican Girls.

The rich are so very rich that they have no ambition; the poor so desperately poor that they have no hope, to speak of. The daughters of the wealthy pass their lives in vacuity; those of the poor are so poorly fed and dressed that they nearly all look hunger bitten and ill developed. There are no lyceums, debating clubs, dramatic associations, public lectures, picnics, or any athletic sports in which the women can join. They are as completely without good shape as any set of women I saw. I doubt if there are a dozen of good forms in this city, and as to legs and feet—Apollo, bless us!—the stockings of an average Hoosier girl would go twice around for a Chihuahua belle. A resident physician tells me that the health of the higher class women is wretchedly poor. Very few of them can nurse their own children. They usually marry at from 15 to 17 and are careworn at 25. This physician attempted to introduce bicycles, but the young ladies had neither strength to manage nor persistence to master them. A few hammocks were sold here, but the feeble things nearly broke their necks in getting out of them. A really plump, vigorous, healthy woman of the wealthy classes is a rarity, though many of them have a sort of languid beauty. Ponder these things in your heart, and the next time you see a beautiful senorita swinging in voluptuous languor (on the top of a cigar box) in a gorgeous hammock, with delicate wreaths of smoke circling from her pretty rosebud lips, you will know her for the printed humbug that she is. As to real beauty, that which satisfies the heart of the natural man, I can find more of it in one class of Indiana high school girls than in the whole State of Chihuahua—if this city is a fair simen.—Cor. Houston Post.

Need More Humble Men.

While old John was acting as special justice of the peace, a young negro, charged with bigamy, was arraigned before him.

"It do seem ter me," said John, surveying the prisoner' "dat de young men ob ter-day ain't got no sense nohow. De worl' is a slidin' back all de time an' de 'sperience ob one man ain't wuf a cent ter a nudder man."

"Jedge, I'se sorry dat I'se violated de law," the young negro said, looking up with that air of supplication which the repentant colored gentleman can so artfully assume.

"I ain't talkin' 'bout de law," the judge replied. "I was talkin' 'bout de little sense a man shows in marryin' twicet. It's bad nuff ter marry once, but from two times may de Lawd save me. I'se a married man, as much ob a married man as de common run ob men, an' its jes' as much as I ken do ter git along, but ef I was married ter two sich women as my wife is, dar wouldn't be human power nuff in dis town ter keep me outen de ribor. Go on home sah, and lib wid yer wives; suffer through the season an' by de time de frost comes an' de leaves turns yaller, yer'll be de right sort ob man ter go out an' preach the gospel of humility. THE REV. this! I should not have sanctioned it I assure you! God grant you may not undo all the progress your own health has made. Well, I have come to say that my poor patient up stairs has heard your voice and knows you are here. He begs you to come to him, and I see no help for it now. So you must go—but no one must go with you—he must be kept quiet."

"My aunt will come with me," said Lucy—"no one else."

"I'll make bold to help to carry you as far as the door, though," said the captain, and he and the landlord carried Lucy up stairs in her chair. She would walk into the room—he must not know how far from well she was. He was lying propped up by the pillows, his eyes fixed on the door by which he expected Lucy to enter. Before he could speak she was by his side, and had taken his wasted hand in hers, and was looking into his face.

"You have come! They told me that I must die without seeing you. Why would you not come to me?"

"I was not well myself," said Lucy, faintly, "and they concealed your illness from me. I did not know how ill you were until to-day."

"I was sure they did not tell you how I longed to see you—quite sure, or you would have come."

"But did they not tell you how ill I was?" said she.

The doctor stepped forward—the nurse, a north-country servant of the doctor's, ranged herself behind in him a combative attitude. The doctor spoke: "We thought it right not to inform Mr. Richmond of the serious nature of your illness. We thought the knowledge might aggravate his own symptoms."

"You made a mistake, doctor," said Lucy, simply; "you should have told your patient the truth, and then he would not have wished me to come—he would have been calmer, I am sure. I have been very ill," said she to Hugh Richmond, "and they deceived me about your illness. I never knew you were really ill until an hour or two ago. I came at once."

"I have been so miserable about not seeing you," said he. "I thought you did not care enough for me to come."

"I came the moment I knew. It was very cruel for them to deceive us so."

"They have done great harm by their over-wisdom!" said he; "they have fretted my life away."

"Umph!" said the doctor, who did not relish so much frank criticism. "Madaro, if you are going to stay here, I must beg you to be quiet. I cannot allow any more conversation. You do not know the harm you are doing. You can stay if you like, but you must sit down quietly. The nurse will do all that is needful in the way of giving Mr. Richmond his medicine. I shall look in again during the course of the night, but, Miss Clavering, I beg of you not to stay long here—I assure you my patient would be better alone with his nurse."

The doctor departed. Hugh Richmond turned to Lucy, and said, "Surely you will not leave me! The doctor says I shall die to-night."

Lucy said, "No, I will not leave you."

His feet were icy cold—the nurse was applying hot flannels to them—they also brought hot bottles, but nothing seemed to warm them. He fell back and lay as if exhausted. The few words he had heard and said seemed to have thoroughly fatigued him, and now Lucy saw how terribly ill he was. She sat silently by his bedside waiting, praying, hoping. She did not know how long she had been thus sitting when he again spoke. "I know we are both in the cave again, because it is so bitterly cold. It won't last long. They take me up in the middle of the night and put me into a scalding hot bed. My feet lie on hot coals and my head is scorched with fire. This state of things is better than that—but nurse, my feet are wet, and that is what makes them so cold.—Don't you know they got wet this morning on the causeway?—that's what makes them so cold now. Miss Clavering, tell her about it—she does not believe me.—She thinks I talk that way because I am ill."

Lucy shuddered. It was terrible to hear his mind wander. He saw that she did so, and said, "You shudder, too—and how pale you are! Starlight makes your face so wan and blue."

"Mr. Richmond," said the nurse, "you must not talk. The lady will go away if you do."

He looked inquiringly in Lucy's face.

"Yes," said she, firmly, "if you talk I must go."

"I can't talk," was his reply, "I am too tired." He sank back wearily, and painfully, and lay quietly for an hour or so, as if in a stupor. His eyelids were not closed, but he seemed unconscious of all around him. The nurse came and felt his pulse. When she had done this his hand dropped as if powerless.

"Is he worse?" Lucy whispered in alarm. "Is he——" She could not finish that question.

"No, he's not dying," said the nurse.—"He'll last another hour or two. They mostly go about three in the morning, or he may go on till the turn of the tide.—That's a great time for them to die."

"Hush! Pray do," said Lucy. "He hears all you say."

"He knows nothing about it if he does. He's always in a sort of stupor till midnight gets over, and then he's in his glory! He talks twenty to the dozen then."

"Please, nurse, don't say such things," pleaded Lucy.

"It's no want of feeling, miss, none! I could not manage at all if I was as took up with pity for him as you are."

"Are his feet warmer?" asked Lucy, softly.

"A little, but he does not find them warmer. Nothing I can do to them has much effect on them. They get warm of their own accord about one o'clock, and then there's no getting them cold again.—The hot fit is worse than the cold fit, and wears him out more, But it's my belief that he will just lie this way, and know no other while he lasts. Poor gentleman, he'll not be obstreperous any more now."

Lucy's heart ached, but she had courage when courage was wanted, and controlled herself. "Nurse, does he never sleep?" she asked.

"Never, to do him any good. That's the worst thing he has had to contend with—that' what's brought him to this."

"But he is perhaps sleeping now?"

"No, he is not. He is quiet, but there's no refreshment in it."

The nurse took an easy chair by the fire, and soon began to doze; Aunt Esther had long since crept to a sofa in the corner and cried herself to sleep; Lucy sat waiting for the end which was now so near. How should she meet his mother? What terrible words she would hear from her! Lucy had caused his death, and he was the only son of his mother, and she a widow! He had died from saving her from the consequences of her own stupidity.—Her thoughts were so bitter that she wished for any sound to break the stillness, but no sound whatsoever was audible to her senses but the breathing of those in the room.

At length Hugh Richmond began to move. "The exhaustion is passing away," said Lucy.

"No, it's the hot fit coming on," said the nurse.

[To be Continued.]

A Voice from the Farm.

"You say that my life is a round of toil?"
The stalwart farmer said.
"That I scarce can wrest from the oft-tilled soil
My pittance of daily bread?
Well, what you tell me in part is true.
I am seldom an idle man.
But I value the blessing of rest, as you,
Who have much of it, never can.

"And, surely, I never have worked in vain,
From the spring to the golden fall;
The harvest has ever brought waving grain,
Enough and to spare for all.
And when in the evening, freed from care,
I see at my farm-house door
My wife and little ones waiting there,
Oh, what has the millionaire more!

"My children may never have hoarded wealth;
Their lives may at times be rough;
But if in their homes they have love and health,
They will find these riches enough.
The only land they will ever own
Is the land that the strong right arm
And the patient, fearless heart alone
Can till to a fertile farm.

"I have nothing beyond my simple wants
And a little for cloudy days;
But no grim spectre my homestead haunts,
Such as silver and gold might raise.
Around me are eyes that with sparkling mirth
Or with placid contentment shine—
And no wealth-clogged lord upon all the earth
Has a lot more blessed than mine.

"Oh, yes, I'm laboring all day long,
With the mind and the muscle, too;
But I thank the Lord, who has made me strong,
And given me work to do.
For what, indeed, is the idle drone
But a vampire on the land,
Reaping fruit that by others was sown,
And not by his own right hand!"

Nip and Tuck.

The train was rattling on, rickety click, rickety click.

"I was in such a hurry to catch the train I didn't wait to buy a ticket," said the New York banker, offering money.

"Yes," replied the conductor, abstractedly, as he punched the next man's ticket, "I notice that a good many New York bankers are in a hurry to catch the trains nowadays."

"Well, sir, you needn't be insolent; here is the money to pay my fare."

"I know, but I can't take it, sir."

"Ah, I see; the company doesn't let you conductors take money. 'Fraid you'll steal it. I see."

"No, sir, there is no company rule against my taking it."

"Then why don't you take it?"

"I'm afraid I'd be arrested for receiving stolen property."

The banker looked out of the window at the shady groves, cool, pellucid streams, while the train went rattling on, rickety click, rickety click.

"Call Me Johnnie."

The editor of the Enquirer is familiarly known as Mac, as might naturally be expected. It is related some time ago a flip young man for an out of town paper was employed on the Enquirer. He soon put himself on a more familiar footing with the editor than had been gained even by old and faithful attaches. One day he walked into the sanctum of the great head of the paper with:

"I say, Mac, how do you like my department in this morning's paper?"

It is related that Mr. McLean looked at him with a withering look, and said:

"Mister Blank," empahsising the Mister, "please don't call me Mac. Nobody calls me that. Call me Johnnie. Everybody calls me Johnnie."

Not taken back a bit, the flip young man answered:

"Oh, I beg pardon. Well, Johnnie, didn't I give 'em a snorter to-day?"—Cincinnati Times Star.

The Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, JUNE 19, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Prompt Measures.

Prompt means should be used to break up sudden colds, and cure coughs in their early stages. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam does this most speedily and effectually. 24-2t

Neat and Newsy.

The Cobourg Sentinel-Star says:—Peterborough now has three dailies, one morning and two evening. The EXAMINER is the latest, and a very neat and newsy sheet it is.

The First of the Season.

It is expected that a large crowd will turn out this evening at 8 o'clock and attend the first canoe parade of the season on the Little Lake. We learned that every available boat at English's boat house has been engaged for the affair, and we will be disappointed if the "fairy scene" of colored lights does not extend from shore to shore. Last summer, canoe parades attracted many persons, not only to join in the line of march, but to witness it from Burnham's Point. Since the above was in type, we are requested to state that the meet has been postponed till Monday night to admit of the committee preparing a better programme.

Successful Lawn Social.

The lawn social held last night in Mr. J. Walton's garden, in aid of the Baptist Church funds, was in every way a signal success. Shortly after 8 o'clock people were noticed in twos and threes going towards the west end of Hunter street and by 9 the garden was completely filled, and ice cream, strawberries, coffee, cake and button-hole bouquets were finding ready sale. The grounds were beautifully decorated and lighted by Chinese lanterns of every hue from the popular vermillion to the quaint heliot rope. An exceedingly pleasant evening was spent until the playing of the National Anthem by the Peterborough Fire Brigade Band at 10 o'clock sharp, dispersed the gathering. The handsome sum of $54 was the net proceeds of the social.

A Cool Headed Boatman.

About two o'clock yesterday afternoon a man was noticed enjoying the breeze on the Otonabee River in a sail boat. The boat skimmed nicely along until Burnham's Point was reached, when a sudden gust of wind caught the sail and capsized the boat. Those who witnessed the occurrence from the bridge, near Spaulding's Bay, expected to hear a cry for help, but that cry was not heard. On the contrary the sailor took things cool, and by careful seamanship managed to turn the craft and bail a sufficient quantity of water out of the boat with his hat to enable him to continue his voyage as far as the Little Lake Cemetery, where everything was got in order, except the sail, which was folded away, a paddle being used in its stead to propel the boat back to town.

A Fish Story.

A short time ago a party of three gentlemen, consisting of a grocery-man, an American tourist and a son of the soil, clubbed together and after making all preliminary preparations decided to repair to some lonely spot in our back lakes, and astonish the natives on their return by producing an immense quantity of various samples from the the deep, They accordingly left Peterborough at an early hour, after assuring a few bosom friends of an ample supply of fish for this morning's breakfast. During the interval of their absence from town, the expectations of one of their friends here can be imagined, when it is stated that he purchased the latest design in the shape of a fish broiler, and judge his disapointment when he he saw one-third of the fishing party alight from a vehicle at the corner of Hunter and Water streets with his arm in a sling and constitutionally "broken up." He felt both glad and sorry to see his man in this condition, sorry for the sling but glad to think for a moment, that the accident happened through the sudden tug on a "lunger." His gladness, however, was but momentary as he saw the driver hand the fisherman his catch, to-wit, a sunfish. The other two are expected to arrive this evening on the Bob-caygeon stage.

PASTOR AND CHOIR.

A Pleasing Exchange of Choral and Pastoral Courtesies.

At the practice of the Charlotte street choir last night, the pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Manning, who is about to remove to another field of labor, was invited to be present at nine o'clock, when Mr. Beattie, a member of the choir, read the following address:

Dear Mr. Manning,

We, the choir of the Charlotte street church, would express our regret at your departure from the field of labour in which you have been so faithfully and successfully engaged for the past three years. Yet, we have the great satisfaction of being able to look back over a season of uninterrupted harmony in our mutual relations as pastor and choir. Our best wishes for your continued and increased success in the Master's work, accompany you to your new scene of labour, where, we trust, you will find many golden sheaves for the Lord of the Harvest.

Our best regards also go with Mrs. Manning and family to the new home in Oshawa, where, we hope, useful and happy years await you all.

And may we all when life's short conflict's o'er,
And scenes of change give place to those of rest,
Meet where the choir above their praises pour
In an eternity of song, forever blest.

Signed on behalf of the choir,
WM. BEATTIE.

Peterborough, June 19th, 1885.

Rev. Mr. Manning, replying in a few simple, graceful words, expressed his gratitude for the kind wishes set forth in the address, and his hearty reciprocation of the friendly and affectionate sentiments it contained. He acknowledged his indebtedness for the important services the choir had rendered him and the assistance he had found it to be in promoting the successful conducting of the services. He had often entered the pulpit, to a certain extent depressed, but a stirring anthem rendered by the choir had cheered and revived him and given him new spirit for the work before him. He would have none but pleasant memories of the pleasant relations that had existed between him and the choir, and trusted that he would always have a place in their recollections. Rev. Mr. Manning then retired and the choir resumed its practice.

Prob's Weather Promises.

A Live Sheet.

The Millbrook Messenger says:—The enterprising publisher of the Peterborough EXAMINER, commenced, on last Saturday, the issuing of a daily, entitled "The Peterborough DAILY EXAMINER." It is a neatly-printed sheet of six columns to the page, contains the latest news, up to the time of going to press, and is altogether a a live sheet. It is sold at two cents a number, and is well patronized with general advertising—the main-stay of any paper. We wish the new arrival much success.

Fun at the Lansdowne.

The race at the Lansdowne Roller Rink tonight is expected to be very interesting. Already quite a number of young men have signified their intention of competeing for the medal which is being offered by the manager, Mr. Ed. Brown. We hope the judges of the race will see that a good start is given the boys, and not allow any elbowing such as was seen at the last sporting event which took place there. We understand that everything is complete for the children's carnival, which is announced to take place on Saturday afternoon; and those who would like to see a pretty sight of minature beauty in fancy and comic costumes will not be disappointed if they attend.

Bridgenorth Regatta.

The boat races which were announced to come off yesterday at Bridgenorth were not attended with that amount of success which the one event that took place deserved. It was advertised some time ago through the columns of THE EXAMINER that a good programme was prepared; and when the Peterborough judges called out the first event, viz:—Single canoe race, distance one mile, Garner Nicholls, John Taylor, George Brummel and George Ritchie took up their positions in the order named and started evenly at the word. Before a dozen lengths had been paddled it was seen that the race was Nicholls', who, although pushed hard at times by Taylor, showed every time when called on that he was there, and won by about four lengths. On account of the roughness of the water it was decided to hold the balance of the programme over until some day next week which will be duly announced. Mr. L. Fobert deserves great credit for his enterprise in providing such excellent sport for those of our townspeople who wish to visit Bridgenorth. We hope that a larger number will attend to see the wind-up of the sport, which will consist of a boys' single hunting canoe race, and for which a number of Indian youths have entered; a single canoe race for men; and a double canoe race for which the following have entered in pairs: Geo. Ritchie and Geo. Brummel, G. Nicholls and Z. Knot, R. David and J. Taylor, Dowie Taylor and W. Taylor.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

Mr. A. Clegg has been awarded the contract of supplying the seating and other interior fittings of the new St. Andrew's church, and will enter upon the work at once.

Canoeing.

The Lindsay Canoe Club propose taking a cruise to Burleigh, and we understand that it is the intention of a number of Peterborough canoeists to meet them at Oak Orchard to-morrow evening.

Bootblack Oratory.

Peterborough is to be visited once more, on June 30th, by John R. Clark of bootblack oratorical notoriety. No doubt a large audience will assemble to hear this speaker, who has gained such fame all over the country for himself, for the eloquence, humor and pathos which characterize his addresses.

Our Volunteer Force.

This morning Col. H. C. Rogers, Major Bell and Capt. E. B. Edwards, waited on the Finance Committee of the County Council, soliciting a grant of $500 for the more thorough equipment of the volunteer force of the town and County. After patriotic speeches by these three gentlemen, a grant of $300 was carried. This is, of course, subject to be otherwise dealt with by the Council in session.

Cheese.

There have been delivered at the Railway station now about 775 boxes of cheese, the lot purchased at the last meeting of the board, by Mr. Cook for Messrs J. T. and F. H. Warrington of Belleville. The agent of the firm that attended to the delivery of the cheese, visited all the factories in this county and reports them in a very satisfactory condition. All the cheese was delivered in first class condition, Influx of Oddfellows.

The Stirling lodge of Oddfellows have made arrangements with the G. T. Railway to run an excursion here from Belleville and all intermediate points on Friday, 26th instant, when the usual Decoration Day process and ceremony will take place. It is expected that the turnout this year will be the largest that has taken place in Peterborough since the inauguration of the observance of the day was made.

The Enniesmore Picnic.

Posters are to be seen in a great number of our stores announcing that the date of the Enniesmore picnic this year has been fixed for Thursday next, the 25th inst., at the usual place for the holding of the annual parish gathering. An excellent programme of sports has been prepared, and the names of the Committee, attached to the bottom of the bill, is a sufficient guarantee that everything will be brought to a successful issue. A first class string band will preside over the platform, and those who are fond of dancing will find "dancing galore."

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

Supply Your Wants.

There are two ways of supplying one's wants. One is to find a reliable merchant, then give him your trade.

The other is to go in search of "bargains" wherever the hue and cry is raised. In one case you get a generous money's worth of honest goods; in the other you are often taken in and find out your loss when your purse is empty.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

BOROUGH BREVITIES.

—Saturday is a busy day at the post office.

—To-day is actual pay day on the Grand Trunk.

—As many as 135 cars passed over the O. & Q. some days.

—The farmers were well represented in town to-day.

—Ashburnham is blooming under the strict enforcement of its cow by-law.

—The thermometer got its temper up to-day by degrees to a pretty sultry pitch.

The hardware men and the weather are helping the farmers get ready for the haying.

—A brace of blue-breasted bobbies were out at day-peep this morning, on a cow-catching excursion.

—The Belleville papers state that the Sons of England will not come to Peterborough as a Society on Dominion Day.

—The Cobourg baseballers are corresponding with the Peterboroughs with reference to a game here on July 1st.

—Peterborough is becoming a favorite resort for excursion parties. Two this week, and many more in prospect.

—The stop logs are to be put in at Dickson's dam to lower the water in the river below, so as to facilitate the search for the body of the late Mrs. Scollie.

—The excursion band that entered into town this morning playing the Last Rose of Summer, was a little previous. The first rose of summer hasn't reported yet.

It will undoubtedly be the trip of the season—the Masonic Excursion on Wednesday next.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Aaron Cox is recovering from his recent severe illness. His many friends have the pleasure of again greeting him on the street.

Mr. A. G. Mortimer, travelling correspondent of the Domion Mechanical and Milling News is spending a couple of days with friends in town.

Mr. Carnegie M.P., was at the nominations in Lennox, speaking in favor of the candidature of Mr. Blackstock, the imported Toronto lawyer.

Parlor Roller Rink.

A number of the excursionists visited the above rink on Water street, this afternoon, and were struck with the cleanliness which is a characteristic of that institution. We understand that it is the intention of the Manager to import another stock of skates, as the late shipment is nearly all sold.

Baptist Church.

At the services in the Murray-street Baptist Church to-morrow Rev. Mr. Munro will preach in the morning on "Looking for the second Coming of Christ," and in the evening on the "Great Tishbite."

COUNTY COUNCIL.

June Session.

FOURTH DAY—FRIDAY.

To-day was fully taken up by the members of the Council in committee work. Previous to adjournment, however, a session was held, when the following reports were read:—

EQUALIZATION AND ASSESSMENT.

The Committee on Equalization and assessments of the municipality reported as follows :—

1. That the basis adopted by the committee and council last year, be the basis of assessment for all County purposes for the year 1885, except that the Village of Norwood, Ashburnham and Lakefield, be increased at the rate of 30 per cent, 10 per cent, and 10 per cent respectively, the present equalized value.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

JOHN LANG, Chairman pro tem.

Moved in amendment to the motion to adopt the report, by Mr. Stephenson, (Norwood), seconded by Mr. Stephenson (Asphodel), that the report be referred back to the committee, with instructions to amend the report by substituting an increase of 20 per cent. instead of 30 per cent. with valuation of last year.

The report was adopted on the following division:—

For amendment :—Messrs. Stephenson, (Asphodel) Stephenson, (Norwood).

Against :—The remainder of the Council.

A motion of Mr. Foley's to increase Lakefield only 5 per cent. instead of 10 was also voted down.

COUNTY PROPERTY.

The Committee on County property report as follows :—

That the Bath in the jail be removed from its present position to the eastern end of the building, and properly fitted up. That a flue be constructed from the stove in the bath room, and placed in the chimney.

That Mr. Nesbitt be instructed to procure the necessary oil and paint for the painting of the jail.

That the County Clerk and County Engineer, be instructed to ask for tenders for iron shelving for books in the Registry office, with power to act.

That steps be procured to the enterance to the park in front of the Court House.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

MICHAEL SANDERSON, Chairman.

June 20th, 1885.

The report was adopted.

SPECIAL GRANT.

Moved by Mr. Leary, seconded by Mr. Moloney,—That the County Treasurer be authorized to hand Mr. Michael Sanderson Reeve of Smith, $25 to assist him in defraying his expenses to Toronto in connection with the Grand Junction Railway suits, he having gone in the interests of this County at his own expense.—Carried.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Moved by Mr. Elmhirst, seconded by Mr. Lang,—That the thanks of this County Council be tendered to Mr. Geo. J. Chalmers, proprietor of the steamer Fairy, for his kindness in placing his pretty little steamer at the disposal of this Council gratuitously on Thursday last, thereby enabling this Council to enjoy a pleasure trip and at the same time examine the Lakefield, Youngs' Point and Burleigh bridges, and see the dilapidated condition of that piece of road in the township of Harvey, from the Big Chute to Rory's Bridge, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to Mr. Chalmers.—Carried.

CONDOLENCE.

Moved by Mr. Moloney, seconded by Mr. Foley, that the accompanying resolution of condolence to the family of the late Captain E. Brown, be engrossed and signed by the members of this Council and county officials and a copy be sent to the family.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned until 9 o'clock on Saturday.

Masonic Sermon.

Rev. Dr. Harper, of Collingwood, will preach a sermon to the masonic brotherhood of Peterborough, on Sunday evening next in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Sale of Furniture.

Bear in mind the fact that the sale of Mr. Wm. Ross' household furniture takes place on Monday next at his residence, Water street, east of the market square. The goods must be sold, as Mr. Ross will leave town for Toronto in a few days.

The Market.

The prices at the market to-day for farm produce was about the same as on Wednesday. From 13 to 16 cents was paid for butter; eggs sold at 11 cents, and potatoes called for 40 cents per bag. The usual amount of green groceries made their appearance, particularly rhubarb, a stalk of which was not to be had at 11 o'clock for love or money.

A Grateful Acknowledgment.

The ladies of the Baptist Church Aid Society wish to thus publicly thank the leader and members of the Peterborough Fire Brigade Band for their attendance and services at the lawn social, held at the residence of J. Walton, Esq., on Thursday evening, and to which the performances of the band gave much additional attractiveness and success.

A Fine Canoe.

The Lindsay Post says :—A fine canoe from the Ontario Canoe Co., of Peterborough has been placed in the boat house by Mr. W. Flavelle. The hull is of basswood, painted, with decking of cherry and walnut trimmings. In every respect it is a strong and shapely canoe and just the model for sailing. An enormous keel will assist in sailing so close "into the eye of the wind" that if the wind doesn't look sharp the eye will be put out."

THE LATE CAPTAIN BROWN.

The County Councillors Compliment His Courage and Condole with His Friends.

The following resolution, referred to in our Council report, was unanimously passed at the session of the County Council on Friday and was signed by the Warden, members of the Council and County Officers :

Whereas, Captain Edward Brown, formerly of the Township of Douro, in the County of Peterborough, lately one of Boulton's Scouts with the army of General Middleton, on active service in the North-West rebellion, was shot and killed at the battle of Battoche while bravely fighting on behalf of his country, we, the undersigned, members and officials of the County of Peterborough, desire to express to his family our sincere sympathy and sorrow in their bereavement.

Whilst we cannot but regret the occasion of his death, it is a consolation to know that he died nobly discharging his duty, fighting for the preservation of public peace and national order. Those of us who knew him in private life can speak of the sincerity and honor which characterized his conduct, whilst the whole country recognize in him that obedience to command and that courage and valour which have laid him so young in a soldier's grave.

BRITISH CABINET CRISIS.

A Complete Dead Lock.

LONDON, June 19.—The fat is again in the fire. Several inspired statements in the papers this morning intimated that Lord Salisbury was likely to refuse to take office unless he gets assurances from the Liberals that certain measures, the Budget proposals for instance, would not be opposed. This will be very unlikely.

Thus the troubles closing around the Tories are almost insuperable. It is quite possible that in spite of the extreme anxiety of the majority of the party and three expecting remunerative places, Lord Salisbury will have to back down after all.

A Runaway Stallion.

This morning the stallion, "Young Hambletonian," owned by Mr. Cotton, was being driven to town; when on Aylmer street he got beyond control of the driver, and plunging away, dashed on to the wire fence near Mr. Hall's residence, severely, but not seriously, it is hoped, cutting his legs on the barbs.

Police Court.

John Edwards, the boot-black, and P. McDonough, were up before the Magistrate this morning on a charge of theft, preferred against them by Mrs. George Clark. The pair, it seems, had a lively time of it yesterday. They purchased a gallon jar of whiskey, and left for the suburbs, was, after imbibing freely of its contents, started out on their expedition of pillage and plunder. They first visited the clothes line of Mrs. Clark and helped themselves to two shirts, after which they repaired to the Protestant Home, but did not manage to add to their booty from that institution. Police Constables McGinty and Pigeon were put on their scent and managed to overhaul them last night. They were found guilty and sentenced to six months at hard labour in the common gaol. After the trial, while they were seated in the police chamber, one was heard to say to the other," "Say, Jack, if they send only one cop up with us to the hill one of us can manage to skin out;" but P. C. Pidgeon's ear was open and the application of the bracelets blocked this little game.

Playing With a Greenhorn.

At the Michigan Central depot the other day, says the Detroit Free Press, three or four citizens, who happened to be waiting for the same train to come in got to talking about confidence men and their victims, and one of them pointed to a particularly verdant specimen of the young-man-from-the-country and said:

"That fellow would be a ripe subject for the fraternity. The chances are that he could be bamboozled as easy as rolling off a log."

"I dunno," replied another. "Suppose you work on him a little as an experiment. Here is a check that I will fill out, and then I will come in at the right time as your pal."

The idea was entered into, and in a few moments No. 1 put himself in the way of the greenhorn and made some inquiries about the trains, and ascertained that the stranger was going to Michigan City.

"So! Why, I am going right there myself. I own a saw-mill there."

"Yew dew, eh?"

"Yes, and I'm here looking for a foreman. I have a boss place for a man at $60 a month."

"That's me to a huckleberry. I've worked in saw-mills all my life."

"You can have the place, and I'm glad to get hold of such a man. Consider yourself engaged for a year at $60 a month."

"Snakes and tom cats but, ain't that luck," chuckled greeny. "Stranger you must be an awful good man."

"Well, I run a Sunday school and try to lead an upright life. Maybe you want a month's salary in advance?"

"Woogh! you don't say so! No, I guess I kin git along, as I have $45 in my pocket."

At this moment the pal came up with the usual bill, which must be paid at once or the new saws for the mill would not be shipped. No. 1 had only $3 or $4 in bills, but offered a check for $200. Following out the usual programme greenhorn was asked to hand over his $45 and take the check for security. The words were hardly out of the man's lips when greeny spit on both hands at once, shot out his right and left in chorus, and there was a thump! thump! which knocked two men flatter than pancakes.

"Softly, gentlemen—softly," commanded greeny as half a dozen men rushed up. "I look like a last year's pumpkin saved over in the basement of a canning factory, but after traveling for eleven years with Forepaugh I ought to know buckwheat from goslings. Pick 'em up and sponge off the blood and turn 'em loose. They'll feel tired all the rest of the day."

He Was Accommodating.

On a Pittsburg & Fort Wayne train, in Indiana, says the Chicago Herald, sat a young man who constantly buried his head in his hands on the back of the seat in front of him. Finally he straightened up; he was beardless and looked serious, though his eyes bore no traces of weeping.

"You don't seem to feel very well," remarked a kindly passenger in the seat behind him.

"No; I have received word that my father has been killed, and I'm going home."

The kindly passenger offered his sympathy and bade the young man not to take it too hard, as death is inevitable and the hour of parting sure to come sooner or later.

"I ain't takin' on much, sir" replied the young man, "not as much as you'd think, considering that when I was home last, three weeks ago, it was to bury my mother."

The kindly passenger was greatly affected by such excess of woe, and in a husky voice offered all the consolation in his power, and endeavored to cheer the boy by picturing to him the relief and happiness his father must have found in being reunited in the realms above with the partner of his earthly joys and sorrows.

"Yes that's a bit encouragin'," rejoined the young man, with a thoughtful look on his pale face, "but it isn't that that's worrying me. I shan't feel content until I get home and learn whether dad has gone and made a fool of himself by getting married agin sence I was there last. Hain't expectin' no better luck than to find a widder there on the farm bossin' things around. Dang the luck!"

An Arkansas Divorce Case.

Several days ago a young negro and his wife appeared before Simon Patterson, a black knight of the rural Arkansaw bench, and demanded a divorce.

"Whut's de trouble 'twixt yer?" asked old Simon.

"I kain't lib wid her an' she kain't lib wid me," replied the husband.

"Why kain't yer?"

"'Cause she ain't eddycated up ter my standpint."

"Ise better eddycated den he is, Jedge, case I kin read an' he kain't," said the woman.

"Oh, she mout hab more book larnin' den I has, boss, but her knowledge ain't de kine whut suits de undersigned. She kin spell cat an' dog, but she kain't spell biled cabbage ter suit me. Ebery time I comes ter de house, I finds dis 'woman han'lin her book, but I doesn't smell nuthin' in de pot."

"Ef yer wuster fetch suthin' in de house, yer would' smell hit dilin in de pot," rejoined the wife.

"Oh dat ain't my lookout. De 'oman's duty, ef I un'erstans de case, is ter furnish suthin' ter eat. Dat's whut I married yer fer. Kain't 'speck me ter keep up de pepertation o' de family an' hussle for bread. I 'longs ter de s'ciety."

"Madam," said the Justice, "de case is ergin yer. De Bible says dat er 'woman mus' mind whut her husban' says. Ef he tole yer ter put suthin' in de pot, an' yer didn' do hit, why dem, yer's laid yerself liabl. Mr. Clerk, write out er 'vorce fur dis gennerman, but doan' gin one ter de lady."—Texas Siftings.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

INFLUENCE OF PUBLIC OPINION.

No stronger evidence of the power of public opinion has recently been shown than the result of the discussion in the Commons of the Senate's Wine and Beer amendments to the Scott Act. The Senate went considerably out of their way to mutilate the Act in defiance of public opinion, unmistakably expressed in the majority of the counties in which the Act has been voted on. Their action was unpopular, and was condemned in all quarters. The different churches were unanimous in their condemnation of the act of mutilation, which virtually destroyed the effectiveness of the Act as a prohibitory measure, and even grand juries in their function of considering the cases of crime, denounced the Senate's action. The most strenuous endeavours were made by the friends of the traffic to secure the adoption of these amendments by the Commons; but the latter did not dare to resist the expression of public opinion that had been made on the subject and therefore the amendments were defeated. There are a great many despondent ideas held respecting the venality of the people's representatives, but the fate that befel the Senate's amendments in the House of Commons shows that when a proper expression is given to the voice of public opinion, represen tative men dare not, no matter how much they may desire to do so, run counter to it. The chief reason of there being corrupt statesmen is the apathy of the people themselves, who may loudly condemn the course of their representatives, but when the latter present themselves for re-election, these very grumblers come meekly under the party whip and re-elect for partizan reasons the very men whose actions for conscience sake they had formerly condemned.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Nominations for the by-elections in Lennox, Simcoe and Kent, too place yesterday. Polling will take place on June 26th.

The Brit ish Post-Office authorities are at present enga ged in negotiations for the establishment of the international parcel post in most of the British Colonies and foreign countries generally.

The other day the Bishop of Toronto, in the Church of England Synod, ruled out of order a motion condemning the Senate's amendments to the Canada Temperance Act, proposing to exclude light wines, ale, lager beer, etc., from its provisions. In the Montreal Synod the Bishop permitted a similar motion to be discussed, and it was carried.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, in a resolution heartily praising the conduct of the Volunteers in suppressing the Northwest rebellion, and expressing sympathy with the bereaved, "expresses the hope that after a thorough inquiry into the causes of the rebellion, such measures will be adopted as may rectify any actual grievances and prevent the recurrence of a state of affairs so disastrous to the regions more immediately affected, and to the best interests of the entire Dominion."

The Toronto Mail with all its political effrontery did not dare to publish the text of the Franchise Bill as introduced by Sir John, but since many of its more objectionable features have been eliminated through the efforts of the opposition, the organ ventures to publish it. But as the Hamilton Times points out the worst provisions still remain. The power of the revising-barristers to strike off and put on names on the voters' list at their own sweet will, or at the will of the Conservative wirepullers, still remains; and while many thousands of white men, who have hitherto had votes, are disfranchised, the Indian wards of the Government are to be enabled to swamp the votes of the less favored but responsible settlers in the neighborhood of the reserves.

THE BANISHED QUEEN.

An Amazing Spectacle—Palatial Luxury—The Revelry of the Royal Guests—The King's Summons—The Queen's Defiance—Her Punishment.

"Also Vashti the Queen made a feast for the women in the Royal House which belonged to King Ahasuerus. On the seventh day, when the heart of the King was merry with wine, he commanded Mehuman, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, and Abagtha, Zethar, and Carcas, the seven chamberlains that served in the presence of Ahasuerus the King, to bring Vashti the Queen before the King with the crown royal, to show the people and the Princes her beauty; for she was fair to look on. But the Queen Vashti refused to come at the King's commandment by his chamberlains; therefore was the King very wroth, and his anger burned in him."—Esther i; 9-12.

We stand amid the palaces of Sushan. The pinnacles are aflame with the morning light. The columns rise festooned and wreathed, the wealth of empires flashing from the grooves; the ceilings adorned with images of bird and beast, and scenes of prowess and conquest. The walls are hung with shields, and emblazoned until it seems that the whole round of splendors is exhausted, Each arch is a mighty leaf of architectural achievement. Golden stars shining down on glowing arabesque. Hangings of embroidered work in which mingle the blueness of the sky, the greenness of the grass, and the whiteness of the sea-foam. Tapestries hung on silver rings, wedding together the pillars of marble. Pavilions reaching out in every direction. These for repose, filled with luxuriant couches, in which weary limbs sink until all fatigue is submerged. These for carousal, where kings drink down a kingdom at one swallow.

AMAZING SPECTACLE!

Light of silver dripping down over stairs of ivory on shields of gold. Floors of stained marble, sunset red and night black, and inlaid with gleaming pearl.

In connection with this palace there is a garden, where the mighty men of foreign lands are seated at a banquet. Under the spread of oak and linden and acacia the tables are arranged. The breath of honeysuckle and frankincense fills the air. Fountains leap up into the light, the spray struck through with rainbows falling in crystalline baptism upon flowering shrubs—then rolling down through channels of marble, and widening out here and there into pools, swirling with the finny tribes of foreign aquariums, bordered with scarlet anemones, hypericums and many-colored ranunculus.

Meats of rarest bird and beast smoking up amid wreaths of aromatics. The vases filled with apricots and almonds. The baskets piled up with apricots and figs and oranges and pomegranates. Melons tastefully twined with leaves of acacia. The bright waters of Eulæus filling the urns and dropping outside the rim in flashing beads amid the traceries. Wine from the royal vats of Ispahan and Shiraz, in bottles of tinged shell, and lily-shaped cups of silver, and flagons and tankards of solid gold. The music rises higher and the revelry breaks out into wilder transport, and the wine has flushed the cheek and touched the brain, and louder than all other voices are the hiccough of the inebriates, the gabble of fools, and the song of the drunkards.

THE KING'S SUMMONS.

In another part of the palace, Queen Vashti is entertaining the princesses of Persia at a banquet. Drunken Ahasuerus says to his servants: "You go out and fetch Vashti from that banquet with the women, and bring her to this banquet with the men, and let me display her beauty." The servants immediately start to obey the king's command; but there was a rule in Oriental society that no woman might appear in public without having her face veiled. Yet here was a mandate that no one dare dispute, demanding that Vashti come in unveiled before the multitude. However, there was in Vashti's soul a principle more regal than Ahasuerus, more brilliant than the gold of Shushan, of more wealth than the realm of Persia, which commanded her to disobey this order of the king; and so all the righteousness and holiness and modesty of her nature rises up into one

SUBLIME REFUSAL.

She says, "I will not go into the banquet unveiled." Ahasuerus was infuriate; and Vashti, robbed of her position and estate, is driven forth in poverty and ruin to suffer the scorn of a nation, and yet to receive the applause of after generations, who shall rise up to admire this martyr to kingly insolence. Well, the last vestige of that feast is gone; the last garland has faded; the last arch has fallen; the last tankard has been destroyed; and Shushan is a ruin; but as long as the world stands there will be multitudes of men and women, familiar with the Bible, who will come into this picture-gallery of God and admire the divine portrait of Vashti the queen, Vashti the veiled, Vashti the sacrifice, Vashti the silent.

I. I the first place, I want you to look upon

VASHTI THE QUEEN.

A blue ribbon, rayed in white, drawn around her forehead, indicated her queenly position. It was no small honor to be queen in such a realm as that. Hark to the rustle of her robes! See the blaze of her jewels! And yet, my friends, it is not necessary to have palace and regal robe in order to be queenly. When I see a woman with stout faith in God, putting her foot upon all meanness and selfishness and godless display, going right forward to serve Christ and the race by a grand and a glorious service, I say: "That woman is a queen," and the ranks of heaven look over the battlements upon the coronation; and whether she come up from the shanty on the commons or the mansion of the fashionable square, I greet her with a a shout, "All hail, Queen Vashti!"

UNCROWNED QUEENS.

What glory was there on the brow of Mary of Scotland, or Elizabeth of England, or Margaret of France, or Catherine of Russia, compared with the worth of some of our Christian mothers, many of them gone into glory?—or of that woman mentioned in the Scriptures, who put her all into the Lord's treasury?—or of Jephthah's daughter, who made a demonstration of unselfish patriotism?—or of Abigail, who rescued the herds and flocks of her husband?—or of Ruth, who toiled under a tropical sun for poor, old, helpless Naomi?—or of Florence Nightingale, who went at midnight to staunch the battle-wounds of the Crimea?—or of Mrs. Adoniram Judson, who kindled the lights of salvation amid the darkness of Burmah?—or of Mrs. Hemans, who poured out her holy soul in words which will forever be associated with hunter's horn, and captive's chain, and bridal hour, and lute's throb, and curfew's knell at the dying day?—and scores and hundreds of women, unknown on earth, who have given water to the thirsty, and bread to the hungry, and medicine to the sick, and smiles to the discouraged—their footsteps heard along dark lane and in government hospital, and in almshouse corridor and by prison gate? There may be no royal robe—there must be no palatial surrounding. She does not need them; for all charitable men will unite with the crackling lips of fever-struck hospital and plague-blotched lazaretto in greeting her as she passes: Hail! Hail! Queen Vashti."

II. Again, I want you to consider

VASHTI THE VEILED.

Had she appeared before Ahasuerus and his court on that day with her face uncovered she would have shocked all the delicacies of Oriental society, and the very men who in their intoxication demanded that she come, in their sober moments would have despised her. As some flowers seem to thrive best in the dark lane and in the shadows, and where the sun does not seem to reach them, so God appoints to most womanly natures a retiring and unobtrusive spirit.

God once in a while does call an Isabella to a throne, or a Miriam to strike the timbrel at the front of a host, or a Marie Antoinette to quell a French mob, or a Deborah to stand at the front of an armed battalion, crying out, "Up! Up! This is the day in which the Lord will deliver Sisera into thy hands." And when women are called to such outdoor woork and to such heroic positions, God prepares them for it; and they have iron in soul, and lightnings in their eye, and whirlwinds in their breath, and the borrowed strength of the Lord Omnipotent in their right arm. They walk through furnaces as though they were hedges of wild-flowers, and cross seas as though they were shimmering sapphire; and all the harpies of hell down to their dungeon at the stamp of womanly indignation.

But these are the exceptions. Generally, Dorcas would rather make a garment for the poor boy; Rebecca would rather fill the trough for the camels; Hannah would rather make a coat for Samuel; the Hebrew maid would rather give a prescription for Naaman's leprosy; the woman of Sarepta would rather gather a few sticks to cook a meal for famished Elijah; Phebe would rather carry a letter for the inspired apostle; mother Lois would rather educate Timothy in the Scriptures. When I see a woman going about her daily duty—with cheerful diginity presiding at the table, with kind and gentle, but firm dicipline presiding in the nursery, going out into the world without any blast of trumpets following in the footsteps of Him who went about doing good—I say: "This is Vashti with a veil on."

THE UNVEILED.

But when I see a woman of unblushing boldness, loud-voiced, with a tongue of infinite clitter-clatter, with arrogant look, passing through the streets with the step of a walking-beam, gayly arrayed into a very hurricane of millinery, I cry out: "Vashti has lost her veil!" When I see a woman struggling for political preferment—trying to force her way on up to the ballot box amid the masculine demagogues who stand, with swollen fists and bloodshot eyes and pestiferous breath, to guard the polls—wanting to go through the loaferism and the defilement of popular sovereigns, who crawl up from the saloons greasy and foul and vermin-covered, to decide questions of justice and order and civilization—when I see a woman, I say, who wants to press through all that horrible scum to get to the ballot-box, I say: "Ah, what a pity! Vashti has lost her veil."

When I see a woman of comely features, and of adriotness of intellect, and endowed with all that the schools can do for one, and of high social position, yet moving in society with superciliousness and hauteur, as though she would have people know their place, and an undefined combination of giggle and strut and rhodomontade, endowed with allopathic quantities of talk, but only homœpathic infinitesimals of sense, the terror of dry goods clerks and railroad conductors, discoverers of significent meanings in plain conversation, prodigies of badinage and inuendo—I say: "Vashti has lost he veil."

III. Again, I want you this morning to consider

VASHTI THE SACRIFICE.

Who is this that I see coming out of that palace gate of Sushan? It seems to me that I have seen her before. She comes homeless, houseless, friendless, trudging along with a broken heart. Who is she? It is Vashti the sacrifice. Oh! what a change it was from regal position to a wayfarer's crust. A little while ago, approved and sought for; now, none so poor as to acknowledge her acquaintanceship. Vashti the sacrifice!

Ah! you and I have seen it many a time. Here is a home empalaced with beauty. All that refinement and books and wealth can do for that home has been done; but Ahasuerus, the husband and the father, is taking hold on paths of sin. He is gradually going down. After a while he will flounder and struggle like a wild beast in the hunter's net—further away from God, further away from the right. Soon the bright apparel of the children will turn to rags; soon the household song will become the sobbing of a broken heart.

THE OLD STORY

over again. Brutal Centaurs breaking up the marriage feast of Lapithæ. The house full of outrage and cruelty and abomination, while trudging forth from the palace gate are Vashti and her children. There are homes represented in this house this morning that are in danger of such a breaking-up. Oh, Ahasuerus! that you should stand in a home, by a dissipated life destroying the peace and comfort of that home. God forbid that your children should ever have to wring their hands, and have people point their finger at them as they pass down the street, and say: "There goes a drunkard's child." God forbid that the little feet should ever have to trudge the path of poverty and wretchedness! God forbid that any evil spirit born of the wine-cup or the brandy-glass should come forth and uproot that garden, and with a lasting, blistering, all-consuming curse, shut forever the palace gate against Vashti and the children!

Tabernacle Sermons.

One night during the war I went to Hagerstown to look at the army, and I stood on a hill-top and looked down upon them. I saw the camp-fires all through the valleys and all over the hills. It was a weird spectacle, those camp-fires, and I stood and watched them; and the soldiers who were gathered around them were, no doubt talking of their homes, and of the long march they had taken, and of the battles they were to fight; but after a while I saw these camp-fires begin to lower; and they continued to lower, until they were all gone out, and the army slept. It was imposing when I saw the camp fires; it was imposing in the darkness when I thought of that great host asleep. Well, God looks down from heaven, and He sees the firesides of Christendom and the loved ones gathered around these firesides. These are the camp-fires where we warm ourselves at the close of the day, and talk over the battles of life we have fought and the battles that are yet to come. God grant that when at last these fires begin to go out and continue to lower until finally they are extinguished, and the ashes of consumed hopes strew the hearth of the old homesteads, it may be because we have "Gone to sleep that last long sleep,

From which none ever wake to weep."

Now we are an army on the march of life. Then we shall be an army bivouacked in the tent of the grave.

IV. Once more: I want you to look at

VASHTI THE SILENT.

You do not hear any outcry from this woman as she goes forth from the palace gate. From the very dignity of her nature, you know there will be no vociferation. Sometimes in life it is necessary to make a retort; sometimes in life it is necessary to resist; but there are crises when the most triumphant thing to do is to keep silence. The philosopher, confident in his newly discovered principle, waited for the coming of more intelligent generations, willing that men should laugh at the lightning rod and cotton-gin and steamboat — waiting for long years through the scoffing of philosophical schools, in grand and MAGNIFICENT SILENCE.

Galileo, condemned by mathematicians and monks and cardinals, caricatured everywhere, yet waiting and watching with his telescope to see the coming up of steller re-inforcements, when the stars in their courses would fight for the Copernican system; then sitting down in complete blindness and deafness to wait for the coming on of the generations who would build his monument and bow at his grave. The reformer, execrated by his contemporaries, fastened in a pillory, the slow fires of public contempt burning under him, ground under the cylinders of the printing press, yet calmly waiting for the day when purity of soul and heroism of character will get the sanction of earth and the plaudits of heaven.

Affliction enduring without any complaint the sharpness of the pang, and the violence of the storm, and the heft of the chain, and the darkness of the night—waiting until a divine hand shall be put forth to soothe the pang, and hush the storm, and release the captive. A wife abused, persecuted, and a perpetual exile from every earthly comfort—waiting, waiting, until the Lord shall gather up His dear children in a heavenly home, and no poor Vashti will ever be thrust out from the palace gate.

DIVINE SILENCE.

Jesus, in silence and answering not a word, drinking the gall, bearing the cross, in prospect of the rapturous consummation when

"Angels thronged His chariot wheel.
And bore Him to His throne;
Then swept their golden harps and sung,
The glorious work is done."

Oh, woman! does not this story of Vashti the queen, Vashti the veiled, Vashti the sacrifice, Vashti the silent, move your soul? My sermon converges into the one absorbing hope that none of you may be shut out of the palace gate of heaven. You can endure the hardships, and the privations, and the cruelties, and the misfortune of this life if you can only gain admission there. Through the blood of the everlasting covenant, you go through those gates or never go at all. God forbid that you should at last be banished from the society of angels, and banished from the companionship of your glorified kindred, and banished forever. Through the rich grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, may you be enabled to imitate the example of Rachel, and Hannah, and Abigail, and Deborah, and Mary, and Esther, and Vashti.

EXPECTANCY.

Now palpitating nature seems to hush
In awed expectancy of him
Who annually enters, slick and slim,
The editorial presence grim,
And lays upon the desk a roll of gush.

The godless editor of speech is slow,
But lightning-like in deed is he.
A club he seizes, and with fiendish glee
Fells, as sturdy woodman fells the tree
That blooming writer of "Beautiful Snow."

A bright, thoughtful boy one Summer day
Planted an acorn and went his way;
Both grew, as boys and acorns can,
Till one was a tree, the other a man.
Now mark the reward: Along comes the man
And the tree shelters him, as an oak tree can
But why stays he there in the moonlight dim?
He stole a fine horse and was hung to a limb!

The man who economizes saves, and he who saves most can invest most, and he who invests most reaps most in the way of net profits. This is the law in a country where all roads are free to citizens. The brewery of Bass, who has just died in his eighty-fifth year, covers 200 acres of ground, and 3,000 people are employed in it. He was the grandson of the founder of the brewery, and was a local benefactor, having built churches, constructed baths and endowed a free library. The Basses have always been Liberals, while the other brewers, the Allsops, have been Tories.

Last evening a pretty young married woman was sitting on her front steps alone and in tears. Just then her mother happened to call on her. "What, Eveline, crying! Why, does Charles treat you badly?" Bismarck's favorite beverage—beer or wine—was lately the subject of a wager between two Prussians, who actually applied to the Chancellor himself to settle the bet. The Prince's version left them as wise as they were before, for his secretary replied: "His Highness directs me to inform you that you are both in the right, inasmuch as he is equally fond of good wine and good beer, and, with the exception of his sick days, partakes of one as well as the other."

Last Saturday a Philadelphia fish dealer departed for a railroad station a few miles out to spend Sunday with some friends. After the cars had started he found on looking at his return ticket that "in consideration of reduced rates," etc., the ticket was good until the day following; so on his return on Monday he had to buy another ticket to come home on. A day or so afterward a leading officer of the company bought a couple of early shad of him. They were delivered, and on opening the bundle was found a card stating that "in consideration of the low price charged the shad would not be good after two hours." The fish had to be thrown away and that officer has been in a brown study ever since Wonder if the women who cut out and sew together hundreds of pieces of silk and ribbons and call it a crazy quilt keep the buttons sewed on their husbands' shirts and pants. Wonder if the women who are always knitting tidies keep the house tidy. Wonder if tatting, so fashionable some years ago, wasn't an aid to tattling. Wonder if the women who devote a good share of their time to household duties and to bringing up children right aren't the best after all.

Mr. Isham Plunkett, of Carroll county, says that a short while since he was in his orchard gathering peaches. As he approached the house on his return from the orchard with a pair of twin peaches he was met by a servant, who remarked: "There are three." No," he replied, holding up the peaches, "there are only two." "Yes, there are," responded his informant, "there's three!" Well, to make a long story short, his wife "done it." He had three new responsibilities in the house.—Atlanta Constitution.

We Americans are supposed to "beat creation" in the ingenuity and boldness of our advertising dodges, and some large firms keep men especially employed in devising new methods of attracting public attention when old dodges begin to irritate or bore. A London theater manager has been the first one however, to impress the telegraph into his service and send genuine telegrams giving well-to-do householders all over town the following information: "You should not miss seeing 'youth,' revived with best company in London. Also with new and startling effects."

"The tight-lacing young lady," says Richard A. Proctor, the astronomer, "is, after all, the fit partner for the male of her kind. Pinched waists and shallow brain-pans should marry and intermarry till waists contract and brains grow shallower to the vanishing point." This is rather strange advice for a scientific man to give. The procreation of imbeciles will not hasten the millennium. He, as well as other persons, knows that if human beings could be reared upon the principles that govern the breeding of animals, the race would be improved. Young Cricketers for Lakefield.

The juniors, of the Peterborough Cricket Club, drove to Lakefield this morning to play a return match with the Lakefield youngsters. We hope the boys will make as good a record, of their cricketing capabilities, as they did a short time ago on the Ashburnham grounds.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day is received from the Toronto Meterological office :—Winds between south-east and south-west; fair and warm, with a few local showers in western Ontario to-night.

Bright and Newsy.

The Prescott Telegraph says :—The Peterborough EXAMINER, one of our most valued exchanges, appeared on Saturday last with a daily edition This new daily is bright and newsy, well edited and presents an appearance of care and forethought in its make up. We wish it abundant success.

Well Arranged and Spicy.

The Trenton Courier says :—"The DAILY EXAMINER, Peterborough, starts off well in advertising patronage and is well arranged and spicy in its contents. The handsome weekly EXAMINER is a guarantee of superiority in the mechanical make-up and general appearance of the daily. Bon voyage.

Football.

Last evening the return match between the boys club in connection with the Y.M.C.A. and the Barnardo boys was played on the grounds of the Hazel Brae Home. The first and only game lasted from 7.30 until 8.20 p. m., and was claimed by the Y.M.C.A. boys; but was disputed by the Hazel Brae lads. The referee, however, ruled in favour of the former club.

Sunday School Picnic.

The annual picnic in connection with St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday School will be held this year at Norwood on Thursday, July 16th. This will be the first picnic over the O. & Q. Railway from Peterborough this season, and we have no doubt that it will be a financial success. Further particulars will appear later in the EXAMINER.

The President Appealed to.

Mr. H. LeBrun was called on yesterday to exercise, for the first time, his authority as president of the National Amateur Lacrosse Association. The call was made from Brockville, for the appointment of a referee for the match which takes place to-day in Cornwall between teams of those places for the eastern championship. He appointed Dr. Stuart, of Ottawa, as referee. It is to be hoped that parties making such requests again will do so on a little longer notice.

Contract Awarded.

The contract for the building of the new spire on St. Peter's Cathedral has been awarded to Mr. Carveth, who has had the contract of the carpenter work on that building for some time. The height of the stone work is 78 feet and the height of the steeple when finished will be 85 feet, allowing 13 feet for the cross; and the distance from the basement of the Cathedral to the top of the cross will be 163 feet. The sum of the tender which was received and accepted was $1,500. We understand that work on the spire is to be commenced before July 1st.

ADDRESS AND ALBUM.

Rev. Mr. Manning Again Pays the Pleasant Penalty of Popularity.

On Friday evening Rev. Mr. Manning was again honored with an address, accompanied by a presentation. This time the young ladies of the Bible class, (of which Rev. Mr. Manning is conductor) of the Charlotte street Methodist Sunday School, met at the parsonage, when Miss Beccie Fair read the following address:

Dear Mr. Manning:

We, the members of the Bible Class of the Charlotte Street Methodist Sunday School, while submitting respectfully to the decree of the conference which closes your ministrations in Peterborough, cannot allow you to go to your, new field of labor without expressing our deep regret at parting with you. For three happy years we have sat under your faithful and earnest teachings, but most of all in the exercises of the Bible Class will your presence be missed by us. We have enjoyed the benefit of your scholary researches into the deeper secrets and more hidden beauties of the Word of Life, and, while it shall, by God's help, continue to be a lamp unto our feet, its light will, in our after life, shine more brightly as the result of your teachings.

While wishing that in your new field of labor, your lines may be cast in pleasant places, we are sure you will find none who will love you more dearly, or more gratefully cherish recollections of the kindly zeal you will ever show in your capacity as instructor in the precious truths of the Bible.

We ask your acceptance of this Album as a tangible token of our love and respect, coupled with our prayers for the temporal and spiritual prosperity of your self and family, and the hope of a happy reunion in that land where Sabbath's never end.

Signed on behalf of the Charlotte Street Methodist Sunday School Bible Class,

Marry Webber	Libbie Lumsden
Hattie Webber	Jennie Lumsden
Jennie Coe	Bessie Hardy
Ada Hughes	Lily Alford
Phœbe Barrie	Ella Cox
Minnie Cox	Beccie Fair
Lizzie Johnston	Lou Huffman
Annie Brundrett	Jennie Neil
Edith Brundrett	Minnie Eastland

Mr. Manning briefly replied with thanks for the gift—a beautiful morocco-bound album, which was presented by Miss Mary Webber. He said he was completely surprised. He could all the more heartily reciprocate the sentiments contained in the address, because he had pleasantly experienced in his past relations what was therein expressed in words. He never had more pleasure and satisfaction than he enjoyed in the associations with the Bible Class of the Charlotte street Methodist Church. He was glad to meet the members of the class independently of the occasion that had brought them together.

Then the piano was thrown open and a pleasant hour spent in song, instrumental music and social intercourse.

To be sure, every one will go that can by the special train on the 24th instant. with the Masonic Excursion to Toronto.

George Street Methodist Church.

The services on Sunday will be as follows:—Rev. E. B. Harper, D.D. Collingwood, will preach in the morning, and in the evening at 7 p.m., Rev. T. Manning, B, A., will preach his farewell sermon.

Still they Come.

Shortly before twelve o'clock to-day an excursion train arrived at the C.P.R., depot, having on board about 350 persons. The party is from Woodbridge on the Toronto Grey & Bruce division. A brass band accompained the excursionists, who were much pleased with the city appearance which Peterborough presented on her market day. They leave for the West on the 6:43 train this evening.

John R. Clarke Again.

The people of Peterborough will be pleased to learn that Mr. Clark the eloquent bootblack orator of Michigan, will be in the Opera House on Tuesday June 30th. Since Mr. Clark gave his celebrated lecture on "To and Fro in London," in our town a few weeks ago, many have expressed a desire to hear him again. Those who heard him then pronounced the lecture to be the most eloquent, humorous, descriptive and thrilling they had ever heard. This time he will give his popular lecture entitled "Among the Masses." He comes under the auspices of the Mark St. Methodist Church Ashburnham. Mr. Clarke is worthy of a crowded house. The fee is put at 25 cents. No reserved seats. Don't fail to hear him this time as it may be your last.

St. Mary's Separate School.

The annual examination of the above school took place yesterday, in the presence of the Right Rev. Bishop Jamot, trustees and a few parents. The pupils were examined in Christian doctrine, spelling, reading, grammar, geography, arithmetic, writing, drawing and composition. Their answers were accurate and intelligent—highly creditable to themselves and to their efficient and zealous teachers. It was really very pleasant to listen to their recitations. In grammar, the proficiency of both the senior and junior classes was very remarkable—far above the average. We were particularly well pleased with the knowledge which they displayed in geography and map drawing. In right line geometrical designs and object drawing they acquitted themselves admirably. The reading and spelling were very good--the enunciation was distinct and natural. In arithmetic, even the youngest showed a thorough and practical knowledge of the rules which they had studied. The children sang sweetly and in good time, at intervals during the exercises. After the examination, His Lordship the Bishop distributed the prizes, which consisted of some very beautiful books, and congratulated the pupils on the great change that has been effected in the school since it is under the directions of the kind Sisters who took charge of it at Christmas, and since which time the attendance has increased to about 130, that being the average attendance on the roll. It was after twelve o'clock when we left the school, but we left with the conviction that the Sisters are doing a good work, and that they are doing it well.

RATTLING RACE ON ROLLERS.

W. Loch Scores another Victory over four Competitors.

Last night the first struggle for superitory, in the series of 2 miles races, came off at the Lansdowne Roller Rink in the presence of about fifteen hundred spectators, the majority of who were ladies, and it is unnecessary to say that the contest was an interesting one from start to finish. When the gong sounded at ten minutes before nine, every skater took a seat on the outskirts of the floor; and W. Loch H. Robinson, W. Logan, J. Shevlin, and Prof. Kerr toed the mark near the band stand. J. Shevlin won choice for position, and when the word "go" was given, dashed to the front, but, unfortunately, was a trifle slow in rounding the first corner, and Kerr, seeing this, made a bid for the position, which he held for about 30 yards. Harry Robinson was the next leader, but ere one round was covered, W. Lech elbowed his way to the front, and betting characters offered two to one that he would hold it. It was soon seen that the race was to be between Lech and Shevlin; the latter making vigorous efforts to catch his man, but being a little slow on the corners failed to do so. W. Logan and H. Robinson created any amount of sport in their battle for third place, which fell to the former before 20 laps was covered. After this the race was a sort of funeral procession, Lech leading, Shevlin second and Logan third, in which positions they sailed in on the thirty-second lap. The next race of the series takes place on Friday, July 3rd, and in the meantime a race for a private medal takes place between Lech and Logan next Friday evening

Every one not on the Square are invited to go to Toronto on the 24th instant.

SUGGESTED PARK IMPROVEMENTS.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Would it not be best to see to our Central Park and have some young shade trees, &c., growing up while the older ones are dying off.

If the place is to be kept as a park, some definite arrangements should be made as to its future shape, and then have some shade trees planted in the proper places at an early date, so that when the pines, (which are now dying very fast, indeed, some six or eight being cut down this summer) are all gone we will still have some fine shade trees to beautify the place and give comfort and recreation to the needy.

Yours,
B.A.L.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

Cricket.

On Saturday last the return match between the junior cricketers of Lakefield and Peterborough was played on the grounds of the P.A.A.A., and resulted in a victory for the former, by a score of 42 runs in one innings, to their opponents 30 in two; thus leading by an innings and 12 runs.

Came Home Wounded.

On Monday last Mr. P. McCabe, a former resident of Peterborough, was struck w. e crossing a railway track, by a moving train, in Buffalo, and considerably injured. He arrived home on Saturday night and is now with his family on Rink street.

The Fire Brigade Band.

The Band gave the first of their series of summer free musical treats on Saturday evening on the market square and attracted as usual a large audience, who listened to their mellifluous strains for a considerable length of time. It is to be hoped that a suitable place will be provided for our Band if the citizens wish a further enjoyment of the sweet music in which the members of the Peterborough F. B. B. deal.

Remains Recovered.

On Saturday last Mr. Clement Gordon was paddling a canoe up the Otonabee river and when near the sand bar below Crawford's grove, known as the Yankee Bonnet, he noticed something which bore the appearance of a body floating down the river, and on investigation found that it was that of Mrs. Scollie, whose drowning was noticed in last Tuesday's issue of the EXAMINER. The friends of the deceased were at once notified of the occurrence and in company with Chief Constable Johnston brought the body to town. The process of decomposition had advanced so far that it was deemed advisable for the funeral to take place at once.

The Children's Carnival.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Ed. Brown held, as was previously announced, the carnival for the children in the Lansdowne Roller Rink. At two o'clock the Fire Brigade Band marched to the Rink and took up their position on the band stand. The carnival was not as largely attended as the previous one; nevertheless, between two and three o'clock the fairy-like figures of about forty children appeared on the maple arena. Shortly after 3 o'clock the prizes were awarded to the following children by the judges, Mrs. R. B. Lundy and Miss N. Perry:—

Best Comic Costume (girls)—Irene Fitzgerald (Parry Sound), Topsy.

Best Fancy Costume (girls)—G. Lundy, Fairy.

Best Comic Costume (boys)—F. Darcy, Jockey.

Best Fancy Costume (boys)—B. Cluxton, Sailor.

On account of the maskers failing to hand in their cards they cannot, therefore, be delighted with seeing their names appear in print.

Fire on Waterford Street.

At twenty-five minutes to ten last night, the fire alarm of the north wards sounded, which sounds were immediately taken up by the bell at the central station, and at 10 o'clock sharp the fire engine was stationed at Mr. T. G. Hazlitt's race and was effectively working on the fire which was doing a considerable amount of havoc to the residence of Mr. George Tighe, Janitor of the Central School. The fire originated in the kitchen or rear part of the house and was caused by a defective chimney, and had it not been for the exertions of a few men who worked energetically with a hand-engine the residence adjoining would have had a very poor chance of escaping from the flames, which were subdued in a short time after the heavy column of water was turned on. The rear part of the house was totally destroyed and considerable damage was done to the roof of the main portion. The losses, however, were entirely covered by insurance.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

June Session.

FIFTH DAY—SATURDAY.

The Council assembled in session at 9 o'clock. All the members present.

YOUNG'S POINT BRIDGE.

Moved by Mr. Foley, seconded by Mr. Moloney, that the Clerk be instructed to write to the local Government calling their attention to the state of the swing bridge at Young's Point, as it is in an unsafe state and requires repairing immediately. Carried,

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON SCHOOLS.

The Committee on Schools reported as follows:—

1. That the Messrs. J. Stratton, J. C. Brown and J. Davidson of the County Board of Examiners, be appointed to examine teachers and give certificates in accordance with the statute in that behalf.

2. That no action be taken with reference to the petition of school, section No. 6, of the townships of Galway and Cavendish, to this council, pending the proposed re-arrangement of the section by the county School Inspector.

3. That this Council appoint the County Judge, the County Inspector and the Warden as arbitrators to revise, determine and alter the boundaries of the school section or school sections so far as to settle the matters complained of in the petition of M. S. Dean, T. K. Mann and James McEwan, trustees of Public School, section No. 5, of the Township of Smith.

4. That the report of the County Inspector be received, and printed as soon as he completes his report of the Burleigh section.

JOHN WALSH, Chairman.

Peterborough, 20th June, 1885.

The report was adopted.

RAISING MONEY.

By-laws were passed to raise moneys for schools and other purposes.

FINANCE REPORT.

The Committee on Finance reported, recommending:

1. That the following accounts be paid:—

James Brown, digging grave	1 50

J. R. Stratton, Registry Office	1 00
D. Bellegheem, coffins	14 00
Geo. Stethem	18 55
Review office	38 05
" "	45 00

2. Your Committee recommend that the balance of the old indebtedness, viz., about $600 of the Township of Burleigh to this county, be compromised and cancelled in full for the sum of $300 on condition that the said township pay to this county the latter sum on or before the first day of August next; if not so paid, your Committee recommend that steps be taken to collect the original indebtedness.

3. Your Committee recommend that no action be taken with reference to the application of the Agricultural Society for a grant.

4. That a grant of $20 be given to Mr. Brown as his share of the appropriation for prizes for those from this county, who, being engaged in the actual work of the farm and not having attended any agricultural college, obtained certificates of merit at the examination held last July in agricultural subjects, upon his giving satisfactory evidence of the existence in his case of all conditions precedent and that the County Treasurer return the balance of the former appropriation in his hands to the county and that no further grant be made for any such further examination.

5. That a grant of $25 be given to each farmers' institute which may be organized in either or both of the electoral districts of the County of Peterborough upon the same conditions upon which the Legislative grant is given and upon condition that each such institute have members from each of the townships in each electoral district.

6. That a grant of $300 be given to the volunteer force of the county of Peterborough.

7. That the county treasurer be instructed to write to the councils of the different municipalities and insist upon immediate payment of arrears of county rate, and that in future he charge six per cent. on all arrears of such county rate, after the 15th day of February in each year, until paid, and if not paid at the proper time, to take steps within six months to collect, the treasurer and reeve of each municipality being first notified.

8. Your committee recommend that the memorandum hereto attached of accounts paid by your treasurer on the authority of your warden, etc., or under contracts duly entered into, be confirmed.

9. That inasmuch as it appears that the amount that it is provided shall be levied under debenture by-laws numbers 355 and 373, will produce a sum largely in excess of the amount required; that the clerk be instructed to levy such an amount only as will be sufficient to meet the year's sinking fund and interest, and that one half only of the rate provided under by-law No. 454 be collected, for the reason that only one half of the debentures authorized to be issued thereunder have been issued.

The report was adopted.

(Remainder of report to-morrow.)

Baking Powders.

On our fourth page to-day will be found a striking and instructive illustration of the comparative worth of the various kinds of baking powders now in the market.

Canoe Parade.

The canoe parade which was postponed on Friday will take place, weather permitting, this evening on the Little Lake. We hope to see a large turnout of magic lanterns, with an equal number of canoes. Later—This event has again been post-poned.

Otonabee Pic-Nic.

An Otonabee pic-nic party to Idyl Wild per steamer Golden-Eye will leave the latter's wharf on Wednesday next at 7.30 a.m. for Idyl Wild, calling at different points on the river. The public are invited to join the excursionists on this pleasant trip. Return tickets only 50 cents. The excursion arrangements are in charge of the following committee:—W. Buck, Graham Weir and J. Duffin.

THE NORTH-WEST RISING.

With Col. Otter's Command.

FORT PITT, June 15, via Strathcona, June 18.—Two scouts just arrived from Otter's column, Turtle Lake, report that three days ago they came upon the unmistakeable trail of Big Bear moving eastward, 100 miles north of Turtle Lake. Two days previously they surprised a party of six Indians, and captured their horses and track. Big Bear's trail shows that the chief still has

ABOUT SIXTY LODGES

with him. The scouts found a brush case bearing McLean's name on it. This was likely left intentionally, and shows that the prisoners are with the Indians moving eastward. Big Bear's name was also found written in Cree. Col. Otter was encamped at the southerly end of Turtle Lake when the scouts left, and is probably now moving northward to come up with Indians.

Postponement.

Owing to the sports in connection with the Amateur Athletic Association, this evening being adjourned, the bicycle parade, to have been held this evening, is also adjourned.

Dangerous Drop.

On Sunday a lad named Frith, while engaged in company with others in playing on the roofs of the Central School sheds, fell a distance of about 16 feet and received a severe scalp wound which Dr. Pigeon was summoned to treat.

Police Court.

When the Police Magistrate took his seat this morning on the throne he was not confronted by a case of drunk, disorderly, or vagrancy, and consequently the coffers of the town or the Hotel de Nesbitt will neither gain nor lose anything on the transaction.

A Rich Treat in Store.

Remember John R. Clarke's lecture on Tuesday evening, June 30, in the Opera House. From the way tickets are selling there will doubtless be a full house. Let old and young be sure to hear this man of marvellous eloquence.

Dominion Day Pageant.

The list of representatives of savage, half-breed and military celebrities for the Dominion Day pageant is pretty full yet there is room for a few more names. Any young gentlemen desirous of assisting and of having a chance to win the $50 prize, should hand in his name at once to Mr. A. Elliott, secretary, Dominion Express office. Be sure and call on him at once.

To-Morrow's Lacrosse Team.

The following are the names of the players of the respective teams that will face each other in the match to-morrow at the new lacrosse grounds, at the Driving Park, for the championship of central Ontario:

Beaverton.	vs.	Peterborough.
McLean	Goal	Joyal

The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance during the afternoon. The lacrosse club do not intend to charge anything extra for carriages entering the grounds. The visitors are expected in on this evening's train from the west.

ILLUSTRATED WAR NEWS.

We have received the twelth number of the Canadian Pictorial and Illustrated War News. It contains the following illustrations:—Rescue of Mrs. Gowanlock and Mrs. Delaney by a party of Scouts; the Cow Boy Brigade, from Photographs and Sketches furnished by J. D. Higinbotham & Co., Port McLeod; Portraits of interest; Applications of the First Bandage on the Battlefield—No. 2—from original sketches by Mr. F. Humme. Also a fine two-page supplement, showing "Sketches from the Front," drawn on Gabriel Dumont's paper bags, by Mr. F. W. Carson, Special Artist of The Canadian Pictorial, with Gen. Middleton's command; and a "View of Battleford as seen from Fort Otter," from a sketch by Lieut. R. Lyndhurst Wardmore, of C Company, Infantry School Corps, Toronto. The paper sells at 15 cents per copy, obtainable from local booksellers and from the office of publication.

BOBCAYGEON.

Three log drives are now going through. Some little rivalry exists as to who will take the lead. Hazlitt's is ahead at present, Hilliard is close behind and Frank Bell hauling up on the heels of the second. He swung around Stargeon Point, on Wednesday, with a grand wind, but having lost his second anchor the day before, he was unable to hold himself to the north shore, and was carried across the lake. If he could have held fast one roll, he would have sailed down ahead of the others.—Independent.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

Sunday in "Virginny."

A writer in Macmillan's Magazine says: Many of the characteristics of the Virginian, and of those neighboring states of whom he is typical, savor of the puritan rather than of the rollicking cavalier. Its episcopal church is evangelical, even to contempt, as regards forms. I have seen the bishop of Virginia hold a confirmation in a country church attired in a frock coat, stand-up collar, and a black tie fastened in a sailor's knot. The feeling of the majority of the diocese is quite in sympathy. The behavior of the younger portion of the congregations in country churches is so extraordinary as to argue rather a complete failure to appreciate their position than willful irreverence. The blessing is hardly finished when the ladies, young and old, fall into one another's arms; the men relapse into corn and tobacco, and the inside of the church assumes the appearance of an animated social gathering. That a few of these buildings, even those erected in country neighborhoods that at the time were wealthy, have anything in their external appearance to mark their ecclesiastical character is not unnatural in a country where architects and mechanics proper had no existence, and where nothing approaching to art was known. Imagine one of the old-fashioned, oblong, red brick methodist chapels of a small English country town dropped down in a grove of trees by the roadside, and you have a fair idea of the average country meeting house of the southern episcopalian. If service is going on you will see forty or fifty saddle horses hitched up in the shade of the oak trees, a dozen or so of conveyances of every description—buggies, spring wagons, and cumbrous old-fashioned family coaches, spattered with mud and venerable in appearance with black-coated negroes snoozing upon the box. Horses and mules taken from the plow, with loosened breast-chains and hanging bearing-reins, crop sleepily at the scant grass and shake flies from their long ears. Negro servants will be murmuring in groups under the trees—for the African does not much appreciate the 'pisopal service—and a knot of men will probably be hanging round the open door, getting scraps of the service between their remarks on crops or weather. Many of the congregation will be methodists and presbyterians, who, having no service at their own church upon that Sunday, have no sectarian scruples of any kind in patronising the more exclusive church, if not as worshipers, at least as silent critics.

A Great Telegraphic and News Monopoly.

Jay Gould to-day is the most powerful human being on earth. He controls absolutely the telegraph lines on this continent as well as the cables which reach out to other nations. Every business and family secret is at his mercy. The quotations of all markets of the world are in his hands, for it is his agents who report the prices at all the great exchanges in America, Europe and Asia. A misquotation of any of the leading products of the world made by his order would give him millions of dollars, and no one could call him to account. Aladdin's lamp was a mere toy compared with the marvelous power wielded to-day by this most conscienceless speculator. The Mutual Union, the only independent line which afforded an opposition, he has consolidated with his Western Union monopoly, and he has secured a ten years' contract with the representatives of the Associated Press of the United States, which silences all opposition to him in any of the daily journals throughout the country. The Great Western News monopoly has swallowed up the New York monopoly, and every journal in the United States and Canada is bound by the closest ties of self-interest not to say a word against their master, Jay Gould. It seems incredible that this should happen in the freest country on earth, but so it is. In the Old World the telegraphs are conducted by the several governments in the interest of the community, and the news field is open to all competitors. In free America one man owns the telegraphs and substantially the cables, and the entire press of the country is in his interest. The exact terms of the contract between the press and Jay Gould have not been published, for the newspapers are ashamed to let it be known that they are in the power of this great speculator. Indeed, many of the country papers do not suspect it, as the bargain was made by their representatives in Chicago and New York. The fact, however, is very well known to the members of the various Boards of Trade in the different cities, but the latter cannot get their case before the public, as there is a conspiracy of silence in the press.—From Demorest's Monthly April.

The Honeymoon.

Delighted Young Husband—"What a treasure you are, my love. I thought you were so bound up in music and painting and embroidery and such things that you would not think of giving attention to such unpoetic things as meals, but here you have one of the most delicious plum puddings I have ever eaten."

Blushing Bride—"Oh, I do not forget that you always liked nice things to eat."

"But getting me such a delicacy must have taken you considerable time."

"Well, it did; but that was because neither Bridget nor I knew how to get it open."

"Get what open, love?"

"Why, the can the pudding came in."—Philadelphia Call.

The boy who lies in bed until he is called six times will get up at 5 o'clock without being called at all to fire off his pistol under the window of his companion to wake him up. But before he is out of bed his companion has performed a like duty for him, and at the blowing of the 6 o'clock factory whistle they have fired off a pound of powder between them, and are as black as Africans and as happy as kings.

TIME!

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

THE PRINCIPLE IS WRONG.

The action of the Finance Committee of the County Council in giving a grant of $200 for the better equipment of the local volunteer forces is one that will on patriotic grounds commend itself to all as a generous, graceful and timely recognition of the invaluable services of the volunteers in the recent deplorable rebellion. No body of troops of any nation has ever shown to better advantage. Their endurance of hardship, their ready deference to the requirements of discipline, their courage in action, and their generally unsurpassable soldierly qualities are worthy of the highest praise and the most liberal recognition. But, that a local corporation should feel the necessity, when the duty is in no way incumbent upon them, of aiding in the equipment of the volunteers is a stinging rebuke to the Government for its neglect of the force. The work of preparing the volunteers for active service in the late campaign, had been sadly remiss in its duty. The equipment was found to be disgracefully deficient, the stores lamentably lacking, and a general unfitness for a military emergency was conspicuous throughout. The native courage, soldierly spirit and splendid physique of the volunteers were all that was ready when the crisis came. Altogether in the past the volunteers have been treated to too much neglect by the Government. No more practical proof of the fact could be furnished than the action of the County Council, but on principle this action is wrong. Every burden should fall on the right shoulders. The Peterborough members of the Midland Battalion rendered their services, not for the benefit of this county alone but for that of the Country at large, and all who received the benefit of their heroic services should contribute to their maintenance and equipments. This is not done where a local corporation has to supplement the niggardliness of the Government. The volunteers are abundantly worthy of the handsome recognition made by the County Council but the principle of the action is wrong, and for the credit of the country, a proper recognition of the claims of our citizen soldiers to governmental support and encouragement should make a repetition of it unnecessary.

The Nationalization of Land in Great Britain and Ireland.

(Contributed to the DAILY EXAMINER.)

Very few Canadians are prepared to say with Mr. Henry George, that the state has a perfect right to take private land without compensation. This principle of compensation is based upon our fundamental ideas of justice; and England has more than once acknowledged its application when she has declared that a business previously sanctioned by law should cease to be carried on.

But very many Canadians appear to believe that the state has the right to compel the landowners to sell their estates at a fair price.

Whether the existence of these large estates has been conducive to the true interests of the nation, is apart from our present question. In many ways it has been so, as in the perpetuation of a race of natural leaders, cultivated and patriotic, with time and opportunity to devote to the service of their country, as in the preservation of beautiful parks and manor houses, which, like the old world cathedrals, act as continual educators of the people. In many ways this system of large estates has produced hurtful effects, as in the maintenance of undue class distinctions: the locking up of large tracts from cultivation.

But even if it were clearly desirable to have a nationalization or sub-division of land, and the majority of the nation wished it, these are not sufficient arguments for forced sales, unless we are believers in the unlimited rights of majorities. There are certain intrinsic rights pertaining to property and person, which even the undoubted good and wish of the majority cannot override. For example, it might be highly advisable, in the opinion of the majority in the province of Quebec, that Protestantism should be suppressed, or in the opinion of the majority in the province of Ontario that Roman Catholicism should be suppressed; it might be clearly to the advantage of our country that certain nondescript forms of belief should be stamped out: yet no one proposes that such suppressing or stamping out such action of a majority would be perfectly justifiable.

But it is said that these estates were originally obtained by fraud, or were granted as rewards to unworthy favorites at the mere caprice of the monarch. As a matter of fact, this is not correct, most of these estates having been given for public services and meritorious acts. The land of Britain "in bloo" rests, of course, on the title by conquest, the best of all titles in olden times. And, in passing, it is very strange that those who inveigh most loudly against this title by conquest—especially in Ireland—have no objection against using the land of the New World, irrespective of the manner of its original acquisition. Upon what title other than that of conquest do the Americans hold the greater part of their land? Did not they take the territory embraced in the 13 colonies from the English, who had taken it from the French, the Dutch and the Indians? Had not the French and the Dutch taken their share from the Indians, who in their turn had dispossessed an earlier race? Are not the Americans year by year depriving the Indians of their small remaining territory? It is the glory of England that she no longer annexes conquered provinces; as witness, Abyssinia, Afghanistan and Ashantee.

But to return from this digression, if the State is to dispossess the owners of those estates only which were originally acquired through moral or legal wrong, who is to be the judge of the amount of illegality or immorality requisite to invalidate the title? Where shall the line be drawn? Surely these questions need but to be asked to show how visionary is the proposal of doing away with prescriptive titles and opening up the question of the goodness or badness of the original grant. In a word; all the lands in the Kingdom must be resumed by the Crown, or none. There is no middle way.

But again, it is said that the government does take private land against its owners' wish for all sorts of purposes. Why, then, it is asked, should not this principle be applied in the present case? But a little consideration will shew that the examples are not analogous. The government takes private land only when it is to be held as public land, or as private land devoted to public purposes and under public supervision.

School and county-office lands are instances of the former; railway-lands, of the latter. But under the nationalization scheme land is to be taken by the state from one person and divided among several persons to be held by them in fee simple, or to be worked by them as government tenants for their own private ends and objects. It is, in fact, nothing more than a perpetual or temporary transfer of ownership.

And if the old rights of property, as to land, be not observed, why should they be as to anything else? There underlies this whole idea the fallacy that land is different in its nature from any other kind of property. The motive prompting land nationalization is, no doubt, a desire to remedy the unequal distribution of wealth. But why should the possessor of land be singled out from all other capitalists? Can any valid reason be given why the State should take possession of the Cass Farm of Dakota or the estates of the Duke of Westminster and not of the stocks and money owned by Mr. Vanderbilt or by the Coutts Bros.? Can any valid reason be given why A should be forced to part with his land because his grandfather acquired it through sharpness and cunning, while B may retain his hard cash obtained through like means? Mr. Henry George has had his attention directed to land because he has lived in California, a state where very large and crushing land monopolies exist; but the Communists of London and New York are much more exercised about money and stock monopoly than they are about land monopoly. It is a known fact that very many of the owners of large estates in Britain would be only too glad to sell out, had they an opportunity of doing so; and that the revenues derived from these estates are not so great as would be yielded were the capital represented by the land, employed in some other way. But even were the nationalization principle correct, its application to Britain would be utterly fruitless of results, on account of the density of population. The area of Great Britain and Ireland is about 76 million acres, of which fully one half is taken up with cities, roads, rivers, lakes, non-tillable land, etc. The population being 36,000,000, it is evident that the amount to be allowed to each cultivator must be ridiculously small.

Small as such amount would be, a rental must be paid, or else the compensation allowed to the present owners must be made up by taxation. In either case, the amount now paid as rent would come, as at present, out of the small owners or lessees. In what better position would the latter be then than they are now? What difference would it make to them to pay the rent to the state instead of to the present landlord? If the compensation were raised by taxation, there would be the added difficulty of apportioning this taxation and avoiding laying it upon the non-agricultural class not benefited by the change.

In Canada we do not desire large estates; and it is to be hoped that there will be a continuance of the system of tolerably small cultivation. In Britain the case is different: large estates already exist, and we must take the system as it is, not as it might have been under different conditions.

What Britain needs, and what will satisfy all the requirements of the case, is the abolition of primogeniture and entail, and the cheapening of conveyancing. Let the present obstacles in the way of the cutting up of estates be done away with; and gradually these estates will be divided among various owners. Whether this will conduce to the true greatness and happiness of the nation is another question. But to say to the landowners: "You must and shall give up your land," is nothing more nor less than governmental spoliation, the ordinary name of which is robbery.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

or,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The Leaden Casket," "Thorncroft's Model," &c. &c

Lucy was almost glad of it—this power of suffering was a link to life. He asked for water, and reproached them for giving him warm water. Then he complained of the sea. "It wears my brain out.—If it would but stop moaning while I counted ten—even that would rest my head; but it won't. Moan, moan, moan.—It will go that way till it kills me."

His voice was feeble and weary, his accent most piteous. Lucy did not hear the sea; she began to sing to him in a low, sweet voice. No one ever knew what an effort it cost her to do it. He listened, and forgot about the sea, and gradually some painful lines in his face smoothed themselves away. He looked at Lucy, and said, "Whoever you are, you are kind—but if you want to be really kind to me, do put a stop to one thing they do to me every night. . . . Miss Clavering—you perhaps know her—my mother always said she was an enemy to both of us, but I never believed it till now. Every night Miss Clavering comes here, and just when I want to go to sleep she wraps her long, wet hair round my throat until I cannot breathe, and when I cry out, she wraps it tighter and tighter, until I am choked.—Every breath I draw then sends a burning pain right through my chest, and I feel cut in two by a red-hot sword, and still no one will help me. That nurse, there, is in league with her, and will stand quietly by, and let her do anything she likes to torture me." His voice was now quite strong again, and his eyes were bright with fever. "They talk about my being ill—that woman and the doctor I mean—they pretend to be sorry, but they could cure me if they chose to stop her.—It is nothing but having that long bit of wet hair wrapped so tightly round my throat which makes me so ill. They will not keep her away or force her to unfasten it, and it is wet and cold, and chokes me."

"That is how he always talks," said the nurse, "poor dear gentleman!"

"It is the truth, though! She pretends that it is not, and so does that fool or knave of a doctor, but I ought to know best, for I feel it. I feel it now, tight and choking me. It is Miss Clavering's hair, I tell you! It got wet when we were out all night on the Grand Bey—that is why I wanted so much to see her by daylight. I wanted to try if I could not persuade her not to do this. She does it every night, and that's why I can't get well—that is what is killing me!"

"Do not talk that way, please sir," said the nurse.

"That is your help, is it?" cried he.—"Excellent help! Don't talk, you say? But I must talk! I must be heard! Nothing chokes you like hair! It makes itself into such a tight, strong rope!" He clutched Lucy's hand, and cried, "Will you stop her doing it?"

"Why, sir, this is Miss Clavering herself you are talking to! It is Miss Clavering who is sitting by you. Look at her. She is pitying you as much as she can!—She doesn't want to do nothing to hurt you," said the nurse.

He looked at her in doubt and alarm.

Lucy let her hair down, and said, "I am Miss Clavering; but I promise, as you ask it, never again to do anything to hurt you. Feel my hair, it is quite dry now, so I do not want to wrap it round your throat any more." She took his poor parched hands in hers, and made him touch her hair. "Feel it," said she, "it has got quite dry and warm. I will fasten it up tightly, and you shall see me do it. Look what a number of strong pins I am using, and how safely I am fastening it."

He watched all she did with eagerness. He had forgotten almost everything which had happened on the Grand Bey, except the one fact that when the sailors met them and took Lucy from his arms one long coil of her hair had to be untwisted from his throat. Somehow or other it had then wrapped itself tightly round it, and the remembrance of this had haunted him and played a terrible part in increasing his illness. When her hair was firmly fixed in its place, she made him feel it once more, and said, "Now that can do you no harm." He seemed perfectly satisfied, and made no more complaint of being strangled by her, but he still complained of being kept by force in a burning bed. He now seemed much exhausted, and lay as if partly unconscious. Presently Lucy saw him clutching at the bed-clothes, as if to draw them upwards. Some one had once told her that this was a sign of approaching death, and the sight made her thrill with terror. She could not bear to see it. She drew his hand away and held it tightly in hers. She would hold it now until he died.

"Oh, thank God," said he, "you have taken me back to the cave again, and it will be cool! I felt I was there when you put your head in mine. Ah! how you slept then; I could not awaken you!"

"You slept, too. Could you sleep now?"

"Your head was on my shoulder then.—You were unhappy, and so tired and cold. That is how we came to sleep."

"Could you sleep in that way now?" asked Lucy. "Lay your head on my shoulder and try." She moved closer to the pillow where his head was tossing uneasily about. She drew him towards her till his forehead rested on her shoulder, and placed her cool hand on it.

He seemed to breathe more freely, and said, "How well I feel since you took your strangling hair away! The cave is cool. Why did you not take me there before?"

Strong hope arose in Lucy's heart. She felt he might recover.

"We must get off the island at daybreak," said he. "Waken me then if I go to sleep."

"Yes," replied Lucy, "I will rouse you then, but go to sleep now."

He shut his eyes, and seemed to yield to her as a child might have done. The nurse came, and saw him lying thus. She sat down by Lucy. Aunt Esther was sleeping in a distant corner, and very soon Hugh Richmond slept also. After a while his breathing became as regular and peaceful as that of a child. Lucy only was awake. The attitude she had chosen became painful to her. She never stirred one hair's breadth. She was weak and ill herself, but she bore all, and for his sake. She, who had not yet been able to sit up more than half-an-hour at a time, sat in this constrained posture for hour after hour, proud and thankful that she could do so much. Her one hope was that perhaps under Providence she might be the means of saving a life that had been freely risked in her behalf. The foolish over-wisdom of those around them had almost cost his life and her own; but even yet all might be well. He was sleeping peacefully; his hand, which lay in hers, was no longer parched, his breathing was regular and calm; once the door opened, and the doctor peeped in. He threw up his arms in wonder when he saw the change in his patient's condition, but he crept out without disturbing him. Lucy saw that he had expected to find it all over, or to see poor Hugh Richmond breathing his last, and a hope which as yet she had hardly dared to indulge in, began to take up its abode in her mind. Day dawned and still he slept, and still his head was on her shoulder. She feared the light might awaken the poor sleeper, but he slept on. Aunt Esther, too, was still sleeping; her face looked grey and haggard in the new light. "How happy she will be when she awakes and sees him!" thought Lucy, and then she checked herself for over confidence. Who could say that he was safe?

About five o'clock he opened his eyes, and said, "I feel very happy; where am I?" Then he saw Lucy. "Are you really here?" he asked.

"Yes, really," she answered—her heart was too full to speak.

"Did they not say I was to die to-night?" he asked.

She pressed the hand she held. He looked tenderly in her face, and said, "You have been very good to me. Do you care for me a little?"

"I care for you very much indeed," she replied.

WIT AND HUMOR.

The Rev. Joseph Cook calls himself a pandenominationalist. If he had had time, Joe would have used a longer word.

Do cats reason?" asks a writer in natural history. We don't know whether they reason or not, but for pure, unadulterated argumentation they take the cake.—Burlington Free Press.

"Pa, what is that you've got?" "That is a peach-basket, my daughter." "Ain't it cunning? Will you give it to me when you are through with it?" "What do you want to do with it, my dear?" "I want to use it for a thimble case for my little doll."

Citizen (examining last summer's flannel shirt)—"My own fault—my own fault b'Jove! Mighter known it. Didn't put in enough insect-powder. Moths ate up all the insect-powder—nothin' more to eat—began on the shirt—'course they did—can't blame 'em!"

First New Yorker—Oh, there's the dinner-bell! How I do dread that hot dining-room. Second New Yorker—Hot? Well—yes—I suppose it is hot in some places. But come to my table if you want to be cool. There are six Bostonians there. It is like dining in a refrigerator.

A young widow, in erecting a monument to the "dear departed," cleverly availed herself of the opportunity to inscribe upon the tomb: "Sacred to the memory of Mathusin Bexuchet, aged 68 years, regretting the necessity of parting from the most charming and best of women."

Paterfamilias: "What is included in your curriculum?" Young Hopeful: "Our what, pa?" Paterfamilias: "The curriculum of your college." Young Hopeful: "Well, to tell the truth, I don't know. You see, being the stroke-oar and the first-eleven Captain, I have not much time for botany."

"Children, what must a man do before he can go to heaven?" asked a teacher in Sunday-school. A good boy would have known the proper answer at once and replied that a man must be at least decently honest, a condition which would exclude nearly every office-holder in this country since the Declaration of Independence, but a little boy, who was too literal to be satisfactory, answered: "He must die, sir."

When two Icelanders meet on the street, instead of shaking hands they get down on all-fours and rub noses together. The other day an Icelander traveling through this country stopped for a few hours at Pittsburg. His first exclamation was: "The men here must be very affectionate. Their noses show that they are rubbed hard fifty times a day."

A Lusty Lamb.

Mr. Robert Hunter, of Lot 3, 4th concession of Smith, reports a lamb that is only 10 days old and weighs 35 lbs. The appearance of this little monster on a smoking platter, roasted to a turn, would be by no means a lamb-on-table spectacle to hungry man.

Sports Postponed.

The sports advertised in Saturday's EXAMINER, to come off this evening, on the grounds of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, have been indefinitely postponed on account of the drowning of Mr. Norley's child.

Using the Occasion.

On Sunday night during the excitement arising from the fire on Waterford street, two young ladies, the sole occupants at the time, rushed to an upper window in the rear of the house. Hearing a noise in front, one of them ran down just in time to prevent a brace of sneak thieves from carrying off whatever portable articles the hall contained.

An Appreciative Patron.

A patron of the EXAMINER in Fenelon Falls, in renewing his subscription to the DAILY EXAMINER, says :—"Find enclosed ($1.00) one dollar, for which please send DAILY EXAMINER to following address. Ross vs. Wigg.

The commission for taking evidence in this action before C. A. Weller, Esq., Master in Chancery, was resumed on the 17th inst., after an adjournment since the 8th inst. Both Mr. Wigg and Hon. Mr. Ross have been undergoing a searching examination as to their business relations and accounts. It appears that Mr. Wigg and the Hon. Mr. Ross were connected in the lumber business, and that when the accounts between them were taken, as the lawyers express it, Mr. Wigg was indebted to Mr. Ross in a considerable amount. Mr. Ross recovered two judgments against Mr. Wigg in the Supreme Court of the State of New York : one amounting to about eighty-three thousand dollars and the other amounting to about eighteen thousand dollars. The sheriff of Oswego county, N. Y., proceeded under these judgments to realize the above amounts by seizing on a large quantity of lumber and other property of Mr. Wigg's. Among other assets of the latter which Mr. Ross claims as subject to his judgments, is a sum of about $10,000, which Mr. G. N. Burt, of Oswego, holds. Mr. Burt was formerly Mr. Wigg's lawyer, and while acting in that capacity received the last mentioned sum from him. Some of Mr. Wigg's creditors, other than Mr. Ross, claim that this sum was handed to Burt to be held by him in trust for them. Among these creditors are Christie, Kerr & Co., of Toronto. Mr. Ross denies their right to this money, and claims that it never became a trust fund. Christie, Kerr & Co., as well as other creditors of Mr. Wigg, also dispute Mr. Ross' right to take the lumber which was seized by the sheriff. The case is altogether very interesting, not only on account of the large amounts involved, but as well because several of the parties in the suit have a local reputation. The examinations so far have been conducted on behalf of Hon. Mr. Ross by W. H. Kenyon, of Oswego, and on behalf of the other creditors by Hon. P. W. Cullinan, of Oswego, and Mr. D. W. Dumble, of Peterborough. It is probable that the case will be tried here at the Fall Assizes next October.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

MASONIC SERMON.

The Beauty and Benefits of Brotherly Unity.

On Sunday evening last, in St. Paul's Church, Rev. Dr. Harper, of Collingwood, preached a sermon to the Masonic brotherhood of Peterborough. There were about 1,200 of a congregation present. The members of the Masonic order, to the number of 109, marched in procession to the church from their lodge rooms.

The text selected was Psalm CXXXIII. :—

"Behold how good and pleasant a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. It is like the precious ointment upon the head that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard; that went down to the skirts of his garments. As the dew upon Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion; for there the Lord commanded the blessing of life for evermore."

The speaker started by observing that though the human origin of this Psalm was unknown, or the occasion that brought it forth, it was one that might have been written at any time and under any circumstances to set forth the blessedness of unity. This whole Psalm was an illustration of brotherly love that would apply equally well to christian fellowship, to the family circle which was the earthly prototype of the family of heaven or to brotherhoods like the Masonic Order. The unity spoken of was not a theological, ecclesiastical nor mechanical unity, but a unity of spirit in the bonds of peace—a true union of hearts.

In the first place, it was shown that brotherly unity is good, because it harmonized with man's social condition; it was what his nature craved. God recognized this longing when he established the social relation. The need was felt from the cradle to the grave, of the love and tenderness and care arising from the existence of brotherly unity. It was man's grand ideal of the highest good. Brotherly unity harmonized with the spirit of the Gospel, in which was set forth a special recognition of the desirability and necessity of it, as was shown in Christ himself, praying for it to rest on his followers. The speaker pointed to the strong development of this longing in the different churches for closer union, shown in in the friendly interchange of brotherly courtesies. The spirit of Christianity was increasing in its effects. The Apostles exhorted to unity, and the church with Christ as its head was the highest form of this unity. As the text declared brotherly unity was delightful to behold, and the exercise of it, whether in the church, in the brotherhoods, or in social relations, was a pleasant sight to even those who were merely spectators, not partakers. In the Masonic brotherhood this unity was to be admired in the striving for aims in harmony with the whole spirit of the Bible. The first sight met by the candidate entering the Masonic lodge was the Bible. This brotherly unity was delightful to see in all ranks, from the social circle to its development in national form. It was not only good and delightful to behold, but delightful also to be felt, as was the experience of the social relation, the brotherhood or the church when it was fully developed. Brotherly unity begat beneficence. The dew of Hermon fell there and also rose again in showers and refreshed the whole land. So the vitalizing, refreshing effects of brotherly unity descends in blessing upon the brotherhoods themselves and is also transmitted to wherever their influence extends. This spirit—like the dew, comes from above—from God, its source. Brotherly unity begotten of love was good, pleasant, delightful, and beneficial. While recognizing the especial beneficence of Masons, the speaker would encourage it in a still wider sphere; the beneficence should not be confined to the brotherhood alone, but go out to the whole world, to the race. The brethern were exhorted to be like the "elder brother." Such brotherly unity brings true liberty and equality. Love lifts all souls up to that common place where all are equal in Christ. Masonry carries its brotherhood, not only from its historic origin, but to the christian religion—the love they show is a faithful type of the work of of Christianity towards the world. In affording help to fellow members the nearness of the relationship is recognised. But all men must be embraced, through we must love those who stand in the inner circle first as the family circle, then the church, the brotherhood, the world. Brotherly unity would hasten the perfection of the universal church, which embraces the heart, conduct and the work of life and thus all are united to each other and the whole to God. The speaker said he forbore to speak of the Masonic brotherhood as his heart prompted, but he must bear tribute to its noble work in securing unity of feeling and action, whose spirit spread from the order to the family, from the family to the church. He closed by praying that the unity might more and more abound, and that God's blessing might rest not only on Masons, but on all that acknowledge the great Head.

The hymns and lessons were in strict keeping with the subject of the sermon, and the entire services were edifying and helpful. Before closing, the Rev. Dr. Harper congratulated the congregation on the beautiful and enlarged church in which they were permitted to worship; it furnished evidence of the spirit of brotherly unity existing in a large degree. He trusted that the congregation would go on and prosper under the blessing of God and the work of a pastor who, the speaker believed, was a man after God's heart. After service the brethren reformed in procession and marched to their lodge room, where a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Dr. Harper for his eloquent, instructive and highly appreciated discourse.

Farewell Sermon.

In the closing sermon of his pastorate on Sunday morning in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church Rev. Mr. Manning referred to the pleasant relations that had always existed between himself and the members of the church and congregation, during the three years he had been amongst them. He had never met a congregation that had shown a more ardent Christian spirit in all church work than that of the Charlotte street Methodist Church.

A Well Won Recognition.

The members of the Cricket Club in recognition of the half hundred runs, run up by Norley in the cricket match with Toronto, presented him with an excellent bat, which will always be wielded with credit to the Club and the game in Peterborough. Mr. Norley is a good coach and the Club shows it, while the condition of the grounds shows that he knows the requirements of cricket in this respect.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day is received from the Toronto Meteorological office :—Strong winds and moderate gales from the west and north-west, decreasing in force towards evening; fair, considerably cooler weather.

SAD DROWNING CASE,

James Norley, Drowned in the Otonabee.

On Saturday evening, shortly after seven o'clock, James Norley, second eldest son of Mr. J. Norley, coach of the Peterborough Cricket Club, of Ashburnham, was drowned in the Otonabee river, a short distance above Roger's dam. On the evening mentioned, the little fellow borrowed a pike-pole, and, accompanied by his brother Charles and a boy named McGregor went to the river to amuse himself. Whilst the latter two were in bathing it appears that he got the pole fastened to a log, which was the means of dragging him into the water, where the current was so strong that in almost a moment he was carried over the dam. The two lads who were the witnesses of the sad occurrence were the first to communicate the intelligence to the parents to whom, as may be imagined, it was a terrible shock; the grief of the mother particularly, being heart-rending. The body was at once swept away down the river, and though the members of the Cricket Club spent Sunday in diligent search, their efforts to get any trace whatever of it were fruitless. We understand that the men engaged at present on the drive going down the river have kindly consented to look for the body.

A Double Amputation.

During the fire last night James Hayes got the little finger of his left hand amputated in such a summary and unskilful manner, through some accident in connection with the hose-reel, that, to have the job done neatly and scientifically, he had to be taken to the surgery of Dr. J. O'Shea, where the victim bore the operation with great fortitude, his spirits being kept up by taking spirits down.

PERSONAL.

Mr. R. M. Howard, of the Hastings Star, dropped into our sanctum this morning. He is on his way home from Michigan, where he has spent the past year.

Several members of the Masonic order from Omemee, Lakefield and Keene were in town on Sunday to hear Dr. Harper's Masonic sermon.

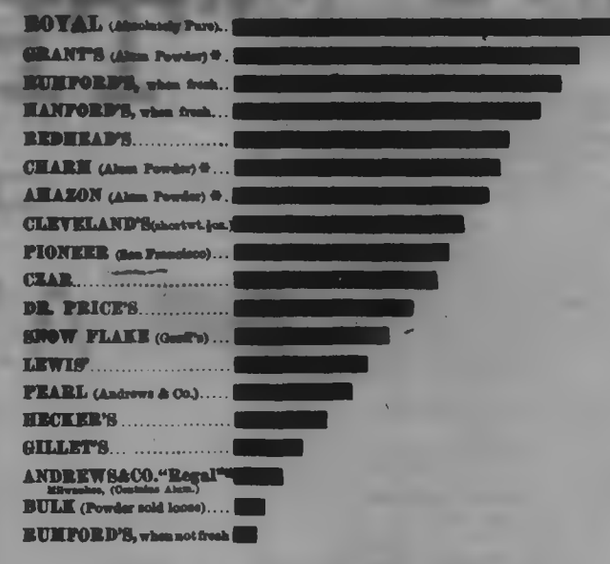
COMPARATIVE WORTH OF BAKING POWDERS.



REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS

As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D."

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. "H. A. MOTT, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome. S. DANA HAYES, State Assayer, Mass."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair-minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention. For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

Voluntary Services Voluntarily Recognized.

Miss Grace R. Stephens has for two years acted as organist at the Sunday evening services of the Y.M.C.A. She has filled the position with such punctual efficiency that the members of the Association on Monday evening proceeded to her residence to acknowledge in a tangible form the obligations under which she had placed them. The secretary, Mr. Geo. E. Williams, read the following address:

PETERBOROUGH, June 22nd, 1885.

DEAR MISS STEPHENS,—The expression of appreciation from our members of your self-denying and faithful services on behalf of our Association in the musical part of its work, has been frequent and sincere, as well as being so well-deserved. As a very slight testimonial of this appreciation, we shall be glad if you will kindly accept the accompanying present. Whilst the intrinsic value of the articles is not very great, we trust they will afford you pleasure and that they may be of use to you. We also hope that the copy of the word of God will be helpful to you in your Christian work, that the "word of Christ may dwell in you richly" so that you may be built up in the divine and become "thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

On behalf of the members of the Young Men's Christian Association,

Isaac Richardson

The presents were a beautiful double music rack and a fine polyglott Bible. Though Miss Stephens was completely surprised, she expressed her acknowledgment in a graceful and unaffected manner.

The Park Fountain.

The beautiful fountain for the Court House Park, the joint gift to the people, of Messrs. James Stevenson and Geo. A. Cox, arrived at noon to-day, and is this afternoon being placed in position. It will present a striking and beautiful appearance. The base basin is eight feet in diameter; the second four feet; the third three, and the whole is surmounted by the figure of a boy, holding in his arms a fish, from the mouth of which the jet will proceed. The entire fountain will stand about twelve feet in height, and will be a grand addition to the attractiveness of the park, which, under the "Horticultural" hand of improvement, is daily growing into a thing of beauty.

Lawn Social.

A lawn social will be held at the residence of David Sharpe, Esq., Cavan, on Friday evening the 26th, inst., in aid of Ebenezer Methodist church, Cavan. A good programme is being arranged, and a pleasant evening may be looked forward to. Mrs. Daly, of Peterborough, assisted by the George street Methodist church choir, will take part. The Bethany brass band will also be present and enliven the proceedings. Refreshments will be served. This social will enable a number from Peterborough to meet their Cavan friends, and spend an enjoyable evening at Mr. Sharpe's. The roads are good, the evenings all one could wish for a pleasant drive.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable" or "El Padre" brands of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pays them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby. 13d-25w-1y

BRITISH CABINET CRISIS.

Salisbury's Courage Screwed to the Sticking Point.

Will Hold Office by Gladstone's Good Grace.

LONDON, June 23.—As a result of the queen's efforts the Marquis of Salisbury has resolved to accept Mr. Gladstone's promise to use his influence with the liberals to prevent factious opposition. It is expected that Lord Salisbury will announce the formation of a cabinet to-day with Mr. Bourke, probably as chief, secretary for Ireland. Writs will then be issued for the re-election of the cabinet members.

Mr. Gladstone has made a promise to Lord Salisbury to give the new government as much time as possible during the remainder of the session. The correspondence between the party leaders will be presented to Parliament to-day. It is stated that the lerders have arranged to make an effort to carry the Welch Intermediate Education Bill, the Australian Confederation Bill, the Irish Educational Bill, and the Minister for Scotland Bill. Lord Salisbury declined to include the Scotch Crofters Bill The Seats Bill will be finished to-night.

Parliament will meet to-morrow or Wednesday to obtain the royal assent, and then adjourn for the re-elections.

GERMANY WILL REMAIN FRIENDLY.

LONDON, June 23.—The Cologne Gazette in an inspired article says: "Germany has always been friendly to England. The change in the English ministry will not jeopardize the peace of Europe or change the relations between England and Germany."

THE PRESS ON THE OUTCOME.

LONDON, June 23.—The Standard says the political deadlock has been settled by concessions on both sides. Reviewing the qualities of the new Ministers, it admits that the front seats of the Conservative benches in the House of Commons will be unequally matched with the gladiators in debate who sit on the opposite side. The Standard comforts itself for the Conservative lack of oratorical power by observing that the present task is to administer, not to discuss.

The News says that no specific pledges have been given, but that a general promise has been offered that the giant's strength at the opposition shall not be used like a giant.

PARLIAMENTARY SUMMARY.

SATURDAY, JUNE 20th.

The Canadian Pacific Railway resolutions were passed through committee to-day. Objection to the terms of the resolution was taken by the Opposition: First, that the liability is increased without any additional security being obtained, and second, because the lien on the road does not include the leased lines. Sir John A. Macdonald replied that as the money to be advanced the Company would be expended on the road, the Government security would be increased by just so much. He thought the security was ample in case of default, and the Government could, under the terms of a mortgage, either sell the road or place it in the hands of a receiver to be operated in the interest of the Government and of the bondholders. In regard to the leased lines he said it was not the intention to change the language of the mortgage from that of last year, which did not include leased lines. As a matter of policy he did not think those lines should be included. Mr. Blake urged strongly that the lien should cover the leased lines as well, because in the case of default the Government would only have the main lines without the connections, which were necessary to make a complete system. During the entire discussion on Saturday Mr. Abbott was in constant attendance, and frequently made explanations respecting the position of the various leased lines. The Government would not yield on this point, and the resolutions were ultimately reported without any material amendment.

BELLEVILLE.

The first meeting to establish a cheese market in Belleville was held at the City Hall on Saturday afternoon and was well attended by those interested in the cheese trade. The scheme was supported from all sides and a committee of five were appointed to draft a code of by-laws which are to govern the organization and report at a meeting to be held at the same place on Saturday afternoon, 27th inst.

After the meeting a few sales were affected at from 7⅞ to 7⅞ cts. The latter was an extreme price paid to well known gilt edge factories, the goods being bought to fill a special order.—Intelligencer.

Keep Your Ears Open.

Clarke's lecture, "Among the Masses," is now the topic of conversation, and if you only listen, you will hear some of the most flattering remarks about it. The people generally are looking forward to a rare treat. Bradburn's Opera House, Tuesday evening, June 30th. Admission only 25 cts. No reserved seats.

Painting the Lily.

A little movement is on foot with respect to the grounds of St. John's Church which is of interest to the public. Though the proposal to add to their beauty suggests the sweet Shaksperian idea of "painting the lily or throwing a perfume on the violet," it is proposed to further beautify the grounds by planting shrubbery, placing flower plots and adding a fountain in the centre of the large terraced circle formed by the drive. In aid of this object a garden party will be given in the grounds on July 2nd. This is something in which the active co-operation of the public should be given, for we are informed that as soon as the grounds of the church can be brought into a proper condition, it is intended to throw them open to the public under such conditions as will preserve them from injury. This will be one of the most beautiful of the beautiful breathing places being prepared in Peterborough. The view towards the south is a bit of scenery that would charm the heart of an artist.

THE NORTH-WEST RISING.

The Last Act of the Drama Begun.

The Troops to Speedily Start for Home.

WINNIPEG, June 22.—Commissioner Wrigley has received a despatch from Gen. Middleton, stating that he would return shortly to Winnipeg, along with all the troops, having resolved to leave the capture of Big Bear to the mounted police and the permanent force to be left in the Northwest Territory until order is finally restored. Steamers enough will be detained at Fort Pitt and Battleford to transport the troops via Saskatchewan river and Lake Winnipeg.

OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED.

OTTAWA, June 22.—In the commons today Mr. Caron said: "I desire to communicate to the house news I have received by telegram from Gen. Middleton that the McLean family and two others, who were prisoners, are now free, and were expected at Fort Pitt at 9 o'clock this morning, so I suppose they must be there by this time. (Cheers.)

The Trial of Riel.

A Test Case That Will Settle the Procedure.

TORONTO, June 23.—D. B. Osler, Q. C., and Geo. W. Burbidge (deputy minister of justice), leave to-day via Owen Sound for Winnipeg in connection with the trial of Louis Riel. Mr. Osler will represent the crown in the Queen vs. Connors, the case of a man now lying under sentence at Regina for murder, the decision of the territorial court having been appealed to the court of Queen's Bench of Manitoba, which is a court of appeal for such cases. The decision in this issue will settle the procedure in the trial of Riel. When that has been settled Mr. Osler will be joined by Christopher Robinson and Mr. Casgrain, the other counsel in the case, and the trial of Riel before the judges appointed for the purpose gone on with. There may be sixty or more persons to try in connection with the rebellion, and the Minister of Justice is anxious that no flaw creep into the procedure.

A Domesticated Squirrel.

William H. Callaghan and family live in Fishkill, N. Y., and for years one of the pets of the household has been a red squirrel. Three weeks ago the cage door was left open and the squirrel escaped out of doors. It was chased by boys and Mr. Callaghan, and it was last seen jumping from tree to tree. Its whereabouts was lost sight of in the darkness, and the Callaghans made up their minds that their pet was lost to them. The squirrel, however, surprised the family by running into the breakfast room one morning this week, and, jumping up on the table, commenced to drink milk out of a cup. It appeared to be nearly starved to death. It was emaciated to a degree, and its coat of hair had been torn out in spots by the roots, evidently the result of a fight with some animal in the woods on or near the Fishkill Mountains. Now, when the outside door of the Callaghan house is left open, the squirrel looks out, but refuses to cross the door sill.

Railway Salaries and Wages.

The amount expended by the railway companies in managing, working, and upholding their lines for the past year was about £37,000,000, of which exactly one-half, or £18,500,000, was paid for salaries and wages alone. The ordinary shareholders received in the year £14,000,000 by way of dividends on their holdings, or between £4,000,000 and £5,000,000 less than they paid their employes. The fact that the latter have thus larger pecuniary interest in the railways, and absorb considerably more than one-fourth of the gross earnings before payment of any interest or dividend whatever, makes the wages question the most important to be dealt with in the administration of the railways. From a social point of view the subject is, of course, one of great magnitude, for it would appear that the annual aggregate exceeds the sum voted for pay and allowances to the army and navy together, both for effective and non-effective services.—London Railway News.

Wolfe on the Plains of Abraham.

It was towards ten o'clock, when, from a hillock on the right of the line, Wolfe saw that the crisis was near. The French on the ridge had gathered themselves into three bodies; regulars in the centre, regulars and Canadians on right and left. Two field-pieces which had been dragged up the height fired on them with grape-shot, and the troops, rising from the ground, formed to receive them. In a few moments more they were in motion. They came on rapidly, uttering loud shouts, and firing as soon as they were within range. Their ranks, ill ordered at the best, were further confused by a number of Canadians, who had been interspersed among the regulars, and who, after hastily firing, threw themselves on the ground to reload. The British advanced a few rods; then halted and stood still. When the French were within forty paces, the word of command rang out, and a crash of musketry answered all along the line. The volley was delivered with remarkable precision. In the battalions of the centre, which had suffered least from the enemy's bullets, the simultaneous explosion was afterwards said by the French officers to have sounded like a cannon shot. Another volley followed, and then a furious clattering fire, that lasted but a minute or two. When the smoke rose, a miserable sight was revealed: the ground cumbered with dead and wounded, the advancing masses stopped short and turned into a frantic mob, shouting, cursing, gesticulating. The order was given to charge. Then over the field rose the British cheer, joined with the fierce yell of the Highland slogan. Some of the corps pushed forward with the bayonet; some advanced firing. The clansmen drew their broadswords and dashed on, keen and swift as blood-hounds. At the English right, though the attacking column was broken to pieces, a fire was still kept up; chiefly, it seems by sharpshooters from the bushes and cornfields, where they had lain for an hour or more. Here Wolfe himself led the charge, at the head of the Louisbourg grenadiers. A shot shattered his wrist. He wrapped his handkerchief about it, and kept on. Another shot struck him, and he still advanced, when a third lodged in his breast. He staggered, and sat on the ground. Lieutenant Brown, of the grenadiers, one Henderson, a volunteer in the same company, and a private soldier, aided by an officer of artillery who ran to join them, carried him in their arms to the rear. He begged them to lay him down. They did so, and asked if he would have a surgeon. "There's no need," he answered; "it's all over with me." A moment after, one of them cried out, "They run! See how they run!" "Who run?" Wolfe demanded, like a man roused from sleep. "The enemy, sir. Egad, they give way everywhere." "Go, one of you, to Colonel Burton," returned the dying man: "tell him to march Webb's regiment down to Charles River, to cut off their retreat from the bridge." Then turning on his side, he murmured, "Now, God be praised, I will die in peace;" and in a few moments his gallant soul had fled.

Montcalm, still on horseback, was borne with the tide of fugitives towards the town. As he approached the walls, a shot passed through his body. He kept his seat; two soldiers supported him, one on each side, and led his horse through the St. Louis Gate. On the open space within, among the excited crowd, were several women, drawn, no doubt, by eagerness to know the result of the fight. One of them recognized him, saw the blood, and shrieked. "Oh, mon Dieu! mon Dieu! le Marquis est tue!" "It's nothing, it's nothing," replied the dead-stricken man. "Don't be troubled for me, my good friends." ("Ce n'est rien, ce n'est rien. Ne vous affliges pas pour moi, mes bonnes amies.")—By Francis Parkman in September Atlantic.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

THE LATEST EXTRAVAGANCE.

On Saturday the House of Commons of Canada decided to add another cool five million dollars to the already huge debt of the country by giving that sum to the Canada Pacific Syndicate. We say "giving," for there is not the remotest probability of the amount ever being repaid. Even the guarantee of the repayment of the thirty millions given last sessions is destroyed by the Government deciding to release the mortgage on the road and accepting bonds instead. To realize on these bonds will not give a tenth part of their face value. Such is the nature of the security substituted for the lien held on the line. The uncalled for extravagance of this last grant is a matter for severe condemnation. No Canadian objects to the railway itself, but there is grave objection to the extravagant waste of the public money. Previous to getting the thirty millions last session the company had received amounts far in excess of the most liberal estimates of the cost of the road. Vast sums were frittered away in the purchase and construction of branch lines and on other objects unconnected with the original contract. When by reason of this course the company found itself in difficulties an indulgent parliament handed over $30,000,000 of the people's money. This was one short year ago, and we had solemn official assurances that that would be the last demand. Now the paltry sum of five millions more is asked, and the Conservative majority in the House freely give it. If the company needs this money why not draw on their credit balance in the hands of the Government? There is a deposit of fourteen millions in the hands of the Government to the credit of the company to secure the payment of dividends to the shareholders. Why not draw on this amount? Seeing that the company has paid itself large dividends out of capital furnished by the people, surely it might forego its dividends for one year, the date of the "proposed" repayment of the last loan, better than the over-taxed people can afford to advance the five millions. It is inexcusable extravagance to ask the country to give this five millions to the company which has fourteen millions of cool cash in the hands of the Government waiting to pay enormous dividends. In reference to the situation thus created the Hamilton Times forcibly remarks: "We are less than five million people in Canada. Less than one million of us are earning money. We have to keep ourselves in bread and butter and in clothes, and we have to pay taxes enough to keep the ordinary municipal, Provincial and Dominion machinery running. Under Sir John Macdonald's management, we have had to pay in four years, $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 and $5,000,000 to the Canadian Pacific, besides over $10,000,000 to local railways, which were subsidized to make the Canadian Pacific pill go down. Here is a direct burden of $70 for each worker in Canada. The indirect burden is still greater. Nor does the end yet appear. Nobody can tell how much Mr. Stephen will ask for next year. Experience has taught him that a Tory Parliament will refuse nothing he chooses to ask. Under these circumstances moderation on his part cannot be expected. It is for the people to say they will not pay more."

The annual meeting of the East Northumberland Reform Association will be held on June 25th at Warkworth, when the Hon. Mr. Ross, Minister of Education, will deliver an address.

Token of Regard.

We believe in presents of all sorts—Christmas boxes, New Years's gifts, birthday presents, especially for children and young people. Make them rejoice because they were born, and rejoice with them. It is well for children not only to receive presents but to make them. Gifts need not be costly to be very precious, and if they are chosen with reference to the tastes or needs of the recipient they have a double value. An excellent present for a child is a microscope, a cabinet of minerals, a historical chart, a writing-desk, a tool-chest, a work-box. Any one of these gifts will be of lasting utility, some of them can be so shared with others that a whole family will be benefited by them, as the chart, the cabinet, the mineralogical cabinets can be bought for a small sum. microscopes are for sale at every price and are of great value to young students.

11. That a grant of $25 be given to the Township of Burleigh towards repairing the bridge between Perry's Creek bridge and the Big Chute, and that the Reeve of Burleigh be commissioner for the expenditure of the same.

12. That the application of the Reeve of Harvey for a grant to build a bridge over the Narrows, between Harvey and Ennismore, and that the County Clerk be instructed to write to the Dominion Government stating that a portion of the settlers of the County contemplate building a bridge at the above point and asking for the objections if any of the Government thereto.

JOHN MOLONEY,
Chairman.

County Council Chamber, June 20th, 1885.

The report was adopted.

THE NICHOLLS' HOSPITAL.

Mr. Moloney read the report adopted last session in reference to the Nicholls' Hospital offer, and referred to the hasty manner in which the report was adopted. He understood that the arrangement was merely a preliminary one and he did not devote that attention to it he otherwise would have done. He called attention to the fact that a large and respectable proportion of the ratepayers were expected to contribute to the maintenance of the proposed hospital without having a voice in the management of it, and commented vigorously on the injustice of such an arrangement.

Mr. Cahill, a member of the Town Council, was present and spoke in strong terms respecting the matter. He asserted that the Roman Catholics, both residents of town and county, would resent strongly their being placed in the unjust position in which the proposed arrangements would place them. He admitted the perfect right of Mrs. Nicholls to make any disposition, she chose, of her wealth, but he submitted that when Roman Catholics were called upon to support the institution by the payment of taxes they should not be debarred from a voice in its management.

Mr. Burnham also spoke, his position being fully given in his letter to the Warden, and published on Friday last, and Mr. Foley declaimed against the injustice involved in them.

Mr. Kidd moved the following resolution.

Moved by Mr. Kidd, seconded by Mr. Fitzgerald,—That this Council having learned since the acceptance of Mrs. Nicholls' gift of Moira Hall as a hospital that difficulty is likely to arise from the fact that the funds for its support will have to be raised by public taxation in the town and county without the town of county councils having a voice in the appointment of the Trustees and that the following committee, G. Stewart, J. Lang, Mr. Burnham and E. C. Strickland, be appointed to confer with Mrs. Nicholls with a view of securing, if possible, a modification of her proposition, providing for the appointment of the Trustees by Mrs. Nicholls or her representatives, the Town Council and the County Council, one-third each or in such other proportion as may be agreed upon.—Carried.

SHORT-HAND REPORTER.

Mr. Edwards, Secretary of the Law Society, addressed the Council asking that this county give an annual grant to pay for a short hand reporter for the courts.

Moved by Mr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Fitzgerald,—That in the opinion of this Council a short hand reporter be secured for the County Court and that the Warden be authorized to forward to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council a memorial requesting the appointment of such short hand reporter provided the expense to the County shall not exceed $35.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned.

LAKEHURST.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A Sabbath school pic-nic was held at Buchanan's grove, near Sandy Lake, on Wednesday, the 17th inst. The weather was all that could be desired. The clouds that could be seen at dawn skirting the horizon were dispelled by the rising sun, which augured a most pleasant day. The constant breeze that blew from the lake made the air cool and bracing, and free from the annoying fly and mosquito. A large gathering of about two hundred people, including eighty-five children or more were present. In order to avoid confusion the pic-nic was carried on in a systematic way. Two committees were appointed: one of men to look after the grounds and the entertainment, another of women to take charge of the eatables; and all baskets brought in were checked at the reception table. The committee of ladies was composed of Mrs. W. P. Chase, Mrs. McMartin, Miss Brown, Mrs. Shaw, Miss Elliott, Miss P. Chase, Miss Renwick, Miss Hicks, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Geo. Smith and Mrs. H. Nisbet, who executed their part in a most satisfactory way. A long table capable of seating eighty persons, was sumptuously spread, and at 12.30 dinner was ready. As the day was particularly for the children, they were called first to the table, which the little things were anxious to approach. When all the people had done full justice to the delicious edibles, they resorted to the playgrounds where the boys and men indulged in running and jumping, while the ladies either witnessed the sports or engaged in pastimes of a milder nature. The most animating feature of the day was the tug-of-war. The team was composed of single men against married men. Both sides did their best, when the first tug resulted in favor of the single men.

The young ladies appeared to be jubilant over the contest. The second trial was somewhat a draw, but the benedicts claimed the victory.

A hymn was then sung by the choir, which drew the people together, after which the Rev. Mr. Meirs gave an interesting address to the children. As the reverned gentleman is leaving Harvey to labour in his new circuit in Lindsay, he made a few appropriate remarks to the people before parting with them. He particularly thanked a Presbyterian lady for giving him an invitation to the pic-nic, and alluded to the kind treatment he had received at the hands of the people generally, whilst labouring in Harvey.

Messrs. MacMartin and James Weir, who had acted as judges of the sports, were now called upon to distribute the prizes won by the boys and girls, and the children who won no prize were treated with candies.

Much credit is due to the ladies for the indispensable services which they rendered in the art of cooking, with which they so creditably acquitted themselves.

The success of the picnic is greatly due to Messrs. W. J. Stone, John Smith, Jerry Clarke, Hoskin and Wm. Renwick, who prepared the grounds for the entertainment, and who took an active part in the proceedings. Although the picnic was under the direction of the Presbyterians, yet all denominations were invited to take part. Methodists, Anglicans, and even Roman Catholics were present, and all seemed to be animated with the same social and friendly feeling. This is considered to be the best and most orderly Sabbath School picnic ever held in Harvey.

The merry party dispersed after singing the National Anthem.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

or,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The Leaden Casket," "Thorncroft's Model," &c. &c

He smiled. It was a treat to see that smile once more. His eyes seemed to close of their own accord, and he was asleep again almost directly. Lucy slightly changed her position, but still she sat by him, and still she held his hand. "For once," thought she, "I have done something that has not been an injury to him. Thank God I came!"

Now that she could see his face she saw how pale and thin it was. She was looking sorrowfully at it when the nurse awoke and came to her.

"What a change you have made in him, ma'am!" said she. "It is surprising what love can do."

Lucy was so shocked that she almost dropped his hand but bethought herself in time and sat still.

"He has raved about you, and his love for you, and his despair about something or other."

"About what?" inquired Lucy.

"Nay, miss, I don't know; despair is a part of the business. I took no particular notice of what he was saying."

Lucy began to think that he was sleeping so soundly she might steal away from his side. This woman's talk made her feel uncomfortable. She drew her hand away so gently that he certainly could not have felt it; but no sooner had she done so than he half turned round and said something which she did not hear.

"You will be having him wide-awake again, ma'am, if you don't take care," whispered the nurse, anxiously.

Lucy took his hand once more in hers, and once more he was still. The nurse now saw how weak and ill the poor girl was herself, and came and put a glass of wine to her lips, and gave her a cushion to lean against; without this Lucy must have fainted.

Lucy herself was in a half-sleep when she heard him say, "Nurse, I feel very well this morning!"

"And so you ought with a beautiful young lady sitting there and holding your hand lovingly like that the whole long night through. Most folks would feel happy. She's asleep now, poor young thing."

"What she does for me nurse, is only done out of pity."

The nurse looked wise. "I don't feel so sure of that, sir," said she.

"She is fast asleep, nurse."

Lucy was, so to speak, fast asleep and wide awake too. She heard, but could not move.

"How do you feel about eating something, sir?" was the good woman's next speech.

"I believe I am hungry—but I ought to be dead," he added with a certain degree of grim humor.

"On this Lucy's hand closed tightly on his, and with a great effort she opened her weary eyes. The nurse went to bring some tea.

"Do not use that dreadful word," said Lucy to him.

"You have, I think, saved me," replied he. "I wonder whether the doctor will say I am better."

"I never can forgive the doctor," cried Lucy; "he ought to have let me come to you sooner. He had no right to conceal from me that you wished to see me.—Why did you wish so much to see me?"

"To tell you something."

"But you have not done it."

"You are not to be told until just before I die."

Lucy was silent.

"You must be very tired," said he.

"No, I am so happy. You are better?"

"Yes, I am better. Thank you for all that you have undergone to make me so."

"What have I undergone that I would not most gladly undergo again for your good?"

She had withdrawn her hand from him—it was lying on the arm of her chair.—His eyes rested on it. He held out his own beseechingly. After an instant's hesitation she laid her hand frankly in his. He looked at it, then at her. "Just for one moment," said he; "I do not misunderstand you."

"Take your hand away," said he, in a short time; "I do not like to give it up, and I ought not to keep it."

Lucy left it where it was.

"Even if you attached all the meaning to what you are now doing that it is possible to attach, my duty would still be this," said he, kissing her hand, and gently putting it away from him.

"I do not understand," said she.

"I love you, dear," was his reply; "I always shall, but I am in no position to woo you for my wife. I wish you were as poor as I am."

"A minute ago," said Lucy, "you asked me for my hand—put yours in mine now for one instant," and very timidly she held out hers. He looked doubtfully in her face—what was she going to do? He held forth his hand. She did not lay hers in his, but she drew off her posy ring—the ring which had been her father's and her grandfather's betrothal ring—and she placed it on his finger.

He had not forgotten the motto:—

My love for thee
My life shall be.

and said in joyful amazement, "Is it possible that you could ever love me?"

"Yes," was her answer, "as soon as I saw you I felt I could."

"Enough to resign for my sake all that Mr. Kenrick left you?"

"Yes; but you ought to love me enough not to care about my doing that."

"My Lucy, my own love, you have saved my life."

"You seem to me to be talking far too much, sir," said the nurse, who suddenly, and with a great clatter of tea-cups, returned to the room. "You are much better, sir, but by no means out of danger yet; and if you please, sir, there must be no more imprudence with talking!"

Lucy's heart sank—what if the doctor came in and did not seem much impressed by the change in his patient? What if he still said he must die? Die! when they loved each other, and had owned their love? Could such a cruel thing be? and yet how often must it be! She hid her face and the tears fell fast.

The nurse touched her shoulder, and made her a sign to control herself. "I have brought two cups," she said; "you have watched together, and you must eat together; and then ma'am, you must please go into another room, and I'll straighten up Mr. Richmond, and make him ready to see the doctor, and then we'll hear what he says of him this morning."

Ah! how terribly important what he would say had become! Lucy's tea nearly choked her. Hugh Richmond drank his and ate his slips of toast, and looked at the posy ring on his finger. He seemed to have no fear of the doctor's verdict, and Lucy had so much. She took the nurse into a corner and asked her if he were not better, and if the doctor would not think so?

"There's no going by looks," replied that cautious woman, whose reputation for sagacity was at stake, so she dared not be too sanguine. "They often look quite cheerful and nicely, and then go out quite suddenly like the snuff of a candle."

"But don't you think he is better?"

"Well, yes, I do; but then it's the doctor who knows the most about it."

Aunt Esther and Lucy went away, and while in their room on the floor below heard the doctor's steps. It sounded knell-like. They even heard his voice.—and muffled and dreadful the sound was. Lucy had made the nurse promise to come to the door and hold up her right hand if the news were good. The doctor came instead.

"With care, he'll do!" were his words, and when Lucy heard them she fainted.

Three months afterwards the bells rang merrily at Calderwater. A happy bridal party walked through the churchyard.—Two of the number stopped by a tombstone bearing the name of Hugh Kenrick—the very name the bridegroom had just signed in the vestry. "How strangely my poor uncle's will has been carried out!" said he. "I do not take his name—I bear it already—I merely drop the name of Richmond, which he never liked. God grant that his fancy that he should know something of what went on after his death was a true one, and that he now sees us standing here—and God grant also that he is happy about this as we are!"

THE END.

An English and French Novelist.

Between the method of a Daudet and a Trollope, which to choose? What is the outcome respectively of their labors? Repelled by the English novelist's lack of all grace of form, by the slovenliness and wearisome verbosity of his style and his uniform prosaic coloring, we may be tempted to deny him his due, to refuse him the recognition of his fidelity to the truth of the average human nature which he paints. The reverse is apt to be the case with the reader of Daudet, or other of the skillful French writers of to-day. Their charm is the thing first felt; the delightful conviction that we have to do with an artist who takes himself and his creative work most seriously, and who will treat us to no slouched, rough-cast, half-completed work. Only after continued perusal of these accomplished writers does the sense of something wanting make itself felt. Admirable as they are, highly as we enjoy them, we note the absence of a certain impression of reality; there has not been enough of vital sympathy in the author with the humanity he would depict to create an illusion to the reader, who feels little or no warmth of personal interest in the characters, but is rather occupied mostly in pleased appreciation of the author's cleverness of construction and charm of narrative and descriptive style. The result of Trollope's intellectual activity is quite disproportionate to the effort itself. If the time spent on twenty novels had been given to the perfecting of four, the four would have been worth to us five times as much as the twenty. No wonder the man could write to order as he did, cutting off his manuscript in foot or yard lengths, according to the requirements of publishers! Does the outcome of Daudet's minute and scrupulous labor justify the theory of literary art which guides him? If we want bread a stone will not satisfy us, no matter how brilliant the crystal, nor how exquisitely cut. Yet we must acknowledge and allow the fact of every man's limitations, and perhaps comment and complaint are needless and useless. Great writers are few in any period, we know, and the glory they win is the "cry of gratitude" with which mankind receives the benefit bestowed. When our Thackeray and George Eliot, our Balzac and George Sand, pass, we must try to put up contentedly with the gifts of the dii minores.—Spectator.

The Daily Examiner.

TUESDAY, JUNE 23, 1885.

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day is received from the Toronto Meterological office :—Westerly winds, fine weather higher temperature.

They are Coming.

The Secretary of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, this morning received a communication from Mr. Fred W. Garvin, in which was stated that the boys might expect a first-class team from the Toronto L. C., on July 1st, Dominion Day. We have not the slightest doubt that the grand stand will be packed on that date, when the most interesting programme of the season's sports will be carried out.

Serious Accident.

On Saturday evening Mr. Harry Grundy, Deputy Registrar, met with a painful and possibly serious accident. He found it necessary, in closing the gate, to climb over the iron fence in front of his residence, Hunter street. In so doing he slipped and fell, his stomach striking the sharp points with considerable force. Violent vomiting, indicating more or less internal injury, followed. It is hoped, however, if active inflammatory action can be averted that no very serious results will follow.

Boulevard as Well as Business Rivalry.

Charlotte street has two citizens who are business rivals, in a friendly way of course, and recently a spirit of esthetic rivalry has also seized them. A few days ago Mr. T. Fitzgerald ornamented the front of his residence and that of the Queen's Hotel, opposite, with a handsome boulevard. At once, Mr. Robert White, not to be out done, treated the front of his residence in a similar manner, and in order that Justus B. Dunn to the locality, the latter extended the boulevard in front of his premises, adjoining Mr. White's on the east. The result is a great improvement. The boulevard fever is more catching than the measles.

Runaway by Moonlight.

Last night about 11 o'clock Mr. John Newall was returning from leaving some passengers in Ashburnham and when near the Athletic grounds the bolt of the whiffle-tree became loose, which immediately started the horses on a brisk run and which pace in a short time was increased to a furious gallop. They had not gone a great distance ere the driver was thrown from his seat by the upsetting of the hack. The animals then broke loose entirely from the vehicle and proceeded northwards towards Smith street at which they turned west, crossing the black bridge and coming down George street, when but a few persons were out, as fast as they could run. At the corner of Hunter street one of the horses fell and a number of men, seeing the occurrence, caught them and ascertained the owner. Mr. Newall was not injured, but the fine hack remained in Ashburnham over night until this morning when it was brought home in a dilapidated state.

Opening of a New Street.

Peterborough is progressing so rapidly that it appears there are not enough streets to accommodate the amount of building that at present is going on. The latest thoroughfare that has been decided to be opened is a street, which, in a short time, will be run to the north of the Barnardo Home. The new thoroughfare, which will be called Barnardo street, will open from George street, a short distance south of the residence of Mr. Richard Hall, and will be the most direct route from the northern portion of the town to the communication line, crossing Wolseley and Bellevue streets. The plans for the proposed new street have been prepared by Mr. Ranney, and we understand that the work is to commence in a short time. Mr. Cox opens this street through his property to give access to the four new tenement houses which in a short time will loom up.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

A RICH MUSICAL TREAT.

Prof. Parker's Initial Piano Recital.

Last evening the Lecture Room of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was comfortably filled by an appreciative audience who assembled there to listen to the complimentary piano recital given by Prof. J.S Parker. Shortly after eight o'clock the programme was opened by the rendition of the "Scottish Airs,"—"Bonnie Doon," "Bonnie Dundee," "Auld Lang Syne," by the Professor on the piano; who on receiving a well deserved encore, followed by giving from Beethoven, "Adagio, Moonlight, Sonata" and "Funeral March, 12th Sonata," during the progress of which the audience seemed to be held almost spellbound, and began to realise what was in store for them before the evening's entertainment would close. The next piece was a vocal solo, "Angel's Serenade," from Braga, by Mrs. Chambers, with violin accompaniment by Prof. Doucet; the sweet strains of the latter instrument mingling with the soft notes from the piano added much to the musical richness which is especially characteristic of the singing of that lady and which gave another evidence of careful and strict musical training. We might state here that ere the evening's entertainment was brought to a close the appreciation of Mrs. Chambers' singing was manifested to such a degree throughout the audience that, by special request, she sang "Ye Merry Birds," from Gumbert; and, though labouring under the disadvantage of a slight hoarseness, sustained her reputation as a singer, possessed of a voice remarkable for its culture and other qualities, which, time and again, have been spoken of highly by the press of Peterborough and other places where Mrs. Chambers has made her appearance. The fourth part, "Scotch Symphony" from Mendelssohn, having been misplaced, was substituted by the piece, "Battle of Prague," from Kot wara,—a musical selection of the highest order, yet the rendition of it was unattended by even the slightest noticeable defect in either style, tempo or harmony, and was followed by general and continued applause. Prof. Doucet preceded the last part of the programme by giving a Violin Solo from Herman, entitled "Crown of Gold," which was well received, accompanied by Professor Parker on the piano, the blending of the notes from the two instruments producing a beautiful and strikingly harmonious effect. The entertainment was brought to a close about 9:30, by Prof. Parker contributing from the piano, "Lieder Ohne Worte," from Mendelssohn, after which Mr. Jas. H. Hall, on behalf of the audience, thanked him, as well as Mrs. Chambers and Mr. Doucet, for the entertainment which was provided; he hoped that such audiences would have the pleasure of meeting on many future occasions to listen to a repetition of such a musical treat. Prof. Parker's first appearance in public as a conductor of concerts, gives a delightful foretaste of the pleasure yet in store for the public of Peterborough. The select and cultured audience that listened to the recital of last evening were highly pleased with the evidences it presented of both Prof. Parker's skill as a finished musician and of his ability and fitness as a musical conductor. To use a well-worn but expressive phrase, he is a decided acquisition to the musical talent of the town.

Without Protection.

It was fortunate that the fire which occurred in Ashburnham yesterday did not originate in a very thickly populated part of the village. Had it not been for the work which a dozen of firemen performed, with the assistance of a neighboring pump, there would have been more serious loss. As it was, with the wind in their favour, the residence of Mr. Johnson adjoining that of Mr. Courtney which was destroyed, would have had a very poor chance of escaping from the flames. Mr. Lundy informs us that of all his property, the building which was burned was the only one which was not insured.

Fresh and Bright.

The Irish Canadian says:—that the DAILY EXAMINER, a new acquisition in the journalism of Peterborough, is a very neat and newsy sheet, fresh and bright, and got up in the best style of typography. The DAILY EXAMINER may be called an offspring of the weekly EXAMINER, long and favourably known to the people of the Midland district; and the child, if we are to judge from its first appearance, will be, we are safe in saying, worthy of the parent. We congratulate the publisher and proprietor, Mr. J. R. Stratton, on the creditable appearance of his venture, and the enterprise which has given it shape; and hope that the daily will receive that encouragement which has made of the weekly a valuable property and a power in the land. Peterborough has every reason to feel proud of her newspaper press—a press not surpassed for finish and ability even by that of the large cities of the Dominion.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

Rev. Mr. Manning Again Remembered.

On Monday evening the retiring pastor of Charlotte street Methodist church, Rev. Mr. Manning, was favored with another evidence of the hold he possesses upon the respect and love of his congregation. About twenty-five of the members of his Tuesday evening class called at his residence, and Miss Eliza Guthrie read the following address :

DEAR MR. MANNING,—We the members of the Tuesday evening class desire to express our heartfelt regret at your unavoidable removal from this field of labour, where you have so faithfully and efficiently expounded the Word of Life, but more particularly in the capacity of class leader. For three years we have been greatly edified and built up by your wise and judicious counsels. Your vigilance, kindness and untiring zeal, coupled with an exemplary Christian walk and conversation, demands our highest respect, and we assure you will ever be held in grateful remembrance by us. And while we feel that we are losing an invaluable leader, we rejoice with the Church that shall in the future have the privilege of your presence and Godly counsel.

We ask you to accept this chair, and Mrs. Manning this fan, as small tokens of our high esteem, with our united prayers that Heaven's choicest blessings may rest upon you and your family through all the vicissitudes of life.

Signed on behalf of the Charlotte-street class :

Fanny Harmer,	Mrs. Battin,
Annie Harmer,	Jennie Brenton,
Lottie Harmer,	Fannie Brenton,
Mrs. Sutherland,	Jennie Redmond,
Eliza Guthrie,	Jennie Kent,
Annie McMillan,	Ella Cox,
May Snider,	Fannie Ford,
M. Stock,	Maggie Shearer,
Lizzie Hart,	Grace Stephens,
Mary Meharry,	Louisa Meharry,
Lou Huffman,	Maggie Meharry,
Minnie Eastland,	Mary Meharry,
Harry Stephens,	Willie Hamilton,
Mrs. Edmison.

Rev. Mr. Manning said he could not express, for himself and Mrs. Manning, to the members of his Tuesday evenings' class, the thankfulness he felt for these tokens of goodwill. Referring to the chair, he said he appreciated it not only as a token of their kindness and good-will, but from the fact that no other present could have been selected that, in this respect, would have more fully fulfilled his desires; nothing else would have been more appropriate—if, perhaps, its luxuriousness did not incline him to neglect of literary work. He said he was greatly gratified with the exercises and his experience by the class. There was no department of church work that secured his greater interest. Its prosperity was a source of gratification, and it had been a great help to him in his spiritual life. The associations of himself and Mrs. Manning, with the class would form pleasant rememberances. After a short time spent in social intercourse, the company separated.

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.

For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.

This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

A NEW INDUSTRY.

The Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company

Works Now Complete, and in Running Order.

The First Class Quality of the Goods.

A Stroll Through the Premises.

At the doors of the humble homes of Canada which rare and unfrequent dotted the openings of the lusty forest in the infant [illegible] was born a welcome in the hospitality of our early ancestors, whose scanty belongings neither tempted the cupidity of honest fellow countrymen, nor made their contented possessors solicitous for their safety. There was no need for bolts, bars and locks. But as wealth began to be amassed, a more sordid and suspicious disposition was developed, and the fancied necessity of excluding those who might not be proof against temptation, arose. Fastenings, the primitive prototype of the modern lock began to be adopted. Many a man now living, who remembers the rude appliances for door fastenings in his early youth when he stood tip-toe to lift the "hand polished" wooden latch, would be simply astounded at the marvellous progress of industrial skill and mechanical ingenuity if he were to compare it with the beautiful, highly polished, tastefully designed and artistically ornamented modern locks turned out at the factory of the Peterborough and to be seen at their warerooms on Simcoe street. Some time since we gave in THE EXAMINER a brief sketch of the local history of the enterprise and the beginning of operations, but at that time there had been turned out no finished products. Now nearly every department is in complete, if not full running order, and splendid specimens of every variety of building locks and door and window fastenings, staple to the hardware trade, are being produced.

LOCK MANUFACTURING COMPANY,

Let the reader accompany us while Mr. Thos. Brooks, the manager, shows us over the place.

ON THE FIRST FLOOR

the moulding and founding department is to be found. In the iron casting room, the earthen floor is covered with hundreds of small rectangular flasks, in which are the moulds of the different parts. In this room four moulders are at present employed. The moulding requires especial dexterity and delicacy of manipulation, some of the parts being exceedingly small. The patterns are, as a rule, arranged in the shape of "gates" containing, on an average, a dozen patterns of the same piece fastened together. The sand used for the matrices is imported from Albany, N. Y., none suitable for fine work having yet been discovered in Canada. The iron used is Summerlee or the best Scotch pig.

Adjoining is the brass and bronze founding room, where two furnaces are in use for casting brass and bronze knobs and the brass or bronze parts of the finer locks, gong door bells, etc., etc. Here it may be remarked that the factory of the most elaborate or simplest building lock made, except the porcelain knobs for common locks, which all lock factories procure from special manufactories.

Adjoining the iron foundry is the room containing the "rolling barrels," within which the iron parts after leaving the moulds are revolved till the moulding sand and lesser inequalities are removed and a sort of rude polish imparted.

Next is the room where the "gates" or rough projecting portions are removed by a suitable machine.

The knob room is where the bronze and brass knobs are fitted together. Another room contains a powerful press and a drop for cutting out wrought iron tumblers and similar work.

Ascending to

THE SECOND FLOOR

we see a workmen engaged in drilling, "tapping" and "milling" the plates of the locks. These are, thereafter, ready for the japanning process. The parts are dipped in the japan, and then placed in the japaning furnace during the day. Here they are left exposed to a heat of about 250 degrees during the night. In the morning the japan coating is found sufficiently hardened. This apartment is called the lock room, and it contains the requisite machinery, punches, speed lathes, etc., etc. This machinery is the very best that can be procured, and was selected by Mr. Brooks himself. It is especially designed for the purpose, and it answers its purpose to perfection. After coming from the japaning furnace, the parts are placed on a wide bench along one side of the room and put together. Adjusting the parts of the cheaper grades of locks is not difficult, but the more complicated locks require the offices of skilled workmen.

THE PATTERN ROOM

adjoins the last mentioned and is one of the most interesting of the departments. A special artist is constantly employed in originating new designs for the ornamental parts of the costlier locks and for brass and bronze knobs. From these the patterns are made, all in bronze pattern metal. This is no small part of the work, as a variety of designs, new and original, to be developed into patterns, is desirable in order to be able to compete on the market with the best lock factories in the world.

In the polishing rooms a hundred emery wheels are available for present use, and there are polishing facilities to keep six men employed. There all the parts of locks, knobs and handles requiring to be polished are treated. This is also a very important department, for in addition to the perfection of the working parts, the fine finish of the locks made by the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company is an especially distinguishing feature. Adjoining the packing room, where the finished goods are put up for shipment, is

THE ELECTRO-PLATING DEPARTMENT.

Here are to be seen all the requisite vats, batteries, etc., required for this purpose. Different vats contain the respective solutions for nickel, brass, bronze, silver and gold, as well as all necessary appliances. In the office is to be found

SPLENDID SAMPLES

of the vast varieties of locks, and building hardware produced in the factory, from the simple rim lock for the back bedroom door of a labourer's cottage to the costly, complicated, elaborate and handsome lock for the ponderous portals of a bank. The elegant store door handles, in brass, bronze and iron, are models of beauty both in shape, in the artistic design of the ornamentation, and the exquisite finish and polish. It is not necessary to enter into detailed notice of the different kinds of locks. It will be sufficient to those interested to know that the same general

EXCELLENCE CHARACTERIZES ALL.

Hardware experts have carefully compared the products of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company with those of the best factories in the United States, and while they are superior to some they are not excelled in any respect by any of them.

Mr. Thos. Brooks, the manager, has had 18 years' experience in the manufacture of locks in the best factories in the United States and he not only has a thorough practical knowledge of the mechanical and technical processes of manufacture, but he understands as well the requirements of the trade and fully appreciates the necessity of keeping the goods up to the very highest standard in order to compete with the factories of the United States, from which the present market supplies are almost exclusively drawn.

The hardware trade will soon have an

of the merits of the goods by personal inspection. The agent of the company will be on the road in a few days. The first catalogue is now in the printer's hands.

As before mentioned, the factory is in complete, but not in full running order. The necessary additions to the buildings have not yet been finished. The briskness of building operations here this spring has made building material so scarce that rapid erection cannot be expected. The construction of the new buildings, however, is being pushed as speedily as possible, and before long, at least a hundred hands will be employed.

There can be little doubt of the successful future that awaits this new enterprise. Backed with abundant capital; the factory equipped with the best machinery made; with a fine corps of thoroughly and specially skilled workmen; with a manager who is entirely at home in the business; with a fine market open, nothing but the most untoward circumstances can stand in the way of a prosperous business career for the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company.

Unsuccessful Search.

The search for the body of James Norley, the little fellow who was drowned in the river on last Saturday evening, has been, so far, unsuccessful, notwithstanding that several men have spent fourteen hours each day, since the sad event happened, in the most rigorous examination of the shallow parts of the river down as far as Burnham's point.

CABINET CRISIS OVER.

The Queen Approves of the New Ministry.

Parnellites and Radicals not to be Trusted.

At the meeting of the house of commons this afternoon the members took the same seats they had previously occupied. The attendance was larger than on any previous day of the session.

Earl Granville announced in the House of Lords, and Mr. Gladstone made a similar announcement in the House of Commons that the Marquis of Salisbury had accepted office, and that he had gone to Windsor Castle to so inform the queen.

The House of Lords adopted all the amendments to the redistribution of seats bill passed in the House of Commons, and then adjourned until Thursday.

The House of Commons adjourned until to-morrow.

THE RADICALS THREATENING.

LONDON, June 23.—The Queen has confirmed Lord Salisbury's Cabinet.

The Irish Secretary's portfolio was offered to five others and declined before Sir Wm. Hartdyke accepted it.

There are spmptoms already that the Radicals will do their utmost to harass the Conservatives. At the informal meeting today they decided to fight the budget unless it is fully satisfactory and to oppose the issue of exchequer bonds to meet the deficit. Further, they will insist upon the passage of a bill removing the franchise disqualification from persons receiving pauper medical relief. During the proceedings of the House of Commons to-day a spirit of revolt was manifested in the speeches of Messrs. Collings and Laboucher.

THE PARNELLITES DECLINE.

LONDON, June 23.—The Parnellites have been asked to cross the house with the conservatives, but they refuse A rush for seats is expected.

A special cabinet council has been summoned by Lord Salisbury for next Thursday afternoon.

A Weary Wanderer.

Last night, about midnight, a lonely being was observed standing at the door of Chamberlain's hotel, and on being asked what motive he had in lounging around at such an hour, answered, that he was looking for something to eat. He was provided with the heel of a loaf and immediately started off towards the G. T. Railway station, where he passed the night, under the cover of one of the freight cars.

What's the Matter?

A person would think from the remarks which are heard on every side to-day that the team of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club were guilty of some treasonable act by being beaten in the contest yesterday. Former admirers do not seem to realize the disadvantage under which the boys played: they do not seem to be aware that Myles, Kelly, Howden, Rutherford and Rudkins, five of the best players that ever "knuckled down to hard tack" on a Peterboro' lacrosse field, were not present when time was called for the ball to be faced. As we have stated in our report of the match, the boys suffered a worse defeat at Brockville last July, and managed to wind up the season very successfully. The Toronto lacrosse twelve defeated the Shamrocks in Montreal on Oct. 4th, 1883, by taking three straight games in five minutes; and yet, that same team left the Shamrock grounds on Saturday last and returned to Toronto without even getting a "smell" of the game. The fortunes of war often go against the greatest generals; and a lacrosse club cannot expect to be exempt from the effect of a streak of bad luck.

Sliding Down Hill to Walk Up.

The company of eighteen or twenty gentlemen who accepted invitations for the complimentary excursion down the river on the Beaver were forced to take the bitter with the sweet. On the homeward voyage something went wrong with the boiler flues, near the Yankee Bonnet, and the party had to find their way home on foot. For a little distance they kept together, but some took short cuts through growing grain furrowed fields, swamps, and morasses, while others took the dust of the highway. The several parties came straggling home like belated geese, wet, travel-worn, hungry weary, profane and disgusted, at all hours of the night and early morning. One well-known grain buyer was particularly disgusted. He was exceedingly anxious to join the outing. At the wharf, before the boat started, he fell into the water, with usual soaking results. Nothing daunted, he hastened home, changed his dripping garments and caught and boarded the Beaver at the Locks. He was, after all, perhaps, more fortunate than the others, for he was thus put in some sort of training for the nocturnal five-miles' tramp on the return trip.

THE NORTH-WEST RISING.

Heroes Homeward Bound.

Only the Regulars to Remain.

WINNIPEG, June 23.—Troops are all expected to embark for home to-morrow via Lake Winnipeg.

A and B batteries and C company infantry regulars will remain at Battleford to co-operate with the mounted police in the capture of Big Bear. The Quebec school of cavalry will also remain.

It is understood that those who volunteered to remain are not required to do so. The permanent corps with the police are to garrison Qu'Appelle, Humboldt, Fort Pitt, Edmonton and Prince Albert, in addition to the mounted police posts.

A despatch from Battleford announces the arrival of a courier from Col. Otter's column, who confirms the reported capture at Turtle Lake of Yellow Sky and twenty head of cattle and four horses taken from Fort Pitt. All the infantry under Col. Otter are ordered to return at once to Battleford.

Louis Riel's wife and her two children arrived in the city last night from Battoche. Joseph, Riel's brother, found them in the house of a half-breed named Cuthbert Fayan about a mile below the village of Battoche, and he found the scene of the recent troubles terribly desolate. The people have had nothing to eat since the commissariat ordered by Gen. Middleton stopped issuing rations. He said the troops burned and destroyed over 25 houses in the fight, and a great number of families are in consequence left destitute. He does not know how the people are to get along, as the troops took nearly all the cattle and horses they could lay their hands on.

At Qu'Appelle inquiry was made if Mrs. Riel and children could see Riel, but were answered in the negative. Mrs. Riel has not received a letter from Louis since he was taken prisoner. She feels her position keenly and left this morning for St. Vital, five miles from St. Boniface, to live near the former home of her husband.

BRIDGENORTH.

(From Our Own Correspondent,)

Owing to some misunderstanding as to the date, the regatta on the 18th inst. was not largely attended. Only one event, the single canoe race, was contested. There were four started in the race, which, after a close struggle, was won by G. Nicholls. The remainder of the races will take place shortly.

King Kennedy gave an entertainment, consisting of ventriloquism sealed letter reading, etc., in the town hall, on Saturday evening last. Attendance small.

The young men of the village have organized a base ball club, and met for their first practice on Saturday evening. The club promises well, and we have no doubt but, with practice, the boys will be hard to beat.

Mr. Aaron Cox has suffered another relapse into illness. He is, however, again in a fair way to recovery.

Messrs. W. H. Kent and F. G. Cox left on Tuesday to attend the closing exercises of the Whitby Ladies' College. Such deep interest in the higher education of young ladies is a hopeful sign of the times.

Messrs. D. Scollard and G. Whibbs, two young men from this county, have been very successful at the recent examination held at St. Michael's College in Toronto, the former taking the Elmsley bursary for general proficiency in belles lettres and the latter taking honors in natural and mental philosophy. Mr. Whibbs also delivered a much appreciated address on Catholic civilization.

TIME.

The assortment of time supplied to the people of Peterborough has now become a standing joke, for the visitors coming here, and some of the ratepayers are considering the advisability of petitioning the Council to publish the probabilities of the variation of the Town time every morning, for the ensuing 24 hours, and after a while the public would examine the bulletin to find out what kind of time we are going to have, the same as they look at the weather probabilities to know what changes are coming.

To be above the necessity of relying on the above arrangement for your time is very simply accomplished. The most satisfactory way is to buy a Watch of who supplies the most perfect time-pieces at the lowest prices, and who has by far the largest stock to choose from. Either that, or get your old watch repaired by him, and you will always have the correct time with you. Take the advice of an experienced and reliable Watchmaker, and do so at once.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Onderdonk, the C. P. R. contractor in British Columbia, charges passengers $18 for carrying them 120 miles. This is one of the effects of monopoly.

If the Indian agents and Indian farm instructors in the Northwest should get to tell the truth about each other, the situation will, as the Hamilton Times remarks, illustrate the trite saying, that "when rogues fall out honest men come by their own.

The rate of taxation in Toronto this year has been increased and the people are grumbling. Yet, as the London Advertiser points out, Toronto sends three men to Ottawa who hold that the prosperity of a country depends on high taxation—that the more we are taxed the more prosperous we are.

There is on exhibition in the Montreal Corn Exchange a sample of the bread furnished to the volunteers in the Northwest. It was sent by a young man in the force there to his father, who is a prominent member of the Exchange. It is quite black and evidently made from the flour of frozen wheat. contractors for Indian supplies are buying up all they can get and furnishing it, with other inferior articles, to feed the Indians. Evidently some of the contractors in that country are feathering their own nests pretty well.

The Sarnia Canadian remarks that Hon. Mr. Mowat's chief end is to "smash the Tory chieftain." That has not been the object of Ontario's Premier; but from a standpoint of constitutional law that has been the result. Sir John has seen fit, in his efforts to further his own objects at the expense of Provincial rights, to run a-muck of Mr. Mowat, and the "smashing" he has received has been the result of his placing himself between the upper and the nether millstone. Hon. Mr. Mowat has sought to be true to his trust—the defence of the rights of Ontario, and any "smashing" Sir John may have suffered has been only incidental. Any other man who would have dared to act aggressively towards this Province would have received the same treatment.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Councillors Assemble to do a Very Small Amount of Business—The Nicholls Hospital Question Comes up Once More.

A meeting of the Town Council was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening. At 8 o'clock the following Councillors took their seats, with his worship the Mayor in the chair:—Messrs Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Yelland, Menzies, McClelland, Douglas, Green and Hartley.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and the Clerk read the following communications which were dealt with as follows:—

A communication from the Mayor of Port Hope with reference to the reception of the Midland Battalion. Received and referred to Finance Committee.

A petition from H. Rush asking for assistance for Thos Jones.—Charity Committee, with power to act.

A petition from a number of citizens asking that something be done with reference to the condition of Central park.—Received.

The following accounts were presented, and dealt with as follows:—

From A. Elliott, for tickets	$ 6 65
A. McDonnell	88 95
George Johnston	1 00
Wm. Clancy	87 50
E. B. Edwards	108 70
Dixon Estate	38 73

They were all referred to the Finance Committee, with the exception of those of Messrs. A. McDonald and George Johnston, which were ordered to be paid.

Mr. Davidson then read the following report from the finance committee:

To the Mayor and Town Councillors of Peterborough.

GENTLEMEN,—The Finance Committee beg to report and recommend the payment of the following accounts:

H. Rush	$ 90
A. Comstock	29.25
N. T. Laplant	5.50
H. J. Little	1.00

In reference to the by-law for exempting certain industries from taxes for a period of ten years, your committee have directed the town clerk to prepare a by-law for that purpose, which will be brought before you. All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. S. DAVIDSON,
Chairman.

Peterborough, June 23rd, 1885.

On motion of Mr. Cahill, the report was adopted.

Moved by Mr. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the street inspector be authorized to finish the grading on Westcott street, and that the G. T. Railway be requested to grade the approaches.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. McClelland, that the sum of $300 be granted to the Central Exhibition.

On account of the absence of three of the Councillors it was deemed advisable by the mover to withdraw the above and give notice of motion of the same.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the town grant the Horticultural Society plank to make a sidewalk on Carried.

Moved by Mr. Kelly, and seconded by Mr. Davidson, that Mr. McNaughton be allowed to put a sign up at his premises on the corner of Bethune and Sherbrooke streets.—Carried.

Mr. Davidson referred to the necessity of authorizing the Street Inspector to request parties to remove the fences on the various corners of the town.

Mr. Cahill asked if the committee of the Nicholls' Hospital had any information to give the Council.

The Mayor explained that it was understood that the question was to come up before the Council. The Council had accepted the offer of Mrs. Nicholls; but if any objections were raised to the matter of course the question was practically settled, as far as a general tax was concerned.

Mr. Cahill said that such an explanation from the Mayor put the subject under a very different light. At the previous meeting it was understood that the board of directors were to be exclusively Protestant, whilst the Roman Catholics of the town were taxed for the maintenance of the proposed institution. He did not think that in justice to his co-religionists such pointed exclusiveness should be made towards them; he had not the slightest objections to offer against Mrs. Nicholls making such an endowment on the people, but he thought that in a free country like Canada if Roman Catholics were taxed they had a perfect right to be represented; it would not be a very nice inheritance to leave to their coming generation, viz.: the supporting of a hospital, the management of which they were debarred from. It was the principle and not the dollars and cents to which he objected; he always voted for giving a grant to the Protestant Home, and would make an advance promise to do so for the future; he had a resolution to read but which on the explanation from the Mayor he would not offer.

Mr. McClelland explained that a mistake was made by Mr. Poussette, Mrs. Nicholls' lawyer, in the meaning which was given to the primitive offer; she did not wish to exclude Roman Catholics.

Mr. Kelly thought that the matter was handled very loosely in the first place; he had asked Mr. Poussette at the meeting if such was her wish and was answered in the affirmative, and appealed to the Council if such was not the case, he would not for a moment doubt Mrs. Nicholl's word; but he certainly thought that Mr. Poussette acted very loosely and gave him credit for more business tact.

Mr. Douglass confirmed Mr. Kelly's statements.

Mr. Menzies suggested that the Catholics support their own poor; such a generous offer should not be neglected because a few members of the Council saw fit to oppose it. He thought Mr. Kelly should not get his "dander" up, and would move a motion, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the offer be accepted and supported by a special Protestant tax, and that the Catholics support their own poor, but withdrew the same on hearing that [illegible] had been passed accepting the endowment.

Mr. Kelly again rose and said he was sorry it was necessary that such a discussion had to take place; he thought that legislation could not be obtained; he would contradict a remark that was made by Mr. McClelland to the effect that legislation had been obtained in similar cases throughout Ontario. He challenged that gentleman to name one instance. He would like to know how members of the Council would feel if placed in the like circumstances; if Roman Catholics were good enough to take a seat in the Council Chamber why were they not entitled to hold the like position in the management of an institution for which it was proposed to tax them, and in which they were allowed a voice.

On motion of Mr. Davidson the meeting adjourned until Thursday evening, when the law for the extension of the water-works will be dealt with.

LAKEFIELD.

(From Our Own Correspondent,)

CRICKET MATCH.

The return match between the juniors of Peterborough and Lakefield was played on the Lakefield grounds, on Saturday the 20th, and resulted in a victory for the Lakefield juneviles by an innings and 13 runs. Some of the boys in both clubs have the material for future first-class cricketers, while the fielding would be hard to beat even by old hands.

FORESTER'S EXCURSION.

The members of Court Lakefield have this year decided to make their annual excursion open to all. It will be held next Wednesday, Dominion Day, the steamers Cruiser and Fairy leaving the wharf sharp at 8 a.m., for Stoney Lake. A scow and music will be provided for dancing, and a pleasant day may looked for. All are welcome.

AGRICULTURAL PROGRESS.

The Verulam Agricultural Society has in the last few years developed a remarkable degree of life and energy. Four years ago, three or four little jags of farm truck were thrown into a corner of the Town Hall, and the few people who straggled into the building, did so more for the curiosity of finding the stuff, than looking at it, and that was the Fall Show. Three years ago, a slight effort was made to show the stuff to some advantage. When the report was spread that there was really something to look at, the hall was crowded, and everyone pleased. Two years ago, a still better exhibition was given. Last year the two storeys of the Hall were fully occupied, and the show continued two days. This year the Society have completed arrangements for the erection of a handsome building in the grounds at the head of John st, and tenders are asked for its construction. It will be the duty of every member of the society to back up the officers in their efforts, and endeavor to make an Exhibition worthy of a large attendance.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

MAGGIE MORGAN'S TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

DETROIT, June 22.—Maggie Morgan, a young lady 20 years old, at Grindstone by a strange man who came in saying:—"D—n you, I have come to kill you." He then pulled a large knife, and stopping her cries with the handkerchief, proceeded to cut and slash her in a horrible manner about the face, throat, and breast, leaving her for dead. When found the young lady was nearly dead and was hardly able to give particulars of the terrible deed. The doctor pronounces her case hopeless.

YOUNG MEN

THE REV. DE WITT TALMAGE SAYS:—"How a man with no surplus of estate, but still enough money to pay the Premium of a Life Insurance Policy, can refuse to do it, and then look his children in the face and say his prayers at night, on going to bed, expecting them to be answered, is a mystery to me that I have never yet been able to fathom. IN THE GLOAMING.

"Rain, rain, rain! How I detest the country! Even a London fog is better than this eternal mist and drizzle! It's absolutely intolerable! I wonder where everybody is?"

With an impatient shrug of her graceful shoulders, Geraldine rose and walked to the window. The prospect was not enlivening—sleet and rain striving for mastery against the biting north wind; sodden grass-plots and pools of water; leafless trees, looking weird and ghostly in the dim twilight; rain beating against the glass in sudden splashes as the swirling blasts of wind scattered the showers in heavy drops.

"What a dismal prospect!" was the girl's verdict as she stood and watched the driving clouds of rain and sleet. "And I have nine more days to spend in this dreary place! How can Alice endure it? Nothing—no, nothing in the world should ever make me live here. How it does rain! Yes, lie there and die!" she said with a spiteful glance at a poor little battered snowdrop which the wind tore off and flung upon the window-sill.

Then she went back to her seat by the fire, in utter discontent with herself and all the world. She gave a listless glance round the beautiful room, every article in which betokened, wealth and taste, and seemed to protest against the dullness and ill-temper which oppressed her.

The firelight fell upon the folds of her white dress, gleamed upon her golden brown hair; and shone brightly on the beautiful face and stately graceful figure, on the deeply fringed violet eyes and slightly sarcastic and decidedly cross-looking mouth. She took up a screen of white downy feathers to protect her face.

"What can Alice be doing all this time? Making a nursery-maid of herself as usual, I suppose"—with a contemptuous curl of the red lip—"with two nurses looking on! I wonder she can be so absurd. I wish——"

Here the door was noiselessly thrown open, and a merry mischievous-looking damsel trotted boldly into the room, a most dilapidated doll hugged closely in her arms. She danced up to the fire and clutched the delicate folds of Geraldine's dress with her small fingers.

"Auntie, auntie, me dot a new frock—look!" she cried, lifting up her short skirts of embroidered muslin for inspection.—"Me runned away from nurse to show it to 'oo."

But the moment was unpropitious for Mollie. Geraldine only extricated her dress and put the mischievous fingers aside, without noticing the new frock.

"Mollie, where is mamma?"

"Me knows; she's making Jack say his prayers. Me did run. Look at my Katie, auntie. She's got the dipferia, and she's going to have a powder in currant jam;" and the little sprite kissed the doll's dilapidated face and held it tenderly towards her aunt.

But Geraldine was in no mood to sympathize as she usually did with poor Katie's numerous and novel ailments.

"No, no, Mollie; don't tease!" she said, putting the doll rumorsalsely aside.

Nowise abashed, Mollie dropped down in the middle of the white hearth-rug and seated herself and her dolly easily upon the soft fur, the child's golden curls gleaming in the firelight and her merry mischievous eyes glancing up every now and then at her aunt.

"Me shall have a watch and a new dollie to-morrow," she said confidentially at last; "but me will always lub my own Katie; won't me, darling?"—giving her old doll a vigurous hug. "It's my birfday, and me will have such lots of valentines! Shall 'oo have some too, auntie Gera?"

"No, no. Hush, Mollie!" exclaimed Geraldine quickly. "What was that?"

Her ear had caught the click of the heavy iron gate outside as it swung backward and forward. Some one had passed through; and in a few minutes the top of an umbrella appeared above the shrubs as its owner walked swiftly up the drive towards the house. A softened expression passed over the beautiful fair face as Geraldine bent towards the fire.

"Ah, well," she said, sighing, "it will be a change at least in this dismal monotonous day! I am glad he has come."

But when, a few minutes afterwards, she rose to greet the visitor her face wore its former look of listless indifference, and the stately grace of manner was even more marked than usual as, after a brief "Good evening, Mr. Scarsdale," she seated herself again on the low couch and motioned to him to take the seat opposite.

With quiet courtesy Mr. Scarsdale took the chair indicated, totally ignoring, or not seeing, the scornful air of indifference.

"Ah, Miss Wolff, you here?" he said; and he drew Mollie, nothing loath, on to his knee.

His grave composure irritated Geraldine.

"A horrible day, Mr. Scarsdale, as all days seem to be here! Is it always so in the country?" she asked, taking the feather-screen again in her hand.

"Not always. I don't think the country monopolizes more than its fair share of rain, whatever town may do."

"At any rate, it is never so unmitigatedly dreary in town," she returned. "Even on wet days there is always something to do."

"I will willingly grant town the monopoly of amusements. But don't you think the unmitigated dreariness has another source, Miss Cameron? Nothing to do is a most satisfactory recipe for giving a dismal color to everything."

Geraldine glanced up in cold displeasure.

"Perhaps so," she said indifferently.

But she was so unaccustomed to contradiction that the very slight insinuation of censure in his words aroused her attention effectually. Who was this country gentleman that he should presume to criticise her proceedings, and find fault with what she did or did not do—she, Geraldine Cameron, beautiful and wealthy, the spoilt pet and darling of an exclusive and aristocratic London coterie? She looked across at him from her side of the fire, and involuntarily a feeling of respect took possession of her, very foreign to her half-sarcastic, half-scornful appreciation of mankind in general. He was not a handsome man; nor could any one honestly call him ugly. He was not old, nor yet very young. His face, with its square determined outline, was deficient neither in strength nor intellect; and the keen steady eyes could soften wonderfully, and did as he smiled down at the irrepressible Mollie.

"Decidedly a man to respect, if not fear," was Geraldine's mental verdict; and with curious inconsistency she liked him all the better for the fearlessness with which he had braved her displeasure and found fault with her discontented and decidedly ill-humored self.

"Do you make a much longer stay?" interrogated Mr. Scarsdale at last, finding that Geraldine made no further remark.

"No: I return home next week."

"Ah, so soon! We shall be sorry to lose you."

He looked at her as he spoke. A faint flush raised to the fair proud face; possibly it was the reflection of the firelight—at any rate it was so slight as to be insignificant.

"Do you go alone?" he pursued.

"Oh, no! Sir Henry takes me to town of course; but Lady Netherby will not leave Silverlands at present. I think she is in the nursery. I will let her know you are here."

She looked towards the bell-handle; but, cold and stiff as her words had been, and ungracious and repellent her demeanor, Mr. Scarsdale did not take her obvious hint to ring the bell.

"Pray do not trouble," he said curtly.—"I would not disturb her on any consideration. I came to bid you good-bye."

He put Mollie down upon the floor, and got up, ostensibly to take leave, but in reality to stand by the chimney-piece and commence to move the costly ornaments up and down.

Something which Geraldine would have scorned to think was disappointment crept over her at his words. There he stood, a stern strong man, an obscure country Squire, over thirty, with not even good looks to recommend him, scarcely courteous to her; and yet she could not help a most absurd and unwonted feeling of regret at the thought of saying good-bye to him. What was there about him that aroused her interest in spite of herself? He was quite different this evening too from his usual calm self. He appeared to be in a state of suppressed excitement, which showed itself in the fidgety way he was moving the vases and statuettes on the chimney-piece.

"I wonder why he will stand up instead of sitting down?" thought Geraldine curiously. "And, if he came to say good-bye, why does he not say it and go? Alice's Dresden shepherdess will be in a thousand pieces directly."

But something in Mr. Scarsdale's restlessness influenced her; she lost a little of her cool self-possession; the feather-screen waved unquietly to and fro, and a spot of color, that plainly was no reflection of the fire, came into her cheek.

"It has been a quiet visit for you," he said at length, but without looking at her.

"Yes; it would have been that anywhere, as we do not visit since my aunt's death; but——" A slight shrug of the white shoulders and a glance at the rainy prospect outside completed her sentence eloquently.

"Do you really dislike the country so much?" he asked.

"Yes, I do;" was the pettish answer.

"Is there nothing that would make you

It has been stated by Captain Galton in his work on "Healthy Dwellings," that a new house, containing 100,000 bricks (each brick sucking up from 7 to 10 per cent of its weight of water), contains, at a reasonable calculation, 10,000 gallons of water in it. All this quantity of water has to be removed by evaporation, and the rapidity of this process will depend on the tension of the vapor at a given temperature. The rate of transmission of heat through building material depends upon their texture and composition.

Jefferson Davis' estimate of Mr. Benjamin is that he "could not be called an orator nor a debater, and yet he shed on every subject he discussed a light which answered the purpose and had the effect of both. In manners gentle and conciliatory, with a voice every tone of which was silvery, he was both persuasive and convincing. Notwithstanding the wide range of his knowledge, he was so gentle as always to be seeming to receive information, and perhaps none of his most familiar acquaintances can recall ever having seen him during social intercourse engage in heated argument. Trained to the close investigation of the law, he found periods of relaxation during which his memory became a storehouse of poetry and fiction, and in times of darkest prospect and deepest depression would enliven his comrades by recitations from his favorite, Tennyson. The pride of Louisiana, the lover of all true Confederates, the comrade of all Americans who rejoice in the glory of their countrymen, must long keep green the memory of Judah P. Benjamin."

Use the Telephone.

Friends and patrons of the EVENING EXAMINER are requested to use the telephone in communicating items of news which may come under their notice. We should be glad to avail ourselves of any information transmitted in that way before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Board of Education.

A special meeting of the Board of Education will be held on Thursday evening.

Council Meeting.

There will be a special meeting of the Town Council on Thursday night to consider the water works by-law.

Chemong Lake Regatta.

Owing to the weather the regatta advertised to take place at Chemong Lake, has been postponed until some time next month. Part of the programme was gone through with, but the balance together with other sports will take place early in July. Watch for the announcement. Splendid view from Fobert's Summer Hotel.

Gigantic Growth.

The wonderful thrift of vegetative growth this season has been often remarked, and the farm of Mr. Mark Curtis, Otonabee, furnishes proof. To-day he left at our office stalks of barley, sown thirty days ago, that measured 31 inches in length, more than an inch per day, not counting the time required for germination. Also stalks of wheat, the longest of which measured 5 feet 4 inches in length.

Masonic Excursion.

The masonic excursion to Toronto started from the Midland station this morning at 7 o'clock. A special train of seven first-class coaches, fairly filled, carried about 250 excursionists. It resulted that this number was largely added to at Omemee and Lindsay, the number being increased to 500. The train arrived in Toronto at 10.25. The day is pleasant, and the excursionists will doubtless have a delightful trip.

Launching Out.

The Orillia Times says:—The Peterborough EXAMINER, long an excellent weekly Reform journal, has extended its usefulness by launching out as a daily. The same spirit is shown in the preparation of its reading matter, and the same taste in the arrangement of the type in the evening edition as has characterized the weekly. May the proprietor reap the full reward of his enterprise.

Police Court.

Yesterday afternoon Constable Johnston noticed Elzear Brault acting in a disorderly manner on George street, and taking him under the cover of his peace-preserving wing, escorted him to hotel de mice, where Elzear remained during the cool of the evening, and until 10 o'clock this morning, when he answered to the call of his name, pleaded guilty to the charge, and subscribed an even two dollar bill towards the fund for putting new walnut hands on the town clock.

Occupants at Once.

It's a pity that the Dickson Estate Company's buildings are not ready for tenants, as occupants might, with proper management, be got for them at once. An extensive industry, the Smart & Sheppard Manufacturing Company, Brockville, offer their plant and business for sale. This factory has long been established, has an established reputation and gives employment to about 100 men. It seems that with proper exertion there would be little trouble in forming a company to purchase the business and remove it to Peterborough. There is plenty of capital in the town if it could be made available for the purpose.

Lawn Social

A lawn social was held last evening at Inglewood, the residence of Mr. W. E. Sherwood, under the auspices of the Woman's Foreign and Domestic Missionary Society of St. John's church. The Fire Brigade Band was in attendance, and enlivened the proceedings with music of the sweetest quality. The usual refreshments attending such gatherings were to be had, and after the greater part of the ice-cream had melted away, the crowd adjourned to the parlor, where an excellent programme of music was provided by Misses Errett and Tate. We have not learned the financial proceeds, but, no doubt, they will amount to a handsome sum.

LACROSSE.

Peterborough vs. Beaverton.

The Central District Medal, After Being Stayed Away in Peterborough for Two Years, Nine Months and Three Days, Leaves for Beaverton.

On Tuesday afternoon the first championship match of the season—and perhaps the last—for the Central District championship took place on the new lacrosse grounds at the Driving Park, between the Checkers, of Beaverton and the Peterboroughs; and resulted—as is well known by most of the townspeople by this time—in favor of the boys from Beaverton, who took three straight games. The grand stand did not have the same representation from the "fair sex," which characterized the attendance of spectators when the old time dozen of the P. L. C. used to "stay with the boys" in the two-acre lot in Ashburnham; not more than a dozen ladies being noticeable on that structure, when the following teams opposed each other at thirteen minutes before three o'clock:

Beaverton.	vs.	Peterborough.
McLean	Goal	Joyal
Davidson	Point	Hall
McKinnon	Cover Point	Tierney
Weeks	1st Defence	Halpin
McMillan, D.	2nd "	McDonald
Kennedy	3rd "	Fortye
Ross	Centre	Sheehy
Cameron, M C	Field	Cameron
Birchard	"	Yelland
Cameron, W K	3rd Home	Henderson
Birchard	Outside Home	Scott
McMillan, P	Inside Home	Giroux
W. Cameron	Field Captain	J. Coughlin

Mr. W. A. Robinson, Cannington, umpired at east end and Mr. Jno. Hackett, of Peterborough performed the duties of that position at the west. Mr. J. S. Garvin, of the Toronto L. C., was mutually agreed upon some time ago as referee and performed the duties attached to that position in a very creditable manner. Unfortunately for the home team, Jim Coughlin said "tail" instead of "head," and at ten minutes to three they began operations against twelve good lacrosse players and a terrible stiff breeze from the west. The ball did not seem to know, for a short time after the face, which way to travel, and the player that first undertook to teach it was Fortye, who made a good shot for the Checker's stronghold, but being a little too high was blown kingfisher-like into the net of McKinnon's crosse, who after escaping from the attention of the Peterboro's outside home sent it flying eastward. Tierney was the next possessor, and established his ownership of the reputation which he has earned for being able to toss a ball with most of the boys, transferring it to the southwest corner, where, during a scuffle, the rubber hid itself in the long grass. Jack Kennedy, to whose trust the ball was very frequently consigned, got the best of his man on the face which ensued, and for a considerable length of time the sphere showed such a tendency for the spot where Joe Joyal stood that Peterborough stock fell about ten per cent. in the betting market. At the home defence, however, Joyal, Tierney, Hall and Halpin were getting the best of their men, but despite their efforts to keep the rubber out it would return with the slightest toss, and after 16 minutes' play was fired through by Cameron. This did not seem to alarm the Peterboroughs in the least, and when at 20 minutes after three the ball was faced for the SECOND GAME,

and when Yelland was seen running towards the Checkers' goal, it was thought by most of the spectators that the breeze occasioned the defeat of the Peterboroughs in the first game. The rubber was not allowed to remain very long in those quarters, however, and before three minutes had elapsed it had found its way to Peterborough's defence, where, after passing through the hands of Cameron and the two Birchards, was reached after by Yelland. He "got there;" and threw to Sheehy, who muffed it, and the black little treasure coming into the possession of Birchard, was sent through just seven minutes after the ball was sent off by the two centres. The was started after the usual rest and the ball showed the same craze for hovering around the Peterborough goal as in the first game. Shortly after the commencement of the game Henderson received a severe cut on the head which necessitated the tying up of that portion of his body with a handkerchief, after which hostilities were resumed with renewed vigor. Kennedy especially did excellent work for the Checkers, his cool manipulation of the rubber and the effective drop shots which he managed to contribute to the Peterborough defence causing any amount of trouble to the three heavy weights who guarded that part of the field. After 24 minutes had elapsed, including the time which was lost in attending to Joe Henderson's wound, the umpire raised his hand and said "game," which concluded the afternoon's fun. Quite a number of the players objected to the decision, as well as scores of persons who stood in the vicinity of the goal, and who claimed that the ball passed at least two feet over the tops of the poles; however, on Mr. Garvin giving his opinion the loud talk subsided and the players, after giving the usual cheers, retired from the grounds.

The question which now arises is precisely the same as that which followed the result of the match in Brockville last July, with the Metropolitans, of Ottawa, and the answer, which was given to last year's query comes in, also in this instance, and is "practice." If that principle is adhered to, we have not the shadow of doubt that the medal will find its way back to Peterborough ere "the leaves begin to turn."

Remember.

The grand concert and closing exercises of the Convent of Notre Dame will take place on Friday, the 26th, inst., at 7:30 o'clock p. m., in Bradburn's Opera House. Doors open at 7 o'clock. Admission 25 cents, reserved seats 50 cents. 21-4d

Canoe Parade Postponed.

There will be no canoe parade on Little Lake to-night, the meeting having been postponed till Friday night.

Prob's Weather Promises.

The following forecast of the weather for this district for the 24 hours from 1 a. m. to-day is received from the Toronto Meterological office:—Light to moderate winds, fine weather, stationary or slightly higher temperatures.

Not So Bad.

We are requested to state that the person reported in our evening contemporary as having had his leg taken off at Waubaushene, by a railway accident, was not so badly injured. The wheel merely grazed his leg and the injuries are not serious.

Chemong Lake Regatta.

Owing to the unfavorable state of the weather, the regatta announced to take place on Thursday last, only part of the programme was gone through with. The remainder, together with other sports, will take place early in July. Persons wishing a good day's outing and a fine day's sport, should look out for the announcement of the date. A fine view from Fobert's hotel.

Golden Eye Aground.

Yesterday, while lying at Idyl Wild, the steamer Golden Eye, during the heavy gale, was blown ashore and beached in such a manner that she could not be got off. A party of picnicers on the island had to seek other means to escape. Owing to the above mishap the Otonabee excursion to have gone this morning, did not start. Commodore Calcutt expects to get the steamer into her native element to-day.

Ravages of the Gale.

The vicious gale of yesterday did considerable damage to trees in town. In every part limbs were twisted off by the force of the wind, and a great many trunks of young trees were broken clean off or uprooted. The more thrifty trees having the heaviest tops were selected for this treatment. Humanity did not escape. One young lady in crossing the Hunter street bridge had her hat blown off, and it went sailing over the river.

Decoration Day.

The merchants of Peterborough, with the exception of two, having signed a petition to close their places of business on the afternoon of Friday, the 26th inst., Decoration Day. That portion of the day will therefore assume the appearance of a holiday. The usual turnout of Oddfellows will take place and the work of decorating the graves of their departed brethern of the links will occupy the greater part of the afternoon in the Little Lake Cemetery,

The Town Clock.

The new hands for the north and south dials of the town clock have been made by Mr. A. Comstock, and are now in the hands of Mr. Watson, who is treating them to a precautionary application of three coats of paint which will preserve them from warping under the influence of the weather. The old hands were made of black ash, and had no paint to protect them, hence they warped, and did not run true, and caught on the wires put up to keep off the pigeons. The new hands will be placed on the dials in a day or two, when it is expected our much abused town clock will furnish a true record of the flight of time.

Reclaiming the Waste Places.

The local authorities are projecting a scheme for the beautifying of the little waste places in the town created by the intersection of streets that do not cross at right angles, such as the crossing of Downie and Park streets at Charlotte street. Mr. Mayor Cox, assisted, we understand, by the residents of the locality, intends to improve the little triangle of waste street at the intersection of Donnegal and Hunter streets in front of his grounds. A fountain is to be erected and the spot otherwise ornamented. A very little expenditure of thought and money in this direction will add immensely to the beauty of the streets.

You can get Pedestal Bottom Extension Tables for $9.50, worth $12.50. Bent Rim Extension Tables for $6.50, worth $8.50. Handsome Bedsteads for $3.50, worth $5.50, all hardwood, at McKee's Furniture Warerooms, Water street, three doors north of Simcoe street. 1-d

BUTTER SALT!

Although Cheese now occupies the prominent place as a dairy product of our country, Butter still is of sufficient importance to receive attention.
For years Butter Merchants have been urging Dairymen to use good Salt, and little of it, but have met with limited success.
This season, to make this matter more practical, I offer a sample of Dairy Salt which I recommend to all my butter customers. The quality and price are both right. It is quality of Butter more than profit on salt I am after, so I hope to make liberal sales.

A MIDLAND MAN'S LETTER.

The Peterborough Boys in the Campaign.

Beating the Record on the March.

The Boys on Their Good Behaviour.

Gratitude for Supplementary Supplies.

We received to-day from a member of the Peterborough company of the Midland Battalion, two letters. Both arrived in the same mail, one having been delayed. The first, in order, we give below; the other will appear to-morrow. They are both straight forward, graphic records of the experiences of the boys by flood and field, and will be read with interest by our citizens. To-morrow's letter will contain a picturesque narrative of the trip on the Saskatchewan to Battoche:

CLARKE'S CROSSING, June 4th, 1885.

DEAR EXAMINER,—When I sent you my last we were camped at Maple Creek, the place we liked so well, and we were content to stop awhile; but two days after I sent it we got fresh orders. We were having a good time, between cricket matches, foot races and various athletic sports, when the "fall in" sounded after dinner one day, and we were formed up on our parade ground. Lieut. Brennan then read a despatch ordering us to join our headquarters, and giving us half an hour to strike tents and prepare to march. The boys burst into which the officers attempted to check without success, and we sprang to the work of taking down and packing up our canvas city. It would astonish you to see how quickly it was done, and we were waiting for the transport team to take us to the station, three miles away. It was a cold and miserable afternoon, with a searching wind sweeping over the plains. We were wishing for the command to fall in, when Sergeant Myles, who was

A SPONTANEOUS CHEER,

APPOINTED BRIGADE ORDERLY, came up and reported that we were not to move till six, as the train was late. There was nothing for us but to pitch the tents again, which was done with no good grace. After supper we again struck tents, packed them and prepared to move. Our luggage was packed on the police teams, the two companies fell in, and as the shades of night were falling over the plain we commenced our three miles march to the village, in heavy marching order. As we moved off some of our boys struck up a lively marching song, and all joined in making the silent prairie ring with our melody, Billy Browne and Dick Kelly taking leading parts. We soon reached the station, and found to our disgust that the train would not be along till the next morning. With very ruffled feelings we

PITCHED TENTS, FOR THE THIRD TIME

that day, on the grass in front of the village, but bad temper vanished like mist when the joyful and exciting report reached us that a mail had come in, and all hurried eagerly off each hoping against hope that there was something for him. Then might he seem the lucky fellow who had got one or two letters, lying back on his hard bed with a bright happy look on his face, oblivious to all things and back again in spirit to dear old Peterborough and home; or the poor fellows for whom there was nothing, with gloom and misery stamped on their nut brown faces. Some of our lads think they are forgotten. If their friends knew how they longed for a letter from home, they would have written oftener. Early next morning we struck tents, packed up and were on the train. We reached Swift Current at 2 p. m. and remained cramped in the cars till 6 p. m.,

ANXIOUSLY AWAITING FURTHER ORDERS.

Suddenly the bugle sounded, we were hurried out of train, fell in, and told that we would march at once to the Saskatchewan Ferry, to proceed down the river by the "Northcote" and join General Middleton.

Now the boys had heard of the engagement between Middleton and the half-breeds and Otter and the Indians, with increasing vexation that they were not there, and it began to look as though they would be left out in the cold, but now they were at last on the way to the scene of action and

DETERMINED TO DO THEIR DUTY.

At six p.m., we commenced our tramp to the ferry, a distance of 37 miles, with strong limbs and light hearts, singing gayly and cheerfully as we went. We marched until nine o'clock, and had gone about 12 miles, when we halted and waited for the teams to come up. When the teams did come up we found that we were two miles past the regular halting place. Where we were there was no water. I am afraid some of us thought rather regretfully of our comfortable homes, but cold and tired as we were we again began our march. Suddenly a halt was called. For a short time all was confusion, soldiers, teamsters, mules, horses and everything mixed promiscuously, men seeking for knapsacks, haversacks, rifles, etc., but soon order evolved out of chaos and the white tents

SPRANG UP AS BY MAGIC.

Tom Billings and Billy Brown soon had fires and hot tea for us, while the boys of our tent skirmished around for hard tack, canned meat or whatever they could get. Bright and early next morning the bugle sounded and we turned out and prepared for our march of 25 miles, which we accomplished in about 7 hours, under a very hot sun, with no water but that out of stagnant ponds, and everything on but our knapsacks. The total distance of

37 MILES WAS COVERED IN 10 HOURS,

and we would like to hear of it being beaten. Some of the greatest marches made out here, were done on prairie wagons; but the Midlands 'marched' every foot of the ground they claim to have done. We were glad enough when we reached the ferry, but found no steamer, nor any of our battalion, as they had gone off on her. We did find a flotilla of barges, which we were told would be towed in some mysterious manner by the steamer; how, we could not see, as she was probably two hundred miles from us then, and in no way remarkable for her speed.

Friday and Saturday, May 7th and 8th, we rested here very comfortably—and also Sunday. On Sunday forenoon the 7th Fusiliers, of London, marched in, and judging from their jaded appearance they did not stand the march anything like we did. That evening we marched over to their camp ground for divine service, conducted by their chaplain. We formed a face of the hollow square and listened with to a spirited and manly address, such as men need who are about to face the enemy. As he touched on home and dear friends far away, tears could be seen stealing down more than one bronzed cheek, and when we sang "Nearer My God to Thee," "Old Hundred," and other well-known hymns, the melody of martial voices seemed to come directly from every heart. Service over we marched back to our quarters, where we were again agreeably surprised to find that a mail had arrived. With that mail came the news of the kind and generous action of the congregation of the George Street Methodist Church, and the boys felt a strong desire to cheer especially at the action of the children, and were only deterred by respect for the day.

The orders for the morning, however, were not so pleasant; which were, that we turn out in heavy marching order at five o'clock having previously had our breakfast and struck our tents. We were ready for anything, and we soon found that we were to load the flotilla of barges and convey them to Clarke's Crossing, a distance of 250 miles, and do it without the aid of a steamer either.

UP AT FOUR IN THE MORNING,

In my next I will try and give you an account of our journey down the river. I might say, however, that all our boys are in splendid health, but burned as black as Big Bear or any other barbarian. Billy Reynolds, Joe Chowen, E. Daly (formerly of Napanee), Billy Brown, Jim McFee (of Keene), Jack Beach (who is becoming a better buglar every day), "Scotty" Ross, Percy Myles, M. Breckenridge, Jas. Thompson (of Westwood), Cyrenus Parks, all of No. 1 tent, are especially well and hearty and wish to be remembered to all their friends.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO DESCRIBE the gratitude and thankfulness of the boys to the people of Peterborough, especially the ladies, for the kind and generous gifts, welcome as a letter from home—they have sent us. If they had seen our happy radiant faces they would have felt amply rewarded for their trouble and expense.
